WHAT KEEPS HIM AWAY—LACK OF MONEY, OR A CHANGE OF HEART

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 20 and have been going steady for two years with a young man two years older. That is, we were going steady until a few weeks ago when he lost his job.

After that, of course, he didn't have the money to take me out as he used to do, so he began to come around less and less until now I haven't seen him or heard from him in two weeks.

I told him that it didn't matter if he couldn't take me to the same kind of places he did before, that I loved him enough to stay home in the evening and watch television or just go out for a walk, but he didn't seem to want to.

What do you think I can do about this?

Alice D.

It is usually hard for girls to understand the men are so sensitive about not being financially able to do all the things their girls that they want to do. That feeling, however, is very deep-seated and strong in men, and I can responsible for much trouble in married life.

If losing his job is the only reason for the way he is acting, and he is acting everything will probably straighten out once he has another job. In the meantime, you might drop him a friendly note to tell him you think he's a swell guy and it's lack of money or a change of heart that is keeping him away.

HE WANTS TO PASS ON A WORD OF WARNING

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I recently read your column about a girl who has been going steady for a year and whose boy friend asked her to have an affair with him, telling her that he would not hold it against her but would still think the same of her.

I had the same thing happen to me some time ago. At the time I was 18 and the fellow was 26. I, too, believed he was sincere and I trusted him. Later, he married someone else.

Never since then have I really been myself, because I have always had a feeling of guilt.

I would like to say to this girl, out of my experience, that before she agrees to any friend's proposition she had better just forget him fast, before she has the same experience.

S.J.

One of the saddest things about life is that so many of us, when young, seem to acquire necessary and important bits of wordly wisdom only through the intimate experience. Warnings given us by others make little or no impression. We always think that what may happen to others won't happen to us; our case is different. And so we do the unwise thing, and make the mistake, and are amazed, brokenhearted and often disillusioned, because, naturally it did happen to us after all.

One of the mistakes we do not need to go on making, however, is to carry along with us through life the excess baggage of a guilty conscience. It's not only quite unnecessary, but very wrong to do this. Once we have realized our mistake and learned from it, we should put it in the past and not allow it to poison the future. That is the way people grow in character, and in all the other qualities that make a successful life. Don't permit yourself to be only half a person by preventing the other half from growing. Let yourself be the whole person you were meant to be, and can be, by forgetting into your attitudes and philosophy the wicked, the insight and the understanding of others that all your experiences together can bring you.

THREE CHRISTMAS CARD HIGHLIGHTS

Wonderful news about Christmas cards this year is the predominance of religious cards. This year one card out of every five cards has a religious theme . . . over twice as many as last year ago! There must be a special significance in this fact this year . . . that when so many hearts and spirits are reaching for the inspiration and comfort of religion. Everywhere you will find a wide variety of appealing and impressive religious cards. The shining wonder of the Nativity, the Blessed Christ Child, the gentle Madonna, the Holy Family, The Star of Bethlehem, with its eternal radiance. Adoring angels with their triumphant message. A youthful shepherd, "watching his flock by night." The Three Wise Men with their eager, searching faces.

There are many beautiful reproductions of famous and beloved paintings of the Madonna. And there are lovely and colorful illustrations of religious symbols . . . church steeples, church bells ringing, worshippers entering a church for the Christmas service, carolers with their cheeks rosy and red—as never before have there been such handsome angels glowing as now in "religious light" of stained glass windows.

Many cards carry Biblical quotations, some printed manuscript-style with elaborately illuminated initial letters, some with illuminated borders. On many cards a line from-heart-to-heart prayer, "May the Peace and Joy of Christmas abide with you throughout the new year." And on many, many cards the thought and remembrance message: "Glory to God in the highest. And on Earth, Peace, and Good Will toward all."

And do you know that this year a movement has been started to urge church members to send truly reverent Christmas greetings? At Sunday services before and during the holiday season many ministers will make an announcement concerning this to their congregations.

2. "Greetings." 1953 cards show a special fondness for this endearing and engaging word. The joyous look of "Greetings," the joyous lilt of "Greetings" is featured charmingly in a variety of elegant ways, mostly simple-in-ways. Greetings is a word of real charm . . . has the lovely grace of its personality you will find. This year are an exceptional number of designs that use this word alone, in handsome script or block letters on the fine paper of folded cards.

3. Today more and more Christmas cards seem to say, "We're going to you to take your Christmas cards more personal." They do this by being brief to lure you to "write inside." On the cover some delightful words . . . set on the inside nice blank pages waiting for your message. "Hello! It's Christmas!" on the first page, or on today's cheery "Hi!" or "greetings" from me," or a simple Christmas symbol, a pert little Christmas wreath or Christmas tree, or a branch of holly, or a Christmas star. Write your own message within and sign it yourself . . . here's a healthy reflection against the worn-out jingles and the tired-out phrases with their

QUESTION:

. . . years ago I used to pickle mushrooms but can find no recipe now . . . I pickled a few mushrooms, but altho' not bad tasting they just were not spicy enough. — Mrs. F. J., Dearborn, Mich.

ANSWER:

Another country heard from. Welcome to our fold.

PICKLED MUSHROOMS

Buy 2 lbs. button-size mushrooms and wash and scrub them well under running cold water. If washed well these do not require scraping or trimming. However they should be not more than 1-day-old. Drain, Sprinkle with 1 tablespoon salt in an enamel pan and let stand over very low heat, to draw out some of the liquid. Shake the pan occasionally,—about 15 minutes in all. Drain, rinse and dry. Cook To 1 quart vinegar add 1 cup granulated sugar, 12 oz. peppercorns, 3 blades mace. Bring this to boil. Add the mushrooms and the liquor in pan, bring to boil and simmer 10 minutes. Pack into sterile jars and seal. These will keep for two weeks in the refrigerator even if they are unsealed.

QUESTION:

. . . get a great deal of benefit from your recipes and also from "Ice Box Cookie" recipe. A basic one which can be varied with different nuts and fruits. I want it for making up and freezing to give to my friends at Christmas for their deep freezers for a small gift. Also Also grateful for shortbread cookies for presents. Here are a few questions. (1) Why is it that if I enlarge an ice box recipe they always seem to be either too much flour or too much shortening? (2) I use margarine—should I use less? (3) Could I use a mixture of margarine and lard to cut down the cost? (4) What about eggs. Should I put in more or less when increasing a recipe? (5) Should I add more or less sugar when I enlarge from brown to white? —Mrs. Allen W.

ANSWER:

If you follow exactly instructions in the following recipe it will be unnecessary to ask your questions. Do not try to change anything—this is a carefully thought out recipe, which has been tested several times.

SIX-IN-ONE COOKIES

One cup butter or margarine, 1-2 cup brown sugar, 1-2 cup white sugar, 1 beaten egg, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, 2 cups stirred but not sifted all-purpose flour, 1-2 teaspoon soda, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 square bitter chocolate melted, 1-4 cup each shredded cocoanut, chopped raisins, chopped pecans, 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoon mixed Cream butter. Gradually cream sugars into it. Beat egg and vanilla into mixture is light and fluffy. Add egg and vanilla. Sift flour, soda and salt together and gradually add to mixture. Beat well after each addition. Divide dough into six equal parts. To one portion add chocolate; to another cocoanut; to another raisins; to another pecans, to the fifth cinnamon and nothing, and to the last one nothing. Shape each portion into a roll 1 3-4 inches in diameter. Wrap and chill. If to be frozen, freeze, and when will store satisfactorily for six months. To Bake—Remove from refrigerator or freezer. Slice thin. Bake at once in dough 1-8 inch thick. Bake on ungreased cookie sheets at 375 deg. Fahr. for 10 or 12 minutes.

SCOTCH SHORTBREAD

Two cups butter or margarine, 1 cup unsifted icing sugar, 4 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1-2 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt. Cream the butter until light and fluffy and gradually add the sugar while creaming. Sift dry ingredients together and stir them in until smooth. Chill dough. Roll out one-third of it at a time on lightly floured surface to 1-4-inch thickness (or thicker if you wish). Cut in fancy shapes and bake, on ungreased cookie sheets at 325 deg. Fahr. until they change to a deeper biscuit shade but do not become gold at all—about 20 minutes, or until crisp enough to be lifted from pan with spatula.

COMPLEXION PACKS

Should you happen to have an evening when you don't know what to do with yourself, give your complexion a little extra attention. It will be infinitely rewarding.

Operators in beauty shops are enthusiastic about complexion packs, but find that most of the cash customers are seeking the facial facials consisting of creaming and massaging and the application of fragrant lotions all topped off with a professional make-up job. But complexion packs, which are so beneficial, can be self-administered. You get most of the ingredients right out of the kitchen cabinet or the refrigerator which makes for quite a saving in the beauty budget.

The so-called clay pack is an excellent means of clearing the pores of atmospheric dust. Get a small quantity of Kaolin from your druggist. Kaolin is our old friend, Fuller's earth, used for freshening felts and furs, but made clean by sterilization.

If your skin is inclined to be oily, mix the kaolin with witch hazel until the mass is the consistency of whipped cream. Spread it over a clean skin surface—be sure to include your neck-using your fingertips or a silver butter knife for the purpose—and add a touch to your lobes. Before applying, bind back your hair with a small bandage.

Once the mask is on, you can relax. Pull your chair up to your mystery story as it should remain on for half an hour or so. Remove the pack with a moistened towel. Then on with a heavy massage cream into sagging jaws and throat. While the cream remains on skim an ice cube over face and neck.

Kaolin is inclined to sag, beaten egg white makes a beautiful stabilizer. Let it remain on until the flesh feels drawn. The honey pack is Lord Hollywood's whimsy. Another soothing pack is made by combining almond meal with a little cream. Spread on evenly; then apply hot moist compresses. Remove in 10 minutes and put on cold applications.

Don't Thaw Fish Before Cooking

TORONTO—Frozen fish should not be allowed to thaw before cooking, because some of the bacteria found in fish can live at very low temperatures and consequently the fish will not remain fresh long after it is thawed, points out Margaret E. Smith, Ph.B., M.Sc., director of nutrition for the Heart League of Canada. Fish is purposely frozen in small packages to eliminate leftovers. Miss Smith suggests that pieces of frozen fish should be placed in boiling water for a minute or two prior to cooking — "just long enough for the outside protein cells to become coagulated."

After this they should be wiped in crumbs for immediate frying, or placed in the oven for baking. Fish should be served immediately after cooking.

When a frozen fillet of fish is to be baked the nutritionist makes this suggestion: remove the wrapping, pour boiling water over the filet, then wrap in foil and bake in thoroughly washed cheesecloth, and cook in boiling water for about 10 minutes.

The main point to remember is to submit frozen fish to boiling water and cook immediately," Miss Smith emphasizes.

Wellington on the Lake

INDIAN SUMMER.

The sunlit fields, all brown and bare,
The twinkling waters of the stream,
The purple haze, the amber light
That lure us to the realm of dream
Weave round our hearts a magic spell—
A spell of restful quietude —
The glory of the summer part,
Brooding o'er lake and hill and wood.

So when life's summer days are past
And age comes like the withered leaf,
Youth's roses faded, torn and dead,
Life's harvest like ripe corn in sheaf,
Hearts may retain the light and glow
The spirit of life's summer dead,
As Indian summer smiles to show
The glory of the days long fled.
—Helen B. Anderson.

WELLINGTON — The November meeting of the Women's Institute was held Tuesday evening in the town hall. An interesting feature of the program was a travel-talk with views given by Miss Viola Valleau on her holiday trip to the west. The program was arranged by Mrs. Frank Harris and Mrs. W. Jackson. Mrs. C. Tripp read the poem of the month and Mrs. Calver gave community items. Lunch was served at the close.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Foster, Hillier, will soon be moving into their new home on Main Street, recently purchased from Mrs. Daniels.

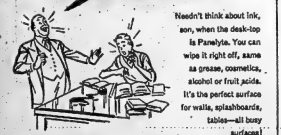
Mrs. Adam Lloyd opened her home for a meeting of the W.A. of Hillier United Church. There were fifteen members attending and a pleasant time is reported.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carley and Mr. and Mrs. E. Benham of Bloomfield enjoyed a drive to Colborne on Sunday.

Mrs. McCarkill with Mrs. Ralph Dorland and Mrs. Garratt called on Mrs. Effie Phillips, who has been a patient in Picton hospital for some time. Mrs. Phillips is missed by many friends who are waiting for her recovery.

Mrs. G. Upton entertained a few friends at afternoon tea on Tuesday celebrating the birthday of Mrs. E. Bond. Other guests included Mrs. Edna Platt, Mrs. Harry Carley and Mrs. T. Boyle.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Bowerman of Detroit, former county residents are enjoying holidays in England. In a recent letter he writes: "We have just finished a motor trip of the British Isles. Today we visited the parliament buildings and in the gallery of the House of Commons and listened to the debate on the British Guiana situation."



Miss Mary Lumb has returned home after spending a week with her sister, Mrs. Wright, of Plainfield.

APPEALS FOR MEETING

VIENNA (Reuters) — Premier Joliot-Curie, French atom scientist opened the fifth session of the Communist-led World Peace Council here Monday with a newspaper appeal for a five-power meeting. He told 400 delegates that "though such a meeting might not lead to concrete results it would certainly be a good basis for future negotiations on current international problems." Delegates included Dr. James Endicott of Toronto.

W.A. to Donate Christmas Gifts

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Mrs. Ritchie Ketcheson and Mrs. Arnold Ketcheson were hostesses to the ladies of White's Women's Association. The president, Mrs. Ernest Curtis, presided. Mrs. R. W. T. Middleton gave a very fine address under the heading of "Christian Stewardship," from the standpoint of personality, time, talents, influence and money.

Mrs. W. A. Jeffery gave a report of finances, including a very encouraging report of the bazaar and tea held in October.

It was decided to accept the invitations to the bazaar and tea at Wesley and Tabernacle churches. It was decided that each member would give a Christmas gift to the Salvation Army.

Mrs. Walter Jones, Mrs. Clayton Stickle and Mrs. Leonard Young were named as the nominating committee to bring in a slate of officers for the coming year.

It was decided to have an oyster supper at the congregational meeting at the church. Oysters, cake, sandwiches and tea will be served and soup dishes should be taken by each family.

Mrs. Clifton Rush was in charge of the program.

Mrs. Arnold Ketcheson won the musical box game. Mrs. Rush read "A-Popping Corn". All joined in an alphabet contest. Mrs. C. Ketcheson read "Mum's Apron."

The hostess served refreshments.

Mrs. Dudley moved a vote of thanks to the hostesses and to all those who helped make the meeting a success.

FARGO trucks get more work done - more easily - for less cost

Here's a typical example—a Fargo half-ton express, like all Fargo trucks, is easy and comfortable to drive . . . easy to work—and easy on your pocketbook to operate. Whether it's a Fargo half-ton Express, a handsome, versatile Panel, or any of the Fargo models ranging up to 40,000 lbs. G.V.W., remember—you'll save and make money with a Fargo, because Fargo is built to fit the job!

YOU SEE BETTER
Big, wide, one-piece curved windshield . . . big door windows with low, comfortable "elbow-height" sills . . . new, low slope-down hood . . . let you see more of the road than from any ordinary truck.

YOU GET THE RIGHT ENGINE
Whatever your hauling needs, there's a rugged Fargo truck engine that's engineered for your job, your type of hauling . . . to keep your costs down!

YOU CAN LOAD AND UNLOAD EASIER
New, low, knee-level loading height with no loss of road clearance . . . new extra-wide, extra-strong, extra-long running boards for side loading . . . help make your driver's job a lot easier, a lot less fatiguing.

YOU GET IN AND OUT MORE EASILY
New, low running boards and wide, high doors get you in and out with passenger-car convenience.

YOU LOADS RIDE EASILY
Improved spring-suspension and self-adapting Oriflow shock absorbers protect your loads.

YOU CAN TURN SHORTER

YOU HAVE SURE-STOP BRAKES
Not only four-wheel hydraulic brakes, but rear-wheel brakes are big, dual-cylinder type, assuring safe, sure stops. Cyclebond riveless brake linings last longer than ordinary linings.

YOU SIT MORE COMFORTABLY
You'll work better, relax more in Fargo's new cabs . . . redesigned for more comfort. Chair-high seats, with adjustable, full-luxury seat cushions, are big enough for three husky men.

YOU HAVE EASIER HANDLING

PLEASURE ISLE

Photographers hurriedly snapped pictures. The gangway was moved away again and after a final wave from the Queen the door was closed and the propellers began spinning in the dark.

DAWN TAKE OFF

The glistening, silver and blue, four-engined plane with the Royal standard fluttering from its tail, silver mast over the cockpit lumbered along the tarmac and out to the end of the runway. There it paused for five minutes then roared off into the dawn light.

The Canopus made the 2,400-mile flight from London in nine hours and 57 minutes, maintaining an altitude of 18,000 feet for most of the trip to keep above stormy weather.

The ocean flight was the first by a reigning British monarch.

The plane completed the first leg of the flight at 5:23 a.m. NST (1:53 a.m. EST) and took off on the second leg, 1,000 miles to Bermuda, at 4:57 a.m. (3:27 a.m. EST).

LIGHTS DIMMED

The airport was a blaze of light as the plane swooped out of the gloom and taxied to the ramp. But when it swung into position all the lights were dimmed except those on the runways, which guided the escorting RCAF Lancaster to a landing.

Capt. A. C. Loraine, the plane's captain, said it was a "very good trip." He was surprised to learn from a reporter that his possessions were stolen from his home in London by burglars while he and his wife were at the airport.

He said before he left he told his wife to be sure to turn on the burglar alarm.

Eight warships, including the Royal Canadian Navy vessels, Micmac, Algonquin and Prestonian, were stationed along the plane's route during the ocean crossing. Aside from the escort aircraft, search and rescue planes stood by at Gander and Greenwood, N.S.

The Duke was in the cockpit of the plane during the flight but did not take over the controls.

MORE THAN ONE

An initial request from the U.S. State department was rejected by Canada and Pearson said on his arrival in New York the reply to the second request would be made today or Wednesday.

Pearson's text contained no direct reference to the Gouzenko issue although he made a jocular allusion at one point when he said extemporaneously:

"We of the English - Speaking Union are far above the lower levels of politics where, I hope, no one will ask 'why don't you make Gouzenko available?' "

Much of Pearson's speech appeared relevant to the current controversy, however, and some remarks seemed to be directed at the methods used by some congressional investigators.

DIFFERENCE OF APPROACH

He said that while "slackness" in dealing with communism "is bound to lead understandably to recriminations, a fundamental difference of approach . . . can also cause differences and difficulties inside nations and between nations, though they are trying to reach the same basic objectives."

Pearson said the United States, because of its dominant position in world affairs, must be aware that its friends are "intensely preoccupied and even anxious over everything that is said and done by the dominant partner."

"How could it be otherwise when these actions may determine, not only the destiny of her own citizens who have at least direct responsibility for them, but also that of friends and allies who cannot escape the consequences for good or ill of a governmental decision in Washington, or even a congressional blast."

A telegram to the English-Speaking Union from President Eisenhower said Britain, the United States and other free nations "must work together in trust and intimacy."

CROLL ASKS IKE

He said this was being done by "smearing" External Affairs Minister Pearson. He called on President Eisenhower, who made a "courtesy visit" to Ottawa Nov. 13-14, to repudiate the attacks.

"I think the time has come to serve a hands-off notice to McCarthyism," Mr. Croll said. "The time has come to bring back to them that we are not going to be pushed around."

McCarthyites were prepared to set up Mr. Pearson "as their next candidate for trial by slander" if Canada turned down the second request for Gouzenko, who now lives under an assumed name and RCMP guard in an undisclosed Ontario town.

"The McCarthyites now want Igor Gouzenko to join the circus and do some one-night stands on television. . . Gouzenko is manna from heaven for them." The fact that Gouzenko could provide no new evidence was "of no consequence", to the McCarthyites.

WRONG MAN, COUNTRY

Referring to the "smear" against Mr. Pearson, Mr. Croll said: "Well maybe the smear works south of the border, but it will not work in Canada. This time the McCarthyites have picked the wrong country and the wrong man for their smear."

Stanley Knowles, CCF member for Winnipeg North Centre, said the entire Commons agreed with Mr. Croll. If Gouzenko was interviewed by U.S. investigators, similar requests would be made for other Canadians to testify and "the first of such requests we refused to go would be branded as a Communist."

Mr. Knowles said Canada should stand its ground in refusing the U.S. request and ask Gouzenko, now reported to have a second book ready for publication, not to press for an opportunity to testify.

Gouzenko's first book, This Was My Choice, was made into a Hollywood movie.

Letter words came from Mr. Pearson, who addresses the English-Speaking Union of New York Monday night.

His speech contained no direct reference to the Gouzenko controversy, but sections of it appeared relevant to the issue.

PLEA FOR TOLERANCE

He pleaded for tolerance among free nations, particularly in reconciling different ways of dealing with communism in each country. The democracies should be "alert and realistic" about the Communist menace, but should "refuse to get panicky or be stampeded into the wrong way of doing things."

He declined to comment to New York reporters on the Gouzenko case, saying only that the Canadian government will reply to the second U.S. request today or Wednesday and that he has no intention of going to Washington to discuss the matter.

KOSLIN

KOSLIN.—On Wednesday evening, St. John's Ladies' Guild of Moneymore, held a successful bazaar and euchre in the Orange Hall, Moneymore.

The bazaar tables had a good display of sewing, fancy work, knitting, quilting, home cooking and candy, plants, vegetables and surprise packages. Booths did a thriving business during the early part of the evening.

Euchre was played with 15 tables in place. Prize winners were, Mrs. Smiley Coulter and Mrs. A. Bates and Mr. Jim Alexander and Mr. Percy Vance.

Lucky chair prize, Mr. McCaw.

Mrs. J. Johnson won a draw for a cushion.

Refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed.

Roslin United Church held morning and evening anniversary services last Sunday.

Sunday was also re-opening service since the church was redecorated.

Mr. Bruce Besley, a student minister from Queen's University, Kingston, was the guest speaker for the day.

FRANKFORD

ANGLICAN CHURCH GUILD

FRANKFORD — A meeting of Trinity Anglican Church Guild was held Thursday afternoon in the parish hall with the president, Mrs. Marjorie Mikel, in the chair. Two invitations to attend bazaars were read; one from the Stockdale W.A. on Wednesday evening, November 25 and from Ratawa W.A. on Wednesday afternoon, December 2.

The business session was short in order to give more time to quilting for the Guild members were asked to attend Thursday, Nov. 26 to finish the quilt.

The tea hostesses for the December 10th meeting will be the ladies of the copper contest.

The members decided to draw names and exchange gifts, as it will be a Christmas meeting.

Tea hostess was Mrs. Oscar Farrar, who served refreshments.

YOUNG EXPLORERS

A new group called the Young Explorers Group has been formed for the children of the United Church, ranging in age from 10 to 14 years.

Rev. Clarke has started this group and will be the chief counsellor for this year. The group met Thursday night, Nov. 19 in Rose Lowery hall, with 20 in attendance.

The purpose of the club is to give boys and girls a better understanding of Christian living and good citizenship, and to provide good entertainment and a work project for the winter months.

In time the boys and girls will be divided into 6 groups under the guidance of special teachers who are now being trained.

Each group will consist of 8 children.

'Rhine Journey' Next Picture In Kiwanis Series

A technicolor "Rhine Journey" from Switzerland to the sea, is in store for patrons of the Kiwanis Club's World Travel and Adventure Series which continues Thursday evening, November 26, in the Collegiate auditorium. The sixth picture in the series, "Rhine Journey" is described as a photographic poem of the most fabled river on earth.

The story unfolds through Switzerland, Germany and Holland, to the accompanying music of Wagner. Actual on the spot recordings bring to life a wedding dance, a wine festival dance and a ballet of Alpine singers and dancers on a revolving stage right on the Rhine river. There are some scenes from Oberammagau's famous Passion Play.

The film itinerary includes Lake Constance, the Bavarian Alps, Freiburg, the Black Forest, Heidelberg, Rothenburg, Cologne, Dusseldorf, Nijmegen and Holland with its beautiful tulip gardens.

"Rhine Journey" is a record of scenic loveliness replete with human interest and native life, free of war, devastation and politics.

Potato Price Which Currently Dropped from '51 and '52 Levels to Continue Low in '54

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's potato growers may find selling a little tougher next year with heavy supplies developing both in Canada and the United States, a committee of federal experts said today.

Thus, potato prices, which currently have dropped from 1951 and 1952 levels, will continue to remain low in 1954, the committee said.

Continuing its report to the annual federal-provincial agricultural conference, the committee forecast:

1. Canada's supply of fruits, particularly apples and grapes, likely will be more plentiful next year.

2. The marketing of honey crop may be expected in 1954, but the maple syrup crop may be down.

4. Production of edible vegetable oils has reached an all-time high but Canada requires more than she produces. Consumption for shortening and margarines increased 147,000,000 pounds in the 1952-53 crop year, 105,000,000 more than Canada produced.

5. Supply of cereal, flax, corn, bean, pea and soybean seeds likely will be sufficient for all domestic needs.

NEW HEADACHES

The farm conference faced new headaches today, following Monday's reports that farm production may increase next year while prices drop.

National and provincial spokesmen for Canadian agriculture Monday proposed a cut in grain production to remove the threat of another grain glut. Roy Marler, president of the Alberta Federation of Agriculture, suggested that wheat be trimmed by 30 per cent with the extra acreage headed to grass and legumes.

Federal experts today reported Canadian flaxseed acreage likely will be further reduced next year. Flaxseed writers had the record $2.57 a bushel from $3.54 last year, and the outlook for price improvement was "considerably darkened" by United States action.

The U.S. Commodity Credit Corporation had exported 44,800,000 pounds of linseed oil last summer at 8½ cents a pound, at a time when the U.S. domestic price was about 16 cents and the Canadian price about 13 cents.

The experts predicted, however, that soybean acreage will expand in 1954. Canadian production processors expect that in 10 years, Ontario farmers produces may reach 20,000,000 bushels, roughly four times current output.

And though tobacco exports may decline next year, the slack likely will be taken up by heavier domestic requirements.

Missing Airwoman Returns to Home After 19 Months

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 28-year-old Victoria airwoman, who turned up Sunday after being missing for 19 months, is under detention, at RCAF headquarters here.

ALL OVER CONTINENT

"She has been all over the North American continent," an RCAF spokesman said here, "but we have not got the details. She must first be questioned by a service officer."

The spokesman said the RCAF had "a tip she was coming home" and RCAF police interviewed her at the home of her aunt and uncle in Victoria.

"She decided it was best to clear up the mystery of her disappearance," said the spokesman.

"I believe she came here from San Francisco but we are not sure."

The spokesman said Miss Burton would be charged with desertion and would be held in detention here pending an Ottawa decision on whether she will be tried on the charge here or be returned to Aylmer.

Fair Executives Hear Address On Advertising

TORONTO (CP) — Harry E. Foster, Toronto advertising executive, said Monday exhibition managers shouldn't try to "high-hat" the customers or use outdated operating methods.

In an address to the Association of Exhibitions, Mr. Foster said fairs and exhibitions "will never attain greatness if they think in the era of the modern bridge. Even the most rural areas of Canada are becoming dominated by the city buzzy, bustling cosmopolitan life."

He said the first advertising used by the Canadian National Exhibition was a newspaper. From then on the story of fair advertising has mained the most successful and effective media used.

Diefenbaker Says Party's Defeat Not Drew's Fault

TORONTO (CP) — John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Prince Albert, said Monday night that responsibility for his party's defeat in the last federal election lies with the bottom of the party organization—not the top.

"The responsibility for defeat does not rest on leadership, it does not rest on the establishment—I remember told a party gathering here.

"We must organize in every part of Canada and enlist young men and women who will be ready to take the assistance of business and professional leaders and agriculture will we rebuild our party."

Mr. Diefenbaker said Progressive Conservatism principles, under the leadership of George Drew, can be acceptable to Canadians in years ahead.

Red Guerrillas Clash With Police

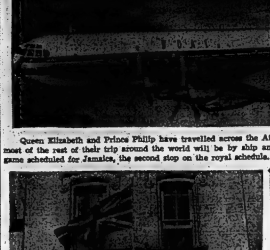
He guerrillas are known to have killed the police chief and other policemen, but the fate of the remaining 7 police was not immediately known. About 10 men were on duty at the time.

Latest reports told of continued fighting.

BACK IN MOSCOW



LONDON (Reuters)—The Daily Mirror suggested today that Buckingham Palace be opened to the public while the Queen is touring the Commonwealth.

"What a gesture it would be—which I am sure is the new plan for bringing the monarchy closer to the people—by fling open the gates to all comers," the paper said.

Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip have travelled across the Atlantic by BOAC stratocruiser, but most of the rest of their trip round the world will be by ship and rail. Prince Philip has a polo game scheduled for Jamaica, the second stop on the royal schedule.

Bermuda's public buildings are gaily decorated for the visit of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip. It is the first official stop of the royal couple in the tour that will last more than five months and take them to all the distant parts of the commonwealth. — Central Press Canadian.

RCN Will Not Reach 21,000 Objective for NATO in 1954

VICTORIA (CP) — The Royal Canadian Navy will not reach its manpower objective of 21,000 men, set to meet North Atlantic Treaty Organization commitments in 1954, Rear Admiral H. F. Pullen said here Monday.

The navy's personnel chief blamed "a lack of something" in Canadian homes, schools and churches for the high rate of rejections of applicants seeking a navy career.

"It is very serious situation," he said in an interview. "the answer lies in the homes, schools and churches. At time we had a look at how these people are being brought up."

Reiterating earlier navy announcements that the senior service would not lower its entrance standards, Admiral Pullen said RCN recruiting last year was 19,- 231 officers and men, 4,800 short of the mid-1954 objectives.

LACK REQUIREMENTS

He said in one 12-month period the navy rejected 67 per cent of total applications and that another 10 to 15 per cent were released during early training.

Largest single group of rejects were applicants who failed a general learning ability test. About 2,300 applicants—27.4 per cent—did not get the required 21 out of 80 marks. Of the remained 12 per cent lacked the grade eight education requirement, 4.9 per cent were physically unfit, 7.2 per cent were over age, 5.9 per cent were under age, 8.7 per cent were generally unsuitable and others lacked nationality or domicile requirements. Admiral Pullen said he was "most concerned" by the lack of learning ability and the general unsuitability figures.

JETS LEAVE KOREA

TOKYO (AP)—The United States Air Force announced today the veteran 49th fighter-bomber wing of the 5th Air Force—about 100 swift F-84 Thunderjets—has been pulled out of Korea. However, the fighter-bombers are at Japanese bases and will be able to strike immediately if the Korean war breaks out again, the air force said.

Canadian Woe Maid's Stockings At Coronation

CHATHAM (CP)—A Canadian member of Parliament wore a London dressmaker's silk stockings at the Coronation in Westminster Abbey last June, the president of the Engineering Institute of Canada said Monday night.

Ross Dobbin told the Kent County Engineering Society that on Coronation morning a government member telephoned his London hotel room to ask for the loan of black silk stockings, required dress for the stoney gathering.

Mr. Dobbin, a bachelor, had none himself. But he found a hotel chambermaid wearing a pair. He bought them from her and delivered them.

The government member's name was not disclosed.

Lived Retired For Many Years

HAMILTON (CP) — Professor Vincent William Jackson, 77, widely known in educational circles, died at West Lincoln Memorial Hospital Monday. He had lived retired at Grimsby for the last 11 years.

He graduated from Queen's University in 1903, and was on the staff of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, until 1906.

He was director of agricultural education in New Zealand for four years; later he taught for many years at Manitoba Agricultural College and University of Manitoba.

ELECTED REEVE

TIMMINS (CP)—Arthur Brightwell of Shillington Monday night was elected reeve of nearby Black River township by acclamation. Council was also elected without opposition.

Six Arrested as Police Smash International Dope Ring Before Any Narcotics Sold

NEWARK, N. J. (AP)—An international dope ring that confidently planned to sell $2,000,000 worth of narcotics a week has been smashed before it 'even got the first ounce of heroin on the market.

United States attorney William F. Tompkins said Monday that six men—four from New Jersey and two Canadians—were arrested by federal narcotics agents in Jersey City as the first two ounces of pure heroin, worth $80,000, were being handed over by the Canadians.

The Americans were small-time dope pushers who wanted to get into the big money.

They had planned to bring in a kilogram of pure heroin each week until Christmas, then boost the shipment to two kilograms a week. A kilogram is enough for 800,000 single-dose capsules, he says, which retail for about $3 each.

LARGEST CASE YET

The case was the largest involving narcotics ever handled in the States.

The four Americans were Salvatore Mercia, Teddy Riviello and Angelo Mandato, all of Newark; and Joseph Falcetano, West Orange, N. J. The Canadians were Joe Sheams, 36, and Candido Berberi, 45, both of Quebec City.

All six were arraigned in Jersey City Monday on charges of possession and receipt of narcotics. The Canadians were held in $250,000 bail each, the others in $50,000 bail each.

Aussie Troops Got Equipment After A-Tests

CANBERRA (AP)—Supply Minister Howard Beale told the House of Representatives today that Australian troops stabbed and considerable equipment used in Britain's recent atom tests. But he assured the House Australian governments has tracked down the stuff.

Beale said British scientists had left behind certain equipment they regarded as being of no further use. He added:

"It is said they told the troops they could have items of equipment. The troops sent in the parcels. Our suspicions were aroused by the size and number of parcels passing through the post. We have located the equipment and appropriate action is being taken."

Final Efforts Being Made To Win Back 351

By JIM RECHER

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The Allies said today they are making final preparations for efforts to win back 22 Americans, one Briton and 328 South Koreans who have refused to come home.

The United Nations command disclosed it has been sparring for two weeks with the Korean war prisoner repatriation commission over how many Allied interviewers will be permitted to talk with the prisoners.

The Allies have requested 15, five Americans, five Britons and five South Koreans.

The commission has set a limit of five all told.

Meanwhile, Allied and Red negotiators were to carry on arrangements for a Korean peace conference discussed sites, but got nowhere.

The first official indication that the UN command is about ready to start interviewing the reluctant Allied captives came with the release of two letters to the repatriation commission and one reply.

LITTLE TIME LEFT

There were unofficial indications the UN command also is working behind the scenes to smooth out all negotiations before the explanations begin, presumably to avoid the embarrassing charges which prompted Communist efforts to get their former soldiers to come back.

The Allies appeared eager to avoid the snarling and bickering which the Communists have indulged in with the commission.

The UN command pointed out, however, that it is "not yet ready" to announce a specific date for starting explanations, but that the explanations will be conducted.

Three Aboard Missing Plane

EDMONTON (CP) — Twenty planes were to set out from Edmonton today to scour the Peace River area northwest to Grande Prairie, Alta., for a single-engine aircraft missing since Sunday with three men aboard.

Lake Superior Waters Searched For Missing Craft

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP)—The chill, bleak waters of Lake Superior and the rugged hills of the copper country were being combed today as an all-weather air force jet fighter missing since Monday night.

The high-speed air force officers were reported aboard the plane, an F89, when it left Kenora air force base south of here. The pilot has not been identified.

The jet took off at 6:22 p. m. (EST) with about two hours of fuel in the tanks, officials said. men said. It was last noted by radio contact as it neared Fort of the Kewenau peninsula. This would have put the plane over where off the forbidding shores of the stormy lake.

The Coast Guard cutter was hurriedly dispatched to the area Monday night, after the search was ordered. And state police were joined by conservation officers in the widespread hunt along the shoreline.

SEARCH BY LAKE

The coast guard station at Houghton and the St. Ignace state police post reported early today that the fliers were still missing. The search was expected to be carrying floatation gear and officials said it might be adrift in Lake Superior. They said they have received two reports that a plane was down in the lake.

Offer of Free Meals Disperses Jobless Throng

TRIESTE (AP)—An offer of free meals today brought out about 1,000 jobless Trieatini gathered-in front of an Allied military government office in the city.

The workers, who staged three demonstrations in the past week asking an increase in welfare assistance and more jobs, massed this time, met again this morning before the labor office.

A spokesman told them that starting today more than 1,000 free meals will be served daily at a communal charity mess hall.

An estimated 17,000 persons are jobless here. More than 1,000 of these are former employees of the Allied Military Government, the U.S.-British-American declaration that the city would now will be turned over to Italy.

TENOR WHO LEFT CARMEN UNSTARRED

Opera singer David Poleri says he is sorry for having stalked off the stage during the final act of "Carmen" in Chicago. "I want to apologize to the cast, audience, conductor and orchestra . . . I was under great pressure," says Poleri, who, as a jealous Don Jose, carried out, leaving Gloria Lane, as Carmen, at the climactic moment when she is supposed to be stabbed to death by him.—Central Press Canadian

Reminds Britons Queen Made Trip In U.S. Airplane

LONDON (AP)—Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express reminded its readers today that the Queen began the first stage of her Commonwealth tour in a Stratocruiser, an American plane built in Seattle.

The mass-circulation, Empire-minded paper said in an editorial:

"The thought may come as a shock. For the British airplane industry has lately shot out such a high-pressure stream of propaganda about the superior quality of its products that it would not be surprising if the (British) public has come to believe that Stratocruisers, and Constellations too, are made in that country. . . .

"There is not the slightest hope that the Royal Overseas Airways Corporation will have a British plane on the North Atlantic run before 1955.

Churchill Will Fly to Bermuda For Conference

LONDON (Reuters)—Sir Winston Churchill will leave by air next Tuesday night for the Western Big Three talks at Bermuda, it was announced here today.

The meeting with U. S. President Eisenhower and Premier Joseph Laniel of France is scheduled to last from Dec. 4 to Dec. 8.

An official statement is expected Wednesday night after the briefing the officials who will accompany him.

WILL BE 79 MONDAY

Churchill will be 79 Monday. He has still to decide whether to celebrate the event at 10 Downing street, the official London residence, or at Chequers, the country residence in Buckinghamshire where he spends most the week-end.

It was also announced today that Selwyn Lloyd, leader of the British United Nations delegation, will fly to London from New York Wednesday to report to Foreign Secretary Eden before the Bermuda conference.

Plane Crashes Into Bridge Over Mississippi

GREENVILLE, Miss. (AP) — A jet training plane whose pilot was on his first night solo flight crashed into the Mississippi river bridge here early today, breaking a natural-gas pipeline which exploded and shot a stream of fire at the structure.

The fire was extinguished 30 minutes after the crash.

Fate of the pilot remained unknown, but airmen organized a search party on hope the pilot might have parachuted.

Biggest piece left of the plane was only 12 inches long.

Rousing Send-off Brings Tears To Queen's Eyes

LONDON (Reuters)—A photograph published in a newspaper here today showed Queen Elizabeth in a rare mood. She had tears in her eyes.

The picture in The Daily Sketch was taken as she acknowledged the rousing send-off accorded her before she left on the first lap of her Commonwealth tour last night.

"The Queen had never been known to lose her composure, but for a moment last night—the moment of parting from her country —she did lose it. And the cameras were there to record the fact."

The Queen's departure filled all British papers this morning. All paid best tribute and wished Godluck in editorials.

Typical comment came from The Daily Mirror which said the "Royal tour is a rendezvous with the future—the future of a vast and stirring commonwealth."

Iron Ore Shipments Shatter Old Record

CLEVELAND (AP) — Vessels brought 1,315,874 tons of iron ore to lower lake ports in the week ended Monday, the Lake Superior Iron Ore Association reported today. That raised the 1953 season total to 85,415,505 tons, compared with the previous one-season high of 82,000,000 tons in the war year of 1942.

Because of ship layups for winter, the current week may be the last this season in which total shipments reach the million-ton mark.

Meet Objective

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — The 150,000 objective in the city's first Community Chest campaign will probably be exceeded by about 10 per cent, chest officials said Monday night. Eighteen agencies combined in the appeal.

Public Servants Warned Against U.S. Cocktails

A formal government directive warns public servants against the disclosing official information "willingly or unwillingly" to foreign representatives at social functions.

The directive is one of several recent developments indicating Kotelawala's cabinet favors no more trade with Russia, but more with the United States.

Commerce Minister R. G. Senanayake said recently that Ceylon must look to its traditional markets — Britain for rubber and tea, and that more British investors are wanted here.

Paper Suggests Palace Be Open While Queen Gone

LONDON (Reuters)—The Daily Mirror suggested today that Buckingham Palace be opened to the public while the Queen is touring the Commonwealth.

"What a gesture it would be—which I am sure is the new plan for bringing the monarchy closer to the people—by fling open the gates to all comers," the paper said.

STIRLING

Laurel Rebekah Lodge Holds Most Successful Bazaar, Tea

By
MRS. FLORENCE MacMULLEN

Stirling community hall was a bower of beauty with Christmas decorations throughout for the annual afternoon tea and bazaar of Laurel Rebekah Lodge, No. 211, Stirling, which was held on Thursday afternoon.

D.D.P. Mrs. Mina Fox and R.S. Mrs. Marion Wells were in charge of the decorating and they also supervised the tea room.

Two lighted evergreen trees stood on sentinels at the door, white gates which led the way to the tea-room. The long tea-table was covered with a lace centre work embroidered cloth with silver tea service at either end and a silver basket of red and white carnations was the floral decoration. Baskets of pine and poinsettias graced the windows and a following cactus on the piano. Fifteen quartet tables with fancy covers and a centre bowl of evergreen and red berries made an attractive setting for the tea.

RECEIVING

The guests were received at the entrance to the hall by Noble Grand Mrs. Reva Vandervoort, and vice-grand Mrs. Mabel Barlow, and about 250 ladies attended from the district and surrounding country.

The day was ideal with balmy air and a bright sun and many availed themselves of the opportunity to do a little Christmas shopping.

The table at the door were sold by the treasurer, Mrs. Thelma Matcheson, and Mrs. Lila Balcour as assistant. The reporting was in charge of Mrs. Florence MacMullen.

Delightful piano music for the afternoon was contributed by Mrs. Gwen Fargey and her assistants, Mrs. Mildred Hoard, Mrs. Lenore Scott and Mrs. Celia Elliott.

Those who presided at the urns were: Mrs. A. E. Baker, Mrs. W. H. V. Walker, Mrs. H. C. Secker, Mrs. R. H. Bonsteel and PDDP. Mrs. Effie Bailey, Mrs. Mabel Meggingon and Miss Evelyn Bailey and the present D.D.P. Mrs. Edna Fox.

SERVING

Those who served were: Mrs. Mildred Morrow, Mrs. Verna Woodbeck, Mrs. Helen Williams, Mrs. Audrey Elliott, Mrs. Martha Wells, Mrs. Ella Davidson, Mrs. Madeline Barron, Mrs. Margaret McDonell, Mrs. Joe Lucey, Mrs. Isobel Beamgon, Mrs. Ivah Thain, Mrs. Annie Warren, Mrs. Mildred Wilson, Mrs. Fanny Kane, Mrs. Helen Neal, Mrs. Olive Thompson, Mrs. Dora Coulter, Mrs. Edna Wright, Mrs. Florence Post, Mrs. Isobel Good, Mrs. Dorcas Sager, Mrs. Helen Lamb, Mrs. Ethel Mumby, Mrs. Mildred Mills and Mrs. Laura Brown.

Mrs. Bessie Patterson, Mrs. Margaret Bush, Mrs. Helen Bailey, Mrs. Pauline Bird, Mrs. Bessie Rodgers, Mrs. Norah Wade were in charge of replenishing the plates and other kitchen duties, while Mrs. M. Meggingon brewed the tea.

DELECTABLE REPAST

The guests were served delectable sandwiches of every variety, a medley of fancy colors and designs with a wide variety of relishes. This was topped off with plates of cookies and macaroons in bite size, which were very attractively displayed on the glass servers.

Everyone present was loud in praise of the delightful tea and a couple of business men of the town came in to enjoy a brief recess from the cares of the day.

The booths all attractive and placed so that all could view and purchase the articles of their choice. Rows of chairs outside the tea room provided rest for those who wished to sit and chat a while.

CANDY BOOTH

The candy booth was decorated with a lighted church, banked by two miniature trees and flanked with delectable chocolate bars. A decorated Christmas tree with vari-colored pasteboard baskets of candy hanging on the branches filled the end of the table and boxes, baskets, fluted paper cups and other holders were filled with dark and light fudge, cream, cream, divinity, peanut brittle and dozens of other varieties of candy. Mrs. Hazel Mumby, Mrs. Jean Clancy and Mrs. Erma Clancy were kept busy selling, arranging and selling the large array.

THE SEWING BOOTH

This booth displayed dressed dolls; Mary and her little Sambo; bowl and spoon holders, pin mitts, pillowcases, a large number of hand-knit children's mitts, handkerchiefs, some with tatted edge; a good variety of sweaters and children's wear, doilies and ornaments and last, but not least, aprons. There were pretty hand aprons for special occasions, made of dimity, sprigged print, plastic and lace and also some that were of kitchen utility, made for real down-to-earth wear. Many of the items were picked up as novel Christmas gifts.

Mrs. Edith Bradshaw convened this booth, with Mrs. Isobel McIntosh, Mrs. Irene Pollock and Mrs. Effie Bailey as assistants.

POUCH-AND-TAKE BOOTH

This booth was centred with a lovely Christmas centrepiece and the table was loaded with wrapped parcels of every description. There were large parcels, medium sized and small, some attractively wrapped in a medley of different designs. As folks are always curious to see a parcel and expect a bargain, the convenors, Miss Gena Sprot and Mrs. Cora Eggleton, soon disposed of their products.

APRON BOOTH

The farmers' booth occupied full corner of space and the long-leaf dining tables were covered with brick-red cup paper in complete contrast to the white and seemed as decoration.

Potted plants, small pots of cacti, ivy, shamrock occupied a place with golden caterpillar, Spanish cotton, sausage, baskets of potatoes, apples dozens of canned eggs, yellow carrots, fresh country cream, jars of freshly ground horseradish, home canned pickles, jellies, jams, preserved fruit, tins of food, home-made mincemeat, large assortment of other articles, such as ground cherries, and maple syrup, all were acceptable, to the buying public. Mrs. Marion Wells and Mrs. Hamilton Carlisle convened this booth with Mrs. Ina Hall and Morrison and Mrs. Kathleen Jones as assistants.

COOKING BOOTH

The tables that circled this booth were laden with luscious cakes, both white and chocolate, dripping with icing, in shades of pink, green or white, some with nut or cherry trim. There were delectable pies of many varieties, mince, berry, pumpkin, apple, cherry, cream, banana or pecan, some with meringue, some laced and all very tempting. A good variety of home-baked buns, berry and taffy tarts, cup cakes in several varieties, dozens of drop cookies, some filled with fruit, macaroons in assorted shapes, some of cocoanut, oatmeal cookies with cherry trim and many other food items.

Mrs. Edith Ulman and Mrs. Ethel Duffin convened this booth and they had several assistants throughout the afternoon.

This was probably the largest assortment of home cooking that has been provided since the lodge first began their bazaar ventures a few years ago.

HAMPER OF APPLES

Mrs. Mary Cook sold tickets on a decorated hamper of Wealthy on Macintosh apples which had been donated by Mrs. Mabel Hall and the winner was Mrs. Frank McGee, of Minto, holding ticket No. 115.

Mrs. Jean Potter, assisted by Mrs. Merle Nathwell, were in charge of beauty counsellor products with a large array of gifts available for the coming festive season.

The Past Grands Club displayed their lovely key chains on a plastic tree and Mrs. Mary Pitcher donated a large angel cake with luscious orchid icing dotted with walnut halves. Mrs. Pitcher was in charge of the tickets and Mrs. Mildred Morrow was winner.

The bazaar and tea was a financial success and the Noble Grand and her bevy of assistants are to be congratulated on their successful venture.

Several members of Laurel Lodge assisted here and there throughout the afternoon for short periods and they haven't been specifically mentioned, their assistance was appreciated.

One Man Killed 27 Are Injured In Rail Accident

PALMER, Mass. (AP) — The Paul Revere Express, a New York Central St. Louis-Boston 15-car train, plowed into the rear of a stalled, diesel-propelled passenger car at the Palmer railroad station during a rain storm Monday.

One man was killed and 27 persons were injured, several critically. All were passengers in the stalled car—the Boston and Albany's "Beeliner," which runs from Springfield to Boston.

The Beeliner had engine trouble and its conductor had just advised the passengers they would have to transfer to the Paul Revere when the long train came around a curve and could not be halted in time by hastily applied emergency brakes.

Is Given Thirty Days For Assaulting Wife

That was the observation made Monday by Magistrate D. C. Smith as he sentenced McCharles to 30 days in jail on a charge of occasioning actual bodily harm to his wife, Betty.

Mrs. McCharles testified that she was reading a comic book in her home when her husband passed her and then jabbed her with a screwdriver, inflicting a half-inch deep cut in her wrist. She said he was angry over a towing charge on his motor car.

McCharles said his wife had hurled against the screwdriver while he was trying to protect their child from a "ruthless beating" by Mrs. McCharles.

May Re-adjust Retirement Age Says Martin

TORONTO (CP)—Health Minister Martin said Monday that a re-adjustment in the retirement age in industry may have to be considered because scientific achievements have extended the average life span in Canada to 69 years.

Mr. Martin, speaking to the central council of the Canadian Red Cross, said: "I am going to change the senior citizen from a displaced person to an important member of society. He said that employment practices regarding older persons have to be revised if Canada is to prevent a waste of manpower.

The minister said Canada now has 600,000 persons more than 70 years of age. He estimated the figure would be more than 1,300,000 by 1971.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was yawning big yawns at breakfast, and pop said, For Pete sake how much sleep do you need, you had 10 hours.

No sir, not actual sleep, I didn't said, I woke up and laid there a long time just worrying, I said, and ma said, Now that's a fine statement at your age, haven't you got enough to worry about yet?

I said about everything, I said, and ma said, For land sakes you're not old enough to worry about anything, Now is the time to get into the habit of forming a serene state of mind that nothing can ruffle in future years, she said.

That's a fact, Benny, pop said, Worrying is just a habit, as any sycologist will tell you, if you happen to meet one. As Robert Louis Stevenson somebody wrote, Laff at worry in cold blood, and you'll laff at Uicers; later on, he said, and ma said, People with their conciences should never worry, at any age, What in the world have you got to worry about that's troubling you, sleep over? she said.

Well, I started to think what to tick I took, leeving my new ball bearing skates rite out in the ice in the corner of the hall, behind the front door, I said. They were the very first things a bergler's flash-

Picture of Cranes In Full Flight A Masterpiece

NEW YORK (CP)—A photograph of three rare whooping cranes flying south in Saskatchewan has been published widely in the United States. The Associated Press called it "the most exceptional picture of the year."

The photograph, distributed by The Canadian Press picture service, was taken by F. W. Lahrman, a field worker with the Saskatchewan Museum of Natural History, who described his luck in getting it as a "one-in-a-million chance."

Mr. Lahrman and Museum director Fred Bard found the cranes—three of 31 known extant—near Frenchman lake, 125 miles southwest of Regina. They took movies of the birds from a distance from a distance of a quarter-mile.

The birds were lying in a ditch trying to work out a plan to approach them when the cranes took to the air and overhead at a height of 150 feet.

Mr. Lahrman, using an Exakta camera with a 300 mm. telephoto lens, snapped the birds at 1/500 of a second at f6.3 without filter. His photo showed the birds in full flight, one leading a pair flying side by side.

Naturalists are awaiting arrival of the four-foot-tall birds at the National wildlife refuge at Aransas Tex. Twenty-one whoopers, including three young, were counted at the sanctuary even in November and the three laggards would bring the total to a third more than a year ago and compared to thousands early in the century.

He won with a sample of dawbul wheat which produced 63.5 bushels an acre. Second was Charles Casey of King, with dawbul measuring 60.6 acre. Third was Fred Willett, Latimer of Sutton west with a sample of cornell as 67.3 bushels an acre.

Say Trotskyites Trying to Move Into CCF Party

TORONTO (CP)—David Archer, president of the Toronto Labor Council (CIO-CCL) Monday night charged that Trotskyites, whose own party folded for lack of support, are attempting to infiltrate the CCF party.

"There is no basic difference between the fundamentals of every munism and the Trotskyites," Archer said at a council meeting.

"Although the party has folded, some of its members has repudiated the principles of labor and nationalism, a movement founded by Leon Trotsky after he broke with Stalin, a communist in the CCF."

Two Young Boys Admit Vandalism In Anglican Ch.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)— Two young boys, 9 and 13, have confessed to vandalism which wrecked All Saints Anglican church here.

Rev. John T. Coneybeare, rector of the church, said Monday the two boys had admitted smashing church windows with an ax.

"The destruction is simply incredible," he said. "They smashed five stained glass windows, four of them quite badly, tore pictures from the wall, ripped up the choir music and tore apart church robes.

The boys told him they were in the church three times during the last week and damage each time totaled 30 books through one window.

Among the panes broken were the original amber glass windows of the tower in the four-clad church. He said they couldn't be replaced.

Damage to the windows alone is estimated at more than 3,000.

Canada Imposes Few Barriers Against Trade

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada offers a minimum of barriers to other countries wishing to sell here but is faced with hampering restrictions when she trys to sell elsewhere, J. D. Ferguson, of Rock Island, Que., president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said Monday.

In a speech prepared for delivery to the Ottawa Rotary Club, Mr. Ferguson said:

"There are fewer obstacles in the path of imports into Canada than into any other major trading nation.

"Not only are Canadian tariff rates among the lowest in the world, especially on manufactured goods, but our rates are not increased by any form of exchange restrictions, import restrictions or quotas. Nor do the valuation clauses of the Canadian Customs Act conceal hidden traps to frustrate the importer as does the customs act of the United States.

PRIME TARGET

"The result is that the Canadian market is the prime target for distress selling, under-valued goods, and the domestically unsaleable surpluses of all countries exporting manufactured goods."

The most valuable contribution which Parliament could make to the stability of employment in Canadian factories, said Mr. Ferguson, "is to put back in the customs act the former value-for-duty provisions which, in conjunction with the dumping duty section, provided adequate safeguards against dumping of foreign merchandise." He also urged safeguards in any trade agreement with Japan.

"The CMA believes the United States must take the lead in opening up her markets to imported manufactures and that such action in turn, will allow other countries to remove their quota and exchange restrictions on imports."

FRANKFORD

W. A. Sponsors Bazaar, Tea

FRANKFORD.—The annual bazaar and tea held in the Rose Lowery Hall on Wednesday afternoon by the W.A. of the United Church was a real success. Tickets were taken at the door by Mrs. Walter Morrow, treasurer of the W.A. Mrs. George Montgomery, president of the W.A., opened the proceedings. Mrs. Montgomery also extended a welcome to everyone.

The home baking booth with Mrs. H. Terry as convener, was attractive and appetizing with its display of cakes, and cookies with their colored tops and assorted pies. The candy booth looked after by Mrs. S. Osterhout was a splendid success. The touch and take table created a lot of fun, convener Mrs. Herrington. The fish pond was looked after by Mrs. Jim Acton and attracted the small fry.

Mrs. R. Hannah and Mrs. H. Stickle conveyed the fancy work booth which displayed assorted, colorful aprons, fancy work and knitting. The table proved to be most popular.

The miscellaneous table, which was made up of home produce also went well with Mrs. E. Charlesworth, as convener.

ATTRACTIVE TABLES

Small tables set in the centre of the hall were set with lovely tea cloths and colored serviettes and centred with lovely flowers. The head table was appointed with a lovely white linen table cloth with beautiful 'mums in the centre. At each end stood candlestick holders with lighted candles.

Mrs. J. A. Lott and Mrs. Carscadden, Mrs. Bert Rowe and Mrs. Clarke members of the church presided with Mrs. Wayne of Stockdale United Church; Mrs. McElligott, of C.W.L., Mrs. Sara Caskey, Anglican Church Guild, Mrs. Zufelt, of Zion United Church, and Mrs. Pierce of Batawa United Church, presided during the afternoon.

Jap Peddler Admits Slaying Fifteen Women

YONEZAWA, Japan (Reuters)—Police stated Monday that Genzo Kurita, 27, a travelling peddler, has confessed to murdering 15 women, most of them prostitutes, since 1946.

Kurita, already sentenced to death for the brutal sex murder of two women last year in Chiba, north of Tokyo, still is awaiting trial on charges of raping and murdering a 24-year-old girl, her 51-year-old mother and a 17-year-old girl, also in Chiba.

Last week he told police he had beaten a woman to death and buried the body after making love to her in a forest. He went to the scene of the crime with police, who recovered the remains.

Police said other murders he had admitted were being investigated. Twelve bodies already have been recovered.

WHERE, OH WHERE?

Who cares if England won the game,
The "Ashes" by three wickets
Or Saskatch-ALL-A lacks scored four tries—
Who's got some Grey Cup Tickets?

So what if bacon's out of sight,
While beef and pork's terrific . . .
We'll hamburg for the next two weeks,
If we can get one ticket.

"Doggerel License No. 645739465.

That fabled June day said so rare
By poets—how they kick it!
A dime a dozen when compared To Yo Goe Iona Grey Cup ticket.

We have a couple, pals and gals—
You're welcome, You and You—
But note the date before you prate,
It's 1952.

Now that the principals in what is called Canada's greatest sporting event have been finalized, this week will see the greatest ticket hunt of the year get under way. As far as the provincial football fan, as well as a lot of metropolitan lovers of the game are concerned, "there just ain't none to be had."

And contrary to the opinions of a lot of people, being a sports editor "from the sticks" we are in the same boat as the above-mentioned fans. The powers-that-be distribute the tickets in wholesale lots to the teams of the CRU and subsidiaries and usually after that source there is none left. Or it would seem that way. Each and every year the phone tinkle in these news rooms with the request for one or more of the coveted pasteboards. Some of the well-meaning people who grab the impressive sports editors and elbow-rub connected with newspapers have merely to take their order—and that's that. Kiddies, believe us, "that ain't so."

For the past two or three years we have had access to one ticket through a friend connected with a football team. Now that he has passed on it appears the chances for the ticket did likewise.

As far as the great fall gridiron classic goes, this department with a broad reputation for limb-breaking, crawled out again at the beginning of the season and this time, for the first and only time slithered back to safety with the neck intact. We ventured the opinion that the Hamilton Tigers would face the Winnipeg Blue Bombers again for all games come November, and lo behold, it happened.

Looking into the gridiron crystal ball, we vision a clawed, battered Rengal tiger, its left paw held high in victory and clutching the battered Grey mug in its heavily-bandaged starboard flipper.

Milling through the Western Canada newspapers after the Blue Bombers defeated the Edmonton Eskimos, we discovered it was almost the consensus, Winnipeg excluded, that the better team will not represent the west against the east.

For instance an Edmonton writer claims: "Blue Bombers was the western title because the Eskimos picked the wrong mizzle to ramble."

Ironically, it was the same quarterback Claude Arnold of the Eskys who booted the ball away in a crucial moment in last year's Grey Cup epic.

However, you can't retrieve spilled football milk. From the press and radio versions of the last Esky-Bombers game the Edmonton club erred in not trying for points on the ground instead of going to the air. One point would have been sufficient and that was in their grasp or at their toe-tips.

"Bombers," the western scribe wrote, "over the season and in the playoffs were not the better club, and at no time showed the consistency displayed by the Esks. The Blues will go down in history as the weakest club ever to win the west. Power-laden from the start they seldom operated as a real unit. Their coach was fired at one stage and rehired before nightfall, and he still doesn't know if he'll be around next season. Fumble is three-year workout. Jake Jacobs kept them in that second game when everything else went by the board. It was sheer desperation that paid off. And he has a throwing arm guaranteed to recover in Eastern Canada after the slop-bowl Bombers' 1950 fiasco." That's what the man says.

BASKETBALL:

A dragnet is being thrown out for all Belleville and district basketball boys by Bill Quinlan, hopeful coach of the newly organized Belleville Crawfords. The Crawfords, sponsored by Crawford Metals, are holding their first practice of the new season in the Bellevills Collegiate gym tomorrow night at seven. Coach Spafford has stressed the fact that all positions on the squad are wide open. Newcomers will be welcome, indeed, encouraged, to come out and try for a place on the team. It is hoped that a large attendance will greet the opening practice wishful.

* * *

The Crawfords are still undecided about which of two leagues to enter. They may move up into a league with Peterborough, Oshawa and Cobourg, or they may continue to campaign in the Bay of Quinte League with Picton, RCAF, et al. In any event, the team is anxious to book as many of a possible number of aspiring hoopsters before deciding on the personnel of the squad and for this reason newcomers will be given every opportunity to work out under the eagle eye of Coach Seaford.

"HOCKEY AS IS?"

If you like to see hockey "as she is played" from the peewee on community rinks to pro-cloned, big-league machines like "Rocket" Richard and Gordie Howe, you should see the short "Here's Hockey," now showing at the Belle Theatre.

It shows the Red Wings and Canadiens in a blazing battle; Jean Marc Belliveau turning it on for the Quebec Aces in slow motion, a play-off game between Smith's Falls and Thurso; North Bay juveniles and the Marlboro junior "A's" in a fierce practice session. It's good.

'Singin' Ed. Songin Whipped Speedy Backfield Into Shape; Is 5th Quarter Used by Club

HAMILTON (CP) — A defence that had no peer in the east all season and an offensive unit slowly developed until the combination matched perfectly was the key that opened the door to Hamilton Tiger-Cats' Grey Cup bid this year.

The Tiger-Cats, Hamilton's first Big Four team to have a crack at the East-West title in 18 years, took a long time, to get their offence to equal their defence this season but coach Carl Voyles worked patiently as it and the team now is at the peak in form.

They will clash with Winnipeg Blue Bombers Saturday at Varsity Stadium in Toronto after a campaign in the Big Four that at one stage looked near hopeless. In that early part of the season it was the defence only that held the Tiger-Cats together as Voyles shuffled quarterbacks in an attempt to find one who could get their attack firing.

The 11-Cats have used five men this season in the pivot spot. Ed Songin, former Boston College quarter who came to Hamilton after he was cut by the professional Baltimore Colts, was the first and he has proved that Voyles didn't err in deciding on him.

It took Songin a few weeks to work into Voyles' system and in the last month of the regular schedule his accurate passing and brilliant play-calling was the turning point in the Tiger-Cats' drive for a playoff berth.

OFFENCE TEAM

He got most out of a hard-hitting, speedy backfield which until he came along showed little. The offensive backfield Songin supposed of Ralph Tooby at flying wing, Don Getty at centre, Bernie Custis at the right and left half spots and Merle Hapes at fullback.

Royal Bailey, 185-pound plunging and running half from Tulane, is used also on defence and has been on pass protection as tertiary halt.

Rosenberg, who came back who played college football with Columbia University, was the sparkplug of the backfield in the Big Four playoff. He also is one of Songin's main pass receivers and along with end Vito Ragazzo from William and Mary and Jackie Parker and Dick Brown is responsible for Hamilton's great defence against the long pass.

Custis, who played quarter at one time for the Montreal Alouettes and that position for the Tiger-Cats in his first season with them in 1950, does a lot of the plunging and his speed and tricky running are utilized at end sometimes.

Vince Mazza, chosen both offensive and defensive all-star tackle has been the backbone of the line since he came to Hamilton from Buffalo Bills four years ago.

VERSATILE PLAYER

For the Big Four final against Montreal Alouettes and in the last regular schedule game against Ottawa, which the Tiger-Cats had to win to get in the playoffs, Voyles switched the 235-pound Mazza on defence to end to rush the passer. He will be used in that spot against Winnipeg.

The Tiger-Cats' leading scorer was Tip Logan, big pass-catching end and placekicker finishing specialist. He was fourth in the scoring list with 61 points on three touchdowns, four field goals, 32 converts and two singles.

The Tiger-Cats use a straight T and double-wing formation. Songin does a lot of passing from the double wing but he also can shoot off or pitches out to Russerov or Custis from it in the T for variety and balance.

The Tiger-Cats last won the Big Four title in 1935 and then lost to Winnipeg 18-12 in the Grey Cup final.

Phoney Ticket Idea Fails

WINNIPEG (CP) — A middle-aged man who attempted to have 300 counterfeit Grey Cup tickets printed, is now languishing behind stop bed today when a shop official refused.

"I don't know who he was," the official said. "He left in an awful rush when I told him what I thought of his scheme."

Police Chief Robert Tait said his men are on the lookout for any one attempting to print or distribute counterfeit tickets. Similar attempts have been reported in other cities in previous years.

Demand for tickets here is high. The Winnipeg Football Club has received applications for 4,500 tickets; its allocation is 3,300.

'Red' Sullivan Leads American Scoring Race

NEW YORK (AP) — George (Red) Sullivan of Hershey Bears has replaced Gus Kyle of Cleveland line of Don Marshall, Ed Slowinski and Lou Stewart as the leading scorer in the American Hockey League.

Sullivan scored eight points last week for a total of 28 points, according to official statistics released today. He leads the league in assists with 19. The three Bizons are tied for second in scoring with 26 points each.

Jacques Plante continues to set the pace for goalies with an average of 2.53 on 46 goals allowed in 19 games.

Bomber Mentor Puts Blast On 'Fan' Coaches

By Al Vickery.

WINNIPEG (CP) — George Trafton isn't the easiest guy in the world to get along with; some think he's the hardest.

But the coach of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers, the West's representatives in the 1953 Grey Cup final at Toronto this Saturday, is one of the first to admit it.

"I came up here to coach football, not to be a politician or a public relations guy," says the fiery Trafton. "Sure, I get sore when somebody runs me the wrong way. What doesn't?

In his three years at Winnipeg —he still has one year to go on his three-year contract with the fairly former Notre Dame and Chicago Bears star has had several brushes with the sportswriters, one with a radio man, and some fans.

"Everybody seems to be a coach. If all these people know so much about football why don't they get in the h— they bring me up here for?" says the 50-year-old coach, whose language at times would make a stevedore sound like a choir boy.

Last year I got the club into first place, the first two playoffs, so I get panned. This year, we pass around and finish third. I still get it."

Trafton says when Bombers walloped Saskatchewan Roughriders, 43-5, in the first game of this season, he was the Football Coach semi-final, "everybody climbed on the band wagon and there was no room for the driver. A week earlier, the driver had no one to talk to."

He recalls the "Moon Jumped off again" when Bomber lost the first game of the finals 25-7, to Edmonton Eskimos, "and back" after Winnipeg's victories in the last two games.

"This is the greatest city or runner-up city for fans I've been in," Trafton claims. "Canadian football is a colorful game. There's a lot of fuss and talk about without chasing rumors and worrying whether I sold my house or whether I'm going to get canned."

Wintry Weather Prediction Forces Blue Bombers to Tune-Up in East

WINNIPEG (CP) — Inclement weather has forced Winnipeg Blue Bombers to complete their Grey Cup tune-up in eastern Canada.

Coach Georgia Trafton, 30-odd players and a few club executives were scheduled to leave at 8 a.m. CST today in a chartered plane which has been painted in team colors, blue and gold.

Their destination will be Aurora, Ont., 18 miles north of Toronto, where the team will bed down in motels and train at St. Andrews College grounds. They'll battle a Toronto Saturday against Hamilton Tiger-Cats, Big Four and eastern champions.

Originally, Bombers had planned to do all their training in Winnipeg and then leave Friday for Toronto. But the long-range forecast of continued cold and snow in Winnipeg forced them to switch their plans. There also was the threat of a possible flight delay Friday.

Trafton, who arrived back Monday from his scouting trip at the Big Four final in Montreal Sunday, sent the entire club through 1½ hours of limbering-up exercises Monday night, their last Winnipeg workout.

SEND-OFF DINNER

Following the practice session, the team, executives and the press and radio were guests at a "send-off dinner" given by Canada Packers whose grounds, training facilities and cafeteria Bombers have used since 1950.

Coach Trafton, club president Karl Slocomb and Ralph Misener, a past president, thanked chairman Ralph Parliament for "excellent accommodations" the firm had supplied.

Trafton said in a short address: "From what I saw of Hamilton, the Tiger-Cats are a rough, tough ball club. But we too have played rough, tough football—on occasion. Saturday will mean a repetition of those occasions. I know we can take them if you guys play football like you did in 1953."

The husky coach indicated he would start the same lineup that he had picked up on his scouting trip in Montreal.

The Calvert Sports Column

by Elmer Ferguson

We haven't any idea when the Hockey Hall of Fame at Toronto will contain something more tangible than a vague dream of the future. We believe, however, that the game today is big enough, and its background sufficiently rich to replenish history and memento for a museum or a Hall that will rival, in a measure, the baseball shrine at Cooperstown, N.Y.

In Montreal there is a collection of hockey sticks, with which the various players performed great deeds and which will be a fine item for the Hall. And the richest addition to this unusual collection was made not long since when the stick of hockey trivia donated to the group the stick that the hockey-hamstrung Howie Morenz used in the season of 1936-37, when the Stratford Streak caromed off Big Earl Siebert, crashed heavily, skated first into the wooden boards and then into the ice at the south end of the Montreal Forum, and broke his leg. Two months later Howie died. They said his heart had killed him. More likely his heart was broken as he realized he might never play his beloved game again.

Presently the Morenz stick is the lightest in weight, of all the sticks in the Montreal Forum collection. Naturally, it has dried out considerably in the 15 years since it fell from the hands, but it was never chopped down or whittled away in a measure. Morenz always used a very light stick. Some players believe they get more control of the puck with a heavyweight club, but Morenz never thought so. Howie used what is known as a No. 4 curve, that is carried a distance from the body. The angle of the blade to the handle makes that distinction.

There is just one autograph on the stick. Suitably enough it was inscribed by Howie's great partner over a long span of years, Aurel Joliat.

The stick goes to join a notable collection of war-clubs and they will, in the course of time, go into the Hockey Hall of Fame. We suppose the biggest club in the lot is that which belonged to Nels Stewart, when the great scorer played his final games with the New York Americans. Stewart favored the heaviest stick he could get.

Another big club is that with which Canoeading Charlie Conacher scored almost the last of his 225 goals. The sticks with which Gordie Howe, Teddy Lindsay, Elmer Lach, Porky Dumart, and Milt Schmidt scored their 200th goals are there. Rocket Richard has two sticks in the display, one with which he scored goal No. 200, another with which he notched the counter that broke Nels Stewart's life-time record of 324 NHL goals.

And there's a touch of nostalgia in the tragedy among the sticks. For hanging there is the club Ace Bailey carried that night of Dec. 12, 1933, when he was crashed face-downward by Eddie Shore, fractured his skull, hovered between life and death many days and nights and finally recovered.

National Loop Goal Average Declines from 1952 Season In All Cases Except Boston

MONTREAL (CP) — The defences are stronger and the goalies more eagle-eyed or else the National Hockey League marksmen are getting slightly fuzzy ideas as to the general whereabouts of the net.

So far this season there has been an average of 4.23 goals a game. At the same stage last season the average was 5.67.

Every team except Boston has fallen off. The most surprising decline is that of Detroit Red Wings, from a 3.64 average to 2.17.

The called-for-willing Chicago Black Hawks, who were flying high this time last year, have suffered the worst reverse, from 2.86 to 1.62.

Toronto has dropped from 2.83 to 2.13, Montreal from 2.83 to 2.33 and New York Rangers from 2.12 to 2.00.

Only three times this season has a team scored six goals. Last year at this time not only had a six-goal production by one team been cropped up six times, but there were two seven-goal contributions and one each of eight, nine and 10. NEVERTHELESS JOY

This trend toward fewer goals is something in which the hardy netminders revel. Harry Lumley of the Leafs, with due credit also to his teammates, has done an amazing job in cutting his goals-against average more than 30 per cent.

A year ago Harry was being scored on at the rate of 3.19 goals a game. Today he is leading all goalies with 1.45, a shade better than the 1.47 average of Terry Sawchuk of Detroit who had 2.47 at this time last year.

Meanwhile, Gordie Howe of the Red Wings continues to set the pace for the individual point-getters and last week even widened the margin a bit by collecting four points, one goal and three assists. His teammate, Ted Lindsay, counted three assists and easily held on to second place with 21 points to Howe's 24.

REISEL POINTLESS

Rookie Earl (Dutch) Reibel of the Wings went pointless and dropped from third to fourth place. Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion of Montreal and Ted Kluzi of Toronto are tied for third spot with 18 points. Reibel has 17.

Geoffrion's two goals ran his string to nine and put him in a tie for goal honors with Max Maurice Richard, his teammate. Richard failed to get a point and slipped from a sixth-place tie to ninth-place tie.

'Foxhunter' Famous British Jumper Boasts Fabulous Show, Ring Record

By ARCH McKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — The jumping form of a giant bay horse named Foxhunter has aroused appreciation in many Britons who ordinarily wouldn't know a jumper from a milkwagon steed.

If the cagey old show jumper is ready to go out, British fans will hold good-bye competitively to the horse that won the country's only Olympic gold medal last year. Foxhunter has been with the British equestrian team in the United States shows and this week winds up at the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair in Toronto. Reports indicate he is no longer the great jumper beloved by young and old alike here.

But Foxhunter's fabulous record of 83 international firsts makes him the champion of all time. His closest competitor is Limerick Lass of Ireland, which won 33 international firsts between the wars.

GREAT CAREER

Foxhunter now is 12 years old. He's had several seasons of glory in a field where most jumpers are finished after five years of age. Foxhunter has defied time and tradition because he's wily enough to relax his long front legs to take most of the shock out of landing.

What worries his fans here are reports that he is actually refusing to take some jumps that he usually soared over without fault. It might be that the great jumper is just taking a rest. Two years ago he was out for several months after hurting his back, but recovered with electric treatments. Last year, when he again refused jumps they found he was suffering from worms.

He had an easy bulldoze to this season, but he threw his rider Col. Harry Llewellyn, in London last month before going to the U.S. and he's unseated him there since.

All this prompted Evening Standard reader Pat Landsberg to write in a letter to the editor: "The colonel should take the hint."

Foxhunter has shown pretty plainly that he doesn't want to jump any more, said Landsberg. "Does not Foxhunter's opinion matter?"

FINE COMBINATION

G. B. Gibbons of the Guards Club, London, reported by return post that Foxhunter and Llewellyn "are one of the finest combinations in show jumping that the world has seen."

He suggested they could do without "outside assistance . . . in making any decisions that may be necessary in the future."

Llewellyn, 41, who has ridden Foxhunter throughout his international jumping, is reported to have his eye on a replacement when the sad day does come for the veteran.

The prospective successor is a Welsh-cobred grey called "Time" Vice, which used to pull a potato cart in Ireland and was plucked out of a queue in front of a horse meat factory.

"I think he's got a great leap in him," Llewellyn said.

Santee Wins Cross Country; Ferguson Out

EAST LANSING, Michigan — Wes Santee, University of Kansas long Kevers champion and captured the NCAA cross country title today in the 15th annual hill and dale run over Michigan State's four mile course.

Santee finished the race in 19:43.5, to lead a field of 112 runners from 21 schools.

Kansas captured the team title with a low score of 52 points, replacing Michigan State as NCAA cross country champions.

Indiana was second with 82 points, Syracuse third with 94, Penn State fourth with 97, Pittsburgh fifth with 104 and Michigan State sixth with 125.

Oklahoma State finished seventh with 162, followed by Wisconsin with 170, Miami (Ohio) 184, Oberline 261 and Western Michigan 272.

VISITOR IMPRESSED

LONDON (CP)—Tufton Beamish Conservative member of Parliament for Lewes, Sussex, returned from a visit to Canada and the United States to say he is greatly impressed by the industrial potential of British Columbia.

Happy Days for TiCats As They Gain Grey Cup Slot

The Big Four champion Hamilton Tiger-Cats more than make up for the past three years of just missing the title as they thumped the Edmonton Eskimos 36-11 in the latter's home grounds, jubilant Coach Carl Voyles is seen at front (left), his bench, while quarterback Ed. Songin is at extreme right. In winning their second game in a row over the league-wide Eskimos in the best-of-three Eastern Canada series, the Cats displayed a rugged defensive style as well as brilliant offense.

B.C. Lions Are Jubilant Over Ticket Sales

By DON MATHESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP)—Don't look now, but that animal roaring in the backfield is a Lion, British Columbia variety.

Jubilant officials of B. C.'s 1954 entry in the Western Interprovincial Football Union Monday night counted up 3,500 applications for season tickets, after only a week's sale to members and one day's sale to the general public.

THREE MAIN TEAMS

Last February, when officials of the other four WIFU teams finally, and somewhat reluctantly, decided to let B. C. enter the loop, they set three conditions:

An audited statement showing the pre-season sale of 6,500 season tickets. (3,500 down, 3,000 to go).

The guarantee of a stadium seating 12,000. (Eventually will be the British Empire Games bowl, now under construction, which will seat 25,000.)

Contracts with the four clubs regarding arrangements for meeting added travel costs with Lions in the league.

All conditions have been fulfilled, with Winnipeg graciously waiving the travel agreement, while openly admitting they wish Lions would sink in the Pacific with the setting sun.

STOCKWELL SPEAKS

"No club, before, since, or, I hope, in the dim, dim future, has been charged with the task of obtaining a long block of season tickets nearly a full year in advance. . . .

"We're selling tickets with nothing but a promise of good football to sell. Until we get our full vote in the WIFU late in January, when we produce our 6,500 tickets sales, we can't legally divulge any player deals, or even suggest that we're practicing a terrific potential roster."

Richmond's Entry Into International Contingent on Springfield Deal

MONTREAL (CP) — President Frank Shaughnessy of the International Baseball League said the possibility of Richmond, Va., entering the Triple-A circuit now appears contingent upon a deal by Harry Selhodi of Richmond for the Springfield, Mass., franchise.

Shaughnessy said he knows of a proposal by Eddie Mooers, owner of the Richmond franchise in the Class B Piedmont League, to sell that franchise to Selhodi.

In the first place, said Shaughnessy, the International would have to approve the use of the field at Richmond. At the same time, Springfield still holds an International League franchise "and a deal would have to be made to acquire the Springfield franchise."

Although the Springfield interests have been reported ready to drop out of the circuit, Shaughnessy said they now state there is a possibility of keeping it in continued operation.

Shaughnessy said the International is expected to accept Havana regardless of the Richmond-Springfield situation. Havana would take over the Baltimore franchise, since the Maryland city now has moved up to the American League.

TAILORS SHOCKED

WELLINGTON, N. Z. (CP) — Tailors were shocked when Prime Minister Sidney Holland said formal dress for the coming royal visit would consist of a morning suit with top hat, but that a black bombsung might be used instead. Sir J. Allen, president of the Tailors' Association, said "a homburg would look ridiculous with a morning suit."

Rangers' Hergesheimer shoots, what looks like a sure goal past Gollie Harry Lumley, but the puck detoured past the goalpost during recent NHL contest, won by Leafs, 1-0. On other shots Lumley came up with some sensational saves to earn his second shutout of the season the hard way. Leaf forward Jim Morrison broke up the scoreless, hard-fought contest with less than five minutes remaining. The win gave Toronto a two-way tie for second place with Detroit, while Rangers remain in fifth slot.

Sunday Flight Ends in Death

Ambulance men took ten minutes to clear away the wreckage of a light Chipmunk plane to recover the bodies of two Sarnia, Ont., men killed when their plane crashed near Windsor. Henry Schlotzus and Paul Petzold were on a Sunday flight when, according to eye-witnesses, their engine failed, the plane went into a spin and struck a telephone pole. — Central Press Canadian.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Ribbster

In a championship for champion pairs we pre-dealt a series of fixed hands. Every deal was a brain-teaser intended to stump expert bridge tables played the same hands.

♠ 9 5
♥ None
♦ K Q 10 9 3 2
♣ K 9 5 3 2

WEST
♠ None
♥ A K Q J 10 9 7 6 5
♦ 8 7 6 5
♣ 4

EAST
♠ 8 7 6
♥ 8 4 3
♦ J 9 8 7 6
♣ K 9 5 2

SOUTH
♠ A K Q J 10 4 3 2
♥ None
♦ A
♣ Q J 10

Notice that west has all 13 hearts. The most spectacular casualty in sight was with east as dealer. Bidding went like this:

East	South	West	North
Pass	3 S	4 S	5 S
Pass	6 S	7 H	7 S
Pass	Pass	7 NT	Dbl
Pass	Pass	Redbl

This was in the era of strong opening three bids. The overcall in spades by west showed a powerful hand with no spade losers in it. The second round of bidding needs no discussion.

But when north went to seven spades, west saw the cinch grand slam in hearts ready to rot from inaction. The disappointment of it started thoughts of reprisals against the opposing pair.

West was thinking what could be done against them that if they could be coaxed into bidding seven no-trump and redoubled with explosive force.

Not until north led did west realize the startling situation. Never could west get in and opponents took 13 tricks for the biggest possible penalty in a duplicate tournament.

All players know in advance only that each deal was a baffler. Each player was keyed up to the limit of excitement in determining what each problem was. Remember this before casting stones.

That was tragedy. At another table the result was funny. You will hear about it. Give me time.

ESCAPES IN CRASH

DUNDEE, Scotland (Reuters)—Motorist Thomas Tait, in accident Monday, plunged 30 feet over a parapet right in front of an express train. He scrambled out of his battered car seconds before the engine smashed into it. He was only bruised.

NORWAY FLOODS

OSLO (CP)—Floods in southern Norway caused heavy damage in the Kragero district, destroying six bridges and putting many farms under water.

Presents Formula for Trieste

Yugoslav President Marshal Tito is shown as he addressed a crowd of 250,000 in Belgrade, saying Italy could have the port city of Trieste without any strings. But he demanded for Yugoslavia the rest of Zone "A", and declared any further Italian expansion would result in a "conflict." His concession of Italy's claim to Trieste was a modification of his former offer when he surrendered Yugoslavia's claim to the city itself, but said it should be an autonomous unit — self-governing — under Italian sovereignty. — Central Press Canadian.

Mediocrity Getting Boot In Hollywood These Days

By HUBBARD KEAVY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In a nutshell, here's what's happening in Hollywood today: mediocrity is getting the boot.

It is tragic news to many of the people who make movies. But in the end the movie fan will benefit.

The revolution that has struck Hollywood makes the talkie upset of 25 years ago seem like a picnic.

The main causes of Hollywood's new look are:

1. Too many poor pictures that broke the movie-going habit.

2. Competition from television, night sports, better cars.

3. Misleading film advertising.

NOT WASHED UP

Does this mean Hollywood is washed up? Definite not, say such thoughtful veterans as Sam Goldwyn, Jean Hersholt, Walt Disney and Hal Roach. It is the end of wonderful era, but moviland's future—now that it is approaching maturity—is greater than ever.

Hollywood figured if one movie made one million, 50 would make 50 million. And, by golly, it was right. The big studios ground out a picture a week. Some of these made many millions.

Not so long ago, Hollywood felt the vein of gold would never play out. Today a lot of folks are wondering what hit them.

A more discerning public, with other forms of entertainment to take their time and money, gave Hollywood the answer. It said, by staying away from B pictures, that it didn't want any more such tripe. Misleading advertising, which called too many films the greatest over produced, contributed to the debacle.

GRIM MEMORY

Movies turned out on a production line like automobiles are only a grim memory now. Each major studio will make only about a dozen films this year, and perhaps fewer in succeeding years.

Some producers are throwing up a lot of dust over new medias of projection—3D, cinerama, cinemascope and the like—but their arrival is only coincidental. A good story well told will hold your interest even on a 17-inch screen.

What has happened to all of the talent that used to make the hundreds and hundreds of potboilers? Much of it isn't working. Some of it has turned to television, at greatly reduced rates.

Only the sure-fire box-office stars can get roles. Only the ablest writers are working.

Producing companies formed by individuals—like Humphrey Bogart's, which has made a half dozen good pictures, including "African Queen," make films for a million that would cost the big studios two or three times that.

There is no doubt that before long most pictures will be made by small production units, headed by a star and a director. They will film only quality pictures from successful stories or plays or, if originals, containing elements that are bound to please the masses.

DIRE PREDICTIONS

Dire predictions have been made about the future of the movie greatest. The best opinion is that

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR WEDNESDAY, NOV. 25, 1953

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Vigorously favorable rays; Mercury guilty, intricate and difficult tasks sponsored along with artistic and unusual matters. But—do not be reckless or take achievement for granted.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Your Venus among today's well-positioned planets and the going looks smooth, encouraging. Be enthusiastic, confident and your efforts should bring generous returns. Domesticity favored.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Tops for your specific talents and leanings. Writing, advertising, promotional matters, interesting new and unique methods and ideas highly favored. Grand outlook but be sensible and don't overdo.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Splendid for you and your interests, so there should be no feeling of discouragement even though opposition may be still at times. You've much talent and capability. Both can produce now. . . .

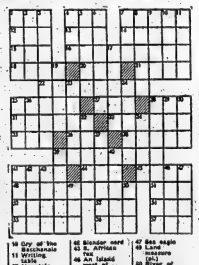
July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Strong, benefic Sun rays, coupled with other favorable vibrations, hold promise for fresh gains and benefits. Family, social relationships can be helpful, pleasant, be your cheery self.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — All interests and activities requiring keen judgment and analysis, the solving of intricate problems favored by fine Mercury aspect now. A responsive, benefic day if you co-operate.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Good advice to Taurus. You should go forward in your occupation, and other interests, too, take advantage of help offered, safeguard your assets and plan for future security.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Mars, among the well aspected planets today, favors strenuous activity, brain work and is especially encouraging for artistic matters. Don't delay or lose out on how that you can get ahead.

November 22 to December 21 (Sagittarius)—Caution may be needed in financial matters but, on the whole, the day is excellent for accomplishment in all worthy endeavors, for new undertakings, seeking advancement.



December 22 to January 21 (Capricorn)—It is important that unusual care be exercised in hazardous jobs, handling dangerous tools and machinery. You can have a productive day if true to the real you. No worrying!

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—The position of your planet, Uranus, does not advocate unpremeditated changes or needless quick decisions. Heed this warning and you will advance in your daily schedule. Splendid aspects for achievement generally.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Your specific talents and work for which you have training are especially sponsored today. Confidential matters, dealings in liquids, medicines, scientific research are also favored.

YOU BORN TODAY are bright, engaging, keen, quick in thought and action. You have fine business sense and can succeed in any field where you really apply your talents. You are especially adapted to an executive position if, of course, you have or are developing your natural resources and capabilities. Correct a tendency to be dictator-ial. Remember, others have ability and like to express their opinions, too. Birthdate: Spanish dramatist, poet; Andrew Carnegie, industrialist, philanthropist. Lope de Vega,

TRAPPED BY WIRES

ONEIDA, N.Y. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dungy were rescued by linemen of the Niagara Mohawk Power Co. Monday after spending two hours hemmed in by felled high-voltage lines. They were driving home through a storm when five large steel towers were snapped off by the high winds, and the lines surrounded their car.

CP Executive

John Tracey, 40, formerly chief bureau at New York, has been appointed an executive assistant to the Toronto Head Office of The Canadian Press, the co-operative news-gathering agency. Born in Halifax, he joined the Halifax Herald staff in 1935 and joined CP's staff in 1937. He worked in Montreal and Toronto bureaux until he joined the navy in 1941. He returned to CP after the war and worked in Halifax and Montreal before going to New York in 1950. — (CP Photo.)

Change in Clothes, but Not Roles

When whilh-robed Kim Ho Yong, a Korean „pape-san," (a title given to all cultured elderly gentlemen of Korea) called at U.S. Air Force base in Korea, he and Lieut. John M. Lowery decided to strike a pose for photographers with papa-san wearing Lieut. Lowery's' helmet and the jet pilot donning papa-san's traditional hat. Before this visit the elderly man had only seen the Sabres streaking overhead toward MIG alley during the war. — Central Press Canadian.

Little Benny's Note Book

My sister Gladdis and Harvey came over the bridge last nite, and pop said to Harvey, You're looking fine, Harvey, how do you feel, do you feel like one of my cigars?

I dont mindif I do, Harvey said, and pop said, Then do, if you dont mind.

Thanks, I will, Harvey said. As the old proverb says, a nicotine leaves mine, he said, and ma said, Oh for land sakes are we in for a string of gassly puns?

I hope not, Gladdis said, and pop said, The ladies are rite, Harvey, it's better to be good boys and smoke now and then to wilfully merder the king's English and smoke hereafter.

That's a fact, just look what happened to Bert Gunnysacker, Harvey said. Bert was stuch an inveterate punster that he could never keep a job. Even as a young fellow, when he was taken on as a farmhand, he didn't last a day. When the farmer told him to cut down the hay and plough the ground, Gunnysacker , cracked, "I see, you want me to give the field a hay cut and a shampoo." So of course the farmer, who was a serious man with a degree of Batchelor of Oats from the Agricultural College, fired him on the spot, Harvey said.

I knew a gerl like that, pop said. Her name was Margie Dundolly, and she had dramatic aspirations. But the ferst time she allowed up at a theatre the rehearsals the manager told her that her slip was showing, and Margie came back, "And your show is slioing." She got the bounce, pop said, and ma said, That's nothing to what you'll get if you dont put up that bridge table.

Which he did jaffing.

MARMORA

Marmora L. O. L. Elects Officers

MARMORA — The annual election of officers of Marmora L.O.L. 315 took place in the Orange hall on Thursday evening. Election was conducted by Worshipful Master, Rev. Gordon Moffatt, County Master of Centre Hastings.

Those elected were:

Wor. Master, Gerald Fluke; Deputy Master, Norman McFarlane; chaplain, W. J. Cottrell; recording secretary, Frank Cole; financial secretary, Elymer McFarlane; treasurer, Carl Deline; marshal, Gordon Scott; first lecturer, Douglas Phillips; second lecturer, Dalton Vilneff.

Trustees are Gerald Fluke, Gordon McFarlane, Gordon Jones, Carl Deline, Gordon Scott.

Auditors are: Ray Brown, Frank Cole.

Prior to the election two members were raised to the Royal Arch Purple degree.

PERSONALS

Mr. Oscar Cole was admitted to Belleville General Hospital on Thursday evening.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Alex. McFarlane of Cordova Mines, in Campbellford on Friday, Nov. 13.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Vansickle, of Peterborough, visited Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Bowen on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Bertram and son Larry, of Peterborough, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Cole.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Logan and their young daughter of Marmora, were supper guests Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sopha in the Vanderlip Settlement.

Carl Lynch, B.Sc., of London, Ontario, spent the week-end with his grandmother, Mrs. Maloney, and family in Belmont township.

Miss Helen Reynolds, of Belleville, spent a few days this week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Reynolds.

Mr. and Mrs. George Thompson, of Oshawa, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Elymer McFarlane.

Two minor accidents occurred at the Bethlehem Mine on Friday afternoon. Gerald Lette, in cutting heads off, severely mutilated a broken right hand. Frank Cook, working at the mine for the Turner Construction Company, sustained pelvic injuries. Both received treatment at the office of Dr. H. G. Parkin and were not admitted to hospital.

Columnist Declares Queen To Reply to Papers' Lies

LONDON, Nov. 24. (AP-Reuters) — The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh have decided to reply henceforth to high-powered newspaper stories about the royal family, columnist Rex North says in the Sunday Pictorial. Some of these reports have made the Queen "shopping mad," he says.

The royal family has always refused to issue denials of reports about its activities. But, says North, the Queen and the Duke aren't going to suffer the exaggerations and misunderstandings much longer.

Those writers who have been gambling and winning — on the fact that it has not been done for royalty to complain — for a start," according to North, who says he writes "with confidence and authority."

"The Queen and the duke, a vigorous and lively couple with minds of their own, are not prepared to tolerate this any more."

What worries the royal pair more than anything, North says, is the "elephant" which has built in Buckingham palace a "men only" replica of a ship's cabin that even the Queen is forbidden to enter, and that he has stated he is going to run the huge old palace like a battleship.

"CHARLES VEGETARIAN".

Inaccurate reports about Prince Charles which have angered the Queen include one story that he is being brought up as a vegetarian, another that he must look straight ahead and not talk to anyone during his outings in St. James' park.

The Sunday Pictorial also said the Queen will introduce an all-"revolutionary" program next year allowing the royal family to rub shoulders freely with common folk. North says the program is to be launched upon the return of the Queen and Duke of Edinburgh from their tour.

"They are avid newspaper readers and react in a very normal fashion when rubbish is written about them," North said. North says a secret report that Princess Margaret sought the Queen's permission to walk freely outside Buckingham palace was "utter balderdash" since she has strolled in the park with her dogs many times.

A Buckingham palace spokesman, asked about the reported new policy, replied politely but firmly: "No comment."

Victoria Voters To Make Decision In By-Election

VICTORIA (CP)—Victoria voters will decide today whether Finance Minister Eliott Gunderson will hold a seat in the British Columbia legislature.

In what Premier W. A. C. Bennett described recently as the "most important" by-election in the province's history, Mr. Gunderson should take over a seat vacated by Social Crediter Percy Wright.

The 53-year-old Mr. Gunderson, fighting his second by-election in a year, was defeated in the June provincial election in neighboring Oak Bay by Liberal P. A. Gibbs.

FOUR OPPONENTS

This time his opponents are: CCFer Alfred Matthew, a 31-year-old newcomer in politics and an ardent cyclist who hopes to be on the Canadian cycling team in the British Empire Games in Vancouver next year.

Liberal George Gregory, 37-year-old Victoria lawyer and member of the Oak Bay municipal council. He also is a new candidate.

Donald C. MacDonald of Ottawa, shown with his wife, is the new leader of the CCF party in Ontario. He was elected at the party convention in Toronto and immediately announced his intention to visit every riding in the province. — Central Press Canadian Dean Finlayson, 33, Progressive Conservative leader in B. C. He was defeated with Mr. Gunderson in Oak Bay in the provincial election and at Nanaimo in the federal election.

VOTE AT 19 AND 20

The by-election gave 19-and-20-year-olds their first opportunity to vote in B. C. legislation lowering the voting age to 19 was enacted during the fall session of the legislature. Only about 500 of the 32,249 eligible voters are in that category.

The by-election also marks the return to the old "v" system of balloting in B. C. The recent session of the legislature discarded the complicated alternative vote system that allowed voters to name candidates in the order of their choice.

McCarthy Prepares Radio-TV Reply to Truman's Blast

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Investigators today ponder FBI summaries of alleged Soviet espionage in the United States while, in an effort to help Harry Dexter White case, Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep., Wis.) prepared a radio-TV reply to former president Truman's blast at "McCarthyism."

New fuel was added to the case, already smoking with political charges and counter - charges, when:

1. A Canadian member of Parliament rose in the House of Commons Monday to charge that "McCarthyism" in the U. S. are trying to "blackmail" Canada into releasing Igor Gouzenko for questioning.

2. The Senate Internal security sub-committee disclosed that the White House sought and got FBI data on Harold R. Glasser, an alleged Soviet spy, a month before Glasser's 1946 promotion in the treasury department.

The charge of blackmail came from David Croll, Windsor, Ont., Liberal who said President Eisenhower should repudiate what he described as attacks on External Affairs Minister Pearson.

Croll charged, as did the Toronto Star in an article Monday, that Pearson may be named by the Senate sub-commitee as one of several Canadians accused of supplying information to Communists during the Second World War.

DENIES CHARGE

Robert Morris, sub - committee counsel, quickly said, "no such thing is contemplated." Pearson, who made a speech in New York on Monday night, declined comment on the charge and did not refer to Gouzenko in his prepared speech.

McCarthy, meanwhile, declined to discuss, what tack he will take in a speech from New York City tonight. But an aide said the Senator plans to devote at least part of his half-hour to talking about Glasser.

McCarthy's Senate investigations sub-committee plans thrice-weekly public hearings in New York, starting today on his charges of security laxity at the army's Fort Monmouth, N. J. radar laboratory. Extensive sessions heretofore on the topic have been closed to the public.

RED PARTY DEFEATED

GUATEMALA CITY (AP)—The anti - Communist party defeated Communist and pro - Communist groups in municipal elections here, tabulations announced Monday showed. The vote was 3,876 to 3,314. Balloting took place Friday, Saturday and Sunday. No disorders were reported.

DIES IN REFRIGERATOR

DETROIT (AP)—John Hokula, widower father of three children, was found dead in a nine-foot refrigerator Sunday night. The coroner's office declared the death a suicide. Hokula, 32, tied a cord to the handle of the refrigerator door and crawled in, shutting the door after him, police said.

Here's the Suburbanite Secret!
1. This radical tread has 664 flexible cleats—1,856 sharp, gripping edges that give exceptional traction even on the most treacherous winter roads.
2. Triple-grooved tread cuts side-slip to a minimum.
3. Annoying "snow tire hum" is practically eliminated. Suburbanite's varied-sized cleats break up the sound—give a smooth, quiet ride even on bare roads.
If you own a light truck . . . Ask your Goodyear dealer about the new Grip Tred. Patterned after the Suburbanite, it's the winter tire specially built for light trucks.

Canada Expected To Dump Affair In Gouzenko's Lap

Reply to Second U.S. Request Planned When House Meets

OTTAWA (CP) — The government today is expected to dump the Gouzenko affair into the lap of Igor Gouzenko.

When the Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. EST, the government is scheduled to give its reply to the second United States request that the U.S. Senate internal security sub - committee be permitted to question Gouzenko.

The government also will make public a document in which a "high - placed" Canadian source questioned the loyalty of the late Harry Dexter White to FBI director J. Edgar Hoover in 1946.

External Affairs Minister Pearson said Tuesday in New York he expects the Gouzenko affair to be cleared up to the satisfaction of both countries.

His views, given to the United Nations Correspondents' Association, were summarized by those collected to a press conference here Saturday.

He said Canada would not prevent a committee of senators from questioning Gouzenko, former Soviet embassy clerk here who in 1946 exposed a Russian spy ring operating in Canada.

Gouzenko was a Canadian citizen, free to go wherever he liked and to talk to anybody. But he was living, on his own request, under an assumed name and under RCMP protection in a secret place in Ontario town.

If he wished to testify before the sub - committee, Canada couldn't guarantee to maintain Gouzenko's anonymity or be responsible for his safety and that of his wife and three children.

NO INFORMATION

Gouzenko has told reporters at a secret rendezvous that he might have useful information for now he formation, to offer Senate investigators, he also has told them he doesn't wish to go to the U.S. to testify.

From this and Mr. Pearson's remarks, it appeared possible that Canada might not, at a second meeting in Canada between Gouzenko and a subcommittee representative, But it would be strictly up to Gouzenko whether he wanted to jeopardize his safety through such a meeting.

Canada received the first U.S. request that the sub-committee be permitted to question Gouzenko on grounds that the former spy tipster has no information to add to what he supplied in 1946 and in subsequent questioning by the RCMP.

Mr. Pearson, repeating a frequent government line, said he knew all information supplied by Gouzenko has been passed to the FBI.

But the sub-committee, which has not quarrelled with this, wants to interview Gouzenko anyway. This apparently stems from the separating powers between the executive and legislative branches of the U.S. government. The FBI, in the executive branch, has the Gouzenko information. But the sub-committee in the legislative branch, can't get at it.

MAY WORK LONGER

SASKTOON (CP) — Faculty members at the University of Saskatchewan will be able to continue teaching until 67. The retirement age was advanced from 65 at a meeting of the board of governors which also made provision for "tapering off" in work as retirement approaches.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Disturbance centred over Northern Ontario Wednesday morning continues to bring gloomy skies to most of Ontario with showers in Southern Ontario and snowflurries in the north country.

Cooler air flowing across Southern Ontario will bring showers elsewhere to Southern Ontario Thursday with considerably heavier snowfalls in those districts exposed to circulation off the lakes. Northern Ontario will remain generally cloudy with light snowflurries today and Saturday.

Advances Plan For Defence Use Of Light Planes

ARNPRIOR, Ont. (CP) — R. N. Redmayne, manager of the Air Industries and Transport Association, today outlined a plan for mobilization of Canada's 2,000-odd light aircraft for civil defence purposes in case of war.

In a speech prepared for delivery to civil defence transportation officers at the civil defence school here, he said now is the time to make plans and spend money to efficiently utilize these civil aircraft, "not after the Russian A-bomb has fallen."

He estimated the initial cost of preparing Canada would be about $25,000—"a minor sum in comparison to other expenditures for civil defence."

CAN RUSH AID

Because of the civil defence roles light aircraft could play were:

1. Trained observers could report from the air and direct mobile assistance units to damaged areas.

2. Medical aid could be flown into these areas and the critically injured flown out to hospitals in undamaged areas.

3. Police could quickly untangle traffic jams on main highways from look-see-curious and aircraft and firemen could direct fire fighting from such craft.

4. In the event of an atomic blast, aircraft could rapidly locate areas contaminated by radioactivity.

WOULD LIST PILOTS

The names, addresses and experience of pilots to man these flight activities—as well as a list of available planes—should be gathered by civil defence authorities and this information should be kept up to date, Mr. Redmayne said. Hundreds of retired air force fliers and civilian pilots in categories not required for military service, are available to fly the planes. There are also more than 225 women fliers in Canada qualified for such service, he said.

Car Industry Orders Improve Steel Picture

NEW YORK (AP)—A growing flow of orders from the auto industry has improved the prospects for the steel business even while steelmaking operations in the United States sank this week to 88 per cent of capacity, a new low for the year, The Iron Age, a steel trade working weekly, reported today.

"Through most steel mills people had kept whistling a brave tune, some were frankly puzzled over the long silence of auto industry buyers," said Iron Age. "Now that the fog has lifted a bit and the prospect automotive customers to enter the market heavily for first-quarter business in the next two or three weeks."

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—A former Soviet army staff officer was ordered held without bail here today pending filing of charges that he spied against the Allied forces in West Germany for the Kremlin.

Georgi Vladimirovitch Khorunzhi, known in West Germany as Georg Mueller, was brought before a United States court along with his wife, Elizabeth, an East German refugee. Both will be charged with unauthorized transmission of information to the Russian intelligence service.

Mueller, described in the German press as "Malenkov's master spy," has been held under maximum security custody for the last two months, it was the second time he had been charged.

The 39-year-old Russian, who is showed up in West Berlin in 1948 seeking political refuge, was arrested last Sept. 1 but the charges were suddenly quashed without explanation.

The German press speculated that Mueller was a "double agent" and the hearing in public trial would have caused embarrassment to the Allied forces.

HOUSE HEARS TWO SUGGESTIONS ON SENATE'S FUTURE

CCF Member Says Best Reform Is Abolition

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons has heard two suggestions on the future of the Senate: Abolition, or reforms to give the Opposition a stronger voice there.

Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia) said Tuesday that "the best reform that can be brought about is abolition." Harry O. White (PC—Middlesex East) said the Opposition should have at least one-quarter of the Senate's 102 seats.

Mr. Argue described the Senate as "famous only for delaying progressive legislation sent to it by the Commons."

He withdrew the remark at the request of Speaker Rene Beaudoin, who said it was "exaggerated." The CCF member said later, however, that in 1926, the Senate had held up passage of old age pensions legislation.

Mr. White said the Senate, with its predominance of Liberal members, is not properly protecting provincial rights, and suggested that regional political trends be reflected in the Senate through provincial governments to appoint some senators.

The Opposition should have at least one-quarter of the Senate seats and preferably one-third or one-half.

FEAR LIBERAL MAJORITY

Liberals hold 81 seats in the upper chamber and Progressive Conservatives eight, with 13 vacancies.

Mr. White said the Senate's original purpose was to serve as a balance against "radical" legislation. Now with the growth of centralized government in the federal government, individual rights seemed to be forgotten.

Can Reduce Aid To West Europe In 1954—Stassen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign aid director Harold E. Stassen has informed Congress it will be possible to make a considerable reduction" in American military aid to Western Europe next year. He said that economic aid, with a few exceptions, can be ended.

Stassen set out these conclusions in a special report he sent to four senate committees on Nov. 116. A summary of his letter was made public today by the foreign operations administration.

By "next year," Stassen had reference to the fiscal year—the 12 months beginning next July 1.

39 YEARS MARRIED

SAGLE, Idaho (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Hartley, who were married in Tennessee when both were 18, celebrated their 39th wedding anniversary Tuesday. The family—there are 8 descendants including 31 great-great grandchildren—claim the 56-year-old Hartleys have been married longer than any other couple in the country, except for a Texas couple who have been wed 80 years.

McCarthy Says Truman Govt. 'Crawling With Communists'

In his formal rebuttal to former president Truman, McCarthy also charged Tuesday night that Truman, while a United States senator and vice-presidential candidate, intervened against the dismissal from government service of George Shaw Wheeler, who later deserted to communism.

McCarthy said that after Truman became president, Wheeler was reinstated, although he had been dismissed as a Communist.

DEFINES "TRUMANISM"

The senator gave this description on what he calls "Trumanism":

The Wisconsin Republican addressed a coast-to-coast television and radio audience Tuesday night in answer to Truman, who had assailed "McCarthyism" in a TV-radio speech a week ago in connection with the Harry Dexter White controversy.

Truman was asleep in bed at his Independence, Mo., home an hour before McCarthy went on the air. Nor was there any immediate comment on McCarthy's speech from President Eisenhower, who is at Augusta, Ga., for the Thanksgiving holiday.

FEARS FOR GOD

In his reference to the handling of Communists in government, McCarthy said in his speech that he is convinced "that the Truman Republican party "might also fall victim to the same evil which beset the Democrat party and did so much toward destroying this nation."

McCarthy also took the Republican administration to task because there has been no accounting for Communists who are known to have been taken prisoner in the Korean war and who never returned.

10 Firms Named as Members Of Electrical Wire Combine

OTTAWA (CP)—Ten companies were named today as participating in a $124,000,000 Canadian electrical wire and cable combine.

Special Commissioner H. Carl Goldenberg of Montreal named the companies — including the industry's "big four"—in a 341-page report following an 18-month investigation.

The report was made public by Justice Minister Garson who said he will announce later whether the companies will be prosecuted in court.

COMPANIES NAMED

Named in the report are:

Canada Wire and Cable Ltd. of Montreal and Lachine, Que., a 38-year-old company which is a subsidiary of the Bell Telephone Co. of Canada.

Phillips Electrical Works Ltd. of Brockville, Ont., reported to have been established by the late Senator Eric Co. of Chicago at the time of the depression, but which believed have been purchased by British Insulated Calenders Cables Ltd. of London.

Triangle Conduit and Cable (Canada) Ltd. of Toronto. Four of its five directors are directors also of Triangle Conduit and Cable Co., Inc., a U. S. corporation. "It would appear that both companies are controlled by the same shareholders," the report said.

Benton Electric Wire and Cable Co. Ltd. of Hamilton, Ont. Shareholders of the company and the same name hold the controlling share of the Canadian corporation.

Alberta to Pay Most of Costs Of Polio Cases

EDMONTON (CP) — With Alberta's polio outbreak soaring daily to new record heights in both cases and deaths, the province has assumed most of the cost of polio treatment.

Health Minister Cross announced Tuesday the government will pay all but the first $100 of treating patients during the initial 14-day quarantine period through grants ranging from $10.25 to $40 daily. This is expected to boost the province's pollobill to more than $1,000,000 in the current fiscal year.

Cross said he will be retroactive to April 1. This means that patients who have already had to absorb most of the cost of this initial treatment will be reimbursed.

QUEEN AND DUKE REACH JAMAICA FROM BERMUDA

Dinner Criticized By London Paper

The big four-engined Stratocruiser touched down at 9:53 a. m. EST, across the island from schedule.

Coconut palms and mountains ringing a blue bay formed a backdrop as the Queen stepped off. Official welcomes from dignitaries headed by Governor Sir Hugh Foot. She inspected guards of honor before entering her car for a 125-mile ceremonial drive across the island.

ROUTE DECORATED

Gaily-clad Jamaicans thronged Montego bay, once the lair of pirates, to greet the royal visitors. Banners, flags and gaily-decorated archways lined the route of the Queen's drive.

Both the Queen and duke appeared well rested, showing no sign of the full day of functions Tuesday at Bermuda and their previous day, start this morning. The duke's white naval uniform contrasted with the more subdued black uniforms of the diplomatic representatives at the airport.

The drive took the Queen and her husband along picturesque stretches of coastal road connecting towns and villages where the local inhabitants had turned out to provide a festive welcome.

LEAVE AT DAWN

HAMILTON, Bermuda, (CP)—The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh took off shortly after dawn today on the last leg of their Commonwealth tour after a crowded and jubilant one-day visit to the resort island of Bermuda.

The stratocruiser Canopus which Tuesday brought them from Gander, Nfld., took off at 8:32 a.m. Bermuda Time, (12:32 a.m. EST) and was due at Jamaica's Montego Bay airport about 10 a.m. EST.

Bonfires were prepared on Jamaica's mountain tops in readiness for royal couple's arrival. Gay flags, bunting and festoons decked Montego Bay and the Queen's route to the island capital, Kingston. A welcoming program was planned for the royal party until it leaves by the Royal Yacht Britannia early next week.

Jamaica has special corporations, G. A. Freeman, announced that 90 per cent of the island community's objective has been reached.

Lorne McDougall, chairman of community organizations, emphasized the fact this campaign is a public campaign, and that the canvassers must do a selling job to get the money and that the chairman prophesied the goal set for employees and firms will be reached.

TUG LOST

LONDON (Reuters)—The British tug Gesga sank Tuesday night in the Thames after colliding with the 1,719-ton British freighter Malme. All five crew members were taken off safely by another tug.

Duplessis Repeats His Opposition to Aid

In a hard-hitting speech in reply to an attack on his administration by Liberal leader Georges Lapalme, Mr. Duplessis said the province was brought to sign a taxation agreement with Ottawa but Quebec never would.

Paper Identifies 'Highly-Placed' Canadian as Norman Robertson

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto Star says the "highly-placed" Canadian who is supposed to have given information on Harry Dexter White to the FBI was "simply relaying information to Washington" which the FBI had supplied the Canadian security authorities."

It identified the Canadian as Norman Robertson, second-highest civil servant in Canada, who was undersecretary of external affairs at Ottawa during the war. Mr. Robertson arrived in Ottawa Tuesday night from Geneva for what was described as a routine visit.

The Star says that information about Mr. White "came originally from Elizabeth Bentley, the Communist espionage courier", and discloures touched off intensive FBI investigations.

"All Mr. Robertson did was to mention to U. S. monetary authorities the fact that White was under investigation by the FBI."

Identity of the "highly-placed" Canadian referred to by J. Edgar Hoover's FBI chief, as inquiring about Mr. White's loyalty was to be disclosed officially in the House of Commons at Ottawa this afternoon.

Campaign Officials Confident Quota Will Be Reached

Speakers Stress Need For Whole-Hearted Efforts

Mayor A. McLean Haig, speaking at the hospital building fund campaign rally in the auditorium of BCIVS last night, announced that 76 per cent of the $1,250,000 objective has been reached. Mayor Haig, who is also general chairman for the fund, said a total of $956,288.00 has been contributed to date.

In his opening remarks, the mayor described the project as the most important fund raising effort ever organized in the city and the County of Hastings. He said that when it is brought to a successful conclusion, which he said it would be, it will be one of the greatest achievements recorded in this area.

Mayor Haig then introduced the Chairman of the Board of Governors of the hospital, J. N. Ketcheson, Q.C., Trenton, who spoke briefly to the 800 canvassers and to the radio audience said "thank you all and extend my appreciation for your efforts in this important campaign. I am sure that one day soon you and I shall see the results of your work and efforts."

REVIEWS EARLY PLANS

Chairman, Mr. Haig added a few other comments. He reviewed the plans for raising the objective and said that at the beginning it had been realized the only way to build the new wing would be through public subscription. The mayor went on to say that the campaign is more than a local community effort, but it involves the county as well.

"It is a unique campaign," the mayor stated, "because of its size and I am aware that many of you will stay when we speak of raising so large an amount of money. But I know, though the efforts of every one here tonight, that the funds can be raised and we will go over the top."

Mr. Graham said the county lined to help the hospital because also the county's hospital. He pointed out the population of the institution in past years had been made up of 40 per cent Belleville residents, 40 per cent Belleville residents and 20 per cent were from Deseronto, Tweed and other cities. The reeve pledged the county to take a full part in the campaign to help "this essential program."

W. P. Bernstein, Belleville, chairman of the executive committee, said he felt that the strong confidence the project would be carried through to a successful conclusion. He added, "For us to fail is unthinkable, but, with a whole-hearted effort, I believe we shall meet our goal."

Chairmen of special corporations, G. A. Freeman, announced that 90 per cent of the community's objective has been reached.

Lorne McDougall, chairman of community organizations, emphasized the fact this campaign is a public campaign, and that the canvassers must do a selling job to get the money and that the chairman prophesied the goal set for employees and firms will be reached.

Grain Marketing Profits Charged By CCF Member

OTTAWA (CP) — A CCF member of Parliament from the Prairies charged Tuesday that changes in grain marketing regulations have provided "tens of thousands of dollars in profits for elevator companies but have not solved a "huge" wheat surplus.

Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia) said in the throne speech debate that only one cabinet minister, Agriculture Minister Gardiner, is attending the current conference in Ottawa of federal and provincial agriculture officials and farm organizations.

The entire cabinet should meet farm representatives and hear their suggestions for averting "a drastic recession for the agricultural industry."

ELEVATORS PLUGGED

Mr. Argue said that the lifting of delivery quotas "before the last summer's election had plugged country every grain elevator in the West and was a "great boon" for the elevator companies who filled storage space that would not have been filled otherwise.

However, when this year's crop was harvested, the majority of quota producers could market none of their grain.

Mr. Argue said removal of the order book system under which farmers could order railway cars for shipment placed control of car allocation in the hands of railway companies who favored the line elevator companies. This gave the elevator companies "tens of thousands of dollars" in profits.

MORE VARIETY

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) Tomato juice, soft drinks and packaged snacks have been popular purchases in beer parlors here since the provincial government lifted its ban on the licensed premises, Hotel managers said the innovation has reduced drunkenness.

BIG CATCH OF CARP MADE IN THIS AREA

A big catch of carp was reported from the Bay of Quinte district last week. One fisherman using a 9 inch mesh, netted 700 pounds during a seven-day period. The fish averaged 15 pounds each.

Carp, since their accidental release in the Great Lakes system years ago, have increased greatly in numbers. They are vegetarians and grow to a large size, sometimes up to 50 pounds.

PANSIES BLOOMING IN FLOWER GARDEN

With topsy turvy weather continuing even the flowers don't seem to know that within a very few days December will be with us.

Yesterday Norman Miller, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Miller, 13 Elmer street, came home for noon lunch from school and spoiled mauve and yellow pansies blossoming in his mother's flower garden. The lad picked the pansies and took them to school as a present for his teacher.

Mrs. Miller said the pansies had apparently finished blooming some time ago when suddenly the flowers which her son found burst into bloom.

Senior Citizens' Club Formed For Recreation

Mr. Leslie Field, a retired newspaper man of the Ottawa Journal, was elected president of the new Senior Citizens' Club of Belleville at the initial meeting held at the Kiwanis Centre last evening. Mr. Field is 68 years of age and has been a resident of this city for the past two years. He has been in the newspaper business since he was in his early twenties.

Other members of the committee are Lloyd "Red" Doran, honorary president; Wes Grey, vice-president; Mrs. R. Moult, secretary-treasurer; Mr. Fred Cooke, Mrs. Jack Redmond and Mrs. Andrews form the executive.

Lloyd Doran, Recreational Director, was in charge of the first get together but he stated that from now on it's completely up to the members themselves to decide what they want to do and to run the meetings. Mr. Doran was very pleased with the 75 members who were present, all of whom were over 60 years young. It is hoped that they can expand into a large group who will enjoy being with each other. It was decided last night that a fee of 50 cents will be charged to cover costs with the money being used to buy flowers for any of the others who should become ill.

MEET ONCE A MONTH

On the first Wednesday of each month the Senior Citizens will meet at the Kiwanis Centre and play many different games such as euchre, checkers, dominoes and crokinole. There will be dancing, sing songs and any other entertainment that, while some of the members have already promised to play the piano or sing. Tea and cake will be served.

The committee will meet in the next week to plan what will be done at the Senior Citizens' Club party on Friday, December the 18th. The regular monthly meetings will be held the first Wednesday in January.

OFFER REPARATIONS

TOKYO (AP)—Japan will offer a total of $480,000,000 war reparations to four nonbelligerent countries, the newspaper Asahi reported today. The newspaper said Japanese government officials have reached an agreement on the total sum to be paid over a 7- to 10-year period. Indonesia will be offered $285,000,000, Burma $70,000,000, Indo-China $35,000,000 and the Philippines $250,000,000.

Foremen's Club Hears Part Played by Bond Companies In Economy of Country

"There are more dollars, per capita, invested in Canada than any other country in the world," said L. L. McCutcheon, vice-president of the Bankers Bond Corporation in an address to 90 members of the Quinte District Foremen's Club held Tuesday evening in the Y.M.C.A.

Mr. McCutcheon made that statement in an address entitled, "The Part Played by Bond Companies in the Economy of Our Country."

"An investment in Canada is the safest investment in the world," he said. "The potentialities of Canada are finer than anywhere else and I firmly believe that the decade from 1950 to 1960 will be Canada's greatest years," said Mr. McCutcheon.

In pointing out the part played by investment dealers in the industrial expansion of this country, Mr. McCutcheon, stated that when the Investment Dealers' Association was formed in 1917 it handled a Victory Loan or 79 million dollars, distributing the bonds to 25,000 people.

FINANCIAL MATURITY

"In 1945 we sold two billion dollars worth of bonds to Canadians, than three million Canadians," he said. "This gives some idea of the financial maturity of this country."

In the 9th Victory Loan we sold $5,780,000 worth of bonds to 17,000 people in Hastings County alone —an amount that represents nine per cent of all the money loaned in the 9th in 1917. You can see just what a large business the investment business is."

"There is nothing mysterious or complicated about the investment business," stated Mr. McCutcheon, noting that there are 210 firms in Canada, with more than 400 offices.

He stated that the investment dealer, like any merchant, operates a business in which there is some profit and some risk.

DEALERS BUY BONDS

"Our business is federal, provincial, municipal and corporation bonds. Municipalities and industries expand, and in order to finance their expansion they issue bonds. The investment dealer buys these bonds and re sell them."

Chief purchasers of bonds are the insurance companies whose huge revenues from premiums and investment make them an ideal market for securities. Trust companies and banks also purchase bonds.

In 1952 the investment dealers sold a billion dollars' worth of Province of Ontario bonds. Millions of dollars worth of bonds were sold to develop power in Ontario. Since the war "an economic revolution," has taken place in industry with "8,500 new plants financed largely through their own resources and from money received from the sale of bonds or borrowed from the banks and insurance companies.

"Investment dealers have the knowledge, know-how, machinery and the capacity to handle and place the vast sums of money needed for this great development and expansion," said Mr. McCutcheon.

PLACED IN NEW YORK

The speaker noted that in 1914 when the British market was cut off by World War I, most of the financing done by Canada was placed in New York.

In 1917, when the United States entered the fighting, the Canadian investment dealers were on their own.

"Until recently at least," said Mr. McCutcheon, "85 per cent of all capital investment in Canada was held in Canada. However, with the development of the oil, iron, chemical and hydro industries, it has become impossible to finance all these things in the country and we have been turning to the United States.

In noting the difference between free market desires, bankers and brokers, Mr. McCutcheon stated that an investment dealer finds a business that wants to build on a long term basis and sells it to someone else; a broker, having little to do with the initiation of business, buys and sells securities after the issues have been well established.

SHORT TERM BASIS.

Bankers provide funds on a short term basis because, the speaker noted, "it is to their credit that they keep their funds in a fluid state to meet the demands of their depositors."

In speaking of the smaller operations of investment dealers in the Province of Ontario Securities Mr. McCutcheon noted that "the city of Belleville has a very high credit rating among investment dealers and insurance companies."

"No one knows what the future will be," he said in discussing the effect of any investment, "and I did not expect Dominion of Canada bonds to go down, but we didn't anticipate the great postwar demand of Canada."

"Reputable dealers study carefully what they offer you. They are experienced and trained to size up the material they offer. Every deal must have approval by the Ontario Securities Commission."

In discussing the relationship of labor and management, Mr. McCutcheon stated that we are all capitalists.

"Labor should welcome a good return on capital," he said. "And we have every reason to hope for a rainy day as well as money for expansion. We can look for more people. All business must take in more than it gives out. It must provide today and industry and civilization die tomorrow."

FRIENDSHIP SOLUTION.

"Friendship of the Christian way of life is the only solution to the mutual misunderstanding of labor and management," he said. "There is no difference between communism, totalitarianism, or any form. It is only when we accept the Christian virtues that we can realize the wonderful opportunities ahead for each of us and for Canada and the world."

The speaker was introduced by Maurice Bradden and the thanks of the meeting were expressed by William Page.

British Empire Dairy Show Opens Tuesday

Free blocks of cheese and cartons of cokes will be given away as door prizes at the British Empire Dairy Show to be held in the market room of the city hall on Tuesday and Wednesday Dec. 1-2.

Exhibition officials said that doors would be drawn for each hour between two and five in the afternoon and seven to ten in the evening for the draw.

Admission will be free.

A great deal of special effort is being made by show officials to get the public to attend the exhibition and at the same time show of the fine eating qualities of top grade Canadian cheddar. Five different cheese companies, including W. S. Cook and Sons of Belleville, will have special displays of cheese at the show.

STILL COMING IN

Entries for the big cheese show are still coming in and prospects are for the biggest show in years. The judging will be set up in the market room Saturday afternoon and judging will commence as soon as the cheese are in place. Judges for the show will be Charles Gilles, chief dairy grader for the Central Ontario district, and John M. Bain of Queen's chief instructor for Western and Central Ontario.

A special list of $1,000 is offered for the show, while this year additional other awards will go to the winners.

HOLD SESSIONS IN HOTEL

In conjunction with the cheese show, another of the 26th annual convention of the Central Ontario Dairy Makers' Association are being held at the Hotel Quinte.

The sessions get underway Tuesday afternoon with cheese makers to receive trophies and other awards at the Tuesday evening session to be held at the hotel. Speakers well versed in the cheese industry and problems of dairying will be heard at the convention.

Wednesday evening the convention will conclude with a banquet, also to be held at the Hotel Quinte. Speaker for the banquet will be Dr. J. Yoxall Chamberlain of the Agricultural College at Guelph.

CAMPAIGN

Mr. Rollins, chairman Industrial Employees' committee, also shared Mr. McDougall's belief that his section would go over its goal. "It will be a grand success," Mr. Rollins declared, "and we will go over the top."

OPTIMISTIC OF RESULTS

Exactly 54 per cent of the goal of the men's division has been reached, H. P. M. Cane, chairman of the group's committee, said. He also was optimistic his committee's goal would be topped.

Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson, chairman of the women's division noted that 30 per cent of her division's goal had been reached.

"The women of the County of Hastings take pride in assisting such a noble campaign," Mrs. Clarence Holmes, president of the Hastings County Women's division said at the luncheon. She said the women of the county were aware of the need for sanitarium, of Belleville's women to put the campaign over the top and she knew it also would be done in other parts of the county.

Colonel Jack Vanderwater, chairman of the County of Hastings committee commented on the fact there is a need existing for more hospital space to care for the county people. He spoke of the campaign so none would find the doors of the hospital closed due to lack of space. Col. Vanderwater said he was sure the $800,000 goal would be met and topped.

Dr. H. E. Potter, chairman of the medical doctors' canvass said the average contribution of the doctors exceeded any donation made by such a group in any other section in the province of Ontario. He also said he was confident the campaign got a good heard from would contribute before the campaign closed.

Philippa Faulkner To Have Picture Hung in Gallery

A distinct honor has been bestowed on Mrs. Philippa Faulkner, Belleville artist, who has submitted two pictures for the 74th annual exhibition of the Royal Canadian Academy of Arts to be held at the Art Gallery in Toronto on Friday of this week. She has been notified that one of her pictures has been accepted and will be hung at the exhibition.

It is understood that a picture must have exclusive merit to be accepted for exhibition in the Gallery. Mrs. Faulkner is an ardent student and painter and has many fine studies of under Hans Hoffman of Cape Cod.

Among Mayor Haig's closing remarks were a tribute and expression of thanks to the entertainers for giving so freely of their time to the campaign in an excellent show. His last words to the audience were words of encouragement. The mayor said, "Be of good spirit, be of good heart and we shall succeed."

TORONTO STOCKS

First-hour volume was 479,000 shares.

Industrials' strength lay in papers, steels, motors and agriculturals. Utilities slipped a little, constructions were down and banks showed slightly lower with little trading.

Uraniums and N. B. base metals stopped their recent downward trend. New Larder U made a penny gain. Nesbitt-Labine was up a little in uraniums. Lorado gained 11 cents with a volume of more than 44,000 shares.

In Western oils, Calgary-and-Edmonton and Pacific had 15-cent gains.

Dial Telephone Service Will Be Provided in City in Summer of '55

Belleville will get dial telephone service in the early summer of 1955, C. W. Procter, Bell Telephone manager here, announced today.

Plans for conversion of the Belleville exchange to the new and modern system of operation have been completed, he said, and, barring unforeseen circumstances, the conversion will take place a little over a year and a half from now.

The dial equipment and associated apparatus will be housed in the Bell Telephone building at the corner of Bridge and Church streets, which already accommodates Belleville's long distance centre and the company's business office. The completed and painstaking task of installing the complex dial equipment in the building will begin within a few months.

MUCH WORK REQUIRED

Considerable work will have to be carried out before the conversion can be accomplished, and the whole project must be carefully co-ordinated so that all telephones can be changed over to the new system with virtually no interruption in service.

In addition to the installation of dial equipment, the entire wire and cable network serving the Belleville area will have to be adapted for use under the dial system and extended into new industrial and residential areas. Another major project will be adapting present telephone instruments for operation under the dial system, and in some instances, replacing them.

Dial equipment to be installed here will serve 10,000 telephones, sufficient to meet the needs of all those waiting for service as well as provide for future demand.

All telephone numbers will be changed as a result of the conversion, Mr. Procter said. In conformity with a new system of telephone numbering gradually being introduced throughout Canada and the United States, the new numbers will consist of an exchange name, represented by the number by two letters and one figure, and four figures. Details about the new numbers will be announced well in advance of the conversion.

When dial is inaugurated, it will necessarily mean a reduction in the size of the operating staff. The company is already making plans to ensure that this will be accomplished with a minimum of disruption to present operators.

A number of operators will still be required to handle such work as long distance, information and assistance calls. To make sure that present operators are given preference, any new operators or replacements for girls leaving the company will be hired on the understanding that their employment may be temporary. Other plans are also being worked out to make certain that there is as little dislocation of the operating staff as possible.

Weather Balloon Lands Tuesday In Sidney Twp.

A United States weather balloon picked up Tuesday afternoon on the farm of Douglas Thompson, 5th concession, Sidney township, made a fast flight following its release from the Niagara Falls, N.Y., weather station early yesterday morning.

The balloon was spotted by Mr. Thompson's son, Ernest, as it floated down—and landed in a gravel pit on the Thompson farm only a few hours after its release.

The weather balloons are released regularly from the Niagara Falls weather station. They rise thousands of feet and eventually burst in the rarified air. During flight recording devices send out radio signals to the home station. When the balloon bursts the box containing the recording device floats to earth by parachute.

Couple Made Honorary Life Members of Club

TRENTON, (Special) — Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Aylsworth became the first honorary life members of the Trenton Golf and Country Club on Monday night. The Board of Directors at the club was unanimous in voting the honor in recognition of the long and faithful service rendered by Mr. Aylsworth, who is also one of the few living charter members.

The two were named at the annual meeting and election of officers of the organization.

The directors decided on a long term policy to improve the course with a view to making it more attractive in Eastern Ontario. Club professional, Dick Channon, renewed his contract for 1954.

New directors elected include golf captain D. D. Blake, Alex Chivas, Mrs. Leah Cory, Harold Newton, Owen Allen Wilson; bowling section, J. Roy Brown, J. J. Jones, Jack Orrill; social—Kelly Wood and J. E. Uffley.

The auditors report showed that the club's capital debt had been reduced noticeably and net profit for the year amounted to well over $1,000.

Air Power In Canada Subject of Talk

TRENTON (Special) — Speaking at the annual fall dinner of the Chamber of Commerce last night Group Captain J. B. Millward, D.F.C., Commanding Officer of the Trenton Air Station addressed the subject "Air Power in Canada" as his topic. He said he chose this address "because the occasion was so close to the 50th anniversary of flight—December 17, 1903 at Kittyhawk, North Carolina." He compared present day flying specds with Orville Wright's feat of 120 feet in 12 seconds. Pointing to a heavier than air machine, The other day in California he noted a rocket ship travelled four miles in the same length of time. "Perhaps this will give you an idea of the revolution of flight in 50 years", he said.

Emphasizing that we would be wilfully blind and criminally foolish if we didn't realize the seriousness of the situation today the Air Force leader pointed out that governments were spending majority of defence budget on the air forces and further stress on inter-continental bombers. He credited the high command decision to emphasize airpower to lessons learned from World War II that the army and navy would have been in jeopardy without air support.

Praising the safety of aviation equipment the Group Captain reported that two leading Canadian airlines have carried three billion passengers with only 60 fatalities. He foresees in the near future jet transports on regular flights whisking passengers across Canada in six hours.

He predicted flying robots piloted by punched cards inserted in machines having mechanical brains. He maintains that the pilot will still have a job to do however in case of emergencies or unpredicted changes in the weather. All this will cost money, providing peace is maintained and development money is made available, the officer contended. For example a great number of airports will have to be modified before jet transportation becomes permanent, he said.

Group Captain Millward praised the accomplishments of the helicopter and freight cerrying aircraft in the development of Canada. He assured his listeners that Canada's expansion and progress was only beginning.

Kiwanians Hear Report on House For Fire Victims

Major P. K. "Ketch" Ketcheson of the Carling Conservation Club, visited the Kiwanis Centre to show several conservation films at the noon luncheon on Tuesday.

The movies included the story of the founding of the Carling Conservation Club and the life cycle of the ring-necked pheasant. It was under Major Ketcheson's direction that the club was formed.

Harold Carruthers reported on the progress of the Key Club project to build a home for a Carnifton family who were burned out recently. With the aid of the Kiwanis Club and other organizations and neighbors, the Key Club is endeavoring to build a new home for Mrs. Flossie Moore and her son.

Mr. Carruthers said the excavation, footings, cistern, foundation walls, flooring, joists, wall studding and backfill have been completed to date. More money is required and plans are under discussion on the best method to raise funds to complete the building. It is hoped it will be finished by Christmas.

Major Ketcheson was introduced by Ronald Keel and the thanks of the club were expressed by Vic White.

BELLEVILLE BUSINESS SURVEY

Or perhaps we should say it is a $64 question with a $25 answer, which is a bargain in any man's language.

Merchants will not be surprised to learn that the organization responsible for this bargain is the Belleville Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber has already established an enviable reputation for service, not only to merchants and industrialists but to the community as a whole. It seems to us it is impossible to over-estimate the profit which both merchants and their customers may eventually obtain from a "Better Service Survey" conducted by the Chamber. The results of this survey have now been published in booklet form. These booklets will be distributed free to members of the Chamber. Non-members can purchase these booklets for $25. If carefully studied and the suggestions incorporated therein acted upon, this $25 investment should pay big dividends to any merchant. And, of course, the merchant's customers will benefit, too, for the booklet tells what Belleville residents find wrong with service here and what improvements they would like.

It would be a mistake, however, to jump to the conclusion that most Belleville citizens are dissatisfied with the services they already obtain from Belleville stores. The reverse is true. Many favorable comments were made by the 427 residents who answered questionnaires distributed through the local schools. That Belleville citizens are generally happy with the service they receive is clearly shown by the fact that a very high proportion of all seven-by-four types of merchandise listed in the survey was purchased in stores in the city. In sixteen items the home-buying figure was over 90 per cent; in none was it under 80 per cent.

The survey lists the percentage of purchases made in Belleville, by mail order and outside the city for all 24 items. It lists the reasons why people buy elsewhere if they do so. This information is quite obviously of great value to every merchant.

There are also some figures in the questionnaire which are of special interest, although we doubt whether the average citizen would be willing to pay $25 for such information. So, with the Chamber's permission, we shall tell you that only 8 per cent of those answering the questionnaire think there is not enough parking space in the business area and that 41.7 per cent do not believe parking meters are the answer to the problem. We also suspect that you might be interested to learn that, while 49 per cent favor a Wednesday half-holiday, 33 per cent would prefer the half-holiday to fall on Monday. Over half those answering the questionnaire, 55.3 per cent, think Friday is the best evening for the stores to remain open, while 32.8 per cent favor Saturday. And there were apparently some store employees answering the questionnaire, for otherwise how would you explain the fact that 9.8 per cent of the answers oppose the stores remaining open on any evenings?

Altogether a most entertaining—and most valuable—$25 booklet of advice to merchants, which should result in both they and their customers being happier in the service.

BULLY FOR "PILTY"

The "Piltdown Man" is a fraud.

This great news cheered an already lacrimous legion among the world's few surviving optimists. For the "Piltdown Man" of the textbooks is no more. Modern science history has been reconstructed by zealous scholars who slave away with teaspoon and pigs-bristle brushes in the sand and dirt of Piltdown, you know.

Pilty (why be sacred when the old boy himself was a charlatan) was supposed to be the oldest human fossil ever unearthed. The skull fragments were supposed to have been 500,000 years of age, making it more ancient even than the Pekin man and the specimens found to date in Java and the Middle East, heretofore considered the cradles of civilization. Now the paleontologists is superior position for rebuttals about charges of "barbarians" which illbriefly sprinkled accounts of the Roman conquests.

Alas, Pilty turned out to be a mere infant—not only 50,000 years of age—relatively a freshman among the ancients already discovered. And his mandible—jawbone to you! He was found to have had the habits to eat like orangutang which had been treated with chemicals to give it an aged appearance. Contrary to the Darwinians now leaping for joy with Pilty's discovery, he was also not emphatically by a German paleontologist at the time the discovery was first made, that the jaw was an orangutang's jaw from the East—and a modern ape at that. Modern paleontologists (it is not a profession that leaves itself open for revelry and wows flashes) let their skepticism simmer 42 years before the date of the original discovery in 1911 before stating definitely that Pilty was a fake.

Our joy, however, is profound, not because the rest of the organized paleontologists took 42 years to make up their minds, but because anyone would seek to perpetrate a fraud on a frugal paleontologist. There could be no financial reward for such a fake. What man or woman obsessed with a desire for fame, would connive to age an ape's mandible to look like a 500,000-year-old man! A swan dive from the visitors' gallery on Ben Lomond would be more effective, because a seeker after fame can hardly advertise that he has produced a fossil. Such a prank is obviously humor of a twisted kind.

The only reason that comes readily to mind for the perpetration of such a hoax, is the solid satisfaction that a peculiar man gets in confusing the experts. Pilty's forgers have delighted the layman's fancy in recent years by "producing" old masters—the most notable being the Vermeer forgeries uncovered after the war. A French stamp forger also enjoyed brief notoriety and caused some behind-the-hand hilarity when he "discovered" several "genuine" rare old stamps.

However, we must take our hat off to the sturdy soul, whoever he may have been, who conceived the idea of palming off an ape's mandible for the jawbone of the "Piltdown Man." Forty-two years is a long time to wait for a joke to come to fruition, but nobody was hurt, except in his self esteem, and the common man can once more take a jaundiced look at all "real experts"—all experts, everywhere.

It's refreshing. Thanks Pilty.

TODAY'S TALK

By George Matthew Adams

RICH MAN, POOR MAN

The poor man has it on the rich man because he has a multitude of wants. They buzz around him like mosquitoes on a summer night in the country. You see the poor man can enjoy his wants even though they are not satisfied, whereas the rich man knows that he can satisfy most of his wants and rather than enjoy them to stir his imagination—to outside what he has he wishes for nothing else. Money is his god.

We don't hear so much about rich men as we used to. It's a crime, however, to be rich any more than it is for a man to be poor. Most of the rich men of today were once poor—and some of them are going back to being poor to see if it's an improvement! It might be more wholesome at that. The thing that I don't like is the classification of people who work. Are workers only the people, who belong to unions? I have never belonged to a union but I have always worked and will until I die. I have nothing against unions and I hope unions be only speaking their minds.

having nothing against me because I call myself a worker, I wear a white collar. Does that make me ineligible as a worker? Prof. Sumner, the Yale teacher of some time ago, called the white collars "the Forgotten Man." I am inclined to think that he had something there.

The Forgotten Man always have with us those who will prefer to stand rather than work. Everybody who wants to work should be an honored one in any community. Some one once said that it was President Lincoln begging him to give a job to a man who wanted to work. The President immediately sent a note to War Secretary Stanton to give the boy a job at once for it wasn't a good idea for one who so wanted to work to be given the opportunity.

Rich man, poor man—they are all human and in a democracy should be honored and respected so long as they offer—and demonstrate—a desire to be useful.

Have the knife sharpened. No longer about to begin
Before I commence. Thanksgiving. I'm scheduled to use it
For critical grownups and youngsters, near starving.
When grace has been said I'll proceed with the carving.

When the table is set, see that nothing is lacking.
I start and a dull knife. It always means hacking.

I don't want a blade that hard And don't overlook that long spoon for the stuffing.

I don't like my carving by loved ones derided.
I'll do the task well if the tools are provided.

How The Mind Works

(New York Times)

What the mind does, with a chance remark—accepting it, weighing it, improving upon it, expanding its meaning, or even rejecting it—is something few of us have time, these days, to sit back and, simply out of curiosity, to consider. The fact is that we rarely consider the total at all, the most normal course of events—except when it involves a mathematical problem, at which point we may say, "I can't get my mind on this subject," perhaps wondering (quite sharp as we used to be.

Let it be supposed that, about noon, someone, after glancing skyward, offers the loosely phrased observation that "the sky looks like snow." The mind of the hearer, if it is freewheeling without any great matter of moment to occupy it, perceives the awkwardness of the comment but chuckles that aside as less important than the thought conveyed, which the mind pigeonholes briefly, then weighs the probable accuracy of that observation, and, finding it to be the conclusion that, whereas the gray cast of the clouds suggests snow, neither the date nor the temperature is in snow's favor.

Having done that and if not distracted by something requiring its undivided attention, the mind now is in a position to proceed to the next step, which is to accept or dismiss the whole subject of Snow, Possibility of; it may toy with a picture of the appliance's reaction to a sudden and heavy fall of snow, it may project from this the reception of snow, cataloguing it as an undesirable occurrence, or it may dismiss it as favorable in connection with toboggans, skis and hot buttered rum. The mind may shift to a practical channel, flitting rapidly from the possible recalled need for a new snow shovel to chains for the car to storm windows and doors and to children's snow suits.

It may with equal ease, on the other hand, skip backward one, five or twenty years to another gray November—or even to a sort of composite picture of Novembers—where there were leafless trees and the sense of changing to their twisted brown persons which rustled in a smoke-scented wind along a road near which snow fences were being unrolled. A November when the mind made a crust on the ground which thawed when the sun was up and stuck to hunting boots in great clods; when a pheasant, rising with a squawk and a loud drumming of wings, rose toward the gray horizon and got away.

The mind may even have made a quick detour, as it touched on those tasks, into a small pocket where it had stored an assortment of odds and ends having to do with getting ready for winter, and found a cross-cut saw, and splitting the wood with wedge as the tough fibers loudly resisted. People in the country, the mind may observe, somewhere in the course of a Manhattan's November mind provokes a comparison, have a healthier appearance (masculine and feminine), do not wear hats! The mind has a sharp turn of the mind will suggest that it has just about exhausted the subject of a November day in November and what began as an appraisal of Snow, Possibility of, has been quite willing to drop the subject without further ado, and will now come along with whom the mind is moved to arrange the passing of the day, and it will send an impulse to the vocal cords, which will produce the sound of a fellow pedestrian acquaintance that "the sky looks like snow." The whole mind will have tossed into another and presumably quite different mind a word or phrase which was accepted, weighed, improved or expanded upon, or received as being too trivial to trifle with.

Six Gunboats Replace Fox

(Ottawa Journal)

In the presence of greatest events, what with entertaining a president and getting parliament settled down to its work, to say nothing of dealing with the storm windows, we have been neglecting a matter of considerable concern to everybody whose property value a typewriter goes beyond the one-finger period of the most amateurish amateur. We did have a note on it —but that was only a small token of its importance.

It used to be that the student-body was inspired to take activity with the keyboard by constant practice of the touch-typing method. Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their party, for example, but not the word, but this commendable political sentiment is stilled. Not so much time available and the student proceeded by pecking with short sorts of animal life having to do with the quick brown fox that jumped over the lazy dog.

Between the party that needed 'ait and the party that needed speed records, the old sentiments have been lost sight of. The good men and the athletic fox are too tame for this generation. They are rooted in a day that is gone. This is a more rugged age, a more vital one, and rumors are afoot and so it is that some ingenious person has devised another and more ringing sentence for practice and including all the letters of the alphabet. A quick movement of the enemy would jeopardize six gunboats.

It is a sign of the times. The student typist has been yanked out of his or more often her placid routine of good men and brown foxes and tossed into the realm of naval maneuvers. Thus progress marches on.

Poor Cyclist Has Hard Life

(Owen Sound Sun Times)

The poor bicyclist gets little consideration these days: Scolded by motorists, hounded by police and other authorities, his once carefree life seems gone.

There was a day when the bicycle vied with dobbin and the horse was a means of transportation. It was a handy gadget, even the old hard-to-kind, "horseless carriage" as it was called, the forerunner of the more elegant specimens of our modern highways. Used for business or pleasure it was both economical and healthful. Bicycle hikes into the country were common. And in the business sense in line—were wonderful courting opportunities, unless the gentleman preferred pedaling with his companion to do too much pedaling. Not so many years ago the bicycle industry in America was more than a million dollar business.

It has a humble part in modern life, however. It is the delight of the workmen, messenger boys, and a few who ride for hobby's sake and the sheer joy of independence, make up today's users.

It is interesting to learn that in some countries, like Denmark, the bicycle is the mainstay of the city workers' transportation. A street in Copenhagen would look odd in the afternoon shows hundreds of cyclists homeward bound, filling the roadway and the sidewalks, even menace. To come up behind a joy-riding bicyclist zig-zagging from curb to curb and shouting "Momma, so hands!" stunt, or a group of three or four riders going along half-way across the road, is disconcerting, suddenly appearing in the dark upon one without lights or reflectors, gives the motorist a feeling of helplessness.

Not wanted on the roadways, not allowed on the sidewalks, and with no other path provided for him, there is nothing for the pedalist in his many close to the curb and do his best to keep out of trouble and accidents.

Strength for the Day

MERCIFUL PROVISION

The most excruciating torture experienced by a condemned prisoner awaiting execution is that he knows what is coming and when it will happen. He sits brooding for days and months over his impending ordeal.

One of God's greatest mercies abides in the fact that we never know what is going to happen to us even in the next split second. Sometimes we grumble about this and say how much more satisfactory life would be if we could just look into the future a bit. But if we could look into the future, we would see there what the future holds for us, and it might not like that. Would we not be better prepared to meet it? That is doubtful, because we would wear ourselves out with anxious brooding if we really saw what was coming and had had to be endured. Have you been more better to meet situations when bothered with them for some time before they reached a climax? Is it not the dreadful uncertainty and nervousness of a situation coming upon you has opened reservoirs of resourcefulness and power you never knew you possessed?

As we think it over, we are certainly led to the conclusion that the All-Wise Creator considered carefully in improving on the Lord's Prayer, when He added up. You can't just go down town and duplicate them, as you can a sheet of a pillow slip. Their loss only adds to their value, in the owner's eyes. So the thieves are always busy. And the cleaner's prompt and most businesslike replies only madden-

Politics In Old Days

When Ontario was young politically a sitting member of the legislature considered that he had prospered in relation to the use they made of the railways.

It was natural that taxes should be collected by the railways when tickets were sold or express, freight and other charges were made. At the present that gasoline taxes are now levied.

The party then in opposition had little hope of defeating a member with a platform so ingenious. They had a saying about one who was known to have one thousand dollars and no ambition to be elected.

He was the man with thousand dollars and the ambition had not acquired his cash wealth by gamb-

Personal Health Talks

ONE DOZEN C R I

In an earlier talk I promised to name a dozen common respiratory infections—or R I, for short, pronounced knee, to designate the type of indisposition or illness in the stages of onset before you or your doctor can tell which communicable disease it is.

For the benefit of lunkheads who try to pattern their third grade sarcasm for my silly attempt to feint upon the public another name for what everybody knows as "the common cold," let me repeat that the C R I (knee) is not an ailment one can define with mercy in acknowledgment, in the onset or early stage of the illness, that probably a common respiratory infection.

Dr. Brady

Even a rabid isolationist such as the old so-and-so who conducts this column could not deny that in perhaps ont out of every ten instances the assumption that the indisposition is one of the other C R I proves incorrect. That is to say, it is merely an allergic reaction or congestion and stuffiness due to some chronic troubles such as sinusitis, bronchitis or asthma.

Still it is no longer debatable that in nine cases out of ten the child or adult who does not show any symptom or sign of C R I must be kept or voluntarily remain isolated until the nature of the illness can be determined or the communicable period is over.

Isolation does not mean that one must be confined in the pest house or spirited off to a leper colony. It means merely that one must keep at least six feet away from other persons unless one is properly masked. In a talk to follow we'll describe in detail mask isolation.

The most prevalent respiratory infections are coryza, pharyngitis (simple sore throat), tonsillitis, laryngitis, bronchitis, pneumonia, influenza, tuberculosis, diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles, whooping cough, epidemic meningitis (spotted fever), poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis). Chicken pox and smallpox are often if not always respiratory infections.

These are common respiratory infections in that they all spread from person to person in the same way, via droplet or spray — the effective range of which is not over five feet in quiet conversation, up to 10 or 12 feet if the poor creature is coughing and face unmasked.

Now, dodo, surely you must begin to see what may happen when some unmasked stinker shares his breakfast table with you, the cashier's window, the barber's or hairdresser's chair, over the counter, across the aisle or at the bridge table. But in any event don't forget your manners. If you betray any uneasiness you will be accused of stinker or may become indignant about it. After all, this is a free country.

THE PACKSACK

By Gregory Clark

One of the gals in my house sent a bundle of woollens, socks and stuff to the cleaners. One of the sweaters did not come back. In the telephoning that followed the cleaners assured, with most businesslike assurance, that the lost would be looked after immediately. When two days passed and not a word came from the thousand dollars and the ambition had not acquired his cash wealth by gamb-

ed. And in the end, they admitted that they had lost the sweater, and sent along a form for making a claim for the loss.

Cleaners are probably insured against loss. This may account for their easy, care-free and their adjustment adept. The sweater having been bought a few years ago for only $6.95, and having been worn off and on maybe thirty times, and having been sent to cleaners four or five times, the company offered $2.50 in settlement.

"I would rather have a grievance than $2.50," my wife remarked to the cleaners. "If you prefer to pay small claims to paying proper attention to your business, I am going to take action that will astonish you. I am going to continue sending my cleaning to you. I am going to take back every bit of which I do not propose to forget for a measly $2.50. And I am going to expect you to take back cars of my things, is this too much to expect?"

I don't think she will lose anything more. This mysterious "action that will astonish you" is enough to disturb the sleepiest manager of a cleaning establishment.

'Stone Him to Death'

CHAPTER 4.

So swiftly was the Church growing that a more definite form of organization was needed.

The leader of any movement, especially a new and growing one, is troubled with the importunities of his followers. Some are evilous. Some are jealous. Some are busybodies. And some, of course, come with honest grievances.

Peter faced, for example, a difficulty with the Grecian Jews who had embraced the new teaching and had been baptized. That sacrament should have brought peace to their hearts. Yet here they were, clamoring around Peter and his work table, insisting that the church was already discriminating against them. The widows of the Jews from Greece were not given as much help as the widows of the Jews from Judea.

Seven deacons should hear such disputes and settle them justly. That was the apostles' remedy for the plaint of the widows of Grecian Jews and for all the other squabbles which encroached on the time of apostles dedicated to launching a universal Church. Seven deacons — and what might a deacon be, please?

A deacon is an assistant. Only by delegating some authority could the apostles go toward the old city of Jerusalem to carry the Gospel. Not only in Jerusalem were the twelve laboring those days. They were retaining connection with swelling Christian communities all over Palestine.

The twelve, together in all things, called a general conference of Christians on a hillside just outside Jerusalem.

And Peter on that bright morning, with a wind from the Dead Sea ruffling his beard, explained his idea of a deacon.

"It is not reason," he began, blunt and to the point as always, "that we should leave the Word of God and serve tables."

There was the crux of the matter. The twelve all had received the word of God, direct from Christ Himself. Were they to take time for the everyday needs of the faithful — which "serving tables" was a symbol — when others who had not known God on earth could tend to those problems?

A murmur of understanding whistled throughout the throng. Without much delay, they chose "the Seven", the first deacons of the Church.

Of five of them — Nicolas Parmenas, Timon, Prochorus, Nicanor — not much is known, but the other two, Philip and Stephen, truly helped to shape the history of the world. And it was Stephen who stood out. Young Stephen, who was to be first in anguish and first in glory among the martyred followers of Jesus Christ.

The wisdom of appointing the deacons was immediately seen.

"And the word of the Lord increased," Luke reported. "And the number of the disciples was multiplied in Jerusalem exceedingly and a great multitude of the priests also obeyed the faith.

"And Stephen, full of grace and fortitude, did great wonders and signs among the people."

Troublesome enough to hear of converts by thousands being made to the Church, but when rabbis began deserting Herod's Temple to be baptized in the Upper Room of the Last Supper, the fury of the Temple aristocrats flamed high.

That any of their high-bred number should kneel with a lot of northern fishermen, and preach the dignity and the immortality of the individual soul through the redemption of the Risen Christ — here was an offence most odious.

The new trouble started in the Synagogue of the Libertines, where Stephen, the deacon, began to preach.

Perhaps the sight of the handsome Stephen aroused the wrath of these foreign sons of orthodoxy. His was the eager, young eloquence that was making converts of apparently sound Sadducean ecclesiastics. They began to ask questions, insistent questing at first, and they received innocent answers. Then they followed with questions of more crafty design and tricks of logic. Stephen answered them all directly without hesitation, because he was sure with grace and faith.

And as Luke said afterward, those of the Jews "were not able to resist the wisdom and the spirit that spoke."

But false witnesses were not hard to find. Soon they appeared in the synagogue and perjured themselves.

"We have heard him speak blasphemous words against Moses and against God."

No one had heard Stephen speak a syllable of blasphemy. But at that lying accusation the elders threw themselves about, tearing their garments in traditional fashion and raising a general uproar.

Crowds rushed young Stephen through the streets. With shouts and jeers they dragged Stephen to the Hall of Stones, to stand where Jesus had stood. Another trial for blasphemy was under way.

The false witnesses were glib in their testimony, as always:

"This man ceases not to speak words against the holy place and the Law; for we have heard him say that this Jesus of Nazareth shall destroy this place and shall change the traditions which Moses delivered unto us!"

And now something happened which none of the Sanhedrin judges could account... Not one of them could deny the evidence of his eyes. The prisoner Stephen stood at the center of their power. Yet,

"... all that sat in the council, looking steadfastly on him, saw his face as it had been the face of an angel."

And what is the charge against this prisoner with the face of an angel?

Blasphemy, sirs: my lords and elders of the Sanhedrin this beautiful young man called Stephen is a blasphemer; you have heard the evidence. Now, Stephen, it is your turn! Caiphas, his cattle eyes dimmed with frustration, turned to the defendant who was following in the footsteps of the Master the court had ordered crucified. Would these Christians never stop mouthing His Name — as if daring — no, worse — entreating to die as He had died? Said Caiphas in sepulchral tones:

"Prisoner, give answer: are these things so?"

Evening shadows lengthened in the vast chamber of justice and candles were being lighted as he began to speak in an overpowering defence of Christ and His infant Church, an impassioned rehearsal of the books of the Old Testament in the light of the new dispensation.

In patient detail Stephen reminded these priests and elders of the history of God's chosen people, — and of the number of times when the Jews had resisted God's grace. He reminded them of the times of Abraham, and of Moses, and of Solomon, holding them in fascinated silence with his sermon.

For an instant Stephen paused. Then looking deep into the silent faces of his judges he said:

"You stiff-necked and uncircumcised in heart and ears, you always resist the Holy Ghost: as your fathers did, so do you also!"

"Which of the prophets have not your fathers persecuted? And they have slain them who foretold of the coming of the Just One; of Whom you have been now the betrayers and murderers: who have received the law by the disposition of angels, and have not kept it!"

Thus far, Stephen carried them with a supernatural flow of eloquence. His judges had set like men bespelled, paralyzed in composture, mouths open, ears cocked, their eyes seeing some bottomless pit, unable to move to strike down this impudent speaker.

Abraham had worshipped God truly, and correctly, he was reminding them; and God had chosen the fathers before Moses was born, long before the first Temple was built. Moses himself had witnessed Christ, so Stephen told the men who had judged Christ in this very room. All of these rites and ceremonies, of which the Sanhedrin was so proud and so meticulous, had been commanded by God for a practical end and for a limited time. Now the time was up, and Stephen told them so. He denounced them in fearless terms, for having rebelled against God and destroyed His Messiah, and so being guilty of the murder of their Christ, the Lord Omnipotent.

Such was the climax of Stephen's defense. When he finished and wiped his brow, it was as if some conjuration was lifted from the court. Almost with one accord, the judges screamed at him in their guilty wrath.

But Stephen looked steadfastly up to the roof as if he could see through the beams and rafters, straight into heaven.

"Behold I see the heavens opened and the Son of Man standing on the right hand of God!" he declared.

That was enough.

This ecstatic devotion to Christ turned the Sanhedrin judges into hysterical fanatics, Stopping their ears, they surged up at the prisoner, shoved him forth from the courtroom, and screamed:

"Stone him! Stone him! Stone him to the death!"

And there was no difference between their voices and the throaty cries of the mobs on the crucifixion eve, when they had hearsal of the books of the Old Testament in the light of the new dispensation.

In patient detail Stephen reminded these priests and elders of the history of God's chosen people, — and of the number of times when the Jews had resisted God's grace. He reminded them of the times of Abraham, and of Moses, and of Solomon, holding them in fascinated silence with his sermon.

For an instant Stephen paused. Then looking deep into the silent faces of his judges he said:

Mrs. W. R. Effer, wife of Colonel Effer, of the Salvation Army, Belleville, opened the Gravenhurst Home League's Christmas Sale at the Chamberlain Salvation Army Hall, Peterborough this afternoon. Mrs. Effer is the Divisional Home League secretary. The Peterborough secretary, Miss Clara Barnes was in charge of the arrangements.

Mrs. B. E. Burley is Delegate To Convention

Mrs. B. E. Burley, president of the Kingston Northwestern Parent-Teacher Association for Separate Schools, was named by the association at its last meeting as its representative to the forthcoming Christian Curriculum conference to be held at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto.

Executive members of the association from all parts of the Kingston Archdiocese made the selection at a meeting in the Cathedral School, Kingston, last Sunday.

Under the chairmanship of Mrs. Burley the executive dealt with a lengthy agenda, that included a renewed drive against hideous literature. Unit presidents were urged to appoint vigilante committees to review newsstand publications and to take appropriate action, when salacious material remains for sale to children, under Section 207 of the Criminal Code.

The association will also make available to local units special recordings on moral hygiene for children. The association will also make available copies of the latest "Forecast of Pictures" published by the Legion of Decency of the Very Rev. L. B. Garvin, C.S.B., pastor of St. Michael's parish, who was named spiritual director of the association for the coming year.

Silver Wedding Is Celebrated

MADOC JUNCTION.—On Saturday last Mr. and Mrs. Warren Harlow observed the 25th anniversary of their wedding.

Dinner guests at their home on Saturday evening were, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Thompson, Stirling; Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Thompson and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Thompson, Bethel; Mr. and Mrs. Bert Reide, Mr. and Mrs. Burton Sharpe of Wells Pleasant, Mr. Kenneth Stewart, of Lakefield, Mr. W. H. Farrow.

The dining room looked very attractive; the long table with white linen cloth was centred with a lovely decorated, three-tiered wedding cake, and at each side were vases of red roses.

Later in the evening friends and neighbors, also the officers and many of the members of Eglinton Sunday School called to extend best wishes.

Mr. and Mrs. Harlow were the recipients of many cards and messages of congratulations also a number of beautiful gifts.

During the early part of the evening, Mrs. Burton Sharpe presided at the piano and played several favorite selections.

Mr. W. H. Farrow acted as chairman for a short program, and called on Miss Donna Stapley, who favored with a piano solo. Mr. Kenneth Stewart voiced his pleasure at being present for this happy occasion, and also spoke of the many community gatherings he had attended in this home. While he was minister at the West Huntingdon circuit. Mr. Thomas Bridge contributed an instrumental number on the piano.

An amusing contest was conducted by Mrs. Maurice Clancy. READ AS ADDRESS

Mr. Bert Reide read an address extending congratulations and best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Harlow; also making mention of the years Mrs. Harlow has been superintendent of Eggleton Sunday School and her interest in Sunday School work.

On behalf of the Sunday School Mrs. Clarence Flichett presented Mr. and Mrs. Harlow with a beautiful silver dish in hammered aluminum. Mrs. Harlow thanked their friends and all joined in singing "For They are Jolly Good Fellows."

Refreshments of coffee, sandwiches, cookies, wedding cake and chocolates were served.

Mission Week Observed At Victoria Ave. Church

Last week was "Mission Week" in Victoria Avenue Baptist Church. Each night from Monday until Friday held its special interest. Each visiting ministers were heard.

On Monday the Young People's Union took charge of the devotion service with Miss Marilyn Durrell in the chair. A piano selection was rendered by Carl Hall.

Dr. L. C. Kitchen professor at McMaster University, was the guest speaker and his subject was "India 1953 as We Saw It." Colored pictures were shown on his trip to India where he visited the American and Canadian Baptist Mission Stations, as well as several big cities. Dr. Kitchen remarked that he was amazed at the attitude and change of the people in 20 years, towards the United States and Western Nations. They were so much more friendly.

Tuesday's devotion was in charge of the "Vera Vita" Mission Circle with Mrs. W. Hales in the chair. Miss Marjorie Hales sang "Great is Thy Faithfulness" and a trio of Marjorie Hales, Joan Wilson and Barbara Girling sang "Come Close to the Saviour."

Dr. T. B. McDermand of Toronto, spoke on "Our Convention." He gave a personal picture of the convention and its work, which he stated consisted of 650 churches and missions banded together doing what they can do together and which they could not do alone.

He likened the convention to a train of ten coaches pulling together as one; the ten coaches representing the ten boards of the convention. New Mission work at Angola, Africa, will begin on Jan. 1.

WEDNESDAY MEET NG

On Wednesday, the worship service was in charge of the Brotherhood with Mr. A. Wilson in the chair. Mr. Ken Graves sang "I Walked Alone With Jesus." Rev. Leland Gregory of Toronto, spoke on "Are Baptists Good Protestants?" Slides were shown on the nursery, beginners and primary department work and general ideas were given on the work of the other departments of the church. Leadership training courses were stressed, but at these they find those attending were not necessarily the ones who needed the most training, but it lacked the people who do need good training.

The Senior Mission Circle took charge of the Thursday evening worship with Mrs. W. Neal in the chair. Mrs. Dorothy Reilly, Cedar, sang "Trust in Him."

Rev. Fred Poulton of Toronto, spoke on "The Church's Witness in Society." He mention the work of the Social Service Evangelism Board, part of which is the censoring of moving pictures, and how they are trying to do away with gambling and obscene publications.

CONCERNED WITH LIFE

"The church," he said, "is concerned with the whole of life. We must look after the physical and mental needs of men's lives as well as the spiritual part. A man is known by the fruits of his life and the things he does. Jesus said, "Let your light so shine before men they they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven."

On Friday evening, the missionary committee presented a missionary drama "The Girl From Lausanne" which was based on the beginning of Grande Ligne Mission in Quebec, by Madame Feller and Lord Rosmey in 1835.

The cast of the play was as follows: Nora Hales, Joan Rigby, Bert Girling, Bill Hales, Dawn Grenke, Jack Gulliver, Jack Mayor, Marjorie Hales, Eleanor Blackburn, Beverly Rigby, Carolyn Daniel, Judy Lush, Gloria Wilson and Betsy Robson. The play was directed by Mrs. W. Lush and Mrs. R. Orr.

The devotion service was in charge of the C.G.I.T.

To climax the week an outstanding missionary film was shown on Sunday evening called "Out of the Dust."

NEW SIOUX SKIPPER

OTTAWA (CP) — Cmdr. Angus H. Rankin, 39, of Vancouver, has been appointed commanding officer of the Canadian destroyer Sioux. The navy announced Cmdr. Rankin already has assumed command of the vessel at her base at Esquimalt, B.C. He replaces Cmdr. Philip E. Haddon of Victoria, who now is director of personnel at naval headquarters in Ottawa.

Prime Minister Addresses Women's Liberal Convention

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent says the Liberal party believes that the more national autonomy Canada has, the stronger the Commonwealth will be.

The prime minister made the statement Tuesday night at a closing dinner of the National Federation of Liberal Women's two-day meeting.

"I hope particularly that a means may be found to amend our own constitution in all respects here in Canada when amendments are required," he said.

He was referring to an impasse that has developed over the way to change the constitution on matters of joint federal-provincial interest.

The federal and provincial governments now can amend their constitutions on matters of individual interest, but still must go to the British Parliament on matters of joint interest.

STRENGTHEN TIES

Progressive removal of limitations on Canada's national status, Mr. St. Laurent said, has "in no way weakened our relationship with the crown and with the Commonwealth."

"The historic position of the Liberal party is that the more complete our national autonomy is, the greater the Commonwealth will be."

Earlier in the day, the federation accepted several resolutions to be presented to the cabinet ministers concerned. They decided among other things:

1. To ask Health Minister Martin to extend present federal grants and support of special nurses training schemes, in co-operation with the provinces;

2. To ask Mr. Martin to set up a central pool of iron lungs for emergency use in polio outbreaks;

3. Provision in the labor code for equal pay to women for equal work.

Mr. St. Laurent said that the honor women candidates will enter the next federal election and that there will be more Liberal women elected to the Commons. One Liberal and three Progressive Conservative women were elected to the House in the Aug. 10 voting.

Darling, you're terrific ... and so is your Chocolate Cake!

Only a little "Blarney"... but it's a BIG moment!

It can be YOURS this easy way!

Yes, you put "freshness" into your cake yourself, by adding dairy-fresh, whole milk. Shirriff's Chocolate Cake Mix is so complete as a good cake mix should be . . . rich with sweet, creamed shortening, yolks of graded eggs. Shirriff's own famous flavorings, the finest cake flour . . . but no skim milk powder such as you find in ordinary mixes. You need dairy-fresh, whole milk for extra flavour, richness, keeping qualities.

You get the surprise of your life when you open that oven door! Here's a cake that rises to the heights . . . and takes you with it. Heights of success you've only dreamed about! You know if your cake is high, it has to be light and fine-textured and extra good. Hurrah for fresh, whole milk cake mixes, the kind that bake fresh and keep fresh longer . . . Shirriff's are expert cake makers . . . and now . . . so are you!

Yes . . . Magic! Dark Magic . . . your big beautiful dark rich chocolate cake, made with Shirriff's Chocolate Cake Mix. What made you such a terrific cake baker? Was it the terrific quality in Shirriff's Chocolate Cake Mix? Was it the fresh, whole milk you added to the cake mix yourself? The answer is simply this . . .

Only food experts make the BEST mix for a cake.

"Terrific" you...

HERE HUSBAND HAS TOO GOOD TO SEEK OTHER COOK ADVANTAGE OF IT

Dear hear of a woman whose marital crisis was brought about by the fact that her husband was too good to her?

Sounds impossible, doesn't it? Yet that's the reason one wife gives for the trouble in which she now finds herself. When I first rebuked her for being flippant, she believes in that if he hadn't been willing to give her so much freedom, she wouldn't have had so take advantage of it.

"I'm probably going to sound crazy, but I am afraid I may be going to lose my husband because he has been too good to me and given me too much freedom.

"You see, we were married when I was 18 and my husband was 26. Now, while I am only 20 he is 28 and seems much more settled than I am. What I mean is, that I'm just a little bit wild and like to be the swinging. he is ready to settle down and be quite a bit at the end of the day. He has always been willing for me to go out and have fun with my friends, and, unfortunately, I have been so foolish as to go out entirely too much on my own age, and my husband just doesn't like it. He has told me so very much. I can't convince him that the man means nothing to me and that I was just out for these things once you do an impulse.

"Now I've decided he does not like his love for me and may want to leave me, and that would break my heart because he really is the only man I have ever loved. I'm sure if he knew I would give me another chance, such a thing would never happen again.

What this husband has lost, of course, is his trust in his wife and his faith in her. This is usually what happens when one man is on the other's trust. It is the husband's stepping out that has hurt him the wife. All that seems clear to her—and what she probably has done—is to insist, both privately and openly, that she wasn't the other way around. This will have the very opposite effect from what else that if she took advantage of the trust her husband showed in her by being willing for her to go without him as much as she pleased, she can hardly blame him if he feels she has let him down badly.

However, I can't believe things will become so desperate that this husband will leave his wife. The whole tenor of her letter indicates that he loves her very much. Consequently, he will probably in time get over the blow she has dealt him if she now makes all her thoughts on making as happy a home for him as she can, instead of thinking exclusively about good times she might be having herself. In other words, she should prove to him by her devotion, rather than by promises and expressions of regret, that she is truly sincere in wanting to make amends for not having lived up to what he expected of her.

She does not need to give up all pleasure and simply settle down to be a stay-at-home wife. I think it would be well if she explained to her husband that she feels a bit starved for social life and suggested that they might come to a compromise by which he would go out with her a reasonable number of nights, and she would stay home with him on others. Perhaps, in spite of what has happened, he would still be willing to have her go out with her girl friends some of the nights he stays home, once she has convinced him that he can trust her again. Moreover, some of the stay-at-home nights might be made livelier by inviting some friends in. If she doesn't already belong to some small group of women which meets regularly, let her start one—a bridge club, a sewing club, or whatever—and let them meet at each other's houses once evening a week. When it is her turn to entertain the group, she can be having an enjoyable time in one part of the house, while her husband does what he pleases in another part. There are all sorts of way to solve the problem if she will put her mind and imagination to work on it.

I'm sure this situation can be straightened out if she goes at it in the way I have suggested, it may take a little time, but she shouldn't be discouraged and give up too soon. After all, she bought the whole thing on herself, and she must expect to have to work hard to regain what she lost through her own foolishness.

A QUESTION OF ADDRESS

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

When addressing my husband's secretary over the telephone, should I use her first name, as my husband does, or should I address her as Mrs. Smith"?

A.

Since there is a doubt in your mind as to which name to use, the fairly safe indications is that you should use "Mrs. Smith" . . . this would be best taste, couldn't be criticed. Even though it may be the custom of your husband's office to use first names for all, and when you as a non-member of the office, would not necessarily have the right to follow this first-name custom.

WHEN WOMAN STOPS AT LARGE HOTEL

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I am planning to go to a large nearby city for a several-day shopping trip before Christmas, and will stop at a hotel that has a beautiful large dining room.

(1) When I dine alone in a hotel dining room and sign the dinner check, to be added to my hotel bill what is the proper thing for me to do with regard to the waiter's tip?

(2) Is it proper for a woman to dine alone in a hotel dining room?

(3) If I am not too fatigued, after shopping, I would like very much to "dress up" for one dinner, instead of having dinner sent up to my room.

Reader

(1) You may either give the tip to the waiter; or add to your dinner check the amount of the tip you wish to have have the hotel give to the waiter.

(2) Yes, certainly it is.

(3) Yes . . . conservative dinner dress, not evening dress.

TEACHER SIGNS HER CHRISTMAS CARDS

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I am a school teacher, and am planning to send Christmas cards to my students. Please tell me the correct way for me to sign these cards.

R.S.

Do not sign a title before your name . . . for example, do not sign Miss Ruth Smith. The best forms:

Christmas Greetings

Or, if your students are very young, you might prefer:

By Mary Moore

"In your community you may be able to take advantage of "specials" in the grocery-butcher stores just as I did.

Red Brand blade roasts or beef with blade bone removed were selling at 55 cents per lb. and looked ideal to me for a pot roast, so I bought a 4-lb. one for $1.32.

We had it for dinner on Friday night when my whole family was home.

Laugh if you like but Mary is taking singing lessons and 3:30 every Friday finds me warbling at the Conservatory. So—if dinner is to be ready on time something has to be brewing in the oven while I'm away trilling scales.

SAVORY POT ROAST

(Baked.)

Oven: 3:30 p.m. I turned on the oven at 300 deg. Fahr. I trimmed about 2 tablespoons of fat from the edges of the roast and put them in the hot frying pan to render out. I then combined the bit little bowl I tablespoon flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon each celery salt, paprika, curry powder, pepper and marjoram. This I rubbed thoroughly into both cut surfaces of the meat and around the sides too. When the pan and fat were quite hot, I seared all of the surfaces of the meat, using strong spoons to turn it. (A fork would have punctured the surfaces and let the juices out.) Meanwhile in a deep medium-sized roasting pan I sliced a carrot and onion thinly and 1-2 a green pepper. Evenly over these I sprinkled 3-4 cup long-grain raw rice. Over them I poured 1 3-4 cups boiling water. When the surfaces of the seared meat were dark gold I transferred the meat to the prepared roasting pan, placing it squarely on top of the rice, sprinkled a little more salt around the edges, covered it tightly, and at 3 p.m. I put it in the oven at 300 deg. Fahr. and left the house for my reason.

Or, if you have a large class of young students, both girls and boys, and wish your signature to be printed more impersonal than the first name would be, you may sign the initial instead of your first name.

On my return at 5:45 p.m. I added a washed zucchi—one of those bulb-bottomed yellow ones —cut in halves and placed cut side down in a buttered pan—in the oven. A little later I prepared green beans, and the salad and a fruit cup.

By 6:30 my hungry gang had assembled and Pete carved the roast with many flourishes, (He misses his little homely duties living in a fraternity house.) The beef was as tender as spring chicken, but remember if you try this to ask for Red Brand beef. The bed of vegetables underneath were full of potrost flavor subtly appetizing of the herbs. They were a delicious texture too, as an accompaniment to the beef cooked in this way, making potatoes and gravy unnecessary.

DESSERT

I had a prickly pear that my sister had bought in an Italian fruit shop, but I didn't know what to do with the thing, so I put it into the fruit cup. I wouldn't do it again for it was a little mushy and colored the grapefruit and bananas. So don't try that trick.

CHOCOLATE STRATA PIE

This is a bit of a mystery, for it actually has layers as it bakes, but the ingredients are all mixed together at first.

Line an 8-inch pie plate with pastry and chill it. Heat together over low heat, 1 cup each milk and sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, until foamy. Whip the yolks of 4 eggs, and gradually stir the warm milk mixture into them. Stir in 2 squares (2 oz.) grated unsweetened chocolate. Pour into the chilled pastry shell (unbaked) and bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 375 deg. Fahr. and bake 35 to 40 minutes longer. Beat the 4 remaining egg whites until foamy, then start adding to them while you beat, 6 or 8 tablespoons sugar, beating until meringue will stand in soft peaks. Heap on the hot baked pie, return to slow oven of 325 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes or until lightly browned. Serve warm or cold.

PROPER POSTURE WHILE SLEEPING

Is it your custom to put one lily-white hand under your cheek when you sleep? No doubt you look very sweet and cherubic that way, but there is a good chance that you are pushing your face out of form, pressing flesh up around the eyes and creating little wrinkles there every night of your life.

Perhaps you have been sleeping on a high pillow, too. That's not so wise, for in that case the chest contracts, there is compression of the lungs due to a distored position of the shoulders, with the result that your breathing is shallow throughout the night. That's why, immediately upon awakening, you are impelled to take long, deep breaths. You just have to get the stale air out of your lungs.

Vitally important during sleep is a position that permits complete relaxation and muscle ease. If you sleep on your back with your head on a high pillow your chin will drop, causing lines in the throat which, in the course of time, may become permanent fixtures. Lie on your back with a low pillow under your head and your chin lifted and there will be no slack in the neck muscles. It is that sag and slack which makes for a stringy throat.

About one third of one's life is spent in bed, so proper posture during sleep is important. Before the sandman comes is a good time to do some stretching exercises. They will bring a sense of relaxation that may help you sleep more refreshing.

Toss the pillow to one side. Lie on your back. Hands down at the sides. Stretch your fingers; bring them back into the palms of your hands. Wiggle your toes; they've been cramped in shoes all day; wiggling is good for them.

Stretch your arms overward, then relax and stretch again. Same with your legs. Then pull your head up as far as you can and stretch your torso so if you were trying to pull yourself apart at the waist line.

Sleep is a recuperation period for brain and nerve tissues as well as for muscle repair. Aloof your energy motors are being recharged for the next day's activities, so make the most of it!

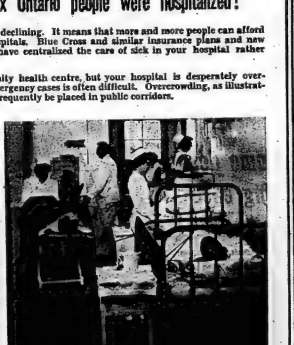
In 1952 one out of every six Ontario people were hospitalized!



This doesn't mean that the nation's health is declining. It means that more and more people can afford and are intelligent to seek health care through hospitals. Blue Cross and similar insurance plans and new methods of treatment and prevention of disease, have centralized the care of sick in your hospital rather than in the home.

Today your hospital is an important community health centre, but your hospital is desperately overcrowded and finding accommodation for even emergency cases is often difficult. Overcrowding, as illustrated in this picture, is common and patients must frequently be placed in public corridors.

FOR YOU AND YOURS

This crowded condition in your hospital threatens the health of the entire community. For your own protection, for the protection of your family and neighbors . . . act now to ensure the success of your Hospital Building Fund Campaign.

U.S. Envoy Charges Reds Hold Russia as Threat Over Parley

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD

PANMUNJOM (AP) — United States envoy Arthur Dean today said "some method must be worked out" to assure the attendance of Russia as a full participant at a Korean peace conference.

The Reds want Russia to attend also, the longest conference session since the preliminary talks opened Oct. 26. They will meet again Friday.

Meanwhile explanations to war prisoners who have refused to go home remained stalled, and there was no indication that the interviews would be renewed.

RIDICULED RED STAND

"Why are you afraid to have Russia sit at the political conference as a full participant?" he asked.

"Is the real reason . . . because: (A) the USSR does not wish to be bound by any agreement reached at the political conference and (B) you wish to use Russia at the conference the possible non-agreement of the USSR or its non-compliance with the agreements reached?"

Huang Hua told Dean that the U.S. started the Korean war; that Russia had striven in the United Nations "for years" for a peaceful settlement.

Censure Vote Displeases Both Israel, Jordan

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.(AP)—Ignoring Israeli appeals, the United Nations Security Council by a 9-2 vote Tuesday night rebuked the Jewish state for the killing of 53 Arabs in Jordan's Kibya village, and called on her to see that such actions do not happen again.

The resolution—sponsored by the United States, Britain and France brought protests from both Jordan and Israel. They do not belong to the council and have no vote here.

Israeli delegate Abba Eban charged the censure was loaded in favor of Jordan and warned that it might torpedo the direct Israeli-Jordan talks his government has demanded.

Sources close to Jordan labelled the resolution a "milk-sop" which merely chided Israel and did nothing to punish her.

Charles Malik of Lebanon, only Arab member of the 11-country Council, abstained on the vote along with Russia. Malik explained to reporters later that he felt the resolution was not nearly strong enough and did not call for compensation to families of the Kibya victims.

SOME CONSOLATION

Israel derived some consolation, however, from the Big three's last-minute change in their resolution to take note of Eban's invoking of article 12 of the Israel-Jordan armistice agreement to summon both parties to obligatory peace talks.

Eban made a last-ditch effort to stave off the censure vote. He appealed to the council to think twice before it voted a censure which would "do nothing to advance the cause of Middle East peace" and merely took account of the "violent acts of the immediate past."

Earlier Eban made a hurried trip to Washington to plead with State Secretary Dulles to have the resolution toned down. His intercession was believed to have had a direct effect on the decision to include the reference to the proposed Jordan-Israel talks.

SOME SAY P.O.W. SOME DON'T

Earl Alexander May Quit Cabinet Over Pensions

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill called an emergency Cabinet meeting today to consider revolts spreading within the ranks of his own Conservative party.

Ministers hurried to 10 Downing street amid reports that Field Marshal Earl Alexander might resign as defence minister in the row over retirement pension for First World War officers.

Press speculation was based at least in part on the choice of the Marquess of Salisbury to make known the government's decision on retirement pensions in the House of Lords. Until Tuesday night, Lord Alexander had answered questions on the subject in the Lords, and had promised a statement this week.

"UNPALATABLE" DECISION

Lord Alexander's absence from the upper house was commented on by several newspapers. The Independent Times said the decision on pensions was no doubt "unpalatable" to the defence minister.

TWEED

Couple Celebrate 60th Anniversary Of Their Wedding

TWEED—Mr. and Mrs. Archie Godfrey of Tweed celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary with members of the family and friends at their home on Friday.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey are eighty years of age and in excellent health.

Mr. Godfrey was a police constable here for some time and was succeeded by his son, Lyman. He was employed as a truck driver for Tweed Creamery, for over twenty years but was forced to retire fifteen years ago due to a serious illness.

Their son Percy was killed in World War I and a younger son, passed away in 1929 from effects of wounds suffered in the same war. Another son, Earl, resided in Belleville and has been an employee of the Houston Lumber Company since the firm operated in Tweed.

There are two daughters, Mrs. Aleatha Embury, Belleville and Mrs. Goldie at home.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Vance and Eileen and Mr. and Mrs. William Andrew spent Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Don Woodcox.

Marlene Leverck, eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Leverck returned from Belleville General Hospital on Monday after being a patient there for the past two weeks. Marlene was struck on the head while playing on the giant slide in St. Carthage's school playgrounds and infection developed.

Miss Gertrude Orr, of Kingston, won a silver tray as a door prize at the Hall Social Club dance held in Belleville last week.

Many from Tweed attended the annual bazaar and euchre held in Moneymore Orange Hall on Wednesday evening.

TWEED COMMENCEMENT

The annual Tweed high school commencement exercises were held in the school auditorium on Friday evening. The speaker was G. W. Nelson, public school inspector for Centre Hastings.

Presentation of medals, scholarships and prizes was made while the students presented an entertaining program.

SUNSHINE WOMEN MEET

On Thursday evening a meeting was held in the municipal building, when 32 ladies connected with different businesses in the village organized a Business and Professional Women's Club.

Members of the Belleville club were present for the meeting.

The president of the Tweed Club will be Mrs. Ken Curry while the secretary is Miss Barbara Whalen.

Other officers will be elected in the near future.

Mr. Borden Countryman is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

Len Taylor, Zone Commander of the Canadian Legion was the speaker at the annual banquet held by the Stirling branch of the Legion Wednesday evening. Following the banquet Legion members held a social evening.

Jack Winfield, former manager of the Stedman Store in Tweed, who was transferred to Picton last year, has been appointed manager at Perth of the Stedman Store there.

Miss Marlene Turcotte, twin daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Turcotte, Sulphide, won the Christmas cake on which tickets had been sold by members of the Catholic Women's League.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Woodcox were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Woodcox in Belleville on Sunday.

Dean Whaley formerly of Tweed, who has been on the staff of CFRB for some time, is now playing the piano with Mart Kenny's orchestra which broadcasts over the CBC every Saturday evening from 10 to 10.30.

Mr. H. Courtney, Actinolite, is a patient in hospital.

MADOC

Outpost Hospital Subject of Talk By Nurse

MADOC — An evening meeting of Madoc Branch of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. G. C. Moon on Friday, November 20. Mrs. Kernohan, president, was in charge.

A card was read from Mrs. Horsepool, district president, who is at present visiting relatives in England. Miss Vankleek commented on the monthly motto, "All The World Loves a Two Tenis—Contents and Discontents."

Reports were given on the area convention held in Belleville in October. Mrs. Herrington and Mrs. Beatty reported. Mrs. Forestell and Mrs. Allore were in charge of the program. Mrs. Allore gave a reading on health, dealing with useful suggestions for visiting sick friends, and the helpful ways in which you can assist your physician during an illness.

NURSE SPEAKS

Mrs. Follwell introduced the guest speaker, Miss Gladys Arlsworth, Reg. N., who has spent three years at Buffalo Narrows, Sask., in charge of an outpost hospital, sponsored by the Saskatchewan government.

Miss Aylesworth told of her experience and showed slides of the country and the hospital where she was stationed.

A hearty vote of appreciation was extended to Miss Aylesworth by Mrs. Allore.

A very pleasant social half-hour followed.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Bresnahan, Mrs. Holden, of Renfrew, visited on Sunday with Mrs. F. E. Brown on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. McGregor visited Mrs. McCaffrey recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Rogers and boys of Perth, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Moon.

Misses Marjorie Fleming and Shirley Hatch, of Peterborough, spent the week-end at their homes in Madoc.

HOUSE HEARS

The two members spoke during the throne speech debate in the Commons while the Senate continued its own throne speech debate.

Turning to other subjects, Mr. White said Veterans Minister Lapointe had "refused" in the House to define the governments's interpretation of casual earnings in respect to war veterans' allowances. Such "refusal" could apply to other departments of government as well.

QUESTIONS PER PIECES

He said Maritime Liberal candidates in August had declared that conditions were never so good. Now in the Commons Liberal members were complaining that conditions were never so bad.

Mr. White suggested that the spread in fish prices between what the fisherman gets and consumer pays be investigated under the Combes Act.

He urged greater Canadian contributions for United Nations technical assistance and complained that disaster relief for western Ontario, hit by a tornado last spring, was "too little and too late." The government should lay down a definite formula for disaster relief so that stricken areas would know what they could expect from the federal government.

TEXTILE PROBLEM

He also said "dumping" of American textiles in Canada is "robbing" Canadian workmen of jobs and pay.

"What about suggesting to the U.S. that they honor their Geneva and other trade agreements?"

He said that though President Eisenhower in his Nov. 14 speech to Parliament had stressed friendly Canada-U. S. relations, the U. S. was not living up to its promises contained in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

The Canadian textile industry was being forced to lay off men because the U. S. was "dumping" textiles in Canada and threatening the livelihood of Canadian workers.

CANADA

In short, Canada has become involved in a dispute which actually stems from the U.S. constitution. Whichever way Canada turns, she may annoy one branch of the U.S. government. If she accedes to the legislative branch's bid for Gouzenko, she might offend the executive branch, headed by President Eisenhower. If she refuses, she annoys the legislative branch.

WHITE CASE

Canada is also involved in the White case because of a confidential opinion on White's loyalty supposedly given to Hoover by a "high-placed" Canadian official.

Hoover wrote a letter to the White House in 1946 in which he mentioned this Canadian had questioned White's loyalty. U. S. attorney-general Herbert Brownell has charged that former president Truman promoted White to the International Monetary Fund in 1946 knowing he was a Communist spy. White died in 1948.

Since Brownell made public Hoover's letter last week, the Canadian government has been trying to discover the identity of the official.

Mr. Pearson said Tuesday the government has been successful and it also has unearthed a document relating to the case. Both the document and the official's name were to be made public today.

Newspaper Says McCormick Behind Smear Campaign

TORONTO (CP)—The Telegram says today in a frontpage story that Col. Robert McCormick of Chicago, publisher of the Chicago Tribune and Washington "Times-Herald, is manipulating the "smear campaign" in the United States against Lester B. Pearson, Canadian minister of external affairs.

It says Col. McCormick, "long known for his Britain-baiting," is a staunch supporter of Sen. William E. Jenner, chairman of the U. S. Senate internal security subcommittee. That committee has said it wants to question Igor Gouzenko, the former Russian embassy clerk in Ottawa whose disclosures of Russian intrigue resulted in Canada's 1946 "spy trials."

PRESSURE ON FBI

The Telegram says:

"It is generally felt now that the sub-committee has been trying to use Gouzenko in an attempt to get the FBI to open its files."

The paper publishes stories from James M. Minifie, its Washington correspondent, and Norman Campbell, Ottawa staff reporter, both saying Col. McCormick is behind recent U. S. criticism of Mr. Pearson. The Canadian minister has been blamed for Canada's refusal to permit the Jenner sub-committee to interview Gouzenko. The Times-Herald said recently in an editorial he has "become notorious for his softness toward the Communists."

Campbell writes from Ottawa:

CRITICISM RESENTED

"It is understood that until the time Mr. Pearson publicly defended the accuracy of an interview in the Chicago Tribune with Igor Gouzenko, Col. McCormick was not disposed to make an issue of the Gouzenko matter.

"The original idea of the Gouzenko story was not to attack Mr. Pearson, but to compel the FBI to open its files to the Jenner subcommittee.

"But when Mr. Pearson, in his statement to the House, depending upon Canadian press reports, attributed to the Tribune inaccurate view with Gouzenko statements which were not in it, then Col. McCormick ordered all stops pulled out in a 'get-Pearson' campaign."

QUEEN AND DUKE

The Queen wound up the busy first day of her six-month tour, she left London Monday night, with a state dinner given Tuesday night by Bermuda's governor Sir Alexander Hood at government house.

Some 30 of the colony's top officials and dignitaries attended. The dinner was treated as a private function, with no announcement of details and no photographs.

DINNER CRITICIZED

The dinner drew criticism today in two London newspapers, the mass-circulation Daily Mirror and the Daily Herald, Labor. Both papers angrily protested the absence of Negro representatives. Negroes comprise a large percentage of Bermuda's population.

From the time of the silver-and-blue Cinque arrival at Hamilton's Kindley Field, almost every moment was filled. Her subjects lined the narrow, winding roads as the Queen and the Duke drove about in an open convertible and then in a horse - drawn landau. Balmy weather, 72-degree temperature, and frequent appearances of the sun from behind an overcast, greeted the monarch.

Making the first visit by a reigning monarch to the colony since it was established in 1609, the Queen briefly addressed a joint session of Bermuda's Parliament. She said she was happy to "find so fine and vigorous a growth."

West's Agriculture Ministers And Farm Spokesmen Oppose Reducing Grain Production

OTTAWA (CP)—Most Western Canada agriculture ministers and spokesmen for farm groups do not want a cut in grain production just because there is a heavy grain surplus this year.

And, at a two-day federal-provincial agriculture conference concluded Tuesday night, Agriculture Minister Gardiner joined the expanding ranks of those opposing suggested crop controls as a means of preventing over-supply of production and depressed prices. He advised farmers to keep on producing food as they have always done.

Canada has not "many" surpluses, Mr. Gardiner said, and most of her surplus wheat still will go to Britain. Some might argue that Canada no longer has a large market in Britain, "but you can say that we have the biggest market we ever had in Britain," Mr. Gardiner said.

The future is not so gloomy as some pessimistic spokesmen have tried to make out, he added.

Roy Marler, president of the Alberta Federation of Agriculture, suggested Monday grain production be cut 30 per cent through compulsory federal legislation. He proposed that the acreage be sown to legumes and grass, farmers getting bonuses for the acreage shift.

PRODUCTION COMPLIANT

In discussions that ranged from east to west Tuesday, Wesley Ball, vice-president of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, said Canadians are "wrong when they complain of good production" and quoted Mr. Marler's plan.

Agriculture Ministers Ure of Alberta and Nollet of Saskatchewan agreed with Mr. Ball that the emphasis should be placed on finding markets rather than on reducing acreage.

Mr. Gardiner said the best answer to questions raised at the conference "is to go out and produce' what you are best able to produce."

Cutting their own future wheat production, in fact, was the "biggest thing" Americans have done for Canadian growers, he added. "It will provide a better chance for Canada to sell her wheat."

JET-PROPELLED INTO HAYSTACK

The fortunate proximity of the haystack (arrow) miraculously saved the life of a 20-year-old Swedish pilot who crash-landed his jet plane in a hayfield near Stockholm, Sweden. The pilot, Hans Ingmar Bladh, strapped to a catapult seat, was hurled some 50 yards through the air into the haystack, boring his way into the hay like a projectile. (Central Press Canadian.)

Senator Claims All-Canadian Line Must Be Built

OTTAWA (CP) — A western oilman Tuesday said in the Senate that an all-Canadian pipeline must be built from the west to provide organization would run TV stations, renting TV time to the Canadian and United States cnatres and extended later to serve eastern Canada.

Senator T. H. Wood (L—Saskatchewan) said during the throne speech debate that "if something is not done in this regard there is reason to fear that oil development in western Canada will be seriously retarded."

He recalled that there is agitation to bar import of natural gas from the United States to serve eastern Canadian cities. However, he made no reference to a bill now before Parliament which would make it possible to bar such imports.

The government-sponsored legislation would require pipeline companies to obtain incorporation by Parliament if they planned to carry gas or oil across international or provincial boundaries.

CHEAPER GAS

The legislation was introduced following opposition by the federal and Ontario governments to import of natural gas into eastern Canada from the United States. Such a plan was suggested by Canadian Gas Company to supply Toronto.

Present gas surpluses should be disposed of where there is an immediate need. The first step should be a line to serve Regina and Winnipeg in Canada and Minneapolis and St. Paul in the U.S.

Tory Peers Join Attack On Commercial TV

By FRASER WIGHTON

LONDON (Reuters)—A powerful House of Lords group has made final plans to rebel against a government scheme for commercial television.

Staunt Conservative peers are linked with the Labor Opposition in the TV debate, scheduled to begin this afternoon in the upper house.

The peers were marshalled by Lord Salisbury, normally a true-blue Tory, who proposed the motion of certificate. The many Conservative notables who lined up with him included the Archbishop of Canterbury.

The "horrible example" of American television has been one of the major arguments used against the government scheme. The critics fear commercial telecasts would lower the standard of TV here because, like advertisers would pander to the public.

RUN BY BBC

At present, all British television is run on a single channel by the Corporation. No commercials are used to finance the single service offered.

The Halifax motion made it clear that the rebel peers do not oppose some sort of commercial television system. But they do object to the government plan, announced recently, which sets up a TV corporation, publicly owned but in competition with the BBC. This new

SCOPE LIMITED

Another argument advanced against the scheme is its limited scope. At present, only three commercial stations are planned—in London, Birmingham and Manchester.

The government did not think the situation serious enough to send out its most imperative call—a three-line whip, lines underlined, warning the faithful to be in their places and ready to vote.

This meant that the great colonel of "backwoods" peers, who rarely come near the House of Lords, would not be disturbed from their hunting, shooting and fishing.

In any case, the government would not have to resign because of this motion. It is not a vote of confidence. But a sizeable revolt by its own followers might convince Churchill that it was twice before continuing with the plan.

Should Whip Young Criminals Says Guelph Cadi

TORONTO, (CP) — Magistrate Frederic Watt of Guelph said in Toronto Tuesday that whipping is the best treatment for youthful criminals.

The letter, read to the Ontario legislature's select committee on juvenile delinquency, said the magistrate could not too strongly support the recommendation that more corporal punishment should be used.

He suggested that six strokes of the strap be maximum punishment. He believed a speed law wasn't much use lecturing a young driver when a heavier punishment when he knows nothing about it. "If it is whipped he knows he is being punished for what he did. I am strongly in favor of whipping as a punishment for juveniles."

Support for the strap also came from Professor G. E. Reaman, head of the English department of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph. He said it was "about time common sense was used in dealing with juveniles."

"The juvenile court, as now constituted, encourages criminality because it takes away any fear of the law. Nothing unpleasant happens."

Editorial Comment On Gouzenko Case

Montreal Star (Ind)—Those of us who value the strength and warmth of Canadian-American relations have become deeply disturbed over the present phase of controversy aroused by the Gouzenko and Harry White incident and the divisive issue on Mr. L. B. Pearson publicly delivered in New York by an irresponsible speaker. The area of irresponsibility is widening in the United States and each new criticism, each new lack, each new smear is rousing wrath and indignation of public opinion in Canada to higher and higher crescendos.

Montreal La Presse (Ind.)—Our neighbors are free to act as they like. But they would compromise the union that has existed for so long between the two countries by attempting to have the Canadian government adopt their methods. To act thus would undermine that co-operation that the two have so frequently shown their wish to practise.

Montreal Expositor (Ind.)—The unseemly hysteria that seems to have overtaken some public men in the United States does not justify similarly juvenile performance in Canada. . . . Taking so-called McCarthyism at its worst, one may seriously ask whether this supposed attitude of communism is not as bad as the Red disease itself.

Ottawa Citizen (Ind. Lib.)—The Jenner committee persisted in maintaining pressure on Ottawa, as if Canada were the 49th state, or the Canadian government were not to be trusted in the fight against communism, whatever happens now, wholly unnecessary harm has been done to Canadian-American harmony. . . .

Ottawa Journal (Ind. Con.)—In the robust political life of the North American custom, Canadians have no right to be timid and have a duty to be neutral . . . Whatever happens, it is not wise in Canada to look too excited—nor enraged.

Peterborough Examiner (Ind.)—When the notorious American spirit of intolerance inevitably reach out to Canada and Canadians in high position it is time for this Dominion to show its hackles. Canada need not be pushed around by any committee.

Kitchener Record (Ind.)—Some irresponsible and ridiculous utterances are being made by the McCarthy group. Canada is being pictured as being soft toward the Red Star. Our government is even on the semblance of blackmail in efforts to get Canadian material available for the circus staged by the McCarthyites. . . .

St. Catharines Standard (Ind.)—Pressure to have the government of Canada change the acceptance of Gouzenko . . . can be firmly rejected on the basis of high diplomacy, all rabblerousers not withstanding. . . . It is a strange spectacle when Canadians are not satisfied like Canada and the U. S. start playing the game in the manner that Soviet Russia appreciates best, and to its greatest advantage.

Timmins Daily Press (Ind.)—The accusation against M. Pearson is so fantastic that it is not worthy of passing consideration by thinking Canadians and Americans. Mr. Pearson has been Canada's voice against communism at world conferences.

Calgary Albertan (Ind.)—Mr. Pearson would be well advised to soften his attitude toward those U. S. senators who want to question Igor Gouzenko. . . . To keep Gouzenko back might play into McCarthy's hands more than to let him be questioned. The questioning should be done in Canada, however. . . .

Vancouver Province (Ind.)—The refusal of the Canadian government to allow Gouzenko to testify has been used as a basis for insinuating that the government is afraid of what he might say. The Chicago Tribune has fastened on this as a weapon in its continuing attack on "pro" Hon. Lester Pearson . . . from this distance, it looks like a pretty messy affair. And it looks as unnecessary as it is messy. . . .

Talks Continue On Strike Issue

TORONTO (CP) — Union-management talks aimed at settlement of the strike of 1,500 workers at Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines continue today.

Officials of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) and company chiefs met Tuesday with Labor Minister Daley. Jules Timmins, Hollinger president, was not at the meeting, but was represented by W. S. Wilson, executive vice-president.

The cabinet in a previous session authorized Laniel to demand a vote of confidence from the National Assembly. The government hoped, however, that the deputies would make this unnecessary by approving a Socialist resolution endorsing the army project in principle, but with certain reservations, planned to put forward its own motion on which it must resign if defeated.

Despite serious splits in the chamber, Laniel's chances are boosted by two things:

1. Because of the numerous government changes, the National Assembly must resign and face new elections if Laniel falls. And not all of the present deputies want to be in the chamber to vote for a new national president at the end of the year.

2. Lack of a French premier to attend the Dec. 4 Big Three meeting with President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Churchill would be a serious blow to French prestige.

RESIGNED BEFORE

The assembly was to resume debate today on the Socialist resolution and 10 other motions made by various parties on the opposition side of the week-long foreign policy debate. There was no indication when, or if, the government would be forced to put in its own demand for endorsement. After it is introduced, 24 hours must elapse before a vote.

Cabinet experts struggled over a draft for the confidence resolution during the night and despite general; it is slated to pay lip service to the idea of European unity but to cautiously sidestep any support for the European army.

Labor Minister Hears Views Of Manufacturers

MONTREAL (CP)—The council of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association meeting here today said the "voluntary revocable check-off should be left to collective bargaining."

If, said the council, it were withdrawn by unilateral legislation "there was no reason why other questions should not be left to collective bargaining with the result that free collective bargaining would be a thing of the past."

Reporting on other labor matters, the council said the Ontario division of the CMA has made several proposals to the provincial minister of labor.

One was that the definition of "strike" should be amended to include the "secondary boycott." Another asked for steps to be put more responsibility on trade unions for unlawful strikes and unlawful picketing."

The Ontario division also asked for inclusion in the list of unfair practices under the Labor Relations Act "the exercise of any strike is declared unlawful and the union declared liable for any dispute between the employer and employees in the plant which is being picketed."

Pearson Says Tribune Editorial Completely False, Misleading

CHICAGO (CP) — The Chicago Tribune says in an editorial today:

The least that can be said against Lester Pearson and his followers in the Canadian pinko set is that they are dangerous and untruthful. Elements of this tribe in the Dominion Parliament at Ottawa are now trying to turn the facts inside out and are implying that it is the United States, and not Canada, which is guilty of invidious behaviour in the Igor Gouzenko case.

In an interview last month with the Ottawa Citizen, Pearson said if he could talk to Sen. Jenegs's internal security subcommittee that Sen. McCarthy's investigating committee, he felt that the results would be worthwhile. He said that the two senators were doing important and necessary work. Mr. Jenner then transmitted the request to Canada through State department that his investigators be permitted access to Gouzenko.

Not only was this request curtly rejected but the Canadian Communist-dian minister of external affairs, Mr. Pearson charged that Gouzenko had been misquoted by the Tribune. . . .

The Tribune correspondent then sought out Gouzenko again and took the precaution of getting a signed and witnessed statement from him. Gouzenko attested that there had been no misquotation in the original Tribune interview. The RCMP said Gouzenko told them that the Tribune story was inaccurate.

As a consequence the Canadian minister of justice, Mr. Stuart Garson, acknowledged that the Chicago Tribune is right when it says it did not misquote Gouzenko. There has been a little bit of misunderstanding about this."

Coincident with these developments, a second request from Sen. Jenner to interview Gouzenko reached Ottawa through the state department. Mr. Pearson's followers, instead of making a diversionary clamor in Parliament that Mr. Eisenhower's refusal to grant the "reflections" cast upon him. The Canadian pinko Pearson forces are apparent are those he has brought upon himself. The charge is made in Parliament that the United States was trying "to export its internal security laws." This is the view of the Canadian pinkos who have controlled the Canadian-founded suspicion that Canadian Pearsonism is both untruthful and treacherous.

It was the Canadian pinkos who first raised the issue of international boundary and attacked Americans as officials of Sen. Tydings' shameful treatment in these circles for presuming to contest the Canadian-American Alger Hiss for the presidency. Senators McCarthy and Jenner and Mr. Velde of the House Committee on un-American activities are the objects of constant pinko attack in Canada.

The state-controlled Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is a frequent vehicle for smears of this sort. Its representatives and other Canadian correspondents even impugned the fighting qualities of American soldiers who carried the burden of the Korean war. One of these gentlemen said that the feeling of Canada's handful of troops there was directed at them more than less that of "hate" than of "contempt."

Mr. Pearson, having been caught in a deliberate falsehood, apparently appeared before the English-Speaking Union in New York seeking sympathy. He said truthfully do less harm than "suspicion and lack of trust" between Allies. The English-Speaking Union is devoted to subordinating American to the British Commonwealth and Empire ideas, so the sentiment was well received by these fashionable foreign agents.

Just how bad and dangerous the Pearson line is not may prove to be is something that Americans do not know. But the more that matter is agitated the more it will come to life.

In Ottawa Mr. Pearson's only comment was:

"I read the editorial and it's completely false and misleading."

New Assembly Rebellion Over West Army Threatens Life of French Government

PARIS (AP) — French parliamentary deputies, in a new rebellion against the proposed European army, threatened the life of Premier Joseph Laniel's government today, almost on the eve of the Bermuda Big Three conference.

The cabinet in a previous session authorized Laniel to demand a vote of confidence from the National Assembly. The government hoped, however, that the deputies would make this unnecessary by approving a Socialist resolution endorsing the army project in principle, but with certain reservations, planned to put forward its own motion on which it must resign if defeated.

Despite serious splits in the chamber, Laniel's chances are boosted by two things:

1. Because of the numerous government changes, the National Assembly must resign and face new elections if Laniel falls. And not all of the present deputies want to be in the chamber to vote for a new national president at the end of the year.

Rich Limestone Deposits Bought By Steel Company

EMBRO (CP)—A long-term development of rich limestone deposits in West Zorra township, with next eggs for more than a dozen blast furnaces, possibly increased prosperity for Port Burwell on Lake Erie, was announced Wednesday by one of the largest steel companies in the United States.

Republic Steel Corporation announced its Canadian subsidiary, Union Drawn Steel Co., has acquired a deposit of open hearth quality limestone near Embro.

C. M. White, president of both firms, said the 100 acres of land contain a deposit of high quality stone sufficient to supply Republic's open hearth furnaces for several generations.

Geologists said one farmer limestone in the West Zorra area was believed to be "the best in the world."

14 SELL LAND

About 14 farmers have sold land for prices ranging between $130 and $200 an acre. Farmers said they were glad to get rid of the land for sale, completed about two acres, to vacate the land.

The limestone will be shipped through Port Burwell where a railway car ferry unloads about 30 open coal cars a day. The coal is shipped northward to the mines at Woodstock and the cars are shipped back empty.

The cars will now return with a pay load which will mean increased activity at Port Burwell which Woodstock has long considered as its Lake Erie port.

Liberal Capture Of Seat Jolts B.C.'s Socreds

VICTORIA (CP) — British Columbia's Social Credit government has lost its hid to gain a legislature seat for Finance Minister Einar Gunderson.

Youthful George Gregory, making his first appearance in the provincial political arena under the Liberal banner, eked out a 83-vote victory over Mr. Gunderson in the by-election to fill the vacant Victoria seat.

With all 135 polls heard from, Mr. Gregory had rolled up 8,383 votes and Mr. Gunderson 8,300.

The three remaining candidates were never in the running in the contest that was in doubt until the last poll was heard from. Alfred Matthews, CCF, polled 2,460 votes; Progressive Conservative leader Dean Brimacombe polled Mrs. Doris Blakey, Labor Progressive, 159.

NEITHER WILL CONCEDE

Mr. Gunderson and Premier Bennett declined to concede defeat until some 200 votes cast in the by-election mounted Thursday. Liberal party officials said they were confident Mr. Gregory's lead would be maintained. Premier Bennett said his party would call for a recount if Liberal standard showed Mr. Gunderson still trailing.

The premier also said that Mr. Gunderson will retain his cabinet post for the time being. She said Mr. Gunderson would accompany him to Ottawa next month for discussions financial matters with federal authorities.

BANK INDEXES ATTACKED

The by-election was made possible by the resignation of Percy Wright, one of three Social Credit members elected in Victoria last June. Mr. Wright resigned as he wished to travel to attend the fall session of the legislature then resigned in favor of Mr. Gunderson, who was defeated in the Oak bay riding.

Mr. Finlayson's defeat was his third reversal at the polls in six years.

Standing in the legislature now are Social Credit 27; CCF 14; Liberals 5; Progressive Conservative 1, Independent Labor 1.

Urge T-Man Plan To Check Traffic

KITCHENER (CP) — A traffic-checking scheme that is reported to have cut traffic deaths in Sudbury by 85 per cent has been recommended for Kitchener.

The Chamber of Commerce said today it will ask the police commission to institute a street squad of "T-men" to check on careless and reckless drivers.

Under the plan 75 citizens are asked to note the numbers of all cars seen breaking traffic regulations. The violators' names, license numbers are placed on cards. The motorists concerned receive letters signed by the chief of police warning of the offences.

Four violations bring a summon.

TAKE A BOW, ALBERT!

Albert College, especially football coach N. A. "Pete" Beach, should have more than a "vested" interest in the forthcoming Grey Cup classic between Winnipeg Blue Bombers and the Hamilton Ti-Cats.

For out there on that Blue Bomber swashbuckling line will be an old Albert grad, one who carried the gold and black to many a gridiron victory, and who has been one of the Bomber bulwarks for the past three seasons.

He is Al Wiley, and football teams of the COSSA district will remember this heavy-charging, aggressive youngster, who has climbed the ladder of gridiron success which will be top-ranged by the famous epic on Saturday.

While his mates have been manipulating up-and-down careers, Al Wiley has gone his own laughing way, improving each year until he is now one of the top guards in the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

At is only 25 years of age and his five-foot, 10-inch, 206-pound frame isn't the largest in the league by any means. When it comes to guards, he is one of the smallest. However, anything he lacks in size, he makes up in spirit.

They think the world of Al out Winnipeg way. A sports writer from the home of the Blue Bombers recently wrote: "On the field Al is a bunch of energy. He is always talking to his mates, trying to inspire them to greater things."

He went an: "Al has been the same kind of competitor since his days at Sir Adam Beck Collegiate in his hometown of Loudon, Ontario. A holler-type, he has taken his qualities of unquenchable desire with him everywhere. He attended Albert Collegiate (that's Albert College, bub) in Belleville before signing up with the Sarnia Imperials in 1948. He played with them two years."

"Arriving in Winnipeg in 1950, all he brought with him was a lot of potential and a tremendous will to make good. He has done so, both in business and in football. His meteoric rise to one of the top automobile salesmen in this city is common knowledge."

Teaming with Jimmy McPherson he gives Winnipeg the finest pair of offensive guards in the conference. There are many who figure he surpasses McPherson this year. Last year, Jimmy was an All-star choice.

Al fumed and fussed on the Bomber bench back in 1950 when it was practically nothing for players to go sixty minutes. But in 1951 after picking up additional knowledge and quite a few tricks he managed to stake a claim on the offensive position. He was finally given the first-string slot last year.

The Winnipeg scribe wrote: "Wiley is one football player who will not be caught short when his playing days are over. Well known in amateur circles as an opportunity football man given today and he and his wife, Rae, and their children Paul and Lizbeth, own a lovely home in a fast-growing community in the west end of this city."

NOT SO RARE!

It seems that "predicted time" auto runs are not so rare in Canada as was first reported by this department. Jim Graham comes up with the statement that the St. Lawrence Automobile Club, with offices in Kingston, have been holding similar events in the district for some time. One course included Belleville in July, while the Thanksgiving event of the club attracted entries from Ontario, Quebec and New York, for the 400-mile run. The club may be contacted via Box 131, Kingston, it says here.

SHOULD BE GOOD!

Kingston Goodyears crept two points closer to the group leading Oshawa Truckmen Monday night when they downed the Peterborough Petes 6-4 in the Lintlock City. The win gives the Kingston ten points as against 12 for Oshawa City crew, and that means the clash between the Truckmen and Goodies in Kingston tonight should be one for the scribbers. A Kingston victory will move the Johnny Gross-Harris crew to within a two-point striking distance of the leaders. The teams have met twice before with the Oshawa-ites emerging victorious on both occasions by identical 4-3 scores. One, the initial clash, was a hard-fought overtime tussle that was anybody's battle. Thus far the Truckmen have met defeat but once and that at the hands of the Memos.

HUNTERS, ATTENTION!

Deer hunters should not pass up the first fall meeting of the Belleville and District Fish and Game Association scheduled for the Church Street Orange Hall tomorrow evening. There will be a short discussion on deer hunting and whether you are a member or not, if you chase the elusive bucks, you will be welcome. And that goes for fishermen, too. In addition there will be some highly interesting motion picture films shown, and a door prize will be given away. Ladies are especially invited. There is no admission. Starts at 8 o'clock.

Voyles, Trafton Drop Curtain To Everyone Including Press; Squads Being Heavily Drilled

By CRAIG SWAYZE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Trespassers may not be prosecuted but they may suffer the wrath of George Trafton and Carl Voyles should the screwball visitors dare to gain entrance to the Grey Cup training grounds.

The "no entry" sign was hung outside Hamilton's Athletic Grounds Tuesday night as coach Voyles put his Tiger-Cats through a stiff 60-minute work-out.

In Aurora, 25 miles north of here, coach Trafton herded the Blue Bombers into training quarters following a plane trip from Winnipeg and promptly announced that "workouts will be closed to everyone, including the press."

PASS DEFENCE

Tiger-Cats, still bruised from their gruelling two-game Big Four final against Toronto Argonauts Saturday and Monday, will concentrate mainly on pass defence and offensive manoeuvres in tonight's practice. No heavy scrimmages are scheduled and players will be loose.

Voyles admitted his club will go into Saturday's game knowing little about the Blue Bombers.

Tiger-Cat coach has had films of the Winnipegers in action and reports from assistant coach Ralph Sazio aboard the Bombers during pre-season game this year.

Trafton wouldn't say if scouters much to work on when asked how he planned to work his team in preparation for Saturday's big game.

His only hint was that he wasn't going to "run them to death Thursday or Friday."

Trafton admitted he has implemented Hamilton's line play Sunday when Tiger-Cats defeated Montreal 22-11 for the Big Four championship. He has another day night to scout the game.

When someone asked him how the Montreal or Hamilton line compared to Edmonton, he quickly replied, "How can we tell until we meet them?"

Teepees Extend Junior A Lead; Galt Defeated

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If Galt Black Hawks could get out of Kitchener - Waterloo Greenshirts they would undoubtedly have little trouble giving St. Catharines TeePees a real battle for the first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A race.

While the TeePees were drawing farther away from the rest of the pack by defeating Quebec Citadelles 6-2 in Quebec Tuesday night the Hawks lost their second meeting with the Greenshirts 4-2 in Kitchener. The Hawks have not had as much trouble with any other team. They have dropped two to St. Michael's College of Toronto but have also gained a tie with the Buzzers in their only meeting with Hamilton Tigers, the Hawks are the last.

On the other hand Kitchener has the most trouble with the league-leading TeePees who have defeated them twice. The Greenshirts have also lost a pair to the last-place Citadelles but have beaten the Quebec City once.

CULLEN LEADS WAY

Meanwhile St. Catharines showed that while they have forward Brian Cullen they are likely to be displaced from the top rung.

A brawl broke out with 32 seconds remaining, and six players received major penalties. They were Moe Mantha, Stan Parker and Charlie Demonmo of Quebec and Ches Worchol, Jack Higgins and Cecil Hoekstra of Teepees.

Claude Bolieau, Grieg Hicks, Garry Collins and Buddy Horne were the Kitchener marksmen, Ron Halsteed and Hugh Lalonde tallied for the Hawks.

St. Michael's have a chance to grab third place from Kitchener tonight when they meet the Fivers in Barrie while Toronto Marlboros are at Hamilton.

Teepees' Cullen Tops Attersley In Junior Race

TORONTO (CP)—Brian Cullen, flying high for St. Catharines TeePees, overtook Bob Attersley for the individual scoring leadership of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, official figures including last Sunday's games show.

Cullen has bagged 34 goals and 22 assists for 56 points—two more than Attersley of Guelph Biltmores. Bill McCreary of the Biltmores is third with 34-points.

Bombers Stage Record Football Fan 'Invasion'

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Winnipeg rugby football club ran out of Grey Cup tickets Tuesday as one of the biggest western invasions in Canadian football history began mustering in force east for the Saturday final in Toronto.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers flew east Tuesday to complete training for the clash with Hamilton Tiger-Cats, and Karl Slocomb, club president, estimated that at least 2,500 fans would follow them.

Getting up steam after Toronto criticism of Winnipeg's modest parade plans, a Winnipeg official said he thought a Toronto spokesman "shot off somewhere."

PARADE PLANS DEVELOPING

Evan McCormick, manager director of the Winnipeg Chamber of Commerce, said Winnipeg's plans still are developing.

"After all, we've only had since Saturday to do it. Other cities years there have been two weeks between the western final and the Grey Cup game.

Heading six floats already lined up will be the Chamber of Commerce display featuring a map of Manitoba and "Winnipeg, distribution centre for the West." An oil company float will feature three miniature windmills to mimic and thousands of cardboard helmets for the parade crowd.

The 21-man police pipe band will travel to Toronto Thursday night on one of five special trains being run this week.

Lark Officials Say Alouettes 'Not for Sale'

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouette officials said Tuesday night the local Big Four football club is "definitely not for sale."

The statement followed reports there would be a change in the club's ownership.

In a statement, the four principal stock holders of the Als—Roy Robertson, Charlie Stone, Fred Sketcher and Lew Hayman—said:

"We are very happy with conditions as they presently exist. In view of the tremendous interest in football shown by the Montreal fans, it was felt that this statement would settle once and for all, all of these unfounded rumors."

Bruins, Rangers 'Walking Cases' Will See Action

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The walking wounded will be in action tonight as Boston Bruins face New York Rangers in their third meeting of the National Hockey League season.

The fifth-place Rangers will ice a full team for the first game of a home-and-home series, but three Blueshirt ace expected to see limited action.

Rookie defenceman Bob Chrystal, out for 10 days with a bruised kidney, started skating Tuesday. Centre Paul Ronty, with a 15-stitch cut over the eye and an injured thumb, probably will be upsetted off by rookie Camile Henry who, incidentally, has a bruised leg.

The fourth-place Bruins are still without their defencemen Bill Quackenbush and winger Real Chevrefils who suffered broken legs in Toronto Nov. 15.

In their last two meetings the two teams have split even. both on their respective home ice.

BUST THURSDAY

All six teams in the league see action Thursday night with Boston and New York switch to Boston, Toronto plays Detroit and Montreal is at Chicago.

The Leafs will be using Howie Meeker in the lineup following George Armstrong again. Meeker was called out of semi-retirement the's coaching Stratford Indians of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series last Saturday night last week-end and scored a goal in Chicago Sunday.

Bulldogs, Dutchies Tied for Lead, Cataracts Hold Mercs to 6-All Tie

By THE CANADIA PRESS

Niagara Falls CAtaracts are beginning to show that they're not ready to play dead for the rest of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A season.

The Cataracts, in the league cellar most of the season, Tuesday night came from behind three times to earn a 6-6 overtime tie with the fourth-place Owen Sound Mercurys in Niagara Falls. The tied Niagara Falls six within one point of the seventh-place Sarnia Sting.

In the league's other game Windsor Bulldogs moved into a first-place tie with Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen by defeating Stratford Indians 4-1 in Windsor.

UNGER SCORES TWO

Eric Unger scored twice for the Cataracts, his second forcing the game into overtime. In the first-a session Jerry Reid's second tally of the game gave Owen Sound the lead until Nick Dubiek knotted the count a little more than a minute later.

Other Niagara Falls scorers were Ed Plate, Bill Kodlasky and Sandy Air. Bob Lickie, Tommy Burlington, Herb Carnegie and Buck Forslund also scored for Owen Sound.

Three Medicos, Chiropractor On Bombers' Roster

By ART BEYDON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Aurora (CP) — Canada's medical men may be pardoned this year if they take a clinical interest in the operations of Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the Grey Cup final.

The Bombery list on their roster three football specialists with a first-hand interest in the medical profession plus a chiropractor.

Harpley is a defensive end with two years experience and a Grey Cup behind him as a Toronto Argo. Hill whose famous "sleeper" play helped Calgary Stampeders win the Grey Cup in 1948 is another defensive end and Mc-Phegon thumps the opposition from the guard slot.

FOOTBALL ENTHUSIASTS

All are enthusiastic about what football has done for their careers but their major interest is medicine. Casey came to the Bombers because he wanted a medical school at the University of Manitoba; Hamilton, where he first played football, was 1,000 miles from Ohio, had no medical school.

Harpley played for Sidney Beath of the ORFU and Argonauts while he went to chiropractic school but settled back home in Winnipeg when a good offer from a clinic came his way.

Hill says football money has allowed him two years of research in neurology which he couldn't ordinarily have had.

Bomber pay put McPherson through college and he hopes it will give him a start when he sets up practice. Both Hill and McPherson live in residence and get colleagues to take their duty calls when the Bombers travel. This is not much of a problem in this football-mad town.

Dodger Coach May Mentor Montreal Royals

BROOKLYN (CP) — A spokesman for Brooklyn Dodgers said part one of last year's three Dodger coaches is under serious consideration to succeed Wally Alston as manager of Montreal Royals, the Dodgers' International League farm club.

"Guess if you want to," the spokesman said, "but don't quote Lavagetto because you'd be wrong."

Earlier Tuesday, the New York World Telegram said it had learned that Harry (Cookie) Lavagetto had been chosen to take over at Montreal when Alston was promoted to manager the Dodgers.

All three were given their release, to enable Alston to make his own choice of a coaching staff. Dodger president Walter O'Malley said any of the coaches whom Alston does not wish to retain will be given other jobs in the Brooklyn organization.

SESSION FOR WINNIPEG ROOTER

Sylvia Swainson, 3½ss Winnipeg Blue Bomber, lets out a dainty practice yell to test her voice for the Big Day when the Blue Bombers will be struggling with Hamilton Tiger-Cats in Toronto for possession of the Grey Cup. Like other Winnipeg rooters, Sylvia is not wearing her voice out ahead of time with real lusty whoops. Just wait until Saturday, November 28! The noise will likely be heard in Edmonton without use of radio or telephone. (Central Press Canadian.)

Estimate Third of Nation's People Will Listen to Grey Cup Broadcast

By JIM BASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Nearly one-third of Canada's population of nearly 18,000,000 will watch or listen. Newspaper coverage possibly will run into more han 200,000 words.

For one Grey Cup day—even in the Maritimes which in the last few years has begun to take an interest in Upper Canada's football madness—people repair glued to their radio and television sets.

About 27,000 lucky fans will be in Varsity Stadium itself Saturday to see Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Winnipeg Blue Bombers kick off at 1 p.m. in the country's greatest grid classic.

More than 80 Canadian and American sports-writers will overflow the stadium's press box. The Canadian Press, Canada's co-operative news - gathering agency, will have a six-man team covering the game.

Thousands of Canadian servicemen in England and Germany will listen to play-by-play descriptions of the game by short-wave radio. Recordings of the broadcast will be flown to the Far East.

FIVE TV OUTLETS

A potential audience of 5,500,000 will receive on-the-spot broadcasts from 70 radio stations covering all provinces except Newfoundland. The CBC-TV network will link Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal.

A kinescope of the televised spectacle will be rushed to CFPL, London, Ont., which formally opens its station Saturday, and to CKSO, Sudbury, which has had television for only a few weeks.

The radio coverage will be on the largest network ever to carry a Canadian sports event. Sixty-four stations carried last year's Grey Cup.

Last year an audience of between 3,000,000 and 3,500,000 listened in. This year 2,782,000 radios —serving an estimated 4,000,000 persons—will be in the range.

In the television field there are about 2,115,000 viewers within range of the Toronto-Ottawa-Montreal network.

Flatbush Fans Want to Know 'Who's Alston?'

By KEN SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP) — In a Flatbush bar a long-time Brooklyn Dodger fan digests the news.

"Dis guy is going to manage the Dodgers?" He slammed a fist against his forehead.

"Who is Alston?"

Wally Alston, 42-year-old manager of Montreal Royals, the Dodgers' pennant - winning International League farm club, was picked to succeed Chuck Dressen in the job Brooklyn regards as on as approximate par with the presidency of the United States. And nobody had every heard of him.

The newspapers were quick to fill the gap. Even when he piloted the Royals to a little world series victory Alston never saw himself spread around the front pages with a fraction of the thoroughness that marked his succession to the Dodger post.

MOST KIND

The World-Telegram struck an ironminous note. It reproduced the box score of the game in which first-baseman Alston made his only major league appearance. Playing for St. Louis Cardinals in 1936, he went for two innings, struck out in his only turn at bat, made one putout and committed one error.

Other writers were kinder.

Reporters found Alston a quiet, reserved type, in marked contrast to the effervescent Dressen. But there are indications that he'll get along in Brooklyn. Someone asked him if he thinks of umpires.

"What does anybody think of umpires?" was the reply.

Alston's Job As Brooklyn Manager Not An Enviable One, Says Talbot

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—It is doubtful that any manager ever took over a big league ball club under more unenviable circumstances than Walter Alston, the big, unheralded minor leaguer from the mid-west who was smuggled into town Tuesday and poured into the togs shed by Charlie Dressen.

If the central figure in the latest of a long line of zany managerial shifts in Brooklyn wasn't too bewildered to think clearly, he must have wondered if fate hadn't slipped him one from the bottom of the deck.

Alston, without a moment's managerial or coaching experience in the big show, is being asked to take over a collection of veteran stars, some of them highly temperamental, and at least equal Dressen's record of two pennants and a tie in the past three years. His employers admit frankly they are thinking in terms of a World Series victory.

If he doesn't get the horsepower out of the Dodgers that Dressen did, Alston will be cooked and Charlie will become a greater martyr than ever in the eyes of the Brooklyn fans.

CAN'T WIN

But let us suppose he is blameless personally, that he handles his athletes cautiously and well and leads them to a third straight flag. Let us even say that, with Bill Bevensville back from the army and pitching, he gives Brooklyn its first world championship within the next two years. Where would that leave Alston?

Well, so far as anyone knows to the contrary, it still would leave him just back of Pee Wee Reese in the club's annual managerial sweepstakes.

When Reese is ready to take over, the pressure on the owners to give him his chance will remain strong, for possibly he is the most popular player ever to have worn a Dodger uniform.

Maybe a world championship would silence the Reese adherents at least temporarily, but the new Dodger boss might not make the mistake of shooting for any lesser goal.

On the brighter side, such as it is, Alston is being handed a ready-made team which will be an overwhelming favorite to run away from the National League again.

'Indian' Jack Out to Prove He's No 'Goat'

WINNIPEG (CP)—A few scalps may be lifted in Toronto Saturday if Jack Jacobs has his way.

The tall Indian from Oklahoma is going back to the Grey Cup final with a personal grudge when Winnipeg Blue Bombers take on Tiger-Cats.

It's not against the Tiger-Cats, but against everybody who dubbed him "the goat" in the 1950 "mudbowl" when Bombers took a 13-0 whitewashing from Toronto Argonauts.

Jacobs has two sore spots: The 1950 Grey Cup game and '52 Western finals.

"A lot of people blamed me for last year's loss in the western finals.

"They said I've never come through in the clutch," said Jacobs, kicking for the east.

"I think our win in the final game against the Eskimos this year takes care of that."

Few will disagree, for he fired two long touchdown passes as Winnipeg wiped out an 18-4 third-quarter deficit and went on to win 30-24.

Jake, as he is known to his teammates, now is out to prove to earlyers in Saskatoon defeated G. W. Wigle of the Hamilton Thistle club 12-9.

Eight Rinks Qualify For Bonspiel Final

HAMILTON (CP) — Eight rinks Tuesday qualified for the final draw of the Hamilton thistle club's centennial bonspiel. The eight will join the first eight who qualified Monday. The finals will be held Friday . . . . . .

Winners in the first-event competitions were both Barrie rinks.

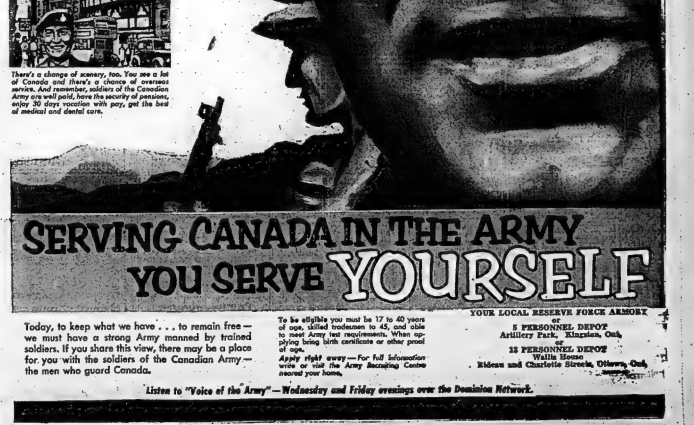
Dr. A. C. Baillie's team defeated a Toronto Victoria rink, skipped by N. MacNichol, 11-5. S. Meredith downed H. M. MacBain of Chippawa 11-3.

P. G. Hall of Kitchener and E. N. Gregory of Lindsay were first to qualify Tuesday for the first-event finals. Hall skipped his rink to a first-round 10-9 victory over H. A. Murphy's Glanford rink and then took his second win by defeating Dr. J. Geoghagan's Guelph quarter 12-4.

Gregory first defeated N. F. Bond's St. Catharines group 9-2 and then downed A. P. Brown, who skipped the Hamilton Victoria Club 13-11.

In the consolation event, R. A. Murphy, who skipped his Galt rink to a 9-8 victory over H. McGee of Toronto, and W. H. Meyer, also of Galt, advanced to the finals in afternoon play. Meyer's rink defeated N. F. Bond's St. Catharines rink 9-3.

At night Percy Ellis's Brampton four downed Ken Kinnard's Toronto crew 9-8 and W. T. Kinsman's rink from Saskatoon defeated G. W. Wigle of the Hamilton Thistle club 12-9.



SHOT IN ARGUMENT

MIDLAND (CP) — Police say a dispute between neighbors over a load of wood at nearby Port Severn Sunday led to Jeffery Cadeau, 42, being shot in the leg. Arthur Packwood, 61, is scheduled to appear in court at Penetanguishene Thursday on a charge of wounding. He is on $500 bail.

HIGH GRADER SENTENCED

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Erich De Vries, 31, a German immigrant grain inspector was found guilty of possession of high-grade gold and given a one-year suspended sentence. DeVries said the $600 worth of gold found in his possession was given him by a compatriot while he worked in a northern Ontario gold mine in payment of a $200 debt.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

In the Bobs Cobbs tournament for championship all the deals were of field problems. Tragedy stalked through every page as the best players handled the difficult situations.

When it came to table seven a married couple sat east and west. The man in east was double. Unfortunately as a psychic bidder was he. True to his rep, he opened his eyes and a bid of one heart.

With his void in hearts he concluded the opponents had good or all of them. Nor did he even suspect that his wife in west had all of them. Not even when she reached seven hearts.

Not knowing the opening was a psychic, south bid two hearts. Which set a worried opponent and shows a powerful hand in which there will be no heart losers—void in hearts or the ace alone.

Of course west knew her husband and doubled the bidding with a phony. The fact that she held all 13 hearts told her so. She went along with the gag by bidding three diamonds, which north doubled.

East was tickled with the present situation. His worthless six-of cards were of no value in defense. If three diamonds goes down, opponents must have a slam in something, he considered. He was particularly happy that his partner did not support his heart bid, which could be disastrous. Diamonds, however, suited him. So, he passed and you could see his grin clear across the room.

South would not stand for opponents getting off with what might be a small loss. He bid four spades, preferring, at—ticket as good as a game. For all he knew they might even have a slam. It was not yet evident to south and north that east had psyched. Nor did east have the least idea that west lacked the diamonds she had bid. Only west knew the score so far. More of which later.

Mrs. Will Wright, Mrs. Roy Hamilton and Mrs. Bert Tuttle assisted Mrs. Dafoe in serving refreshments.

Mr. Howard Palmer of Consecon Lake, trucked from pasture (at Mr. Ben Anderson's) Mountain View, the young cattle for Mr. Will Benway and Ross Benway on Thursday.

Mr. Will Benway attended the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto last week.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Phil Silvers, the funnyman, is one. He started goofing bald 17 years ago, when he was a mere lad of 36. For many years he has been a lovely head of skin. But he doesn't mind any more.

"Oh, I used to let it worry me," he says. "I would sit around and brood about it. It got to be a big thing with me. But then I snapped out of it. What the heck? I'm not doing well in my chosen profession, and there are one or two girls who like me. I should worry."

Silvers has become so accustomed to his barren scalp that he balked at the suggestion that he wear a rug (hair piece) in "Lucky Me" with Doris Day and Robert Cummings.

"At first I didn't go for the idea. I couldn't see that it made any difference. But they said that a man with hair on his head standing beside a pretty girl is better than a bald man. So who can argue?"

MAKES NO DIFFERENCE

He still argues that his scalp deals—which is distinguished, high-off-the — forehead — summer makes not a whit of difference. He proves this with a story of what happened when Jean Simmons visited the set.

Silvers, an intimate of Miss Simmons and Stewart Granger, asked if she noticed something different.

"That's a lovely new tie," she replied. He finally had to point out the new cover.

Silvers remarked that the hirsute public has a mistaken notion about baldness, associating it with oncoming age. Such is not always the case, he said. Like many other men, he began going bald in his 20s.

"And take a guy like Bobo Olson," the comedian continued. "He's plenty bald, but no one ever told him that he was getting old. He went ahead and knocked the bejeepers out of Randy Turpin, who has all the hair he needs."

PLANNERS WELCOMED

TORONTO (CP)—Planning Minister Warrender Tuesday welcomed delegates from municipal planning boards by telling them that next city councils haven't the "foggiest idea" of proper planning. He told delegates, here for a planning conference: "Most councils have no planning sense and no official plans for future development of their communities; are at sea. Such plans they do have are of the poorest quality."

Good Eating!

NEARLY EVERYONE LIKES A GOOD STEAK OR A GOOD PORTION OF FRIED CHICKEN

STEAK

To do it justice, a steak should be about one inch thick of the best quality (Red Brand) beef and hung from 2 to 4 weeks prior to cutting. Then cooked to taste.

FRIED CHICKEN

Should be Grade "A" well cooked in a good shortening, and a substantial enough portion so that you can really enjoy it.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR THURSDAY, NOV. 26, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Thanksgiving Day! All living in free lands should celebrate this day with special services, thanking God for privileges, freedom—and the responsibilities that go with them.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Some self-restraint in order now—especially where pleasures and personal desires are concerned. Offer your sacrifices in this respect, to God in thanksgiving for our many blessings.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Extra caution stressed now in written and legal matters, signing contracts, agreements, etc.; also in giving estimates. Day otherwise encouraging; can be gainful for worthy interests.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Not only today but for the balance of the week the influences are favorable for advancement in your occupation or other interests. Remember, today is one for serious contemplation.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — This should be interesting, happy day. There are fine planetary aspects and we, who think and act according to God's will, will have co-operation, assistance where and when needed. Be hopeful.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Not an entirely favorable day for all interests and caution is stressed if signing documents, in legal affairs, sports. You can reap benefits, however, in any worthy undertaking.

September 24 to October 22 (Libra)—Your influences similar to Virgo now. Remember, the better the deed, the better the day, and blessings always accrue from sincere, honest efforts. Pray for those less privileged.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Splendid influences from Sun, Saturn and other planets should give aid in vigorous tasks, anything calling for endurance, bravery, initiative. Selfish desires taboo. Think, work for the good of all.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Your Jupiter one of the several well-aspected planets this Thanksgiving Day. If you are planning to celebrate, do it sanely and with thought of the real meaning of this day.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Very encouraging Saturn and other star vibrations! Whatever your duties or schedule, be cheerful, hopeful of gains both now and later as a result of your good intentions and endeavors.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—The new and unusual are sponsored above all familiar matters, daily routine. Be enthused, be influential, and renew ambitions. If you maintain a sensible pace, you will earn rest periods.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—You should feel especially alert for this day's good offerings. Think well, too, on this Thanksgiving Day, of God, our country, the many benefits and advantages we have daily—and which we don't always deserve.

YOU BORN TODAY have many fine assets and strong characteristics; are by nature genial, magnetic in personality and mentally alert. With your managerial ability, you could become an executive or a skilled worker in whatever occupation. Too often your longing for change, to take any strong hold, for restlessness thwart the advancement that can be yours. You are idealistic, can achieve much. You attract friends, are good company. Be more cautious in investments, expenditures; don't live beyond your income.

SHANNONVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Riff of the 2nd line spent last Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. F. Dorsinvil.

Mrs. John Kent spent last Thursday in Bath as guest of Miss Eliza Bell.

Mrs. Thomas Vivian, Marsha and Gwen of Toronto are spending a vacation with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Vivian.

Mr. Harry Taylor spent a few days in Toronto and attended the Royal Winter Fair and the Ice Capades.

Mr. Charles Kehrl has completed his season's work at Little Current and has returned to his home in the village.

Mrs. Moore, of Belleville, was a recent guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Kent.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Juby and Gail spent last Wednesday in Toronto and attended the Ice Capades.

Mrs. Everett Stratton accompanied relatives to Toronto on Sunday and visited her brother, Mr. William Storms, who is still in a very serious condition in a Toronto hospital, where he was rushed by ambulance after being hit by a train on the C.N.R. bridge in Belleville last week.

Miss Mary Vivian, student at Queen's University, Kingston, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Vivian.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Smith of Sloco were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Don Nugent.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Houston and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Wescott were dinner guests Friday evening of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dorsinvil.

Mrs. Bertha Juby has returned to Scotia Falls after spending a week with her son, Mr. K. Juby, Mrs. Juby, Gail and Cheryl.

Mr. K. H. Juby attended the Shriners' ceremonial in Toronto on Saturday.

Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Doxtator were Mr. and Mrs. Percy Ray, Franklin and friend of Hallowell.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Cragg, Belleville, were week-end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. K. Juby.

Many persons from the village attended the euchre party in Millstown school on Thursday evening, which was sponsored by the Ladies' Guild of Trinity Church.

Members of the Ch. Ed. 2nd Shannonville, held their annual church service in the United Church Sunday morning.

Rev. Scott's address was very appropriate for the occasion and Tommy Hinchey rendered a lovely solo during the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Clarke (nee Helen Marion) were married in Holy Trinity Church on Saturday, November 21st.

STH. THUELOW

5TH THURLOW. — Mrs. James Huffman was hostess of the regular meeting of Gilead-St. Andrew's W.M.S. held on Wednesday. There was a good attendance.

The Misses Moss and Muriel Swan, Messrs. Ralph Swan, Dale Beckanquel and Doug. Rollins took part in the square dances given at last week's Community at Toronto Royal Winter Fair on Friday night and Saturday. Mrs. Robinson, of Belleville Creameries sponsored the two Thurlow 4-H Farmery sets and paid all the expenses.

EXPENSIVE JOKE

STOCKHOLM (Reuter)—Stockholm city court has ordered a Swedish count to pay 5,000 kroner (about $685) compensation to 18 other aristocrats who were burned when he exploded their balloons at a fancy-dress ball. The count was said to have exploded 30 gasfilled balloons with his glowing cigaret as a practical joke during the ball.

Ile d'Orleans Retains Much Of Its Old World Simplicity

By BERTRAND THRAULT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. FRANCOIS, Ile d'Orleans, Que. (CP)—Every day in the half-light of dawn, a heavy-set man walks with ambling step, prayer book under one arm, to the little church of St. Francois.

He is Xavier Allaire, the 69-year-old "maitre-chantre" of the parish and former mayor who sings the praises of the Lord at the early-morning mass. He receives 75 cents a day.

He is also chief chronicler of folk lore about St. Francois parish, the most tradition-minded on the Ile d'Orleans five miles south of Quebec, where honeymoon trips are unknown, where an old municipal law enforces fire regulations, and wine is made from centuries-old recipes.

Sings Mass Daily

Xavier Allaire, 69 - year - old "maitre chantre" of St. Francois parish on the Ile d'Orleans, and a former mayor, sings at high mass every day at the parish church. He also is chief chronicler of folk lore about the parish on the island, only a few miles from Quebec City, but which retains customs which date back to the 17th century. He receives 75 cents a day—increased recently from 50 cents—for his daily singing. (CP Photo)

CALL TO WORK

Ringing of the Angelus still signals the start of the day's activities, including the walk of Mr. Allaire, for the islanders who go into the fields to work and to the beaches to place their traps for eel fishing, while the children give a final glance to the day's catechism lesson.

Much of their life centres, in the tradition of Quebec, around the parish church, built in 1734, and Rev. Antonio Parent, parish priest since 1946.

The church was converted temporarily into a military hospital by General Wolfe in 1759 during the siege of Quebec.

On week-days during the winter, Mr. Allaire sings in the sacristy where mass is celebrated to save fuel. On Sundays, the faithful are insulated against the cold by a stove pipe which meanders around the church's interior, sharing the heat of a large wood-stove which squats in front of the choir loft.

From the choir, Mr. Allaire peers from under his thick, grey-ing eyebrows and chants in a deep voice the "Kyrie Eleison" and "Gloria" of the Gregorian mass. Daily high masses are not unusual in the province of Quebec.

For Mr. Allaire to be "maitre-chantre" of St. Francois now is a tradition: His father and grandfather both held the position.

LIVING COSTS UP

But even his job has its problems, one of which—inflation—was recognized recently.

"Since last March I have received 75 cents a mass for singing," Mr. Allaire said. "Before that I received 50 cents and when there were two of us singing we split the money."

For the most part—the former job as mayor affected his singing little. However, after some of the stormier council meetings, he found that "sometimes at requiem masses I would emphasize some-what the 'Dies Irae' (Day of Wrath)."

Nor is his singing confined solely to the liturgical. The oldtime "chanteur" is in constant demand for parties and weddings.

The latter are always followed by a day of feasting on pig's knuckle stew, "tourtieres"—a pork meat-pie—and home-made wine. Favorite song at these affairs is "Beaudelo's Lament," which starts:

"Oh Christian people, Near this lament
Of an honest man so recently wed
On the eve of his marriage, a Sunday fine,
He went to high mass to take the Lord's bread."

ENDED IN TRAGEDY

A folk-song, it tells of the marriage in 1787 of Louis Beaudelo, a young St. Francois farmer, to Agnes Pare, who lived at Beaupre opposite the St. Lawrence river from the island.

After a day of celebration in the bride's town, the young couple and 13 of their relatives and friends boded a boat for St. Francois. A gust of wind overturned the boat and, of the 15 persons aboard, 13 were drowned, including the bridal couple.

The tragic end of the short voyage perhaps indicates why the inhabitants of St. Francois so like any day away from honeymoon trips.

The 350 parishioners of St. Francois, comprising 80 families, pay for the support of Father Parent with a tithe—a custom started in 1833 by Msgr. Mountmorency de Laval, the first bishop of New France—in strawberries and produce or the equivalent in money.

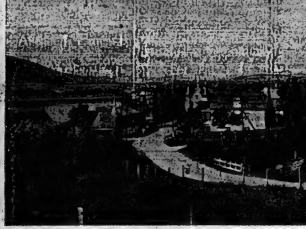
Potatoes and grain also serve as a tithe, but recent recognition of the succulence of the island's berries have made these the favored contribution towards the priest's living expenses.

HELE OF, BACCHUS

Wild grapes, too, grow in abundance as they have since the discovery of the island. Jacques Cartier, who visited the Ile d'Orleans in 1535, called it the Isle of Bacchus after the Greek god of wine.

The villagers of St. Francois make a wine from the red, pear-shaped fruit of the service tree (mountain ash). Fermented slowly it acquires the taste of cognac. Each family stocks a small amount for special occasions. It may also be used to "floor" an opponent in a drinking bout, since it is rumored that the wine's potency is devastating.

The 27-square-mile parish of St. Francois, of which Mr. Allaire was mayor from 1942 to 1946, has no water system. Each home has a well.



It probably was this fact which brought town authorities to adopt the law long ago to protect residents against fire. All property-owners are obliged to give two 30-foot lengths of wood, eight inches square, and two days' work when-ever one of their co-parishioners is burned out.

To shirk this duty, is to court ostracism of sorts. Names of all property-owners are on file at the Town Hall and those who fail to co-operate have their names stricken from the list. Thereafter no one may help these persons if fire strikes their homes.

ANNOUNCE CANDIDACY

STRATFORD (CP) — Bert Davies, an alderman here for nine years, said Tuesday he will be a candidate for mayor at municipal elections next month. He will be opposed by Mayor Lawrence Feick and Alderman C. H. (Dutch) Meier.

Old World Charm

The Ile d'Orleans, a few miles, whose 222 years make it the oldest parish on the 70-square-mile island, from Quebec City, retains much of its Old World simplicity and charm. This is a view of Ste. Famille. Family wealth here is passed from father to son and while New civilization is making some inroads, old customs still are retained. This is a Quebec government photo. (CP Photo)

Bringing Up Baby

Hints Collected by Mrs. Ellen Parker (Mother of 3)

With wintery winds and nippy air upon us, certainly a few cold-weather precautions are in order. Baby should have his daily constitutional (except in extreme weather) but these suggestions should be kept in mind.

1. Check weather reports before venturing out. (And a good thermometer is a sound investment).
2. Baby should be cosily but comfortably dressed. (Tight bundling restricts circulation).
3. A length of sheet plastic is a sensible carriage accessory. Will shield baby if you're caught in a storm.

Plastic P.S. That plastic carriage cover does double-duty indoors too, use as a play pen liner or under baby's high chair to catch spills

A "solid" start. Cereal is often the first solid food recommended for baby. For the nourishment your baby needs, and for downright goodness try Gerber's Cereals. They're richly reinforced with iron, minerals and essential B-Vitamins so necessary for little growing babies. Creamy, smooth-to-the-tongue texture makes them easy for baby to adjust to. And for you, too, because they're pre-cooked, ready-to-serve.

Solids For a little sitter. Gerber's Strained Fruits, Vegetables, Meat-Soups and Desserts. Made by the specialists who make "babies their business . . . their only business", these fine foods are famous for flavor, tone-color and the creamy-smooth texture that suits small fry to a T.

"Bib 'n' Tucker" Specials! Here's a cute little apron for the wardrobe of your pride and joy—made of clear, vinylite plastic, edged in pink and blue, with a handy "catch-all". It's yours, just by sending either 3 Gerber's Cereal labels or 6 Gerber's can labels to me, Mrs. Dan Gerber, Box 17, Toronto 18.

Temperance Sermon, Madoc Visit Highlight St. Paul's Services

By MRS. PERCY MacMULLEN

RAWDON—On Sunday morning, November 22nd, a large congregation was in attendance at St. Paul's United Church, Stirling to hear a sermon preached by Reverend Albert Johnson, General Secretary of the Ontario Temperance Federation.

The speaker based his message on the scientific approach to the liquor problem. He gave various illustrations of men who are informed and realize the perils of liquor and who emphasize the moral and social evils that are rampant today.

The speaker cited a hotel keeper who sells 30,000 gallons of beer yearly but never touches it himself. When asked why, he replied, "even one glass of beer lowers a man's efficiency."

ELIMINATE LIQUOR

Many men who have important jobs have eliminated all liquor from their home and do not hire representatives who indulge.

Films are making a great stride in education and over 8,000 people viewed the O.T.F. film at the ploughing match. A gift of $20 will provide a film with the donor's name.

The federation is pleased to note that it is now compulsory to teach the evils of "alcoholism" in grades 9 and 10 of high schools in Ontario.

CHRISTIAN RESEARCH

Rev. Johnson stressed that alcoholism is a matter for Christian research.

Mrs. A. E. Baker played several selections and accompanied the choirs on the organ.

The pastor, Rev. A. E. Baker, presided, and had the honor of presenting Mr. and Mrs. George Carlisle with a family Bible on the occasion of their 30th wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Carlisle and family are regular attendants at St. Paul's, and Mr. Carlisle is clerk of the session and Temperance secretary.

MADOC FRATERNAL NIGHT

On Sunday evening, November 22nd Rev. J. Fred Lane, pastor of Madoc pastoral charge, with church officials and members paid a fraternal visit to Stirling in Centennial year. One hundred years ago Madoc was a part of the Stirling Methodist circuit.

Mr. William Aylsworth and members of Madoc Citizens' Band were seated at the front of the church and furnished a fifteen minute prelude of music prior to the service. Following the service they rendered several more selections.

Mrs. Vernon Reid, organist of Trinity United Church, Madoc, accompanied the choir of eighteen voices. The choir rendered two anthems with Miss Ann Nichol taking the solo parts.

MALE QUARTET

The male quartet of Messrs. Ivor Hughes, William Aylsworth, Robert Wigle and Harold Brintnell rendered "Sunset and Evening Star" and they also sang a number during the Fellowship Hour.

Rev. A. E. Baker presided. He graciously welcomed his old college friend Rev. Fred Lane and the Madoc visitors.

Rev. Lane based his message on the theme "Christ In Our Daily Activities." He reminisced on his boyhood days and his various pastorates and was delighted to have the opportunity of paying a fraternal visit to St. Paul's in its Centennial year.

He referred to the Bible verse found in The Acts when Paul "reasoned at that time", in a treasuring and astonished voice asked "Lord what will Thou have me to do?" Paul's was a whole-hearted conversion but today we find two kinds of discipleship such as "a Christian at home but not in business" and "a Christian in private life but not in social life."

EXPRESSION IN ACTION

Christianity must find expression in action as all religious activity is directed by Jesus and one's whole life must be a part of it and should be at His disposal. Christ should be hailed as Master in all walks of everyday living as Christians live daily by faith in a Supreme Being.

Rev. Lane admonished the youth in the audience to take the Book of Books as the best guide in their lives. He said each individual life must give expression to the mind that has been touched by the redeeming power of Christ. A Christian conscience creates a spirit that stands up against evil emphasis.

In closing the speaker touched briefly on today's trend when the quality of work given for the quantity of wages earned does not have the relative value that it did in pioneer days. Years ago men worked hard to earn a dollar. If individuals put Christ in their daily activities a great many business dealings would develop better Christian attitudes.

The service closed with "an evening blessing" and this concludes the fraternal visits until the new year of 1954.

ITS VISITORS

Approximately 125 visitors were entertained by the official board of St. Paul's in the church parlors.

The musical numbers not already mentioned included a cornet duet by Messrs. William Ayre, worth and K. C. McKay with Mrs. A. E. Baker as accompanist.

Mr. Harold Brintnell voiced thanks for the refreshments and the social hour and Mr. Harold Hagerman, recording steward of St. Paul's graciously replied.

Allow Gouzenko To Talk, Jenner Balks At Secrecy

Canada Lays Down Three Conditions for Interview

OTTAWA (CP)—The Gouzenko controversy, apparently resolved Wednesday, was higher in the air than ever today.

Canada, after insistent United States requests, said it is willing to arrange a secret meeting between Igor Gouzenko and "any person" designated by the U.S. government.

There were three "ifs:" Gouzenko must agree, the meeting must be under Canadian auspices that is, in Canada—and the Canadian government must give its approval before any Gouzenko testimony could be made public.

By last night, Canada stood in the craw of Senator William Jenner, chairman of the U.S. Senate internal security sub-committee which wants to quiz Gouzenko, former code clerk in the Soviet embassy here who bared operations of a Russian spy network in Canada in 1945.

Jenner said his committee could not pledge to keep the Gouzenko testimony secret.

In a letter to State Secretary Dulles asking that negotiations be undertaken to get the story, Jenner added: "At the same time, if there is reason to keep the evidence secret, the . . . sub-committee will use the discretion it always has used in these matters of security, the security and comity between nations."

External Affairs Minister Pearson, who outlined Canada's position in the case Wednesday in the Commons and tabled the reply to the second U.S. request to question Gouzenko, said of the Jenner statement: "We came to our decision after careful consideration. We will look carefully at any new proposal that may come from the state department."

DEFENDER DOMINANT

He declined further comment, but other government sources said Canada is extremely unlikely to back down on the conditions. The government had given the matter a lot of thought and it stand had been approved by all sections of the government.

There was no indication here whether Dulles would pass on the latest Jenner request, the fourth, to the Canadian government. If he did not, it was assumed Jenner would have to agree to the Canadian stipulation that Canada first, agree any testimony to be made public, or not interview Gouzenko at all.

Will Not Dismiss Murder Charge Against Wife

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP)—Motions for dismissal of a first-degree murder charge against Mrs. Diane Wells and severance of her case from that of Negro jazz drummer Johnny Warren, also charged with her husband's slaying, were denied Wednesday.

The pretty, 30-year-old widow of Cecil Wells, wealthy Fairbanks business man who was killed in the early hours of Oct. 17, sought dismissal of the charges on grounds of insufficient evidence.

No trial date has been set. Officials have said they are looking for a third person in the case.

Both Mrs. Wells and Warren have maintained they are innocent of the killing. Warren has said that he had been on intimate terms with Mrs. Wells prior to the shooting in the Wells apartment. Mrs. Wells has denied this.

Truce Inspection Officer Shoots, Wounds Self

INCHON, Korea (AP)—A Communist Czechoslovakian truce inspection officer who was shot dead in return to Red North Korea Friday shot and wounded himself today.

He is described as "conscious and apparently" aboard an American hospital ship where doctors said his condition is good but not critical.

Czech Lt.-Col. Vojtech Bazda was found in his quarters at this port city where he was a member of the neutral inspection team set up under the armistice agreement. There was a self-inflicted bullet wound in his head

Bazda came to Inchon Nov. 20 to serve with the Czech, Polish, Swiss and Swedish inspection team that supervises movement of military supplies.

There was no official word as to Bazda's reason for shooting himself, but his case recalled that of a Polish officer who fled from an inspection team and was given American asylum last September just before he was scheduled to fly to North Korea.

Belgian House Gives Approval To Defence Pact

BRUSSELS (AP) — The lower house of the Belgian parliament today ratified the European Defence Community treaty (EDC) which provides for a united European army to resist the threat of Communist aggression.

In addition, the treaty has been ratified by both houses of the West German parliament, and the lower house of the Netherlands parliament. France, Italy and Luxembourg, the other members of the treaty alliance, have not yet acted.

The vote in the Belgian House of Representatives was 148 to 98 with three abstentions.

ROLEN RETYRED

ELKAN, Maryland (AP) — Rev. Alexander Dawson, 62, is a private in the Home Guard platoon of this Kent county town. His sergeant, Al Fisher, is the corporal.

THE WEATHER

Toronto (CP)—Synopsis — A cold blast of wind and icy weather has brought temperatures back to normal over most of Canada and the U.S. However, the Maritimes enjoyed record breaking temperatures on the low 60s Wednesday night which bettered the reported readings from Florida by five to six degrees.

The westerly flow of cool air will persist over Ontario today and Friday with little change expected in the weather.

ANOTHER BUSY DAY IN STORE FOR ROYAL COUPLE

Will Start With Parade, End With State Dinner

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)—The Queen today reviewed a military parade and greeted 2,000 school children in colorful ceremonies marking the second day of the royal visit to this British rum and sugar colony.

The children waited four abreast in 36 rows on the length of the Parade, facing Kingston's Sabina Park for the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh.

Proudest youngster of them all was Barbara le Wars, 15, who thanked the Queen "for the great delight you have given the children of Jamaica." She presented an array of Jamaican handicraft including a hand-made basket.

The Queen met the island's top military figures and their wives.

VISIT LEGISLATURE

A tour of Kingston and a formal welcome from the legislature at Government House were also on the program.

Police in white uniforms and white helmets struggled to keep roads clear for official traffic.

Most of the crack new detachments of the Royal Navy with the 1st battalion, Royal Welsh Fusiliers, lined the streets in Kingston in chief—the Jamaica battalion, auxiliary services of the army, the Women's Royal Army Corps, the Girl Guides and others.

The Queen and the duke stood up in an open car as it drove through the streets. Sheila Elizabeth wore a short-sleeved green dress with an emerald green hat, white gloves and white shoes.

QUEEN LOOKS RESTED

The sovereign appeared refreshed by her day's program after a good night's sleep in the governor's stately mansion. She had dined in the governor's palace.

The mansion of the governor-general, Hugh Foot, set in 135 acres of park land. The royal suites overlook rolling grass land where tennis nets in paddocks, and formal gardens abloom with flowers. Here the guests of the paddock will be a mount-for the duke Friday when he turns out for a polo game.

The Queen and the duke slept well after an exhausting day in which they flew here from Bermuda and motored through Jamaican countryside.

TRIUMPHANT RIDE

Their 30-mile ride to Kingston from Montego Bay, where they landed Wednesday, was one triumphal progress along the coast through sugar - cane fields and mountain gorges over which scarlet bougainvillea flowers.

Villagers turned out to see and cheer the royal couple as they rode in open cars, showered with rose petals the blazing sun under a cream-colored parasol. The procession ran into a torrential tropical downpour of tropical rain toward the end of the ride.

For lunch the royal car turned off the main road for a rest at a luxurious seaside club where the duke splashed in the warm Caribbean waters.

Bermuda children thronged the streets of Hamilton to get a glimpse of the Queen and Duke. When it was noted that no colored persons were invited to the state dinner, British newspapers protested that the color line had been drawn and it was an example of "blind snobbery."—(Central Press Canadian Photos.)

Eight British Firms Unite In St. Lawrence Seaway Bid

LONDON (CP)—Eight of Britain's biggest contracting and engineering firms have joined forces to bid on the St. Lawrence seaway project.

The Queen met the island's top military figures and their wives.

Sir Albert Braithwaite, Conservative member of Parliament and chairman of a British organization known as the seaway group, said he expects the combine to get £2,000,000 worth of orders.

He added:

"This is our last chance to invest in Canada. We missed the Alberta oil and the uranium deposits.

"Canada is our best prospect for engineering orders and for the seaway should take £2,000,000 off our Israel debt, due to lower freight charges on the wheat we buy from Canada."

The firms in the new group are Richard Costain, Dorman Long, Peter Lind, John Howard, Sir Lindsay Parkinson, Taylor Woodrow, Matthew Hall and Caffin and Company. Taylor Woodrow has already established a Canadian subsidiary to cash in on Canadian building.

It is understood that the British treasury might allow the group to accept part payment in Canada's special seaway bonds, which Canada will issue to finance the project. But Braithwaite declined permission so far, but may revoke his decision in line with its policy of easing dollar-control restrictions to allow increased Canadian investment.

Special Thanksgiving Services Feature American Holiday

NEW YORK (CP) — Americans celebrated Thanksgiving today — thankful that the shooting war was over in Korea. And millions of prayers were offered for this and other blessings.

Special Thanksgiving services were held in churches and chapels. Americans at home later attended massive street parades and football games before going home to traditional turkey dinners.

High on the entertainment list were three massive street parades, traditionally held by department stores to usher in the Christmas shopping season: Macy's in New York, Bamberger's in Newark, N.J., and Gimbel's in Philadelphia.

The holiday, as usual, was not without its gimmicks—as in Tennessee.

The Knox county jail was crowded with more than 100 prisoners, for more than usual. The Knoxville city jail was almost empty. Word had been passed that the county jail menu included turkey, cranberries, pumpkin pie and other goodies. The city jail menu was the usual black coffee and bologna sandwiches.

RED Gi's FEASTED

On the other side of the world, diplomats in Tokyo and a news peace conference took the day off as a holiday.

Religious services, turkey dinners and holiday entertainment were arranged for thousands of American troops, South Koreans and United Nations forces in Korea.

The Indian command, guarding unrepatriated prisoners of war, said the Chinese Communists supplied chicken, eggs, fish, pork, beef and fruit for the 22 Americans who have refused to go home. One Britain and 328 South Koreans who the Reds say have embraced communism received the same fare. No church services were held in the camp where the 22 Americans are held, and the men spent the morning playing volleyball and other games.

New Suggestion

THE HAGUE (Reuters)—A committee of the Dutch parliament's upper house has suggested that the European Defence Community treaty be expanded to allow for the amalgamation of Dutch and Belgian air forces.

This qualification was suggested as foreign ministers assembled here for a six-country conference on European unity.

Italian Premier Giuseppe Pella, attending the meeting, told reporters that a solution of the Trieste dispute would "help enormously" in getting his parliament to ratify the EDC treaty. But he added that solution of the Trieste affair would not be a pre-condition.

Snow in Turkey Takes Four Lives

ANKARA (AP)—New snow and rain storms gripped Turkey today and a fourth four dead were reported.

Two shepherds and their flock of some 400 sheep froze to death at Haymana, near here. Heavy rains in Diyarbakir collapsed a house, killing two persons and injuring four others.

Snowdrifts more than 10 feet high blocked some highways.

6 Are Injured In 3-Car Crash

BROCKVILLE (CP)—Six persons were injured as three cars smashed on a straight stretch of highway near Prescott about 10 miles east of here Wednesday night.

Brought to hospital here were Mrs. Julia Young, 31, Brockville, Donald Clark, 21, of Morristown; Mrs. Helen Craig, 52, Ottawa, Miss Ruth Craig, 20, Ottawa, Mrs. Chapman, 32, Brockville, and Gilbert Chapman, Brockville.

Police said Gilbert Craig, Chapman was passengers in Arthur Craig's car and Mrs. Craig's car was a passenger in a car driven by her husband. Ethana Clark was alone in his car.

May Construct Mill

SYDNEY, N. S. (CP)—The Ford Record says today that new plans for construction of a pulp and paper mill at Mulgrave, N. S., may be submitted to the Nova Scotia government shortly.

The newspaper says a German firm is expected to make the submission. One plan calls for an outlay of $13,000,000 and the other $22,000,000.

A German and a Swedish firm were negotiating with the pulp project some time ago but failed to reach agreement. The story says the German firm now is continuing on its own.

STILL ON JOB

CANBERRA (CP)—Air Minister William McMahon and his Royal Australian Air Force squadron in Korea is being maintained" at operational readiness in case the truce is broken, Sqdn. Ldr. D. R. Beattie was appointed to succeed Wing Commander Alan Hodges as commanding officer of the squadron.

TWO TORONTO YOUTHS CHARGED WITH MURDER

Held for Slaying Of 'Scotty' Cameron

BARRIE (CP) — Two Toronto youths, Jan Robertson, 21, and William Stephen Turgiey, 19, were formally charged here today with the murder of Fred (Scotty) Cameron whose bullet-ridden body was found in this district Oct. 30.

The two, arrested on Toronto Wednesday night, were remanded for one week by Magistrate G. R. Foster who was called to court early this morning for their appearance.

Arrest of the pair was made in Toronto by Inspector Allen Mcleod and detective Sergeant Bernard Simmons of the Toronto police who have been working on the case.

Cameron, 60, was a Toronto man. His body, shot through the head and chest, was found propped against a fence near Barrie, 50 miles north of Toronto. He had been employed by a Toronto financial house.

(In Toronto police said Robert-Hood, 20, and Turgiey were acquainted with Cameron and had been under surveillance for some time. It is believed that a wallet found near Cameron's body was a key clue which led to the arrests.)

Hamilton Folk Wait 24 Hours To Buy Tickets

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton's quota of Grey Cup tickets went on sale at 8 a. m. today and within two hours, the 4,000 allotment was gone.

The line-up in front of the ticket office started at 9 p. m. Wednesday and during the night 2,000 men and women huddled against the brick fence in front of the Hamilton Amateur Athletic Association club. Late at night the gates to the ticket office were closed but a long flow crowd lined up inside the building.

Hawkers of hot coffee and sandwiches did a rushing business. Police Chief Allan Lynch put a ban on oil stoves and small wood stoves after they brought along to keep warm.

Says Banks Will Increase Rates

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Telegram said in a newspage story today that Canada's chartered banks will increase interest rates on savings to 2 per cent from 1½ per cent effective next month.

The one half of one per cent increase, the newspaper said, will restore the savings interest rate to the level of 1934, when the interest paid by the banks was established at 2 per cent. From April, 1933, the banks had paid 3 per cent interest but subsequent reductions left it 1½ per cent.

The Telegram said that trust companies would be expected to take the lead of the banks and increase interest on deposits to 2½ per cent from 2 per cent.

FAMED CHEF

LONDON (CP)—Auguste Escoffier, the celebrated London chef who died in 1935, will have a room at Westminster Technical College named after him. He was a co-founder-member of the college.

Conservative Party Rebellion Against Policy Spreads

19 More Members Sign Motion Criticizing Govt.

LONDON (CP)—A Conservative party rebellion against Prime Minister Churchill's war pension policy spread today in Parliament despite government efforts to head it off.

Nineteen more Conservative legislators signed a motion criticizing the government's refusal to boost pensions for 336 First World War officers, raising the number of Conservative rebels to 55. In addition, 81 Labor members have signed.

Churchill has dispatched his two top deputies—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Chancellor of the Exchequer Richard Butler—to face the rebels tonight at a meeting of Conservative back-benchers.

TV VOTE CRITICAL

The government, meanwhile, braced for a vote in the House of Lords tonight on the government's plan to introduce limited commercial television.

A large number of lords of all parties led by Conservative peers have sharply attacked the plan.

A vote against the government tonight would not threaten Churchill's resignation but would be a serious loss of prestige.

In the pensions rift some of the Conservative rebels have threatened to vote against the government's military budget when it goes to Commons early next year unless the war pension boosts are granted.

A government defeat on the budget—major issue—would force Churchill's resignation and a new election.

Churchill is believed anxious to end the Conservative rebellion before he leaves next Tuesday for the Western Big Three conference in Bermuda.

Thanks Queen For Reforms In Jamaica

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuters)—The Speaker of the Jamaica House of Representatives (Assembly) today thanked the Queen for "increased reforms" in the island's constitution granted by her Majesty in Privy Council.

In a formal address of welcome to the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh when they visited the legislative council chamber here on their Commonwealth tour.

"These reforms," Campbell said, "represent the highest point in the creation of a system of representative, responsible government. The advance is firmly based on the well-established principles which is "Mother of Parliaments has taught the world.

"It is with determination to proceed with vigor and confidence along the path which we are resolved so to exercise the powers and responsibilities granted us to justify our further advance towards self-government."

Queen Will Meet Aborigines In Australia Tour

CANBERRA (Reuters) — The Queen will meet many aborigines during her tour of Australia, it was disclosed today.

Eric Harrison, minister in charge of the royal tour in Australia, made the disclosure in reply to a pointed question from a Labor party member in the House of Representatives.

Gilbert Duthie asked whether "a color bar is being erected in Australia as it was in Bermuda this week when the Queen arrived there."

Harrison said he regretted Duthie had "imported the color question."

Niagara Gorge Plunge by Auto Injures Two

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y. (AP)—Two persons were injured critically today when their automobile plunged over the edge of the Niagara river gorge and dropped about 100 feet to a railroad right-of-way.

One was identified by officials at Memorial Hospital as Robert Murdock of nearby Lewiston. The hospital reported that the name of the other person, described as a young woman, was not known.

The accident was discovered about 3:45 a. m. by Carmen Johnson, a city fireman, driving along the highway at the top of the 300-foot deep gorge. He said he noticed where marks in a light fall of snow leading to the edge. He looked over the edge and saw the car.

A rescue crew directed by state police took three hours to bring the couple to the top.

Paper Says Man Who Disappeared 22 Years Ago Found in Texas

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—The Nashville Tennessean reported today that Bert Bunting, son of Tom C. Buntin, member of a socially-prominent Nashville family who disappeared 22 years ago, has been found in Texas.

The newspaper said he is living in Orange, Tex., with his second wife with his former secretary, who eloped from sight with him. Both had long since been considered legally dead.

The Tennessean, in a copyrighted story, said Bunting and his former Betty McCuddy have been living in Texas in the name of Thomas D. and Betty Palmer, and have been leading a family of six. One daughter previously had been a grandchild until October, the other is expecting a baby, imminently.

When Buntin, an insurance man, disappeared in September, 1931, he left a wife and three sons in Nashville. She now is married to Louis Phillips, president of the Broadway National Bank of Nashville.

Bunting's family at the time of his disappearance, Miss McCuddy 22, Last Nov. 6 the New York Life Insurance Company, which had been forced by court order to pay $50,000 life insurance to Mrs. Buntin seven years after his disappearance, divulged it had found him, but declined to say where. The company announced it in an injunction obtained by the insurance company tying up part of the insurance money. Mrs. Buntin went into a trust fund for Buntin's heirs. Until that action there had been not the slightest clue to the whereabouts of Buntin and Miss McCuddy.

Asked why they had divorced themselves from their past, Betty Buntin quoted as saying:

"We were in love. Money didn't enter into it at all. If money had meant anything, we wouldn't have done what we did."

Strong Professional Theatre Is Forecast

CHATHAM (CP) — Canadian drama has a bright future that should develop into a strong professional theatre, Lorne Greene, CBC newsreader, Richard MacDonald, director of the Dominion Drama Festival said here Wednesday.

Here from Ottawa on a tour of Canadian little theatres, Mr. MacDonald said amateurs were beginning to lead in terms beyond the annual Dominion Drama Festival and that television provided a new medium for them.

Newlyweds Fail to Invite Friends In, So Charivari Continues for 2 Weeks

MONCTON, N. B. (CP) — The charivari tradition that has been shattering the quiet of peaceful Memramcook valley for the last two weeks ended Wednesday night.

Hundreds of spectators watched outside the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alphee Leblanc as a group of merrymakers burned and the remains tossed into Memramcook river, 16 miles from here. Then the party ended.

All the while, a blaring public address system kept spectators posted on the goings-on. RCMP officers were busy unsnarling traffic.

Residents say the bride and groom brought it on themselves. When they returned from their honeymoon 14 days ago, neighbors began making a racket outside the house, waiting to be invited in for a house-warming. The charivari, as it is called, is a time honored in the valley.

The invitation came. Word spread, more neighbors arrived and the din grew each night for two weeks.

Three merrymakers wanted so enthusiastic they were taken to jail. Raymond LeBlanc, Alfred Belliveau and Edward Bourgeois were warned by police, then released on charges of disturbing the peace.

City and District News

MAYOR McFARLAND TO SEEK RE-ELECTION

Mayor Harvey McFarland of Picton, who is offering his services for another term, has been invited to England to inspect an industrial plant which wishes to locate in his town. "He could not divulge further details until negotiations had developed," he said.

He said he wanted to continue as mayor of the town because "things I have underway for the town and county demand that I see them through."

Hear Defence Talk

The Energetic Club of Holloway Street United Church met recently.

Various reports were given, business discussed, and new members introduced.

Susanne Cavers, accompanied by her father, delighted all with her vocal selections.

The guest speaker, George Whitman, co-ordinator of Civil Defence for Belleville was introduced by Ross Dryden.

Mr. Whitman spoke of the need for workers and of the work done by members in times of disaster.

A social hour was enjoyed and refreshments served.

Ford Presents Movie Film To Y's Men's Club

At the last regular meeting of the Y's Men's Club, a film entitled "Tomorrow Meets Today" was presented through the courtesy of the Ford Motor Company of Canada Limited. On hand to show the film were Mr. James Young, Ford District Sales representative and Mr. Ken Appleton, District Service representative. Both men were introduced to the club by Y's Man Ron Moorman.

Before showing the film, Mr. Young made a few remarks and stated that he and Mr. Appleton were very pleased to be present on behalf of their company.

The film, in beautiful color, dealt with the step by step procedure in creating a new automobile commencing with the original conception of the design in the mind of the artist to the final mass produced automobile rolling off the assembly line. Between these two extremes, the film dealt with the research, design, engineering, testing and production of a new model in their proper sequence. The film unfolded one could appreciate that it was truly entitled, "Tomorrow Meets Today" as you saw the cars of tomorrow taking shape before the watchful boards of today.

The thanks of the club were expressed by Mr. Young and Mr. Appleton through Y's Man Willis Hutchinson.

Before the film an impressive induction ceremony was held for the admission of six new members into the club. The new members were Keith Cowan, Rex Edwards, Ward Mclenhenber, Mac Rankin, Austin Walkin and Don Wonnacott.

Policy of General Women's Canvass For Fund Outlined by Chairman

MRS. HERBERT McCABE, Chairman of general Women's Committee of Hospital Fund.

Mrs. Herbert McCabe, who is chairman of the General Women's Committee of the Hospital Building Fund named her committee members today and also made a statement concerning the policy of the general women's canvass, in connection with the fund.

Section chairmen of the General Women's Committee are: Mrs. Ben Bursey, Mrs. E. E. Follwell and Mrs. F. C. Pugh. Team captains are: Mrs. C. A. Anderson, Mrs. J. E. Buchan, Mrs. Helen Buchanan, Mrs. J. C. Campbell, Miss Ivy Dickens, Mrs. Fred H. Deacon, Mrs. B. H. Dowtman, Mrs. H. T. Floyd, Mrs. W. R. H. Gander, Mrs. W. C. Jackson, Mrs. Helen Lennon, Mrs. F. C. Miller, Mrs. Bruce Smith and Mrs. Gordon B. Thompson.

Mrs. McCabe said that close to 200 women are now engaged in organizing Belleville women generally with hospital problems and needs and to give them an opportunity if they desire to identify themselves with the hospital project.

"When the over all policy of the women's division was being formed some time ago, various factors were taken into consideration" Mrs. McCabe said. It was felt strongly by both men and women committee members that the fund should be built, owned and operated exclusively by women. For many years the hospital was under the direct management of members of the Women's Christian Association which, incorporated women of Belleville and district. It is only natural therefore to form a clude that women of Belleville are strongly interested in the hospital and its continued outstanding work in the health welfare of the community at large.

"Our committee was organized" Mrs. McCabe commented, "to inform the women of Belleville of the expansion plans, to answer pertinent questions about our hospital and to give women generally the opportunity to take part in this great project through giving, no matter how small the gift, as the women of Belleville have done so magnificently in past years. The committee realizes that in many cases the husbands are giving substantially, but it was thought that as her gift can be included with the husband's gift for income tax purposes that she would wish to make her own gift as a symbol of her desire to continue the strong association that women have had with the creation and operation of our Belleville General Hospital."

Tribute Paid To Pioneer Engineer on CPR

A recent edition of The Engineering Journal, published by the Engineering Institute of Canada, carried an account in a feature column entitled "The Journal 25 Years Ago" that paid tribute to the late Henry Carre, father of Francis Carre, 156 Dufferin Street.

Mr. Henry Carre was division, at engineer for the C.P.R. in western Ontario and later in the Rainy River district. He travelled to Western Ontario by covered wagon with his wife and child to the Kenora district for many years. Sometime after his wife, Francis, was born the family moved to Ottawa.

Francis J. Carre worked in the Merchants' Bank for eight years. He came to Belleville in 1888 and worked for the Customs and Excise until his retirement nine years ago.

"Reference is made to the passing of two senior members of the Institute, These were Thomas Breen, who was a graduate of McGill University, Mr. Breen died on May 27 at the age of 79 years.

DIED IN 85TH YEAR

"During the Fenian raid he was a member of the militia and proceeded with his company on active service.

It is interesting to think what these men must have known about the early days of the development and of engineering in Canada. They both died in the year 1918, one of them was 79 years of age and the other one 85. That certainly gives their biographies well back in the early history of our professions. What a thing it would be for all of us if we could only know of the things which they encountered in the conditions of that day."

Obituary

WILLIAM JOHN MORRISSON

The funeral of William John Morrisson was held on Wednesday afternoon. Rev. H. M. Smith of Calvary Temple Church had charge of the service at the Belleville Burial Co. Funeral Home. He was assisted by Rev. L. S. Price, also of Calvary Temple Church. Interment took place in Salem cemetery.

The bearers were Gilbert Clapp, William Anderson, Murray Huffman, Norman Christie, Percy Walker and Percy Rollins.

MISS ISABEL MARGARET DICKSON, Reg. N. Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD — Funeral services for the late Miss Isabel Margaret Dickson, Murray Hoffford, took place Tuesday afternoon from the Bowen Funeral Home to Frankford United Church, where service was conducted by Rev. Charles Clarke, assisted by Rev. Roy McEachnun, of Hagerman.

The funeral was largely attended and the many beautiful floral tributes bore silent witness to the esteem in which Miss Dickson was held in the community. During the service Mrs. Walter Morrow sang "Abide With Me."

Bearers were: R. D. McDonald, Wilbert Kingston, Arnold Slickler, Melvin Baker, Herbert Bailey and Ernest Wallace. Interment was in Frankford Cemetery.

Miss Dickson died Saturday, November 21, in Belleville General Hospital following a two years' illness. She had lived at Frankford and at Ottawa, where she trained as a nurse at the Ottawa Civic Hospital. She was a member of Chalmers United Church at Ottawa and of the Alumnae Society of Ottawa Hospital.

Besides her parents she is survived by one brother, Hampton Dickson, of Hamilton, and two sisters, Mrs. Edwin (Jessie) Warren of Stirling, and Mrs. Peter (Betty) Robinson, of Vancouver, B.C.

Miss L. Leveridge Was Noted Poetess, Author

Miss Lillian Leveridge, author, poetess, and contributor to many magazines and papers of early Belleville, died on Tuesday afternoon.

This Thursday afternoon, the funeral was held from the Weaver Funeral Home, Trenton, to St. John's Anglican Church, a parish, in which she took an active interest when health permitted. Rev. F. C. Bezzer conducted the service in the church and the committal rites at Carrying Place cemetery. A wealth of floral tributes and the presence of many intimate friends and relatives showed the high esteem in which the late Miss Leveridge was held in the community. The bearers were: William and Gordon Hanthorne, Arthur Hewton, Scotty Campbell, Gerald Trounce and "Bud" Leveridge.

The late Miss Leveridge was born in Norfolk, England, 74 years ago, being the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Leveridge. She came to Canada as a young girl and settled in Toronto. Later she moved to Picton Hill, where she lived for many years before moving to the Carrying Place, where she had resided for the past fifteen years.

Miss Leveridge was well known and highly regarded in literary circles over a wide field. She wrote many books, her most famous being "Over the Hills of Memory." Her greatest love was poetry, the best known one subscribed to as "Laddy." Her wide knowledge allowed her to contribute many articles to magazines and papers of early days. She could also write a splendid letter and her articles were interesting and instructive. For many years she was a regular contributor to the Ontario Intelligencer, both in prose and verse and many of her poems became treasured items for a scrapbook.

Her life was spent among the young as she was a school teacher for some years and then turned to the teaching of music. In her church she was an active worker, particularly in the Sunday School where she had an excellent chance to mould the lives of young people into good citizenship and a Christian way of life.

Surviving are three sisters: Mrs. J. (Florence) Hanthorne, of R.R. 3, Brighton; Mrs. R. E. (Gertrude) Clarke of Carrying Place; Mrs. James (Katy) Wilson, of Redeneveille, and two brothers, Arthur Leveridge of Fort Francis and John Leveridge, of Ross, Ont.

Robt. A. Pringle To Arbitrate Cornwall Dispute

Mr. R. A. Pringle, Q.C., city solicitor for Belleville, has been appointed by the city of Cornwall in its negotiations for a board of arbitration sitting at the end of this week to arbitrate a wage dispute between the Civil Service Fire Fighters' Association and the city of Cornwall.

Chairman of the board will be His Honor Judge Lewis Cowan, Cornwall, who has been selected by the Attorney General, K. C. Dobbin, Q.C., of Toronto, has been selected by the Cornwall Fire Fighters' Association as their representative.

The Fire Department Act provides that fire fighters cannot strike to enforce wage demands, but their bargaining committee can request the appointment of a board of arbitration if conciliation is binding for a period of a year or until replaced by a new agreement.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Most price groups were higher in light forenoon trading.

Industrials showed the only loss — a nominal one. Western oils and base metals were higher and golds showed a nominal gain.

Volume for the first hour was 310,000 shares.

The industrial loss was caused mostly by weakening liquors. Papers and utilities were mixed and manufactures slipped from the opening.

In base metals, Noranda, International Nickel and Sherritt-Gordon showed small gains. In liquors, Grandlees and Anacon led the penny gainers.

Golds showed little activity. Western oils had the largest index gain—little more than a quarter-point. Canadian Pipe Line Products and New British Dominion led the risers with gains ranging to 15 cents. Merrill lost part of its earlier 70-cent gain.

Uraniums were slowly dropping, although still above Wednesday's closing level. Loredo, which gained 33 cents Wednesday, was up six cents with a volume of more than 375,000.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP) — The U.S. dollar was at a discount of 2 15-32 per cent in terms of Canadian funds at noon today. Wednesday's noon rate was 97 21-32 cents. Pound sterling $2.74⅛, against $2.74 13-16.

MORE FIGURING

FREDERICTON (CP) — Extension of the mathematics program in grade 12 has been recommended by the New Brunswick curriculum committee. Members thought there should be more emphasis on algebra and possibly less on trigonometry.

Airman Injured Near Picton Moving Bomber

An unidentified Airforce man from RCAF Station Trenton, was rushed to the RCAF hospital by ambulance late Thursday morning as a result of an accident near Picton.

He was attached to a unit which was moving a bombing plane to Point Petre.

No further details were available at press time.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP)—Trade was dull and early sales too few to establish a market trend at the Ontario stockyards today.

Receipts: cattle 50; calves 30; hogs 180; sheep and lambs 90; holdover from Wednesday 1,400 cattle.

Lambs steady at 22-22.50 for good ewes and wethers; few sheep 5-10, according to quality.

PRODUCE MARKET

The egg market retained the current trend, weak on large and steady on medium and small grades. Offerings continued heavy with demand poor for large and steady on other grades.

Quotations for graded eggs in fibre cases: A large 43-44; A medium 37-38; A small 34-35; B 37-38; C 30-31. Wholesale to retail: A large 48-49; A medium 42-43; A small 33-34; B 43-45; C 33-37.

Butter solids remained unchanged.

BIG GAME HUNTER AT AGE 12

Twelve-year-old Glenn Neigenfind can now lay claim to the title of a big game hunter. Glenn is holding the paw of a mountain lion which he killed near Deckers, Col., with the .38-calibre pistol he's holding in his right hand. Glenn was hunting with his father when he sighted the animal and shot it at a distance of 15 feet. The kill is worth a bounty of $50. (Central Press Canadian).

DANGER POINT!

The Provincial Department of Health officially rates your hospital at 131 beds. But your hospital is hopelessly overcrowded and it is frequently necessary to find room for 175 to 190 beds. This represents more than an average of 125% of rated capacity.

To overcrowd your hospital is dangerous because anything over 80% of capacity not only overtaxes staff, which hinders the treatment of all patients, but it leaves no reserve beds to meet seasonal or epidemic peaks of illness or other emergencies.

The decision to proceed with the hospital building program has resulted after very careful study. The expansion program will provide 100 additional beds, increasing your Hospital accommodation to 220 adult beds and a modern nursery with 38 bassinets. The program also includes a 25 unit children's department and other essential facilities which are now so far from adequate.

As a citizen of this community you rightfully expect Hospital accommodation when it is needed. But today the vital health activities of your Hospital are being threatened. For the protection of yourself, your family and your friends, give now to this great Hospital Project and you will truly

Five Games Played In Minor Hockey

MARMORA. — Pre-season minor hockey got away to a good start in the Hamilton Crawford Memorial Arena here Wednesday night with five games being played before a slim attendance.

Madoc Bantams lost to Havelock in the opener by a 1-0 score with McLaughlin doing the honors for the winners.

Marmora Midgets defeated Norwood by a 3-2 count on goals by Bedore (2) and Walker. Hanovan scored twice for the losers. Havelock Juveniles swamped Cobalt 8-0 with the Chase brothers sharing in seven of the goals. Buchanan got two and McMillan one.

Stirling Juveniles edged the Marmora team 3-2, M. Walker, R. Walker and Montgomery being the snipers for the winners. McGee scored twice for Marmora.

Norwood Juveniles bowed to Plinton by a 5-1 count. Jordan, Healey, Lenard (2) and Thompson were the winner's goal getters with Hannon scoring for Norwood.

BARRIE CHILD HURT

BARRIE (CP)—Sharon Morris, 7, suffered severe injuries Wednesday night when hit by a car. She was taken to hospital at Toronto 50 miles south of here where an emergency operation for a skull fracture was planned today. Her condition today was satisfactory.

PLAINFIELD

Skit Presented By W.A.-W.M.S.

The November meeting of the Plainfield W.A. and W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Ed. Emerson with an attendance of 19 members and four children. Mrs. Clarence Hall, treasurer, reported $59.29 from the coppee contest and proceeds from the fowl supper, $389.30.

Mrs. Violet Elliott gave an interesting story of Fanny Crosby and some of the beautiful hymns which she composed were sung.

Mrs. Fred Hall read "We Are Thankful" and a Thanksgiving prayer, after which the autumn thankoffering was received. It amounted to $31.00.

Mrs. Mabel Hubble gave a temperance reading and Mrs. Garnet Denyes read a community friendship poem. Mrs. Garfield Hall gave a reading on "Charity."

A skit, "Much Ado About Literature" was presented by Mrs. Sherman Parks, Mrs. Charles Treverton and Mrs. G. Kerr. This skit showed that people can scarcely exist in today's world without literacy.

Mrs. Will Sills gave a short reading and closed the meeting with prayer. Mrs. Emerson, assisted by Mrs. Kerr and her group served refreshments.

NOMINATIONS ARE IMPORTANT

Tomorrow morning the citizens of Belleville will be given the opportunity to nominate the men whom they wish to conduct their civic affairs for the next two years. It is an unparalleled opportunity for individuals to present for public approval the candidates whom they feel are best fitted to administer their affairs. After nominations tomorrow the men who have been nominated are the only ones who can qualify for a position on the ballot. The individuals in the community can then approve or disapprove, by ballot, of those who qualified. They will not be able to add or subtract one single nomination.

The time, obviously, to establish the kind of council and school board which the people want is at nomination day, by nominating the best men in the community for public office.

Too often civic elections become mere popularity contests. Men with ideas and opinions, who are not afraid to express them and to work to bring them to fruition, are very often the ones who need defeating at a council—and all too often, because of their firm beliefs, not too popular. It is not true that all popular men owe their popularity to a lack of definite beliefs or to their ability to accept any and all shades of opinion on everything. But too often such is the case. And in such cases the "popular" man is a liability, not an asset, to the administration that needs conviction more than camaraderie.

Belleville is a growing city that promises to grow even more in the years immediately ahead. This growth presents civic challenges that can be met only by a hardheaded realization of the problems and a resolve to work earnestly and tirelessly for their solution.

There is little material reward for such service. Indeed very often in the past the men who have given so generously of their time and talent have been rewarded with ingratitude and abuse. The public is a severe master but the conscientious man can find his reward in the knowledge of doing necessary and valuable tasks for the service of others. It may seem a slim reward to some, but the pride of achievement in doing something worthwhile is a justifiable pride that overcomes the mean and petty sniping of the critics. Fear, or inadequacy, rejects their own opportunity to serve.

There are seven aldermanic seats to be filled, seven school board seats to be filled (this year an additional trustee will be elected to serve a one year term due to a board resignation) and only three utilities commissioner to be chosen to serve for four year terms. The mayor will be elected for a one-year term.

In deciding on its candidates the electorate should remember that it is directly responsible for the calibre of its civic government. If the government is bad the public is as much to blame as the office holders. If the government is good, it is good because the public has been aware of its duty and nominated good men for office. And it is good because good men have accepted the honor of representing the people. It is to be hoped that the public will do its duty tomorrow by nominating the best men in this city for the offices available and that the nominees will do their duty by accepting the nominations. In this way, and only in this way, will the foundation of voter control be continued good government.

AN HONEST MAN

We once had a friend whose pet phrase was a striking one.

"An honest man has no regrets," he would declare.

As this remark was most frequently made while somebody else was raking in a poker pot which the phrasemaker's good, it is good because the ingenious fashion the observation did not always receive the attention which was its due.

Nevertheless, regardless of the circumstances in which it was uttered, it was a shrewd remark.

It came to our mind when we read that Elmore Philpott, part owner in the Ottawa Journal, recently described himself as a confused Liberal, "full of contradictions and inconsistencies."

Mr. Philpott amplified his observation as follows: "I am confused about finding ways to sell our wheat without lowering our prices; about how to get along with Uncle Sam, not to mention Uncle Joe. I am confused about a thousand other problems."

This statement may not raise Mr. Philpott's stock among those who expect their members of Parliament to be transformed by divine acquisition of wisdom into extraordinary fellow-citizens into seers and sages. But those who do not believe in miracles but do have a great faith in the value of honesty will feel that Mr. Philpott has taken the first step toward a worthwhile effort to solve some of the problems he and his colleagues will face at Ottawa. We hope that there are a lot of other confused Liberals there, as well as confused Progressive Conservatives, C.C.F.-ers and Social Creditors. If they are confused there is a chance that they will start thinking. Of course, the presence of confusion is not an absolute guarantee of the existence of mental effort, but with the present state of the world the man who is not confused just is not doing any thinking.

BEHAVIOR COMPARED

An Ontario educator, Dr. Charles E. Phillips, says that modern children do not misbehave as badly as their parents did 40 years ago. Nor as badly as their parents do now, considering that it is the parents, not the children, who carry on with wars and the manufacture of hydrogen bombs.—(Ottawa Citizen.)

THANKSGIVING

At candle-lighted altars bright,
Hallelujahed, we in prayer unite
And keep, dear Lord, as people free,
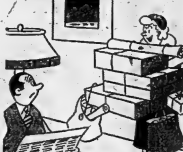
This day we dedicate to Thee.



This boundless love, Thy blessings all.

For church and school in freedom's way,
For home and childhood's right to play,

At every family table place,
Needs bowed, we say a simple grace
And with thanksgiving now recall
Our Father, grateful all are we.

50 YEARS AGO

NOVEMBER 26, 1903

The Rev. R. L. Leitch, pastor of Main Street Methodist church, Belleville, has accepted a call to become pastor of Holloway Street Methodist Church in this city. He succeeds the Rev. J. R. Real.

Mr. R. P. Clarkson, who is talking of introducing an electric bus line here, appears to mean business and the city council will make no mistake, we believe, in deferring definite action with any other persons until a definite proposition is received from him.

Thomas Vanderwater, of Tweed, was in town today.

Mr. and Mrs. John McLennan have left for Glen Robertson, Glengarry, where they will in future reside.

Mr. P. H. (Fay) Wills, who has been living in Kingston City for some months, is visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wills, Church St.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

FORGET THE BAD ONES

We do a great many things we afterward regret, but the bad things that stand out to worry and often to make worse mistakes than we ones earlier made. You can't recall mistakes, or past performances. God Josh Billings made a very wise comment when he said that success did not consist in never making mistakes but in never making the same one "twist."

I recently read a very interesting article about Betty Rawls, a Texas Longa girl from the University of Texas, who is a comparative newcomer to the championship class in golf, a superb player who is destined to go far. "One of my big problems," said Miss Rawls, "when I started playing tournament golf, was that of worrying about a poor shot. I'd muff one and then for several holes I'd fret about it so much that I'd make other mistakes. I think I have that pretty well licked now, though. I just forget about the bad ones!"

Miss Rawls has given us all a very good tip. The one thing that we can always decide upon, wisely, is to forget all about our bad shots—all our bad mistakes and errors, and go right ahead as though they had never been made.

I once knew a statesman by the famous Cecil Rhodes, "Empire Builder," they called him, because of his great constructive work in South Africa. "Rhodes," said he, "I presume I make more mistakes than anyone—but I pay no attention to them." In other words, he just let them pass, undoubtedly profiting from every one of them. For we do profit by our mistakes. We learn that they do us no good.

For so long as we remain human we will all make mistakes, but the sooner we forget all about them as they are made, the better. We should go ahead as though they had never been made! No need to fret or worry. If we kept summing up the bad points and the mistakes of our friends, we would soon have no friends! I like that statement about Herbert Hoover. Someone recently said that he was constantly more useful because he was always looking ahead.

Let Them See Queen

(Toronto Telegram)

If a Canadian would offer any advice to the Australians, in connection with their plans (for the royal visit), it would be to say the Australians will be more appreciated by officialdom should be kept to a minimum. Let the people of Australia, as many as possible, see their Queen. Don't eliminate the whistle-stops.

Women and Ashtrays

(New York Times)

Women have certain peculiar ways around the house. When, as everyone knows, sausages and pancakes form the only decent Sunday morning breakfast, women boil up a mess of tasteless eggs. They insist that the bottoms of the shoes be rubbed clean on the mat outside the door before the shoes can carry their owners within. Women make grocery lists, in the course of important papers, and then leave them all over the place. Some of their closest friends are very odd indeed. Women hate to see men studying world conditions in the sporting pages of the evening paper while dishes remain unwashed in the kitchen. They talk constantly about the crying need for new slipcovers on the living room furniture and interrupt the better television programs with lengthy discussions of how they will make them. Women say far too often that they wish they never had married and quite frequently mean it. They wish they never had been born. They talk about the need for economic retrenchment, and in the next breath planning to buy new autumn hats. Women always are making about cleaning the ashtrays.

Women have many peculiar ways, but none more peculiar than this one of the ashtrays. Just why should a woman, who knows that an ashtray is like the fireplace in that as a matter of its natural function it always becomes a little grimy, there is when to keeping the best silver clean, of course, and to having even the kitchen plates spotless. But just why the ashtray? Just why, among all their peculiar ways, do women grow berserk at the sight of a little clean ash lying in the place that it was put there? Because ashtray is an invention of women: it must be. Left to his own devices, any normal man would just flick the ashes to the floor, which is the proper place for them. But a normal man never is left to his own devices, and so back in women invented the ashtray. That was the first meddling with the joys of smoking, the first muscling-in on a pleasure by a species of gangsters-in-skirts. And this evil, worse, is only under his own terms, which do not include one dealing with cornflakes. Women are always comfortably filled with ashes, has certain basic instincts. Ashtrays are like the sand of the beach: they let it possible to dazzle in them. What observance of the ashes has been pressed smooth, a masterpiece of design has been set us, and under the hand of a painstaking artist a house will emerge here, a bird there, or just a series of squares and circles. Doodling in an ashtray is the highest expression on paper, for when one picture is completed the ashes are there to be smoothed again before starting on another. Even the ashtray requires none of that involved process of stirring about in order to find fresh ashes for a new start: one of the quickest of all ways to find fresh ashes for a new frenzy for which they are famous.

Watch women at a party. They dart about from ashtray to ashtray, like humming birds among the flowers. The shrimp casserole has been delicately nibbled, the salad dressing superb, and presumably the cheese has been put in the glow of a duty well done. But does it not; they hover over ashtrays. Constantly they are on the prowl as soon as an ashtray becomes already to be used for something other than its proper purpose, all rise to the occasion. Nothing is left undisturbed carried to the kitchen and is washed and dried. There is no ending for a soothing cigarette in a comforting pipe, but is just another indication that women do not understand, that they have peculiar ways around the house.

Mother Thanks Firemen For Santa Claus Visit

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer,

As a mother of small children I wish to take this opportunity of thanking the firemen of this city for giving the children of Belleville a chance to see "Santa Claus" arrive.

One could not help but be thankful and grateful to them. It was a thrill to hear our "wee ones" exclaim with delight at what they had seen and the candy received.

I feel sure that I am speaking for many mothers when I say the city whose children look forward to a parade but who have not the opportunity of going elsewhere to see one.

To a city of this size it seems a shame that the children cannot enjoy this Christmas event to the full. It is such a short period in their life that seeing "Santa Claus" in person is so important to them.

A very grateful mother.

Relativity Made Clear

(The Standard Magazine)

A man trying to explain relativity to a woman asked her to imagine the distance between them as tween a blind man and his friend:

Friend: Oh, I wish I had a drink of milk.

Blind Man: Drink? I know, but what is milk?

Friend: A white liquid.

Blind Man: I know, I know, but not white.

Blind Man: Neck I know, but what is a crook?

The friend now seized the blind man's arm and stretched it out.

"That is a crook," he said, "and he bent it at the elbow. "That is crooked."

"Ah," replied the blind man, "now I understand what milk is."

Riding Costs More Than Food

(Edmonton Journal)

A thought-provoking trend in our national life is disclosed in some figures released by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. They show that in 1952, for the first time, motor vehicle dealers replaced "groceries and combination stores" as the trade with the largest share of Canada's retail sales.

Out of the total of $11,575,000,000, the motor vehicle establishments received $1,119,200,000 or 18.7 per cent, while the grocerists had in $2,038,500,000, or 17.6 per cent. In 1941, by way of contrast, the shares of car salesmen and the grocers were 11.5 per cent and 16.2 per cent, respectively.

The wonders if there was ever a civilization before in which people spent more for personal transportation than for necessities. Certainly that—than they did for food and kindred necessities.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

LET US GIVE THANKS

Thanksgiving Day is a fine, wholesome, national observance. It is refreshing to have a day set aside designed to remind us of the duty and privilege of being thankful. It is even more important that we carry in our hearts all through the year a devout spirit of thankfulness.

Ponder the fact that there is not a single thing in the world which is not given to us by a Power higher than our own. To be sure we have to gather the elements together in order to buy food, clothing, shelter, and other necessities of existence. But the elements are given and the ingenuity of mind and hand with which we gather them together are given also.

I hope I am not a pharisee, but sometimes I fail to thinking about the blessings which I have. I should have been born into a free country, into a Christian home, and in the marvelous era of science that we humanly has known in its history. I should be glad as you do. But still this is the greatest age in which human beings have ever lived, and you and I on this North American continent are placed at the very pinnacle of human opportunity.

"What shall I render unto the Lord for all His benefits toward me? I will take up the cup of salvation and call upon the name to the Lord."

Women Physicians Favor Digitalis

A REAL HEART TONIC

Study, experiment and experience, of which I have done or had more than most specialists may think, convinced me that neither digitalis nor any other drug is a heart tonic. A tonic is a remedy which increases or restores enfeebled tone, function or vigor. I don't believe any natural or synthetic drug or medicine can do that. Except in an indirect way, such as the better heart action that might result from taking iron and manganese for anemia or calcium and vitamin D for weak ankles.

Here, once more, it seems that everybody's out of step but John Doe (or Willie, if you please). To my way of thinking the value of digitalis as a remedy which increases or restores enfeebled tone, function or vigor, especially when the body's daily requirement of it has been restricted for a considerable period of time. In those words food the body needs is tonic.

The body needs vitamin B complex. Yeast is the richest of the B complex is below the minimum requirements of most bodies in America, young and old, because of our overrefined diet.

Professor Favors 'Trash'

(Galt Evening Reporter)

"Nothing I have found, can upset librarians and teachers more than for me, as a professor of literature, to say that I have an all in favor of reading trash and have no fear of the effects of radio and television upon the literacy of the country so long as they bring stories and plays like comic books and gaudy paperback novels."

This rather novel viewpoint comes from Prof. Wayne Howard of Los Angeles in a letter to The Times-Herald. He goes on to say:

"Librarians have told me that I have suspected the most soft spoken of librarians or the most astute of teachers of wanting to tie me up, cover me with comic books and the colored works of Mickey Spillane, and strike a match to the whole damned pile. Their opinions of book burning seem to change when they can lose their jobs at stake.

"Yet I have found that a student whose mind is well stored with trash is likely to be a good student of a book of literature. For one thing, he has learned that books are to be taken in quantities without fear. He can read as rapidly or as carefully as circumstances demand. For another, he has generally acquired a good vocabulary, and, for still another, he is not likely to be the point of boredom with the cheapness of the average works of art ready to appreciate the unique values of the greatest books. In a word, he is a good student because he has mastered the superficialities of the printed page and is sophisticated enough to be taught what lies beneath it.

"By keeping 'trash' out of a youngster's hands, pedantic parents and teachers make it difficult for him ever to grasp words that are worthwhile.

"Whether it is heresy or not, my inclination at the beginning of each school year is to say, 'Let them read trash, but teach them something with life in it.' They will outgrow the trash quicker by plowing through it, and in the meantime they will acquire a habit which is one of the most valuable and unobtrusive they could cultivate — the habit of reading."

Well, now, if that is possible maybe we are on the brink of discovery of perpetual motion. If more work can be done without expending more energy, it should be a simple matter to do some light work without expending any energy at all. Boy, that's the kind of work I love to do!

THE PACKSACK

We are all suffering from heart trouble. As the statistics have proved out, we are all going to die of heart failure. Whether we are hit by a truck, catch virus pneumonia or merely peter out at ninety years of age, it is the heart's hearts quit pumping that we cease to live. The heart is by far the most important of our giblets.

Until fairly recent years, the heart was not connected with half the troubles of which it was the source. Any number of pains were blamed for the foreclosure on something they eat. Any number of nice fellows who, on reaching fifty, just seemed quietly to run up, were deemed by their relatives and neighbors to be "no good". Both the pains and the strange weariness were symptoms of heart trouble. The patient was, protesting. Or wearing out.

Now there is hardly a family in the land but has one immediate member who has seen a doctor for heart condition and is adapting his life or her life to the fact. After we reach forty, it isn't that we haven't got at least one near friend who is obliged to wear specs for the rest of his life. As game a newspaperman as I know has angina, and has to carry a little box of tablets about in his pocket and, out, we are all going to die of heart failure. Saul—The Executioner

CHAPTER I.

Stoning was an elaborate and legalistic form of execution, and the rules had to be observed.

A curious-looking young man marched with the mob as they pushed Stephen across the Temple courtyard. His job, by Caiphas' command, was to see that Stephen be killed according to due process of law. The executioner captain's name was Saul of Tarsus.

He knew by memory the cumbersome list of religious rules and regulations which governed the Jews. Saul of Tarsus understood just how an impudent Christian should be put to death.

The stoning must take place outside the city walls. The witnesses for the prosecution must march with the guards and accuse melodically cast the first stone.

Captain Saul was glad that this foolident Stephen was to meet his doom quickly, with his offence still on it upon his lips. Saul perfectly understood the "depravity" of Stephen's crime—he was a premeditated transgression against the majesty of God.

Saul could quote straight from Leviticus: "Bring forth the blasphemer without the camp and let them that hear him put their hands on his head and let all the people stone him."

Saul was a premature baldling man with a shiny forehead and a manner of suppressed fury, for all he strutted in the Laws of Moses. He looked upon Stephen, running and stumbling before the crowd that harassed him, and hated the young man because he saw him as a law violator, a blasphemer. Stephen traversed a route that strengthened him, although his tormentors had no idea that it would. For Stephen every cobblestone in the way of sorrow that he took was dear and precious for the sake of Him who had already walked this way, burdened with the cross. The blood of Jesus had stained the stones of these streets. Through the identical gate that led to Calvary, Stephen now was entering, and he was not to go up the sacred hill or the three crosses. His destination was nearer!

Outside the city, by a little hill, the crowd made a three-quarter circle, with Stephen standing facing them, his back against a rock. The witnesses laid their hands on his curly head.

Lesser guards began roughly to disrobe him. They tore away his faded brown cloak and tunic, the sleeveless gray woollen garment next to his skin and which hung down to his knees. His tattered sandals were pilled from his feet. He stood, naked and helpless.

"And they stoned Stephen," says Luke.

Methodically they stoned him, but they could not stop their eyes against the loud cries of his strong voice: "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit."

Kneeling there with the stones flying at him, he raised his voice so that all could hear him:

He was following in his own way the example of his crucified Master.

For one last moment the young eyes of the martyr, rolling, looked into the eyes of Saul, the captain of the executioners. The gaze of a man sanctified in suffering, was never to lose its freshness in Saul's memory. He was consenting to and supervising the death of Christian. That fact would be hard to live down in the blazing glory waiting, as yet unknown, in the future of this immensely capable and complicated man. Nor would Saul ever recover from the shock of the elevated look on the face of this believer who had so simply fallen asleep in the Lord. Such ecstasy affronted Saul, and roused him to unreasoning wrath.

He waited until the witnesses reclaimed their outer garments. Then, brooding and thoughtful, young Saul of Tarsus started on his long walk home.

On the night of the day that Stephen died, it would have seemed impossible that this strict Jew born and bred, this zealot and scholar of the Mosaic Law was destined for so high a place in the history of a Christian world. Incredible to expect that Saul should turn from the old Judaism he had just defended so fiercely, to spend his life proclaiming Christianity over the civilized earth, offering it with sublime certainty as the universal religion for man.

Tarsus, his home town, was a colorful and worthy metropolitan center. There Saul was born, the son of a free citizen, with the high privilege of being a citizen of Rome.

On this first St. Stephen's night, A.D. 34, Saul, deeply disturbed, sat alone after the stoning and reviewed his life. Tarsus and his childhood seemed very near. There was a bitter restless pulse to his intensely thoughtful, some unspoken indictment of himself. And that was curious, because Saul, trained logician that he was, honest thinker that he meant to be, knew no reason to reproach himself.

The most potent force in shaping Saul's life had been his fervor for the Jewish faith. He gloried in his Hebrew heritage, even though he had been born far from the homeland of the twelve tribes. He spoke proudly of the "advantage of the Jew" as "entrusted with the oracles of God." He did not dream that he could ever lose that pride in the greater awareness that all living men and women, Jew and Gentile, were potential children of God.

He remembered himself as a boy leaving home every morning to go to the synagogue school. Then he went to the synagogue he wore a fringed prayer shawl like a special badge that set him apart from the polyglot crowds through which he marched. But Saul, like every other Jewish boy, was also required to learn a trade. Most of the boys followed their father's work, and Saul became a tentmaker in Tarsus. In after years, Saul was manfully proud of his trade, and of supporting himself wherever he went.

Soon enough, he came to the time of his bar mitzvah. At thirteen years old, by law and custom he was no longer a child but a man. And his lessons grew increasingly harder, for he was preparing to go to Jerusalem and study under a master.

When he was about fifteen, financed by the savings of his father, he made his way to Jerusalem. There he registered at the School of Gamaliel — that distinguished rabbi who would one day sit as one of the Sanhedrin in the trial of Jesus, the Christ, and later speak vigorous and sage words at the hearing of the twelve apostles.

Gamaliel never had a more eager or willing pupil, or one better prepared. At heart, Saul as already a Pharisee. Furthermore, old Gamaliel saw that this was a young man content to be very far from home. Some of Saul's family already lived in Jerusalem; he would not be lonesome in the sprawling, noisy place. He lived with a married sister, whose small son was one day to save his uncle's life.

Saul responded to Rabbi Gamaliel's great learning and his sure-fire kindliness to a fine degree of pupil.

Yet he was no slavish imitator of his instructor. Gamaliel had already a liberalism that sometimes shocked his fellows in the Sanhedrin and always repelled Saul. Gamaliel had no love for the undeviating jots and tittles of the Law, and he tried to help instill some of his heart-warming freedom of spirit in his pupils.

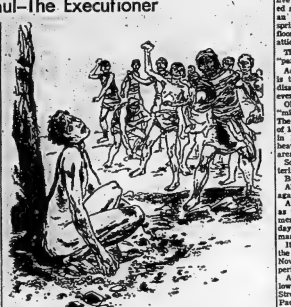
Saul withstood him. He clung to the familiar, the burdensome, boring ordinances of the Pharisees. He had never been more legalistic than when he presided at Stephen's killing. He had felt perfectly justified in countenancing that stoning in the afternoon.

But in the evening, as Saul continued to hear the balmy twilight wind, the last words, the inspired voice, the dying eyes of Stephen continued to haunt him.

He know no way to explain the restlessness of his conscience this night. He felt that legally — and therefore spiritually — he was leading a blameless life. He did not suspect that there might be an inner meaning of the Law, a truth made clear to fishermen like Peter, and to him the beloved, to which he, the learned man, was still blind.

What can a man do to find peace of mind, Saul?

At the moment, Saul would have answered anyone who asked such a question to be patient. Deliverance could come to the chosen people only through the promised Messiah, whom Saul believed was still to come.



What angered Saul to the depths of his being was the spreading belief that the Messiah had already come to earth, the unschooled child of a "carpenter's wife" in Nazareth; a wandering wayside exhorter, whose tracks were dogged with fantastic tales of miracle; that He was a blasphemer, tried, condemned, and crucified on Calvary Hill. Old fisherman friends of Jesus of Nazareth were raising their voices in the streets of Jerusalem, claiming to have seen Him risen from the dead, fulfilling all the prophecies, to prove that He was indeed the Messiah.

To Saul's aristocratic mind, such claims were outrageous. The tale of Jesus as He Christ, the Messiah, the Promised One, was a blasphemous caricature of Saul's most sacredly fostered concepts. No wonder this rabid young Pharisee fumed and squirmed, finding no relaxation at all as he meditated at the open window. The suggestion that the Resurrection was the supreme credential of the whole Christian mystery, Saul idly dismissed, spitting out of the window in contempt.

And in that moment, Saul was seized at last with the climax to his vast restlessness and disquiet.

The time called for action. Christianity would have to be wiped out. Weak toleration must be forthwith abandoned. He would set to the tech against the new faith, fulfill his duty as he saw it. He would become Saul, the persecutor.

Methodically they stoned him but they could not stop his strong voice: "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit."

Is Next Spring Destined to See Mad Moira On a Wild Spree?

If you believe in flood cycles and live in an area liable to be inundated should the "mad" Moira go on another binge next spring, then start packing the lower floor furniture and ready the attic.

This is not intended to be a "panic" story. Far from it.

According to flood history, 1954 is the top of the cycle, since disastrous floods have occurred every 24 years since 1900.

Oldtimers will tell you that a "mild" overflow occurred in 1900. The records prove that the flood of 1918 was a bad one as was that in 1936 when the Moira caused heavy damage to the downtown areas.

So according to the dates and lineups, 1954 should be a flood year. But don't take it for granted.

All early winter indications are against it.

At the moment the Moira shows as much signs of being a flood menace next spring as does a ninety day kitten of developing into a mackilter.

Its water level is the lowest of the year, and at the lowest late November mark over a lengthy period of time.

LITTLE TRIBUTARY FEED

Lack of heavy autumn and early winter rains and snow thus far has been responsible for the little tributary feed the upper stretches of the river show little flow in places.

However that is a situation that can change at little notice.

Up to the moment the weatherman has shown little inclination to let loose the customary winter blasts with accompanying sub-zero temperatures.

To the contrary, he has bathed the city and district in spring-like weather, with warm sunshine and gentle breezes.

In the city crocuses are blooming; dandelions have shown yellow if dwarfed, heads; bulbs are sprouting, and other green, if unreasonable, life is apparent.

Amateur and other gardeners are showing concern over the possibility of winter-killing of bulbs, should winter come overnight.

But that is beside the point.

This story was written merely to bring attention to the fact that floods have occurred here each 24-year period since the turn of the century.

But the "best laid plans" are often wrong. And the fact that floods have struck the city in those periods does not necessarily mean 1954 will be a flood year. It is to be hoped the cycle will be broken next spring.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A GIRL WHO'S CONTENTED WITH TOO LITTLE!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a fairly attractive girl, 20 years old, and have a steady job working for my father in a grocery store.

I don't go out much except with my parents to the movies or to visit relatives. I've never gone out alone except to church on Sunday or to church meetings on other days. In my neighborhood there are only a few boys, and they are all younger than I am. In the store, I meet nice young fellows sometimes, but most of them are married, and others I just don't like. I presume you will suggest that I join a club where there are boys and girls my age, but I'm sorry to say that neither my parents nor my job will permit that.

My best friend tells me that a girl has to go out places in order to meet her man, but I think that every girl has her chance at love and marriage no matter where she is, and that some day, some how, love will come to her. Am I right in being contented just as I am and I really am—and waiting for love to come along, or should I do as my friend says?

J.M.

Dear M.M.:

I don't want to upset the stats of content in which you say you are living, but I'm afraid I agree with your girl friend in thinking that it isn't more likely to meet her man if she circulates around a bit than if she just waits for him to come and find her. It sounds to me as though you were trying to live in your mother's or grandmother's era, instead of your own very modern one in which girls need to step lively if they're not going to be left behind.

To my way of thinking, you should have a few more interests and activities in your life than you do. It is fine to go to church on Sunday and to take an interest in church meetings, also to go out with your parents now and then, but it's not so good when a girl's whole life outside the job is confined to these things.

You could consider it most unfortunate if your parents would not permit you to join a club of young people, but have you really given them to understand that you would like to do this? You express such complete contentment with the life you are leading that perhaps they don't realize how narrow it is, and how wrong for a young girl, it is.

Talk to your girl friend some more about this, and give it a lot of thought yourself, and then I hope you'll decide to get out and make more friends and have more fun. Believe me, this is only right and best for you.

DON'T BE JUST ONE MORE SHEEP IN THE HERD!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My problem is about smoking. Most of my girl friends smoke, and their mothers don't seem to mind, but mine won't let me. She says I'm too young. I'm 15. May be she's right, but it makes me feel as though she treats me like a child while the other mothers treat their daughters as though they're growing up.

A.C.R.

Dear A.C.R.:

Well, now, it's only natural for you to want to do what the other girls do, but at the same time, I think it would make you look much smarter if you decided to be different and not smoke. I also think it would make you appear more mature than the other girls, rather than younger, if you had the sense to stick by what you know in your heart is true—that you really are too young to start the smoking habit.

So why not have the courage to be independent about it, and not feel you have to follow along like one of a herd of sheep? I'll bet there are other girls who'd be very glad to do the same if someone like you set the style. It's a good thing to learn early that people not only respect those who think for themselves and but quietly act accordingly, but very often follow their lead.

The Hog Run Is Gaining Ground

By Mary Moore

Last week-end one store in our community advertised smoked hams—half or whole—at 39 cents per lb. and were sold out by six o'clock on Friday night, so had up. (Kings learned to read the none for Saturday's big business.

Because of the rush and apparent hunger for smoked ham I wondered if there was any sense in being optimistic about the pork market in general. I telephoned my good friend who is manager of the largest packing plant in town and here is his report:

The packing industry hopes that the drop in hog prices will be permanent, for in the past eight months the hog run has been so light the prices have been high.

The hog run is still not heavy but unless there are adverse weather conditions to slow up shipping, February and March should see them in good supply.

Very early in 1953 the price for hogs was too low to encourage production, so the hog raisers were discouraged and lowered their production rate. (Don't ask me how you do this—you must give the hogs fatherly advice.) However, in the spring the prices went up, so production went market report—the silly things.)

Then along came hog cholera. Highly now that is affecting the current pork shortage, but by March this will have been overcome, barring unforeseen and different disasters.

What is more the price of feed is low, so the picture today is rosy and there is no reason why hog production and price should not return to normal in Canada (unless the hogs get a little more savvy).

Since there is so much good slicing from a whole ham it is a favorite with and a comfort to the hostess. If she has only a few guests for dinner it also is a good buy, for while half of the ham may be left over it will not last forever or become monotonous if she handles it ingeniously.

These details are given today because the big entertaining time of the year is just ahead of us. Clip these details, which give roasting time and temperature and an attractive glaze.

GLAZED BAKED HAM

A 12 to 15-lb ham requires 18 to 17 minutes per lb. at 325 deg. Fahr., but the maximum size of ham from an old sow will be tender is 1-2 to 10 lbs. A ham under 10 lbs. requires 20 minutes per lb. but a maximum of three hours. Roast uncovered without water and do not baste (unless during the glazing period).

Glaze for ham weighing 12 to 15 lbs. Mix together 1 cup brown sugar, well-packed, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 1-4 cup corn or or liquid honey and 1 or 2 tablespoons fruit juice or ginger ale. Stir this into a thick paste until smooth, then pour over the ham (from which you have very carefully removed the rind), and with a fork spread it evenly over top and top sides of ham. Return ham to oven, raising temperature to 425 deg. and bake about 20 minutes longer or until nicely glazed. Do not baste this glaze.

BAKED SLICE OF HAM

Ask the butcher to cut you a slice of ham 1 1-2 inches thick from the top of the smoked ham leg (or 2 slices from smoked shoulder). Melt 2 tablespoons brown sugar in frying-pan, and put ham slice in pan and brown on both sides. Add a little dry mustard if you wish by sprinkling on top of it (1-2 to 1 teaspoon), cover with 1 cup milk. Bake at 300 deg. Fahr. until tender. This might be 40 to 60 minutes. Remove ham to hot platter, thicken liquor in pan by mixing 2 tablespoons flour with 3 tablespoons cold water and stirring it into the liquid until thick. Pour over ham or serve separately. You might like to use 1-2 teaspoon ginger instead of mustard, or 3 tablespoons finely chopped preserved ginger, to sprinkle over ham before baking.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. SEECKMAN

THE FIRST SOCIAL MOVE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our son is working and living in another city. He has just become engaged to a girl who lives there, and is planning to give her an engagement ring this Christmas. (The engagement has not been publicly announced.) We have talked with her on the telephone several times, and she has accepted our invitation to come here with Our son at Christmas time for a visit. But we have never met her parents, nor have we been in with them. We're perplexed by what we should do. Should we write to them? If so, should we write to them now, or after their daughter receives the engagement ring and the engagement is really announced?

E.M.R.

You have done just the right thing in getting in touch at once with your son's fiancee, and also making arrangements for her to come to visit you and your family. Now you should, at once, get in touch with the girl's parents to establish the so-important relationship between the two families. This is good manners, good sense. The girl's family will expect to hear from you (it is the fiance's family who usually makes the first social move) . . . will want to be told that their daughter's fiance's family welcome her into their family, that they are happy about the engagement, that they naturally also have a family-interest in the plans of the couple. You may write to the girl's mother, or you may write her. There is no point whatever in waiting until the girl receives the engagement ring.

RUNNING THE FLOWERS FOR THE WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My bridal party will consist of a matron of honor and two bridesmaids. Please tell me who pays for the flowers for the bridesmaids? What flowers does the groom pay for?

The flowers for the bridal attendants are generally supplied by the bride's family, since these flowers are planned as part of the decorative scheme, of the colors of the wedding. However, sometimes the bridegroom asks his bride for the privilege of sending the flowers to her attendants . . . In this case, the bride and or her mother chooses the attendants' flowers, to conform to the color-scheme, and these are charged to the bridegroom.

The bridegroom sends his bride her bridal bouquet, and her going away orchids. He also supplies the corsages for her mother and for his mother. And he supplies the boutonnieres for his best man, ushers, the bride's father and his own father.

ALLOW GOUZENKO

If the interview does take place, it was understood that though the Canadian "reply mentioned 'any person,'" a U. S. delegation of two or three would be acceptable to Canada. A large number of investigators might destroy Gouzenko's security and anonymity.

In any case, the government made it clear Wednesday it thinks any such meeting would be fruitless.

It revealed that such a meeting was held here in 1948 between Gouzenko and a U. S. Senate immigration sub-committee, but that it turned up no new information. The U. S. sub-committee at that time agreed that the meeting be held in Canada and that Canada must approve any testimony made public. There apparently were no complaints at these stipulations and no testimony was ever made public.

The Canadian reply, delivered Wednesday in Washington, stressed that "competent" U. S. authorities possessed every scrap of information given by Gouzenko in 1945 and since.

FBI VISITS GOUZENKO

The FBI had visited Gouzenko on several occasions, the last in August, 1950.

The government also reiterated that any information not made public in the royal commission or hearings had been passed on to U. S. authorities. Similar information relating to other countries had been recorded in the royal commission report because it would be improper for Canada to make public testimony referring to other nations.

Mr. Pearson said he wanted to emphasize this point because Jenner had claimed his sub-committee had some information which was not included in the royal commission report.

Gouzenko, who lives in an undisclosed spot, drives to town under an RCMP security cloak and an assumed name, said for the third time he is ready to be interviewed by the sub-committee. His first statement along these lines, given to a Chicago Tribune reporter, led to the affair.

Mr. Pearson has said that if Gouzenko wants to risk his safety to talk to U. S. investigators, that is his business. But the government couldn't guarantee his security under such circumstances.

Mr. Pearson said Wednesday Gouzenko has never supplied any information on the late Harry Dexter White and the RCMP quoted Gouzenko Oct. 27 as saying he had no new information on espionage. Gouzenko has claimed, however, that he can supply useful advice on spy-hunting to U.S. Communists-to-government investigators.

Mr. Pearson also politely rapped FBI director J. Edgar Hoover for saying it was a "high-placed" Canadian source which in 1946 had bought a measure of White's loyalty.

Mr. Pearson said the source was a security liaison officer of a friendly third power in Ottawa at that time. He did not identify this officer or the power. He said the information suggesting that White might be a Soviet agent had originated with the FBI. The FBI apparently had not recognized the information as its own when it was returned from Ottawa by the third power's security officer.

Municipalities Must Be Helped Says Premier

WINNIPEG (CP) — Municipal problems must be seriously considered when federal-provincial tax agreements are revised, Premier Frost of Ontario said Wednesday.

In an address to the Union of Manitoba Municipalities, Mr. Frost said Ontario entered a tax-rental agreement with the federal government a year ago.

"Although we have never regarded this arrangement as the last word, we have considered it a reasonable approach to a difficult problem," he said.

Mr. Frost said "the time has come... to decide if it has not passed" for resumption of discussion on proposals concerning capital investment and timing and technical planning grants which were brought up at the 1945-46 Dominion-provincial conference.

Endicott Warmly Praises Eisenhower

VIENNA (AP)—The audience of the Communist-sponsored World Peace Council got a somewhat embarrassed Wednesday when a Canadian delegate warmly praised President Eisenhower's peace efforts.

James D. Endicott of Toronto, chairman of the Canadian Peace Council and a well-known figure at Communist peace meetings, cited almost in full a speech in which Eisenhower said that every gun made, every warship launched and every rocket fired was in the final sense a theft from those who hunger and are not fed.

Endicott added: "President Eisenhower's statement on the desirability of discussion was excellent and everybody agrees with that and the important deed which must follow from these fine words is a meeting of the leading powers to discuss disarmament."

DESERONTO

School Needed Board Chairman Tells H-S Assoc.

DESERONTO — The Deseronto Home and School Association held its regular meeting in the principal's room of the public school on Thursday evening. The president, Mrs. C. Cole, opened the meeting with the reading in unison of a parents' code of ethics.

Mrs. Burd's room won the attendance prize.

It was moved that the attendance prize be increased to two dollars.

It was decided to have a skate exchange to be held at Dawson's shoe room on December 8th and 10th.

Mrs. G. Stewart will be in charge of the exchange. A pair of skates, plus a small fee may be exchanged for another pair.

APPEAL FOR BOOKS

An appeal was made for books, records and shoes for use of the pupils in the school at recess, on stormy days.

A committee, consisting of Mrs. Earl Grey, Mrs. E. F. Maybee and Mrs. Bender, was appointed to contact the school board, principals and teachers in regard to needed playground equipment.

NEW SCHOOL NEEDED

Mr. C. Cole, on behalf of the board of education, addressed the meeting regarding the prospects of a new school in the near future, giving facts and a breakdown of the cost.

Mr. Cole stated the Home and School Association could co-operate with the board by making a survey of pre-school children of the town who will be starting to school in the next few years.

It was decided to leave this matter in the hands of the executive.

An entertaining program was presented.

Mr. Don Dawson chairman of the board of education, expressed his hope for the continued co-operation of the board and the association.

Refreshments were served by the pupils of Mrs. Burd's room, who also had a sale of home cooking. The proceeds were most gratifying and went to the room's Red Cross funds.

Brian Beezer, a pupil of Room 8, expressed a brief "thank you" to one and all.

C.W.L. MEETS

The Catholic Women's League held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Alex. Therien, with the president, Mrs. C. J. Brennan, in the chair.

The treasurer, Mrs. Jim Gaulin, gave her report. The secretary, Mrs. Ed. Roach, gave her report on the bazaar, which was very successful.

It was decided to have a Christmas party for the children in the parish hall early in December, Father Martin spoke briefly to the members. Mrs. Gregory Gordon offered her home for the next meeting.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Jim Gaulin and Mrs. J. B. Roach.

Niagara Region Is Blanketed By Big Snowfall

TORONTO (CP) — Parts of Ontario got up to eight inches of snow today, while some centres in the Maritimes were chalking up the warmest Nov. 26 in history.

At Welland, south shifts tied up traffic and weather officials said another five inches could be expected before the end of the day. At St. Catharines, six inches fell overnight and communications were disrupted in some parts of the Niagara peninsula.

A belt of warm air from the southern United States shot temperatures at Chatham, N. B. to 64 and at Yarmouth and Moncton to 63 during the night—highest for the date in history.

Cold air from the west was expected to hit the eastern provinces Friday, when temperatures would drop to about 35.

NARROW SNOW BELT

Southern Ontario's snow belt, caused by winds off Lake Erie, was only 10 or 15 miles wide. Hamilton, 25 miles from St. Catharines, had bare streets.

Snow and rain hit parts of northern Ontario overnight, adding to some already heavy falls. North Bay got two inches, Kapuskasing added six inches in the last 24 hours for a total of 19 inches, and Sioux Lookout in northwestern Ontario now has 15 inches.

Vancouver was colder than usual today, with a high about 45 expected. Prairie temperatures varied from 39 at Edmonton to 30 at Winnipeg.

Paper Founded To Back Laurier Is Closing Down

MONTREAL (CP)—Le Canada, Montreal newspaper founded 50 years ago to support the Liberal party of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, today announces that it is ceasing publication.

The French-language daily, established April 4, 1903, made the announcement with the front-page headline:

"Le Canada Suspends Publication."

An editorial-page statement which thanked readers and collaborators for their support during the newspaper's half-century career, blamed changing times and increasing costs for its cessation.

The announcement came after rumors that Le Canada was for sale had persisted for more than a month.

A year ago, Le Canada changed from standard eight-column to five-column tabloid size. At that time publishers said the change was designed to attract new readers.

Today's announcement says that when Le Canada first appeared, morning papers were "the most listened to and their circulations corresponded to the needs and customs of the period."

"A relatively modest circulation no longer permits assumption of the enormous cost of an editorial staff which must be equipped according to the tastes and needs of the modern age."

MUST BE WARM

PAPER SETS RECORD

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago Tribune today said its edition this morning containing 134 pages is the largest daily issue it has ever published, and that it carries its largest volume of advertising. The Tribune said advertising volume was 300,000 lines, 22,000 more than appeared in last year's American Thanksgiving edition, which also was a record-breaker.

Briefs From U.K.

NO RECORDINGS

LONDON (CP) — Suggestion that the metropolitan police use tape recorders for confessions was rejected by Home Secretary Sir David Maxwell Fyfe. He said in the House of Commons that there are many practical objections to such a method.

SCIENTIFIC METHOD

DERBY, England (CP) — Services conducted by Rev. J. Sykes Rymer, vicar of nearby Little Eaton, are recorded by his wife to be played back in public houses.

PHONY STATUE

NORWICH, England (CP) — A sculptured head of the goddess Diana found here was thought to have been 2,000 years old. Now experts have decided it is merely a 19th century copy.

SEASHORE PESTS

LONDON (CP)—Health officers here are on the alert against invasion by small black seaweed flie, that have been reaching seaside towns less than 60 miles away. The fly known as the coelopas, is not dangerous but has a stinging bite.

HISTORIC PLANE

LONDON (CP)—Charles Chabot of Buckinghamshire, a fighter pilot in the First World War, sent a photograph of a 1213 fighter of 1917 to the Imperial War Museum, ending a two-year search to complete their collection of 4,000,000 photographs.

MOTORISTS PAY

LEICESTER, England (CP)—Progress is due to hit motorists of this Leicestershire town. The council has ordered 30 parking meters from a United States manufacturer.

PERSONAL CAMPAIGN

BOURNEMOUTH, Eng. (CP)—S. H. Wilson, a citizen of this seaside resort, has smashed hundreds of cups and dishes in eating places here on the ground they were cracked and dangerous to health. So far, he has not been prosecuted.

TOUGH TEACHER

DERBY, England (CP)—A local school decided to give its share of prizes for the annual "petits' day" to the brighter children of neighboring schools. Miss H. M. Cowgill, headmistress, objects to prizes because it is against her principles to "single out infants in this way."

BITS OF HISTORY

TEETFORD, England (CP)—Customers at a public house in this Norfolk town now are reading newspapers of 1840. They were uncovered when several layers of wallpaper were stripped off.

CARELESS STUDENTS

LONDON (CP) — School mistress K. Gordon Ewn of the Tulse hill district complained children pass examinations in English but do not speak or write grammatically outside school—because the learners don't fit their lessons into their usual modes of expression.

NEW BREAKFAST HIT!

Delicious Coffee "Custom-Made" Replaces "One-Pot" Method

"All this and extra sleep too!" chortled one mother as she described to pals the time-saving routine of the family for her morning coffee. She had just adopted the new system of "custom-made" cups of coffee, called Instant Chase & Sanborn.

It's happening everywhere! Imaginative housewives! Handsome percolators and coffee pots are going into the discard! Instead, the one-pot coffee method is giving place to individually-made cups of a marvellous new "instant" perfected by Chase & Sanborn's coffee scientists.

Now you can give them "strong", "medium" or "mild", exactly as they like it. Just measure the right amount of Instant Chase & Sanborn into the cup and pour on the hot water. And whatever their desired strength, it's wonderful rich-flavored coffee . . . 100% real coffee!

Of course, it had to be an "instant" of really superb quality to make Chase & Sanborn coffee breakfast tables. And nowhere is there such background of coffee knowledge and experience as in the firm of Chase & Sanborn. Their reputation goes back nearly a hundred years!

Now this grand new Instant Chase & Sanborn pleases every body with "custom-made" coffee —gives mother priceless relief from morning coffee-making chores—cuts down dishwashing—eliminates coffee pots!

Spectacular Savings

Out of a regular jar you make approximately the same number of cups as from a pound of regular ground coffee. But do you pay the same price? Not anywhere near it! In fact, with Instant Chase & Sanborn you save up to 40¢ Hi. on your coffee bills!

Dozens of Uses

Housewives are finding that they can use Instant Chase & Sanborn for many occasions—and they do! Nothing is more refreshing after a busy morning in the laundry or in strenuous marketing shopping. It's so simple to pour yourself a cup, when you wouldn't think of putting on the coffee pot for one.

This is no pale pretender . . . no weak substitute. This is real coffee, with that luscious roasted taste and aroma you never thought possible in an "instant"!

Try New Instant Chase & Sanborn. Good you'll make it your regular coffee!

Now!...the Flavor and Aroma of Freshly Ground Coffee Instantly!

"And neither would my Dad. He knows the value of trust company experience in looking after an estate. He wouldn't be without it!"

So many wise men to-day rely on the experience and co-operation of a trust company.

Police Reservist Mobbed by Crowd After Hearing

EDINBURGH (Reuters) — A crowd of 500 Saturday mobbed a police reservist whose evidence helped convict four young nationalists on a charge of illegally possessing explosives.

Twenty policemen guarding Cullen pushed their way through the mob and hustled him to safety. Other police were called to keep the crowd at bay.

Earlier, a Scottish jury found the four men innocent of conspiring against the government, but guilty of possessing dynamite. The four—Robert Duncan Watt, 22, Malcolm MacAllister, 24, Owen Gillan, 37, and Raymond Forbes, 21—were each sentenced to one year in jail.

Cullen, principal state witness, claimed to have won the confidence of the quartet and pretended desire to share in a plot to blow up Saint Andrew's House, government headquarters in Scotland.

The four men claimed they knew all along that Cullen was a police agent and led him on in an effort to expose "Gestapo-like" police methods of curbing Scottish nationalism.

Armprior's Wartime Airport, As Civil Defence College, Will Train 1,500 Each Year

ARMPRIOR, Ont. (CP) — The health department is taking over a wartime airport.

The financial support for this colossal pile of debris has already been provided for in the department's estimates. The wreckage is for civil defence, for which the department is responsible.

The wartime airport on the outskirts of this town 20 miles west of Ottawa has been taken over as the civil defence staff college. One of its dafter classrooms will be the "wreck"—a simulated bombed-out area, complete with rubble-filled cellars, crumbling walls, gutted rooms and bomb craters in the streets.

Here civil defence students will be put through emergency rescue tactics and other courses under conditions as close to the real thing in war as possible. The school will be able to train about 1,500 students a year, probably starting early next year.

CHIEFS, CLERKS FIRST

Mel-Gen. F. F. Worthington, national civil defence co-ordinator, said the first to be invited to take the course will be police chiefs and municipal clerks from across the country. Then others from all walks of life will be trained.

Gen. Worthington said Canada's civil defence network as yet is woefully weak. Of the 130,000 persons enrolled, only about 19,000 were fully trained and key personnel. Graduates of the civil defence college, however, soon would bring this force to a peak of efficiency.

Courses are being prepared here for married students and single men and single women. Hours are being partitioned for offices and classrooms.

Students will have their transportation paid and be given free residence, lodging and meals while on course. They will receive no salary, but, in most cases, wages from their regular employers will be continued uninterrupted.

ELECTION ASSURED

TIMMINS (CP) — Tisdale township was assured Wednesday night of a contest in the prevailing fever in the municipal election Dec. 4. Reeve Victor Evans and former councillor Joseph Raybould both qualified. Evans, South Porcupine hardware dealer and architect, was nominated for the 17th time. Raybould, a garage proprietor, also came here in 1936 to play hockey, served on the council in 1946.

PEDESTRIAN KILLED

ST. THOMAS (CP) — William Beattie of Aylmer was fatally injured Wednesday night when he was struck by a car about seven miles east of Aylmer. Police said Beattie apparently tried to cross No. 3 highway and was hit by a car.

U.S. Praised For Reducing Wheat Acreage

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Gardiner said Wednesday that Canada owes the United States a debt of gratitude because that country has decided to reduce its wheat acreage.

The U.S. decision to cut wheat production by 15,000,000 acres, to 62,000,000 from 78,000,000, in 1954, is predicted by Mr. Gardiner to assist ever given to Canadian wheat growers, he said in the Commons. It will mean that sales has been a lot of talk about the "plight" of the western farmer. That did not come from with the facts.

The big wheat stockpile in the U.S. was not a handicap, but a good thing. There have been crop failures in the past and there were likely will be others in the future. The stocks will help the farmer in times of scarcity.

Emergency Care Should Be Made Easily Available

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Foster Smith of Toronto said Wednesday doctors feel they owe a definite service to persons who can't get their own doctors and yet have an emergency.

Speaking to a group of 80 doctors studying public relations under auspices of the Ontario Medical Association, he said emergency medical care should be made readily available to the public.

Emergency service members for doctors should be listed in the front of phone books along with those of the fire and police departments.

PLAN REPLACE WINDOWS

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)— Mayor Ernest Hawkins Wednesday opened a fund to raise money for the replacement of stained glass windows in All Saints Anglican church here. The windows were smashed last week by vandals. Damage is estimated at more than $3,000.

Accused Found Guilty of Being Habitual Criminal

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Gerald Blackburn, 36, who spent all but one and a half of the last 16 years behind bars, Wednesday was found guilty of being a habitual criminal despite an eloquent plea to the jury on his own behalf.

Blackburn, who appeared without counsel, was found guilty Tuesday on eight charges of illegal possession and sale of narcotics.

He will be sentenced on the nine counts today.

Under the habitual criminal conviction, Blackburn is subject to "preventive detention" for an indeterminate period at the expiration of any sentence handed down in connection with the narcotics convictions.

The sentence of a habitual criminal is reviewed by the federal minister at least once every three years.

This was the first time such a charge has been laid in Essex county.

Tariff Board Reports on Spread On Anti-Freeze

OTTAWA (CP)—The tariff board in a report made public Wednesday, estimated that the anti-freeze price spread between manufacturer and consumer was between $3.45 and $3.65 a gallon last year.

The board's report was tabled in the Commons by Finance Minister Abbott who requested the price spread inquiry after receiving representations from the Canadian industry that Canada soon may be flooded by imports of duty-free ethylene glycol anti-freeze.

The board said it could not obtain the cost figures last year and found that the bulk of the price spread between $3.45 and $3.95 a gallon, though in some cases prices ranged lower.

The average cost of ethylene glycol used by the trade in large quantities last year ranged from $1.85 to $2.15 a gallon, with the exception of profit varying between $3 and $1.10.

WATER SUPPLIES SHORT

TORONTO (CP)—Mild, dry weather throughout Ontario last week gave farmers a chance to catch up on farm jobs and prepare for winter more thoroughly than has been possible for many years. However, the Ontario department of agriculture's weekly farm report said water was in short supply in many areas, particularly Halton, Norfolk and Elgin counties.

Japanese Quake Kills One Farmer, Prevents Robbery

TOKYO (AP)—One person was reported dead in the earthquake which rocked central and northern islands today. A 58-year-old farmer was electrocuted by a high tension wire snapped during the quake. No other casualties were reported.

Two slight aftershocks were felt in Tokyo early this evening, but they caused no alarm.

The earthquake apparently struck just as a burglar was making off with $2,000 worth of expensive cloth from a Tokyo shop.

Owner Hiyakichi Nakamura found 30 bolts of costly silk and woolen textiles tied together ready to haul away. When the quake hit, the burglar apparently was so frightened that he fled, not only the cloth but his kit of burglar tools.

Gazette Says Rose Has Gone To Czechoslovakia

MONTREAL (CP)— Gazette says today in a front-page story that Fred Rose, one-time member of the House of Commons and member of a Russian spy ring exposed by Igor Gouzenko, has gone behind the Iron Curtain and is living in Czechoslovakia.

The story, written by G. J. Fitzgerald says Rose, released from penitentiary here in August, 1951, after serving a six-year sentence for espionage, left Montreal by air in mid-October, travelling under a Canadian passport and giving health as the reason for the trip.

The paper says its information has been confirmed through official sources and "an unimpeachable Ottawa authority."

French to Select New President In Mid-December

PARIS (AP)—The next president of the French republic will be chosen Dec. 17, the executive committee of the National Assembly decided today.

The president will be elected at a closed session of the National Assembly and the upper house, the Council of the Republic, sitting in Versailles palace.

Premier Pinay announced candidates for the post, which has little real executive power, will be Socialist president Vincent Auriol.

It is the tradition in France that this office seeks the man. The balloting is secret.

Drew Calls For Self-Discipline And Restraint

OTTAWA, (CP) — Opposition Leader Drew Wednesday called for "self-discipline and restraint" in criticisms tossed across international boundaries.

Speaking in the Commons after External Affairs Minister Pearson had made his statement on the Igor Gouzenko and Harry Dexter White, Mr. Drew said the Gouzenko affair could do no good for Canada-United States relations. He added:

"If there could be this much disturbance over such a relatively minor matter, I shudder to think what might happen if the almost incredible event occurred that war should have come and misunderstanding with the U.S., Britain and the Commonwealth. OCF leader, criticized a suggestion by the minister that Mr. and Mrs. Pearson might have Communist sympathies.

Mr. Coldwell said the Commons should "back up" the government in the stand it has taken, that it is not the business of Mr. Pearson, Mr. Gouzenko or Mr. Coldwell to make statements which could lead to the U.S. to conduct inquiries were not Canada's business.

CHARGE DEMISSED

TORONTO (CP)—A charge of manslaughter against Ronald Spencer was dismissed Wednesday on the grounds of insufficient evidence. Nathaniel McNulty, 42, was charged with the death of Dessie Coville, 20, who died of brain injuries six days after his head struck the pavement outside a hotel. He was thrown out in a fracas between patrons and employees and customers. None of the witnesses called could identify the man who struck Coville.

Expect Russian Peace Plan Will Be Defeated Once More

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)— The United Nations political committee aimed for a vote today on Russia's peace plan amid predictions that it would meet the same defeat as similar Soviet proposals in the past.

Scheduled a meeting despite the United States Thanksgiving holiday, the committee was first slated to hear a last-ditch appeal from Andrei Vishinsky, Russia's chief delegate, for approval of the plan the Assembly and its committees have rejected year after year.

The U.S. had urged the UN to junk Russia's latest proposal for easing world tension, and suggested that the Soviet Union could clear the air herself if she gave "some indication of sweetness of the U.S. government."

Two Freighters Come to Grief In Thick Fog

PARIS (Reuters) — Thick fog brought disaster early today to two freighters, one British and the other French, and forced a Soviet vessel to run aground.

The 2,000-ton French freighter Equator broke up after running aground near Calais. Her crew was rescued safely. The Equator's crew was on her way from the Gulf of Mexico to Le Havre with a cargo of cotton and gasoline.

The 819-ton British ship Marsworth sank following a collision with the Larrivet, a 1,700-ton French ship. Thirty-one crewmen were landed at Great Yarmouth. The others are believed to be safely aboard the Larrivet.

The Soviet vessel Kazan, 1,923 tons, was detained in Flushing, Holland, after running aground in the Scheldt estuary. Port authorities said she could not sail until her owners, the Soviet government, deposited $22,40 0in cover alleged damage to a dike.

White House Is 'Hopping Mad' About McCarthy

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Times today said that the White House staff members are "hopping mad" about Senator McCarthy's television-radio speech.

A Washington dispatch says the staff members would not comment officially, but unofficially they trader these points about the Wisconsin Republican's speech delivered Tuesday night:

1. He received time on the air to criticize former president Truman and ended up by criticizing President Eisenhower as well.

2. He sought to make himself, rather than President Eisenhower's legislative program, the central issue in the 1954 congressional campaigns.

3. He demonstrated more clearly than ever before that he is not prepared to follow the president's lead either in fighting the Communists at home or in the struggle against them in Communist China.

The story said one White House aide described the speech as "a declaration of war against the president," and it added:

"Others put their criticism more mildly, but there seemed to be general agreement that the speech marked one more crack in the stormy relations between the White House and junior Republican senator from Wisconsin."

Two Liners Being Built For Canadian Trade

NEW YORK (CP)—The major emigration movement from Europe to Canada in the next few years has lured a large number of passenger ships to the trade lanes and drawn a significant amount of ocean passenger business, the report of New York, the New York Times says today following a survey.

The Times story followed announcement in London of plans for new Canard liners, to be named the Saxonia and Ivernia, are being built for service to Quebec and Montreal. A third liner, as yet unnamed, is to enter the trade in future.

Shipbuilding companies that diverted some or all of their vessels to the Canadian trade to take on the emigration business were forced to build up trade routes-bound or empty ships to Europe, the Times found, adding:

"Their promotional efforts have drawn many Canadians and Americans of Scottish and Irish descent, especially might have sailed from New York, to Canada's ports, and have stimulated the large and strong successful immigrants to visit their homelands first.

The Times survey shows that in the peak travel season this year, at least 36 passenger ships, owned by 10 companies, were serving Canada from Europe. Twenty of the vessels were in regular service from British ports and sailed regularly at Halifax on the way to or from New York.

Declares MiGs Frequently Fly Near Allied Isle

SEOUL (AP) — A highly reliable Allied source said tonight that enemy aircraft have caused frequent night alerts at a Red-held airfield on Paengyang island off the west coast of South Korea.

The information came from a man who had been stationed on the island. He identified the aircraft as Russian-built MiG jets.

He said the MiGs had been sweeping near the United Nations island and "have been causing frequent night alerts."

The United States Air force had no comment.

The island is northwest of Inchon and just a few miles off the coast, well within sight of land. During the war it was an important Allied base.

HIGH STAYED CLEAR

Fighting during the Korean war was it confirmed that MiGs—the fast, swept-wing counterpart of Sabre jets—had ventured south of the 38th parallel. Some could and planes were spotted over South Korea, however.

Pounding attacks by Allied fighter-bombers prevented the Communists from basing MiGs south of the Yalu River. MiG bases were in Manchuria.

Since the armistice July 27, however, many MiGs have been reported in the North Korean area.

The source who reported the frequent MiG alerts tonight asked that his name not be disclosed.

Cayuga Sails With Yule Gifts For Men in Korea

VICTORIA (CP)—Santa Claus dressed in battleship grey, sailed from Korea Wednesday.

HMCS Cayuga, with hundreds of Christmas parcels and cards on board, left Esquimalt harbor for her second tour of duty in Korean waters.

Many of the parcels and cards are for the crew of the Cayuga but others are for the personnel of other ships and Canadian troops in the Far East.

The destroyer will meet the returning HMCS Athabaska, which is due here Dec. 11, at Pearl Harbor.

LOVES HER BIBLE

EGERSUND, Norway (CP) — Mrs. Karen Torsen, still spry and alert, celebrated her 104th birthday here. She likes to recite long passages from the Bible, much of which she knows by heart.

Radio, TV Face Prospect Of Being Clogged With Talks On Dexter White Controversy

By: ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP) — Ma Perkins, Howdy Doody and the Lone Rangers are facing the possibility of temporary eviction from the airways by the ghost of Harry Dexter White.

Theoretically at least, the succession of charges and counter-charges broadcast by Republican and Democratic spokesman in recent weeks on the Communists-in-government issue could result in the United States networks turning over virtually all their radio and television time to individuals attacked in previous broadcasts.

Regulations of the federal communications commission, which controls U.S. radio and television operations, require that a public figure subjected to personal attack over the air be given an opportunity to defend himself.

Interpretation of this principle is left up to the stations and networks, which are unlikely to carry it to extremes that would deprive them of too great a proportion of their revenue from commercial broadcasts.

But the precedent was set when former president Truman broadcast Nov. 16 in reply to Attorney-General Herbert Brownell's charge that Truman had promoted White to a high government post despite FBI evidence that White was suspected of Communist activities.

McCARTHY GIVEN TIME

Mention in Truman's speech of Senator Joseph McCarthy (Republican) in a successful demand by the Wisconsin Republican for free radio and TV time for himself.

McCarthy's address Wednesday night included accusations against Truman, Dean Acheson, former state secretary, Owen Lattimore, a former state department consultant, and a number of other persons who, in theory, are entitled to their half-hour before the microphone.

So far, the only request for a chance to hit back at McCarthy comes from the Daily Worker, the Communist daily newspaper was printed in the newspaper's speech of short-writing Truman's broadcast defending Mr. McCarthy was promptly asked NB, CBS, ABC and the Mutual Broadcasting System for "free and equal time."

There was no immediate indication whether the Worker's request would be granted. NBC and ABC said they would evaluate requests on individual merits. CBC and Mutual withheld comment.

The FCC policy prohibits an individual the opportunity of replying to broadcasts by others unless the practice followed in Canada, where the CBC gives free time throughout the year to political parties but does not grant such rights to individuals.

Tourist Traffic Breaks Records In Great Britain

LONDON (Reuters) — Tourist traffic to Britain is the fail of Coronation year has broken all records.

There were more than 49,500 overseas visitors last month, the highest October total ever reached, the British Travel and Holidays Association said.

Of the October total, nearly 38,000 were visitors from Europe, 10,000 from the United States and about 1,500 from the Commonwealth. American arrivals exceeded those of October, 1952, by eight per cent.

Yugoslav Claims He Killed Woman On British Orders

KLAGENFURT, Austria (Reuters)—A 29-year-old Yugoslav has claimed he acted under British orders when he murdered Mrs. Simone de Ridder of Belgium on his instructions in Vienna 10 days ago, police said today.

The police statement said the Yugoslav, Ivan Lendero, had confessed to the broad outlines" of the killing of Mrs. de Ridder, described as an unnamed accomplice. He is demanding to be taken to British intelligence officers on whose "secret instructions" he acted, the statement said.

Mrs. de Ridder, 51, was the mother of Olympic skier Andree Micheline Lannoy. She was strangled with a rope in her hotel room in Vienna's Baverie.

Matusic was arrested here last Friday on a round-the-world charter. Police said they noted "suspicious similarities" between him and a Yugoslav of similar name who was being sought in Germany after Mrs. de Ridder's death.

Ex-Convict, Wife And Son Arrested In $681,000 Theft

BOSTON (AP)—A former convict, his wife and their college student son are under arrest in connection with the second largest cash robbery in American history —the $681,000 theft from a parked armored car in March, 1952.

The FBI identified them as George D. O'Brien, 43, his wife, Margaret, 42, and George Jr., 20, a third-year student at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The father was charged with the theft of property belonging to a Federal Reserve Bank. His wife and son were charged with receiving stolen property.

FBI agents arrested the mother and father Wednesday night in their house in a middle-class neighborhood of Wellesley, Mass., a community on Boston's south shore. The son was arrested on the college campus in Cambridge, Mass.

ROBBED IN DAYLIGHT

The armored car, belonging to the United States Trucking Co., was robbed while parked in broad daylight on a busy square in Danvers, Mass., a residential town 20 miles north of here.

An unknown number of men drove up and rifled the armored car while its three guards were having coffee in a nearby drug store.

Police chief Raymond Kerwin of Danvers said an FBI agent told him that agents had recovered some bills whose serial numbers matched numbers of the stolen currency.

A next-door neighbor of the O'Briens, Arthur L. McGilvray, said the FBI had asked him to keep an eye on their activities during the Thanksgiving holiday. their new one-family home from a tenement district last January.

Sen. J. A. MacKinnon Is Visiting Far East

HONG KONG (CP) — Senator James A. MacKinnon, Canadian trade minister, arrived today in the new Crown Colony headland for a pleasure trip.

The Edmonton Liberal senator will continue his cruise to Indonesia next week. He was met here by Walter Paul of Canadian Pacific Airlines.

The same ship was Thomas H. Fletcher, Canadian trade commissioner in Singapore, who left Monday after a seven-month home leave in Canada.

MRS. GRAYDON WITHDRAWS

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Gordon Grayden, widow of the former member of Parliament for Peel, said Wednesday she will not seek the Progressive Conservative nomination for her husband's seat in a by-election because of "purely personal reasons."

Cheese Making Vanishing Art on The Ile of D'Orleans

By BERTRAND TRESAULT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. PIERRE, Ile d'Orleans (CP) Cheesemaking is a vanishing art on the Ile d'Orleans.

Twenty-five years ago almost all the inhabitants of the little parish of St. Pierre on the picturesque island near Quebec City made cheese at home. Today, only one family continues a tradition which came from France with the earliest settlers.

Bernadette Aubin, 32, and her 39-year-old brother, Gerard, get up every morning between October and March at six o'clock to milk the 14 cows whose milk is used to make the cheese. It is a full-time job in season.

The milk is solidified by curdling, sliced and spread on mats of reeds arranged on the kitchen stove-pipes.

LEFT FOUR WEEKS

"It is left there to dry for 15 days, then taken to a cellar and wrapped in damp linen cloths. During the aging process, the cloths are sprayed daily with salt water. When taken from the cellar four weeks later, the "fromage de l'Ile" is ready for market.

It requires three pounds of milk to make one small round of cheese five inches in diameter and one inch thick which sells for about 45 cents.

Miss Aubin is not a cheesemaker through love of the product.

"The smell of the cheese disagrees with me very much," she said. "I'm not at all fond of the taste either."

Gourmets are the usual customers.

In addition to making about 200 dozens of the small cheeses every year, Miss Aubin, a small, blue-eyed brunette, must attend to the 160-acre farm and look after the 10 rooms of their 118-year-old house.

The Aubin's home is similar to many on the Ile d'Orleans. The rooms are reinforced with wooden beams supported by iron braces. These old houses—most of them built more than a century ago—are all whitewashed, as are the farm buildings.

The big houses shelter families of 15, 16, 17 and even 20 children, a fact regarded by the parents as a feather in their cap.

The Aubins, like the other 325 farm families of the island rise at dawn and retire at dusk.

PRODUCTIVE FARMS

Tall yarns are told of wealth accumulated by farmers from the fertile soil of the 75-square-mile island, named after the Duke of Orleans, later Louis XIV of France.

But it is a fact that St. Famille, whose 322 years make it the oldest parish on the island, and St. Pierre include large farms that yield rich harvests of grain and fruit.

Family wealth is passed on from father to son and many farmers till land which their ancestors cultivated when Mgr. Montmorency de Laval, first bishop of New France, owned the Ile d'Orleans, before evangelizing it in 1675 for Ile Jesus, opposite Montreal.

All farm products are taken by truck to the markets at Quebec City to be sold, usually on Fridays.

Before construction in 1931 of a bridge connecting the island with the mainland, the farmers crossed by ferry and, during the winter, by a natural bridge of ice over the St. Lawrence river. The ice bridge is formed every winter and still is used by the islanders.

WHEN EGGS WERE CHEAP

Records show what the farmer's father produced at the start of the century: 10 cents for a dozen eggs; 15 cents a pound for butter. However, one could buy a pint flask of whisky for 40 cents or a good suit for $7.

A farmco-operative was set up in St. Pierre in 1940 to handle produce. Last year fruits, vegetables and milk products sold through the co-op resulted in a turnover of some $1,000,000, with a neat profit for the 300 members of $50,000.

The co-operative now is constructing a refrigerated warehouse for preserving strawberries and eels, products representing a major portion of the island's economy.

Representatives from many countries have come to St. Pierre to study the co-operative under sponsorship of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

CHEESE FOR GOURMETS — The Aubin family is the last of the St. Pierre parishioners on the Ile d'Orleans to make its cheese at home following ancient recipes handed down through the generations. Milk from the family's 14 cows is solidified by curdling, sliced and spread on mats of reeds arranged on the kitchen stove-pipes. It requires three pounds of milk to make one small "round" of cheese five inches in diameter and one inch thick which sells for 45 cents, and is the delight of gourmets. This is a Quebec government photo. (CP Photo).

WMS Hears Talk On Mission Work In Africa

FRANKFORD — The monthly meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society was held Friday afternoon in the home of the president, Mrs. Walter Morrow.

The theme for the day was "The Church—The Body of Christ." The explanation of the lesson was given by Mrs. Frank Johnson and Mrs. Gerald Dickson.

Roll call by Mrs. Powell showed 30 members and visitors present.

A nominating committee of Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Bonisteel was appointed to bring in a slate of officers for 1954. It was planned to provide an annual Christmas treat for the Mission Band. Several ladies volunteered to donate nuts and candy. The secretaries of the different districts reported.

Mrs. Morrow introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Butcher a missionary returned from Africa, after serving nine years.

She opened her address by quoting the command of Jesus "Go Ye into the World and preach the Gospel to every Creature."

We at home know little of the sacrifices and hardships that missionaries have to bear. Mrs. Butcher sang "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," in an African dialect.

Mrs. Morrow thanked Mrs. Butcher for her address.

Mrs. Claude Moran sang a solo, "Lord Teach Us to Pray." A poem was read by Mrs. Powell.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Morrow assisted by her mother, Mrs. Casey.

Graves of Canadian Soldiers Well Cared for In Holland

CAMPBELLFORD — Families in Campbellford, returned to her homeland recently and visited the cemetery at Nijmegen in order that she might give a first hand report to the families of a few of the boys of this district who are buried there.

Mrs. Mallett had charge of the meeting which was both interesting and touching. Readings were given by Mrs. S. Carman, Mt. Carmel; Mrs. F. Crook, Solinsville; Mrs. J. Lindsay, Northport. Sing-song was led by Mrs. F. Kotchepaw and Mrs. Faith Wallbridge.

Rev. K. Cutler gave a splendid address and encouraged the women of the community to keep up the good work of the W.A. Proceeds were over $22. All appreciated Mrs. Mills' hospitality. Mrs. Armour Chaplin and baby, of Belleville, were among the guests.

Several from this street attended the anniversary supper in Demorestville on Wednesday evening.

Mr. H. Mallett and Mr. Bill Anderson spent two days in Toronto last week.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Steward, Demorestville, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. Geraline.

Mr. Beiko Barker left last week to attend to some business in Calgary.

Mr. George Beer, Belleville, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. G. Oliver.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, Coe Hill, were week-end guests of their daughter, Mrs. R. Wallwork and Mr. Wallwork.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Simpson, Mr. G. Oliver and Mr. G. Beer attended the Sunday morning service in Picton United Church.

Mr. H. Mallett received the sad news that his father had passed away in his home in Perth. Sympathy is expressed to the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Smith and Mrs. Jack Fraser were Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. Starks.

Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Hamilton and Mrs. George Ray, Picton, Belleville, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. Hough.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Peck, Big Island, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. Peck.

Mrs. Beith Barker is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. Marguerite Sprague, Big Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Filip and sons, Mrs. L. Taylor and Mr. Colin Kotchepaw, Peterborough, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kotchepaw.

Mr. Ken Jones passed away in Picton on Monday night. He was a resident here for many years and is greatly missed in church and Sunday School as he was a regular attendant. Sympathy is expressed to his family.

NORTHPORT

NORTHPORT. — Mrs. Howard Mills opened her spacious home for the November meeting of the W.A. and their guests, members of Solmesville and Mt. Carmel W.A. About forty were present. Mrs. Mallett had charge of the meeting which was both interesting and touching. Readings were given by Mrs. S. Carman, Mt. Carmel; Mrs. F. Crook, Solmesville; Mrs. J. Lindsay, Northport. Sing-song was led by Mrs. F. Kotchepaw and Mrs. Faith Wallbridge.

Labor Blockade Of Interior B.C. Is Being Planned

VANCOUVER (CP)—Plans for a complete labor blockade of the strike-ridden British Columbia interior are being drafted by the International Woodworkers of America (CIO-CCL).

George Morris, IWA district president, announced the plan Wednesday and said it would extend from B.C. mines some 9,000 men are out of work across the Prairie provinces to Manitoba.

Claimed that IWA is faced with an "employers' threat to destroy our union throughout the interior lumber industry." Mr. Morris said the union would fight to prevent employers from displacing them with strikebreakers.

"We have set plans in motion that will impose a complete labor blockade on the strike-bound area of the interior," he said. In Alberta and Saskatchewan, as well as B.C., at every point where workers may be hired and entrained, they will be advised that the interior lumber industry is on strike."

PROMISED SUPPORT

Mr. Morris said the IWA had been promised support of the Alberta and Saskatchewan Federations of Labor in the strike touched off two months ago by demands of interior workers that their pay be increased 18 cents an hour to the level of coast woodworkers. Present interior basic wage rate is 1.29½.

About 3,000 IWA members are involved in the walkout that has forced another 6,000 workers in associated industry out of work.

Operation Satisfactory

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—The Lincoln county jail "appears to be ignored by the older established churches" W. J. Grummett, CCF member of the legislature for Cochrane South, said Wednesday. On a visit here with the reforms institutions committee of the Ontario legislature, Mr. Grummett was told four bodies hold services at the jail—The Salvation Army, the Gospel Hall, Elim Tabernacle and the Catholic Church. Other ministers visited prisoners individually.

The committee reported it was satisfied with the operation of the jail.

MP Asks Private TV Stations Be Allowed to Compete With CBC

OTTAWA (CP)—A request that private television stations be allowed to compete against the CBC in Canada's major cities has been made in the Commons.

William Hamilton (PC—Montreal Notre Dame de Grace) said Wednesday the government-owned CBC should release its "stranglehold" on television in six big cities.

However, there was apparently "not one iota of hope for private enterprise in this field in our major cities."

"In Montreal, years after we might have had a private television station, the CBC finally put theirs into operation. Now they are creeping towards a second, which will doubtless enable them to accumulate bigger and better deficits."

Private television stations have been authorized in 14 Canadian cities. These are at Sudbury, the only one in operation as yet, and at Calgary, Edmonton, Regina, Saskatoon, Windsor, Hamilton, London, Kingston, Kitchener, Quebec, Rimouski, Que., Saint John, N.B., and Sydney, N.S.

BIGGER DEFICITS

Mr. Hamilton said the last CBC annual report showed a net operating surplus of $373,000.

However, it received $31,975,000 from the government in licence fees and statutory grant. This money was paid "for performing a service which, under a government and socialistically inclined than the present one, private enterprise would perform for nothing."

In other words, he said, the CBC had a net loss of more than $11,- 300,000, "all of which was picked up by the taxpayers of this country."

Gallantry at U.N. Headquarters

General Carlos P. Romulo, noted Philippine diplomat and a past president of the U.N. Assembly, gallantly kisses the hand of the present Assembly president, Mme. V. L. Pandit, on whom he paid a courtesy call at U.N. headquarters. Later General Romulo told newsmen that the Philippine people used "common sense in electing Ramon Magsaysay" president and denounced new charges by outgoing Philippine president Quirino that U.S. officials in Manila "meddled" in the election. General Romulo said: "I say it is high time for Quirino to shut up. The only one he can help now with continued "Hate America" propaganda is the Communists."—Central Press Canadian.

Little Benny's Note Book

We had leg of lam for dinner for a change, and ma was carving it with the carving knife and fork, and she sighed a big sigh to herself, saying to pop, Really, William, I mean honestly, you dont know what a big help it would be if you would only learn to carve.

Of course I know, my dear, you've often spoken of it, pop said, and ma said, Didn't you envy Walter Byron, when we dined with them, the graceful way he flashed his carving knife?

By golies yes, he reminded me of a professional swordsman, pop said. Oh, well, I'll bet I could do just as well, or even better, with a little practice. Of course a guest mite get a squirt of jooce in the eye, or a leg of chickin in the lap, the first time or 2, but that's the fortunes of war, he said.

Now William, dont take such a negative attitude, ma said. After all, you sharpen a pencil with a penknife better than I do, so is there any logical reason you shouldn't carve a roast better? she said, and pop said, My dear, you've got a point there, I'll just regard a chickin as a pencil of a larger growth.

Now that's the way I like to hear you talk, you can carve when we invite the Byrons back, ma said, and pop said, I'll show Walt Byron up, I'll bet he'll never carve again. We'll have the same kind of chickin we had at that skowegian restaurant we tried last week. You remember, you got the bots to get the waiter to get the chef to tell you how he made the sauce for it, he said.

Why, that was chickin paprica, it's already cut up before it comes to the table, it's a kind of a stew, ma said, and pop said, All rite, I'll carve it with a spoon.

Oh suitch a man, what's the use? ma said.

Meaning none.

MARMORA

I.O.D.E. MEETS

MARMORA — The November meeting of Marmora Chapter I.O.D.E. took place in the Masonic hall on Thursday evening with Mrs. K. Rennie, regent, in the chair.

Following the prayer of the order, the flag was presented by Mrs. K. English.

In the absence of Mrs. V. Fraser the duties of secretary were discharged by Mrs. A. Marvel.

The treasurer's report, given by Mrs. D. Whittemore, showed a substantial balance on hand.

Very favorable reports were given by various convenors of committees.

The Chapter decided to sponsor the Stanton Interior Decorating School, the date of which is to be announced later. The decision was also made to accept the offer of a lecture, film and display of Wedgewood China at an open meeting to be held in the Masonic hall on Monday, February 8, to which other ladies, in addition to members of the Chapter, are to be invited.

Refreshments were served.

Cougars Re-appear in New Brunswick

Cougars, long believed extinct in most sections of the maritimes, have been reported at Birdton, N.B. They have been seen in schoolyards, on roads and in fields. Children are often escorted to school by men armed with rifles. Though some residents claim that the frightening yowls heard are made by the smaller wildcats, plaster casts of footprints have been identified as those of cougars. —Central Press Canadian.

Whee! It's BLUE!
Saves Bluing... soaking and bleaching, too
At last a really new kind of blue detergent! A truly scientific detergent with powerful anti-yellowing, anti-graying action that gives you whitest washes ever, without adding a drop of bluing or bleach. Saves soaking, too. Sky-Blue Surf bursts into oceans of white suds that let you just wash and hang up white!
Yes, it's goodbye and good riddance to three time-wasters—soaking, bleaching and bluing! And "Welcome" to the most dazzling sheets, towels and shirts you've ever laid eyes on. Even old bluejeans and work-clothes come clean clear-through . . . and sweet-smelling.
Extra money for the piggy bank when you don't need to spend it on bleaches, blulngs. Spend less for linens, too. They wear far longer without bleach to weaken fibres. Next washday why work overtime? Take on the greatest time-saving helper yet—new Blue Surf.

...octors Accused of Being ...elfish, Aloof, Commercial

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. C. E. Duff Kinsmen's medical officer health, Wednesday accused the ...jority of doctors of being self- ...aloof, commercial, hurried ...ed-occupied with their own ...hts.

...e gave his diagnosis to a group ...doctors attending a conference ...public relations, sponsored by ...Ontario Medical Association. ...e suggested that doctors, in an ...empt to right their wrongs, ...ould make some effort to draft ...workable national health plan. ...ore some form of government-...ntrolled national health plan is ...vitable in Canada."

...e said preparation of a plan ...uld be one way of demonstrating ...t doctors want to protect the ...th interests of the public as ...ell.

...e said personal relationships ...tween doctors and their patients ...e breaking down, he said, and ...ere is a growing inquisitiveness ...ong the public for medical facts.

...CK REFUSE

"Doctors don't realize the rights ...the ordinary man in this re-...rd," he said. "We still have a ...ency to mumble mystic words ...d hide refuge behind the 'pro-...ion' of our profession."

...e said superficial and slip-shod ...edical examinations leave a poor ...pression with the patient. He could never accuse the medical profession of not striving after excellence, but he said doctors sometimes failed to convince the public of their special competence.

More doctors should take part in community affairs, he said. Few do now, giving the profession a reputation for aloofness and selfishness.

Most important of all, he said, was the fact that doctors be ready to attend to every physical and mental need under any circumstance.

"We have given the public the impression that we are consistently looking after our own interests, whereas they should be getting the impression that we are safeguarding theirs."

LEAVE PEIPING

TOKYO (AP)—The North Korean delegation headed by Marshal Kim Il Sung left Peiping for home today, Peiping Radio reported. Kim signed an agreement for "economic and cultural co-operation" between Communist China and North Korea Monday. The pact possibly had military codicils, but if so, they were not revealed.

TWO NEW IMPROVED PUREX TISSUES

All Gone Trapping

SIOUX LOOKOUT, Ont. (CP)—Only the very old and the very young remain at the Indian settlements scattered through the 125,000-square-mile Patricia district to the north of Sioux Lookout.

Everybody else has gone trapping.

With some 1,400 Indian trappers at their winter camps—most took their families along with them—fur is begin trickling into buying centres.

The season opened Nov. 1 and the trickle will increase to a flood just before Christmas when the trappers return to their villages for the holiday season.

Mink, beaver and other are reported in "top prime condition." Last season Patricia-area trappers sent down 9,700 mink, 9,000 muskrat, 3,100 otter and a record catch of 21,300 beaver.

COMPLETES CROSSING

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The first commercial Japanese airliner to cross the Pacific landed here Tuesday. The Douglas DC-6B, carried 57 passengers and crew from Tokyo. It was a trial flight, preparatory to the start in early February of twice-weekly service between Tokyo and San Francisco by Japan Air Lines.

GORE

THE GORE — Rev. J. P. Henderson, a former pastor here, died at Bethany. Rev. Henderson had been forced to retire from the active ministry due to a heart condition but was thought to be improving until Saturday morning when he suffered a stroke from which he did not rally.

Many friends from the Read-nersville charge attended the funeral at Bethany on Tuesday afternoon.

Among those attending from The Gore were: Mr. L. R. Brickman and Miss Audra, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Redner, Mrs. B. L. Redner, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Green, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Pulver, Mrs. Winnifred Pulver and Mr. Don Spencer.

Centre community enjoyed a social evening at the church hall on Tuesday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Don Cairns, a recent bride and groom, were presented with gifts from the community.

Mrs. S. Price, Napanee; Mr. and Mrs. K. Chadwick and sons, Desmonte, and Mr. and Mrs. M. Pulver, Linda and David, were guests on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Pulver.

Mrs. Gordon Waterhouse entertained the members of Victoria W.A. for their November meeting on Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Brickman left by bus on Wednesday to visit friends in Philadelphia.

Mr. Roger Redner spent a day at the Royal Winter Fair in company with other Bellerville Collegiate students.

GREEK STRENGTH GROWS

ATHENS (AP)—Defence Minister Panayotis Canellopoulos told Parliament Tuesday night that through American assistance Greece now has an air force of 400 planes, including 120 jets. He added that the United States has also sent Greece since last July a large number of modern artillery pieces to replace obsolete British-supplied equipment.

8TH TYENDINAGA

Surprise Party Honors Couple

8TH TYENDINAGA — A large crowd gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Goodman on Friday evening to honor Mr. and Mrs. Lee Goodman.

An appropriate address was read by Miss Mary Boldrick and was signed on behalf of the community by Messrs. Lorrie McKenzie, John Hart and Roy Boldrick.

Mr. and Mrs. Goodman thanked all for the lovely gifts and invited everyone to visit them in their new home.

Friends and relatives were present from Belleville, Shannonville, Consecon, Wallbridge, Rodin and Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Boldrick and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Boldrick were at the Royal Winter Fair on Saturday.

The 5th liners called on Mr. and Mrs. Lee Goodman on Wednesday evening and serenaded them with a musical band.

All were invited into the house and were served lunch.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorrie McKenzie spent Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. W. McKenzie, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Denyes and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Treverton, Percy and Fred, were the guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thurlow on Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne McKenzie and boy visited Mr. and Mrs. Donald McKenzie, Belleville, on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Treverton opened their home Tuesday evening for the Young Peoples' Communities Class.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Treverton were guests on Sunday and Monday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Treverton.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Goodman and Clarence visited Mr. and Mrs. Emery Grey, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Buskard were guests on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Treverton.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Boldrick spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Elliott, West Huntingdon.

FRANKFORD

FRANKFORD — The meeting of the Mission Band of the United Church was held on Rose Lowery Hall on November 23. A story was given by Mrs. Pelton. A Christmas party for December 7 was discussed. Sandra Morrow gave a talk on World Friends. Joan Caldwell, Sandra Morrow, Colleen Caldwell, Carolyn Carlisle, Judy Whitmore, Rhonda Rowe and Elaine Sharp took part in the program.

MISSIONARY SPEAKS

The C.A.'s of Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle were privileged on Friday evening, to have as their special speaker Rev. John Spillenaar, flying missionary from Northern Ontario, northern Manitoba and the Rudson's Bay area. Rev. Spillenaar brought a message from His Life" "Wings of the Gospel."

CAMPBELLFORD

Club Observes 25th Anniversary

CAMPBELLFORD — The Rotary Club of Campbellford observed the 25th anniversary of its founding at a luncheon meeting on Monday. A birthday cake with silver decorations and topped by a silver Rotary wheel graced the head table.

Past president Art Loucks, was the chief speaker of the occasion and he reviewed briefly the history of the club. To the club he read the names of the charter members and past presidents.

He said the club was formed in Campbellford with the Belleville club as sponsors and outlined the highlights of the club's progress through the past 25 years.

Of the charter members named there were four present at the Monday meeting. They were: H. R. Carr, A. D. Bennett, Ellis Brunsdale and Dan MacColl. Rotarian Mack Robertson, who was present briefly during the course of the interesting things which occurred in the early days of the club.

Vice-president Bill McComb introduced three new members: Rev. R. R. Howson, Dr. David Burgess and Roy McLaren.

FILM PRESENTED.

The Coronation Film, "A Queen is Crowned" was presented last Tuesday evening in the High School auditorium as the main feature of the program of the 2nd Sunday evening concert of the fall and winter series sponsored by the Demeryville Chapter, I.O.D.E.

The first number on the program was a chorus of Grade 8 pupils under the direction of Mrs. Jack Clark. They sang the 42nd psalm. Ronald Barnum contributed a vocal solo "Roses of Picardy". Miss Anne Nicholls played two piano selections and responded to hearty applause with an encore. A spirited duet was sung by Gaile Meyers and Barbara Fox, accompanied by Mrs. G. Nichols.

FAREWELL PARTY.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Morgan were "surprised" on Monday night when 20 friends gathered at their home to say farewell before they leave for the Old Country.

Mr. and Mrs. Morgan were the recipients of a sum of money presented by Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Davidson. The evening was spent in games and good fun for all.

Mr. and Mrs. Morgan will leave tomorrow by air and will visit for England from Montreal by Friday. It is 33 years since they visited their homeland.

Canada's Pageant

He told of some of the experiences and showed colored pictures of the gospel work in the northland. His plane is called "Wings of the Gospel."

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

SHOULD BE GOOD!

The Memos, smarting from that 8-3 defeat handed them by the Orillia Pontiacs here last Saturday night, have girded themselves afresh for Friday night's battle with their arch-feudists from Kingston.

The Goodies, now sitting comfortably in second place, have met our side twice thus far in the season and on both occasions emerged on the long end of the score albeit there was only a goal margin in each case. And it's a foregone conclusion they'll be champing on the bit to make it three in a row come Friday. And with Don Murray and George MacGregor on a scoring binge, they'll be a tough sod to srpck.

The Memos got a bad game out of their collective systems last Saturday night. They were careless around the defence and the Pontiac opportunists took full advantage of the lapse. However, Coach Doran has the boys keyed up to a fighting pitch and Friday night's clash should be a typical Belleville-Kingston battle.

Meanwhile the Oshawa Truckmen continue their merry way of steamrolling along at the top of the heap. Last night in a tuneup battle, in Kingston, the Truckmen eked out a 6-5 victory, their eighth in nine starts to stiffen the Goodyears' bid to cut their margin. It was the third straight victory for the Dickeniens over the Carr-Harris crew. Oshawa now has 16 points, six in front of the second-place Goodyears.

Toronto Gets 'Grey Cup-itis', Stage Is Set for Colorful Show

By H. L. JONES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto is set for a week-end football blowout that promises to make an atomic blast look like mud pies and potatoes.

The annual fever known as Grey Cup-itis is about to grip the city.

There'll be a huge parade with bands and beautiful girls. There'll be a $10-a-plate dinner and a big ball. And there'll be an invasion by thousands of football-mad, cowboy-hatted western fans to cheer Winnipeg Blue Bombers against Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Thousands of others will come the 40-odd miles from Hamilton—4,000 of them with tickets—to see the game at Varsity Stadium Saturday afternoon or just join in the fun. Many will make a week-end of it.

Right now things are quiet. It's the lull before the storm that will break with Friday's arrival of the first of the fun-loving westerners complete with bands and parade floats. There isn't a hotel room to be had in the city and there isn't a Grey Cup ticket that can be legally purchased.

BIGGEST EVER

Officials of the Junior Board of Trade who will welcome the first three special trains of westerners think it will be one of the biggest football week-ends ever. Hundreds of fans from all over the west have joined the Winnipeggers in the local Bombers support.

The Grey Cup dinner will be Friday night, followed by the ball at which Miss Grey Cup will be chosen from among 12 beauties representing teams in the Big Four, Western Conference and Ontario Rugby Football Union. The parade will come Saturday morning, reviewed by the mayors of Toronto, Hamilton and Winnipeg as it passes city hall.

Thousands will line the route to

Nobody Is Going to Sneak In Gurgles Garrulous George; Bengals Respect Foe Passing

By JIM BASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HAMILTON (CP)—Hamilton Tiger-Cats are ready to concede Winnipeg Blue Bombers have the better passing attack, which may get them touchdowns in a hurry in the Grey Cup game Saturday, but on the point of which is the better-balanced club the Bengals put themselves in front.

Over the season in the Big Four the Tiger-Cats showed the power they can generate with their ground offensive and along with a capable but unspectacular aerial attack they have proven to the east to be the combination unsurpassed in the Big Four.

The eastern champions are confident they can handle the Bombers' running and plunging game. They believe they have the edge on the ground and expect to chew out huge hunks of yardage that way, intermingling it with an aerial show to keep the Winnipeg defence guessing.

The other Big Four clubs had their hands full in trying to contain the Tiger-Cats' ground forces. Fullback Merle Hapes, halves Lou Kusserow, Dave Curtis and Hugh Bailey carry the running and plunging load, picking up speed and crashing force to bowl past tacklers.

Quarterback Ed Songin, former Boston College star, is a dangerous customer. Specialty around which he is throwing long or short. But Songin's biggest booster on the Tiger-Cats' bandwagon will admit he is up against a better aerial attack in the Bombers' Indian Jack Jacobs.

ODDS FAVOR EAST

Songin has the additional drawback of having only ends like Neil Armstrong and Bob Grant to pitch to. These two are Jacobs' main targets and if the Tiger-Cats had a pair to compare with those two the chances the odds of 14-5 in favor of the East for Saturday's game would be cut in half.

Tiger-Cats have only one American, Vito Ragazzo, who came unheralded to the club after playing with William and Mary in 1950-51. He is a good pass receiver but is also used as a defensive half, a position which he played with outstanding success along with Songin the odds of 14-5 in favor more than 12 passes in the regular big four schedule.

The other offensive ends are Vito Logrea, who is also the team's field goal and convert kicking specialist, and rookie Gerry Mactaggart.

The fact they consider the westerners have the edge in passing isn't leaving them in awe. Sidney ran up against great passers in Bobby Wiskywski of Toronto Argonauts, Sam Etcheverry of Montreal Alouettes and Tom Casey of Ottawa Rough Riders in the Big Four season. These boys throw the ball around like some games but when it counted they were able to stop their aerial attacks.

Let's see the 30-odd floats and a dozen bands and watch the antics of the Canuckettes whooping it up. The Big Four championship Miss Grey Cup—will be riding in slick new horsepowerless.

The Dixie Cup will come the climax—the gyocame itself with Bombers bidding to collar the West's first National football title since Calgary beat Ottawa 13-9 in 1948.

Chavez Wins Decision Over Arthur King

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Eddie Chavez, grim faced little Mexican from San Jose, Calif., Wednesday night strengthened his bid for the world's lightweight boxing crown when he scored a 10-round unanimous decision over Canadian title-holder Arthur King 'ol Toronto.

Chavez weighed 136½ to King's 137.

King, scoring repeatedly with a sharp left jab and crossing with an occasional right, had an edge in the first three rounds.

Chavez took command in the fourth, staggering King with a right to the jaw and gave the Canadian a body beating.

Chavez was also out in front in the fifth, sixth and seventh rounds.

In the fifth he shot over a right to the jaw that nearly floored King. The latter went down on his haunches, but was not off his feet.

Six Officials Will Work Cup Final

TORONTO (CP)—For the first time in Grey Cup history, six officials will supervise Saturday's game between Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Lou Perry, president of the Canadian Rugby Union said Wednesday night in addition to the referee, two umpires, the judge of play and head linesman, another official will be stationed deep in defensive territory.

The sixth official's specific job will be to rule on long passes and punts. Normally, the two umpires drop back to cover the territory, but to do so, must relax vigilance along the line.

SHIPPED TO MINORS

TORONTO (CP) — Hap Day, assistant managing director of Toronto Maple Leafs, said Wednesday right-winger Bob Bailey has been shipped to Pittsburgh Hornets of the American Hockey League. Bailey will replace Gerry Foley, who will move to Ottawa Senators, another affiliate of the Leafs.

Bailey has just resumed skating after an ankle injury.

St. Michaels Whip Barrie Flyers 4-3 As Marlies Bow 6-4 to Hamilton Cats

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto St. Michael's College Majors, a team that was rated high at the start of the season but got off to a dismal start, are finally beginning to live up to expectations.

The Majors took over sole possession of third place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A standings Wednesday night by defeating Barrie Flyers 4-3 in Toronto.

Toronto Marlboros helped the latch cause by dropping a 6-4 decision to the Tigers in Hamilton. St. Michael's and Marlboros were previously tied for fourth place. Hamilton's victory tied them with Marlboros for fifth.

Les Duff scored the winning goal for St. Michael's with less than four minutes remaining in the game while the Flyers were one short.

Rookie Ken Gribbon fired two goals for the Collegians and Brian Anderson got the other one. Dan McNeil, Cleland Mortson and John Martan scored for the Flyers.

Brian Kilrea and Ted Reid paced the Hamilton attack, each firing two goals. Val Mitchell and Bill Stewart shot the others. Wally Maxwell scored twice for Marlboros. Charlie Burns and Tom McCarthy added singles.

Friday's action will have St. Michael's meeting the Biltmores at Guelph, St. Catharines TeePees at Barrie and Hamilton at Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts.

Rangers' 'Tortoise' Finally Catches Up With Bruins' Hare; Score 3 in Third to Win 5-3

By ED BISSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Somebody must have told New York Rangers the fable about the hare and the tortoise.

Frank Boucher's fifth - placers have broken the hearts of the New York faithful time and again this season by according him an early lead at their National Hockey League games, only to run out of gas in the last period and yield victory to their opponents.

Wednesday night they reversed the procedure. Boston Bruins scored the first goal, led 3-2 at the end of two periods and flirted on the short end of a 3-3 count at the third bell.

The Rangers' five-goal total equalled their season's high and the eight goals scored by both clubs also tied the top mark since the opening of the low-scoring schedule. Not since the Rangers beat Chicago Black Hawks 8-3 Oct. 1 has the red light flashed as frequently.

It was an important victory for the New Yorkers. The fourth-place Rangers stretched their lead to seven but the two clubs play again at Boston tonight and another Ranger win could put them well within striking distance of the last playoff spot.

In other games Friday night Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings will try to break their second-place tie at Detroit while the front-running Montreal Canadiens take on the last-place Hawks at Chicago.

The Bruins, unsuccessful in their last New York visit when they lost 4-3, took the offensive from the start.

Joe Klukay finally gave them the lead shortly after the half-way mark of the opening period, only to have Eddie Kullman tie the score four minutes later.

BRIEF LEAD

Ike Hildebrand, the reformed New Westminster lacrosse player gave the Rangers a brief edge 46 seconds after the second frame opened, but within five minutes Boston bounced back with tallies by Milt Schmidt and Leo Labine.

Hildebrand's second goal squared matters at 3:36 of the third period. Bentley a minute later, with the Bruins' Jerry Toppazzini off for high-sticking, put Hergesheimer put New York in front for keeps.

The last Ranger goal was a gift. With Boston goalie Jim Henry out of the nets in favor of an extra forward defenceman, Gerry Howell cleared from behind the New York net. The puck caromed off the side boards and drifted lazily into the empty Bruin cage.

Injury Rash Cuts Biltmores' Defence to Two

GUELPH (CP) — Gaglin Biltmores of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A circuit have only two regular defencemen left following a rash of injuries and releases.

Harry Scott was released Wednesday. He follows Allan Holland, let go earlier in the week.

Early in the season Ted Maki was laid low with sickness and then Jack McLeod broke a leg. Both are still on the sidelines.

Ted Brady and Ron Howell are the only defencemen left and only All-Pike will bring up two Junior B reserves for Friday's game against Toronto St. Michael's.

Joker Slipped In Ticket Deck By 'Peg Fans

WINNIPEG (CP) — Disgruntled football fans who thought they had been assured of Grey Cup tickets and then got none before the Winnipeg supply ran out besieged newspaper and radio switchboards Wednesday with phone calls, threats and complaints.

Under the distribution system set up by the Winnipeg club, applicants who proved they were club members or season ticket holders received yellow cards saying they were entitled to tickets.

On presentation of these cards along with proof of transportation to Toronto, and payment, they were given receipts entitling them to pick up tickets in Toronto.

Club officials said they thought the scheme would be near-foolproof. But something went wrong.

Early in the season Ted Maki was laid low with sickness and then Jack McLeod broke a leg. Both are still on the sidelines.

Ted Brady and Ron Howell are the only defencemen left and only All-Pike will bring up two Junior B reserves for Friday's game against Toronto St. Michael's.

'Y' Basketball

A close game featured the first of the two games of the Y.M.C.A. Basketball League last night when the Natives edged the Crazyleys with a score of 60-55. High scorers for the Nationals were Ted Belch-elor with 26 points and Dennis Farnsworth with 19. Stanley Jackson and Jim Hill were the high scorers for the Crazyleys with 31 and 14 points.

In the second game the Hoopsters had an easy win over the Monarchs with a score of 64-36. Gerry Goyer and Jack Matthews scored 28 and 20 points for the Hoopsters, while Bill Gault and Bill Yeates were high scorers for Monarchs with 12 and 10 points.

Lineups:
Nationals: Ted Batchelor 26 pts., Dennis Farnsworth 19, Don Smith 5, Jack Orvell 2, John Fuke, Mike Galsey, Roy Gatland 8.
Crazylegs: Stanley Jackson 21 pts., Jim Hill 14, Dan Buch 4, Graham Besley 2, Randal Evans 2.
Monarchs: Bill Gault 12 pts., Bill Yeates 10, Bob Bateman 8, Steve Schwab 6.

There will be no games next Tuesday due to school exams. The next games of the league will be played on Tuesday, December 8th when the Monarchs meet the Crazylegs at 7.30 p.m., and the Hoopsters clash with the Nationals.

Queen's University, then top team in the Intercollegiate Football union won the eastern Canada title 31 years ago today by edging the Big Four champion Toronto Argonauts 13-11. The victory came on a muddy field at Toronto with a last-minute field goal by Pep Leadlay, and the collegians went on to beat Edmonton 13-1 in the Canadian final.

Tars Hold Dutchies to One-All Tie Cataracts Edge Indians in Overtime

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Strange ice doesn't seem to faze Ontario Hockey Association Senior A competitors. At least that appeared to be the case Wednesday night as all visiting teams piloted up points on the road.

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen, the defending Allan Cup champions, moved into top spot with a 1-1 overtime draw with the Barrie's in Sarnia. The split edged Dutchmen a single point up on the idle Windsor Bulldogs, now deadlocked with Hamilton Tigers in second place after the Tabbies downed the Maroons 3-1 in Chatham.

Result: Mrs. Mack, Mich., Indians halted Sudbury Wolves drive for first place in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A southern group with a 4-3 victory over the Cobalt Silver Kings.

Don Savage scored Sarnia's only goal and Charlie Brooker banged in his own rebound to give Kitchener a tie and send the game into overtime.

BOTH SCORES TWO

Mickey Roth tallied twice for Stratford while Gordie Chamberlain scored the other Indian goal. Niagara Falls scorers were Bill Rear, Ken Campbell, Nick Dubick and Eric Unger.

Murray Comfort, Ab Conick and Frank Iscombe came up with the Hamilton scoring while Frank Boucello notched the Chatham goal.

No games are scheduled tonight but Friday, Windsor plays at Hamilton, Stratford goes to Sarnia and Niagara Falls to Chatham.

In the northern Ontario loop, North Bay plays at Pembroke.

A'S GET NEW MANAGER

OTTAWA (CP)—Lester H. Bell, 52, former star National League infielder and last season manager of Philadelphia Athletics' Savannah, Ga., club of the Sally League, has been named manager of the Ottawa Athletics of the International Baseball League.

A native of Harrisburg, Pa., Bell played with St. Louis Cardinals, Boston Braves and Chicago Cubs in the National League and took part in the 1929 world series. He succeeds Frank Skaff, who announced his retirement last week.

CNRAA Hockey

In a keenly-contested interprovincial hockey game, the Yard-Office team edged the Firemen by a 4-5 score.

The Firemen took a 3-1 lead in the first period, with the Yard crew outscoring them 3-1 in the second heat. Yards came back strong in the third with three goals as against one for the 6-5 victory.

Lupinette and Carmichael each scored a pair for the Firemen with Scott getting the other. Nolan was good for two for the winners with Pope, Doyle, Craig and Day getting the rest.

MALAYS GET AID

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (Reuters)—Sir Gerald Templer, British high commissioner in Malaya, announced today that Britain has granted £6,000,000 aid to the federation governments to meet its deficit caused by anti-Communist operations.

The Kibitzer

The rules of bidding you read in a book are good for what ails you. What an expert may do in a match would not look good there. His odd actions under certain circumstances seem to follow no pattern.

In a fixed deal tournament there was this spread of cards:

♠ 9 5
♥ None
♦ K Q 10 5 3 2
♣ A 8 7 6 4

WEST
♠ None
♥ A K Q J 10 9 8 7 6 5
♦ 9 8 7 6 5
♣ None

EAST
♠ 8 7 6
♥ 4 3 2
♦ A K 9 5 3
♣ 10

SOUTH
♠ A K Q J 10 4 3 2
♥ None
♦ A 4
♣ K J 10

As dealer to east, Jimmy opened with a bid of one heart without a heart in his hand of regs. South overbidded with two hearts and signal for showing no hearts in a hand containing power elsewhere.

Ruth in west was Jimmy's wife. With her hunband notorious as a psycher, she bid 'thted thirmonds for her own purpose. North doubled it. East gleefully passed. South went to four spades.

West then bid four no-trump, the aces and kings saker. Waiting to see where this would land, north passed. The squirming east did, would make a snake jealous. He could have killed her with looks.

He was only fooling and she was making tracks for a slam. For all he knew she would land them in hearts, the suit he had bid without any. Was there no way of stopping that woman?

Stopping at four no-trump was unthinkable. He dared not pass a forcing request that asked how many aces and kings he held. So, he bid five clubs signal reply for showing no aces.

South quietly awaiting developments. There would be plenty of time to bid six spades. Meantime, west and east might get into the wrong contract or show what they were heading for. West then bid five no-trump; saker of kings. Her husband in east almost fell off his chair. He was that mad; you could see the blood trying to burst his veins.

Not daring to pass, he bid six diamonds; signal for showing one king. By this time he was having high blood pressure for sure. But he "ain't" heard nothing yet. The worst was yet to come.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Putnam has just published "A Pictorial History of the Silent Screen," and it is jammed with memories for those who can recall the roaring '20s and before. I don't go back that far, but there are some interesting notes I gleaned from the book.

Thomas Edison, who developed movies in 1889, thought they were a novelty that would soon vanish. . . . Among early film players: Annie Oakley (the real one), Buffalo Bill, strong man Eugene Sandow, James J. Corbett . . . Tom Mix was a marshal in an Oklahoma town until a picture company came to the place.

The first western star was Broncho Billy Anderson, who still lives in Hollywood . . . First epic: Italian-made "Quo Vadis," which ran 22 weeks in New York at $2 top (1912) . . . Among the early titles: "Foxy Grandpa," "Prince of Zenda," "Julius Caesar," "Three Musketeers," "Dolly Gray Kid." Which proves that there's little new in the movies.

Leon Trotsky was a bit player with Clara Kimball Young in "My Official Wife" (1914) . . . Theda Bara made 40 pictures for Fox in three years. Real name: Theodosia Goodman.

DREW $675,000

Highest salary paid up to 1915 was $40,000 to Billie Burke for five weeks' work in 1916 (Charlie Chaplin drew $675,000 for the year) . . . Talk about preview epics: D. W. Griffith's "Intolerance" took 20 months to shoot and ran 3½ hrs.s on the screen.

Tallulah Bankhead's first professional appearance was in a movie, "30 a Week" in 1918 . . . and Clifton Webb was playing opposite Barbara La Marr in the first "Merry Widow," filmed in 1925.

BLOWOUT FATAL

WILLIAMSBURG, Ky. (AP)—A blowout on a wheelbarrow resulted in the death of a service station operator Wednesday, Ben F. Caudell, 64, was killed instantly when a rim flew apart and struck him in the face and chest as he removed the wheelbarrow's tire and tube to repair a leak.

BURGLARS INDIGNANT

DETROIT (AP) — Ill-natured burglars failed to get into a supermarket safe here, so they splattered 150 dozen eggs over the walls and floor and ruin of meat and cookies all around.

Sport in Brief

TORONTO (CP)—Fred Turnbull, Ontario's chief weather forecaster, Wednesday held dogerdly to his long range prediction of the weather outlook for Grey Cup day Saturday: "Partly cloudy, afternoon temperature 45, light winds, no rain or snow."

Turnbull's faith in the outlook for the East-West football classic between Calgary Tigers and Winnipeg Blue Bombers wasn't shaken by an overnight rainfall of ½ inches or a forecast of snowflurries in the Toronto area for today.

In making his prediction Tuesday, Turnbull had his eye on a Pacific air mass making a strong bid to reach Toronto. Tuesday night it left the coast and moved as far east as Salt Lake City, Utah.

However, he conceded that falling pressures in the Edmonton area could upset his calculations. Alberta foothills are the breeding ground of many Ontario storms and falling pressures are the first sign of such developments.

University of Toronto officials put the Canadian Rugby Union championship game, Saturday's big day night, protecting the turf from rain.

TORONTO (CP)—The gross gate for Saturday's Hamilton-Winnipeg Grey Cup final is expected to total $1048,443, an all-time high. Ticket sales will yield $128,443 and television, radio, movie and program rights will bring an additional $440,000.

Last year, when a Grey Cup record crowd of 27,395 saw the classic at Varsity Stadium, the gross gate was a record $126,025—$111,026 from ticket sales and $15,000 additional from television, radio, motion picture and program rights.

The ticket price range in 1952 was $2.65, $4.50 and $6.40. This year it is $6, $5 and $3.50.

MONTREAL (CP)—Coach Dougie Holloway (Pa-head) Wilson of Montreal Alouettes has signed a contract to coach the Big Four football team again next season.

General manager Lew Hayman said Wednesday both the club and Walker are happy about the signing. Terms were not disclosed.

Hayman also said it is definitely expected at least three of the team's outstanding imports—quarterback Sam Etcheverry, tackle Tex Coulter and centre Tom Hugo —will be back.

'D' BANDSMEN SHAKEN

KIRKWOOD, N. Y. (AP)—Some members of the Cornell University band were shaken up Wednesday night when their Philadelphia bound bus left the highway. The bus was one of three carrying the band to today's Cornell-Penn football game. The bandmen crowded into the two other buses and continued the trip.

AT THE CAPITOL — Universal-International's newest comedy hit, "Lost in Alaska" starring film sultry-songstress Mitzi Green, co-star Tom Ewell, Mitzi Green, former child star, and Tom Ewell share co-starring billing with the cousins in "Lost in Alaska," opening today at the Capitol Theatre. Also on the screen is "Kit Carson" starring Yvonne De Carlo and Rock Hudson.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY, NOV. 27, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries). — Better stay close to routine; analyze conditions so that you can go in or proceed as necessity directs. Study your opposition, make no foolish mistakes; and be direct, sincere at all times.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — This could turn out to be just the sort of day you really want. There are mixed vibrations, but they could be favorable if you concentrate on the situations at hand and put forth your most intelligent efforts.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Most matters are "on the fence" today. Push them right and you can expect gains; otherwise—reverses. Some extra thought needed.

June 22 to July 22. (Cancer) — Scientific, civic and business matters have the right of way today. Personal affairs could be held back for the time being, however. Concentrate on matters involving property, money, investments.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Avoid all matters pertaining to money, contracts, employment. Ride your time thoughtfully. Don't rush things and you can do fairly well. Remember to smile.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Your stars are most stimulating during early part of day, so get started on time and accomplish as much as possible. Later you may have to mark time. Never can help.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Heart interests are in the limelight now; check present activities before taking on new responsibilities. If needed, seek sound advice; employ tact in personal affairs.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Take things in their stride during this uncertain period. Affairs can move smoothly if you are your genial self.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—This is the sort of day when widesweep individuals can expect (with proper management) to wrap things up—"signed, sealed and delivered," well done!

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Do not exceed your capacity for work or your budget. Either can play havoc with progress. Avoid obligating self to needless contracts, complicated affairs. Sidestep disputes.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—You can be the one to give a fine example of friendship, humor and charity and you'll have advanced your social and personal cause no end. Be cheerful.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—To err is human but to err over and over again isn't like you. Be especially careful today, for the vibrations are less stimulating than they seem. Be your natural, forceful and genial self.

YOU BORN TODAY have foresight, are keen and have a jovial disposition. You are generous, charitable but may over-spend. Don't be misled by appearances; always check carefully, especially in finances, and in making loans. With proper education and steady effort, you can reach a high place in business, career. Be over-reach, though you may be tempted because of your buoyant enthusiasm.

CONSOLATION PRIZE

LACOMBE, Alta. (CP) — William Jackson of Hilldown saw his grain crop destroyed by hail this year. Jackson, who has a wife and five children, later won an automobile in a service club raffle.

MOUNTAIN VIEW

Community Dinner Held at Mt. View

MOUNTAIN VIEW—The Mountain View Hunting Club held a community banquet in the church basement recently.

Over 80 member families and friends attended the dinner.

After supper a program was presented consisting of a chorus by the school children with Miss Huff at the piano.

The guest speaker of the evening was Mrs. Fothwell of Belleville who spoke on her trip to the Coronation and to Holland, Belgium, Holland, Ireland and Scotland.

Mrs. Follwell showed slides of pictures she took in all these countries.

Mrs. Ben Anderson thanked Mrs. Follwell for her illustrated address.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Sprague spent several days in Toronto attending the Royal Winter Fair.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Burkitt accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Burkitt visited friends in Marmora recently.

Mrs. J. B. Hamilton and Seymour called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Parker at Glen Ross on Saturday afternoon.

Miss Huff showed films of the 1953 Santa Claus parade in Toronto to her pupils. She also entertained the dancer and the pupils of Miss Huff's faland school and Mrs. Calnan and pupils of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sprague and George called on Mr. and Mrs. Henry Walbridge of Consecon on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Moynes announce the birth of a son in Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. Robert Huffman of O.A.C., Guelph, and Mr. Douglas Trumble of Toronto, and had dinner with Mrs. S. Sherman and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sherman.

Mr. and Mrs. William McLaren reached home last week-end after a three week's visit with their son in Rochester, N.Y.

The local teachers attended the teachers' meeting at Central School on the Reserve, where Mr. Clarus is the Principal.

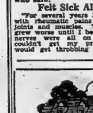
HAD INDIGESTION, HEADACHES
"Full Of Aches And Pains" . . . Tells Of Grand Relief

"Felt Completely Rundown," Says This Man. Limbs and Joints Sore, Painful. Had Gas, Cramps. Could Not Sleep. Tells How Sydona Helped Him.

The many thousands of letters that come from men and women all over the country offer convincing proof of the good that sick people get by taking Sydona Herbal Medicine. Many of the letters are constantly received that it is impossible to publish all of them. But, here is the recent experience of Mr. William Sidell, 7 Pegler Street, London, Ontario, who said:

Felt Sick All Over

"For months I have been troubled with rheumatic pains in my limbs, joints and muscles. This condition grew worse until I became rundown, could not sleep, ate poorly, felt constantly nervous, had gas, indigestion, would get headaches and I felt sick all over. My stomach was so bad I would have indigestion, gassy cramps and heartburn after almost every meal.



Tried Many Things

"I had tried just about everything I knew of but got no satisfactory relief. Then I read about Sydona and I can definitely say that it gave me the relief I had been looking for for so many months. Aches and pains are now relieved, I can eat well and have no gassy cramps or indigestion, and I sleep 100% better at night. Headaches are a thing of the past and I feel so much better that my friends and neighbors are calling down once more. In all certainty Sydona Herbal Medicine is medicine to anyone suffering as I did."

Has Helped Thousands

Thousands of men and women suffering from common disorders of stomach, liver and bowels, nervousness, general rundown condition, poor digestion, constipation, etc., find Sydona helps. Why not let this Pure Herbal Medicine help you, too? Get Sydona today, take and the results are quickly felt.

Sydona is sold in Belleville by Dolan The Druggist.

Britain Welcomes Red Parley Plan, U.S. Denounces It

Russians Drop Insistence on Red China Attend Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States today denounced Russia's Thursday note on a Big Four meeting as an obvious effort to slow progress on the development of "greater European unity and strength."

A statement released at the state department also described the note as "a tactical retreat" by Russia in the sense that it is an effort "to gloss over the incompromising nature of Soviet policy" toward the West.

The real substance of the Soviet note shows that Russia has not in any sense changed its basic positions on world issues and from this standpoint, therefore, the note is disappointing," the department said.

BERMUDA TOPIC

The statement forecast that the Russian message, which was delivered Thursday night and called for a four-power foreign ministers meeting at Berlin, would be discussed at the Bermuda conference beginning next week.

Evidence, that the note was a threat to European unity and strength, the state department said, was found in the fact it was timed to coincide with the foreign policy debate in the French Parliament on the European Defence Community which would mean West German rearmament.

The statement called that "one of the most significant and obvious aspects" of the Soviet note and added that it "would appear therefore, by renewed emphasis on the effort to impede progress on EDC ratification and other steps toward greater European unity and strength."

A digest of the note Russia sent Thursday night to the United states, Britain and France became available this morning in Paris. It indicated that if a Big Four meeting of foreign ministers is held, the Russians would immediately propose a Chinese seat at the table to discuss ending Communist China.

Informed observers here said the result might be that instead of further postponing a four-power meeting by dispatching repeated notes on the Chinese question, the Russians conceivably might allow the meeting to take place, and then stall discussion of European problems while the Chinese issue is worked over again.

STEP OR STAB?

In any case, the Russian note was under intensive study today by State Secretary Dulles and his principal policy advisers to determine whether it is a step one way toward easing world tensions or a clever stab at the unity of the West.

Available information in Washington and Paris was that the note does not show no pre-conditions for a Big Four meeting, but only clever evidence of Russia's continuing preoccupation with the status of Red China; that it proposed a meeting of foreign ministers without previous consultation on agenda, suggested Berlin as the meeting place and left the date open.

TEAM LOST $15,000

KITCHENER (CP) — Waterloo Tigers of the Senior Intercounty Baseball League lost about $15,000 on 1953 operations, Ernie Gomm, club business manager, said Thursday night.

He told a Waterloo park board meeting Thursday night income from baseball, football and lacrosse totalled more than $40,000 and gate receipts alone $30,000.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: Cloudy skies and intermittent snowflurries summarizes the weather picture over most of Ontario Friday morning with one or two localities up and around the Hudson Bay area patiently reporting rather heavy snowfalls.

The storm that moved rapidly southward from the Prairie Provinces is skirting the lower Great Lakes and is expected to remain far enough south to give little more in southern Ontario. The weather for the rest of Friday and on Saturday afternoon is expected to be pleasant with the sun breaking through late in the day.

GOVT. WINS FIRST TEST OF STRENGTH IN PARLIAMENT

Non-Confidence Motion Of CCF Beaten 156-36

OTTAWA (CP)—The government has won its first test of strength in the new Parliament.

The Commons Thursday night voted 156 to 36 to defeat a CCF motion of non-confidence in the government. Liberals, Progressive Conservatives and two Independents voted against the motion, supported by the CCF and Social Credit parties.

The Social Credit party promptly introduced its own non-confidence motion.

The two motions centred attention on the issue of free enterprise in the throne speech debate, with dedication of the two-week-old debate may end next week.

The CCF motion criticized the government for giving no promise of a national health insurance scheme in its outline of legislation in the speech from the throne. Instead, it amended a Progressive Conservative non-confidence motion already before the house by deleting the statement that Opposition welfare depends on free competition.

CCF MOTION SOCIALISTIC

Opposition Leader Coldwell said his party opposed the CCF motion as "pure and unadulterated social ism."

The Social Credit amendment, presented by leader Solon Low, again amended the Progressive Conservative motion by substituting the words "private enterprise" for "free competition." It also urged the government to accept payment in sterling for Canadian exports.

Mr. Low said he would not try to say what the "overseas and conservative meant by free competition. But the Social Credit party believed in the value of private enterprise as giving individuals the right to follow any pursuit not forbidden by law on the ground that it violates human rights.

URGE ACCEPT STERLING

Canada should be willing to accept sterling debts with other countries by accepting "the only thing that they may have—their own currency," Mr. Low declared. Unless purchasing power were kept at a high level, many of the world's surplus production would disappear.

The Liberal and the CCF motion showed that party was "right back to the Regina Manifesto. . . to discover that capitalism is rotten away with the profit motive, place production under the control of the state and substitute for the judgment of thousands and hundreds of thousands of individuals the judgment of, . . these men who think they know everything."

Mr. Drew said the Progressive Conservatives supported national health insurance "just as strongly as the CCF." But it would not be "beguiled" into voting for the CCF motion which was "the most reactionary proposal of all."

BUILDING BOOM

CALGARY (CP) — Like other western cities, Calgary is experiencing a building boom this year. The total of building permits issued to the end of October was $38,020,-000, compared with $34,065,000 for the same period of last year.

RCMP Tp Smashes U.S. Drug Ring Before It Makes Its First Sale

JERSEY CITY, N. J. (AP)—Three American members of a purported international dope ring—which was smashed before making its first sale—are free today on bail totalling $50,000 each after being arrested in Canada for others.

Bail was set Thursday in Hudson county jail in lieu of bail ranging from $50,000 to $100,000 on three other members—six Americans and two Canadians. All six were charged Tuesday with conspiracy to possess and transport narcotics.

Bail was reduced Wednesday from $50,000 to $7,500 each for Angelo Mandalo of Newark, Jr., 3, and Joseph Falcetano of West Orange, N. J., and from 150,000 to $10,000 each for Joseph Volpe of Newark.

Applications for reduction of bail have not been filed by the other three men—Sal Merola of Newark, Jr., Canadian Joseph Camille Herbert, both of Quebec City.

Merola's bail was set at $50,000 and Canadian of $250,000 each.

Federal narcotics agents, on information from the RCMP, arrested the eight men in a hotel here Tuesday. Officials said the ring planned to pocket $2,000,000 from its first sale, but was stopped before it got its first two ounces of heroin on the market.

District Attorney William F. Hopkins said federal agents moved in just as the Canadians were handing over the heroin to the American group, whom he described as smalltime dope pushers wanting to get in the big time.

A hunt is under way in Canada, Tuesday night for the man who allegedly master-minded the plot.

Canada, U.S. Cannot Afford Foolproof Air Defence-Claxton

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton says Canada and the United States can't afford a foolproof air defence system, even if one could be devised.

He told the Commons Thursday in a general review of Canada's defence measures that Russia knows she may be in a position to deliver "so devastating" an attack that North American military strength, industry and civilian morale would be seriously crippled.

There have been developed, he said, to guarantee that every attacking aircraft would be downed short of its objective. But if such a system could be devised, the combined resources of Canada and the U.S. "wouldn't be able to pay for it."

He said Canada and the U.S. are in "general agreement" about what should be done to protect the continent against attack. They were working together and their efforts were spurred by the knowledge that Russia possesses nuclear weapons.

CONTINUING RESEARCH

The two countries were carrying out joint research into defence problems, including that at the McGill Fence, a radar screen so-named because of its appearance. It was done at McGill University.

The primary object in radar was to build "outward and upward" from North America's chief target areas. An early-warning system in the north would be useless because a case of taking care of most urgent matters first.

Mr. Claxton said continental defence has not been subordinated to overseas defence and priority to the North Atlantic alliance defence system.

He said NATO is "not close" to achieving its final targets. But the situation was "very different" than three years ago. The buildup had been of sufficient strength in Europe that NATO forces could hold off any invader until reserves could be brought up. Canada had achieved its NATO commitments on or before target dates.

He disclosed that the Korean war cost Canada $200,000,000 outside Canada, $50,000,000 of this amount for supplies purchased from the U.S. Its costs of administration and training in Canada were included, the total might go as high as $1,000,000,000.

Churchill Govt. Obtains Victory In Vote on TV

LONDON (CP) — Government opponents in Prime Minister Churchill's Conservative party claimed a moral victory in Thursday night's vote in the House of Lords even though the government won approval of cabinet plans to introduce commercial television in Britain.

The government claimed to have beaten a rebellion in its own ranks as the peers defeated by 137 to 129 a motion opposing the government's scheme. A full debate on the issue now is slated for the House of Commons.

The Conservative rebels pointed to the fact that more than 100 peers abstained from the vote, including 20 Conservatives in the House of Lords opposing the government plans, which included the Duke and the Archbishop of Canterbury.

RAIN PREVENTS DUKE APPEARING IN POLO GAME

Royal Couple to Sail On Luxury Ship Friday

By GOMER JONES

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuters) Heavy tropical rain today washed out a polo match in which the Duke of Edinburgh was to have played.

It brought disappointment to thousands of enthusiastic Jamaicans who began crowding in to Up Park military camp soon after sunrise to watch the exotic game playing one of his favorite sports and to see Queen Elizabeth in the front row of the spectators' stands.

For the crowds the game could have been the climax of the royal couple's last day here. The Queen and the duke sail tonight in the luxury liner Golbic on the next stage of their 30,000-mile six-month Commonwealth tour. They will arrive at the Pacific isle colony of Fiji and Tonga before reaching New Zealand Dec. 23.

ABLE TO REST

Cancellation of the game gave the royal couple an opportunity for a morning rest before attending their first public engagement of the day, a memorial service for money in the grounds of the governor's house, where they are staying.

Later on their last day in Jamaica, the Queen and the duke will also visit the new University College of the West Indies, now nearing completion, and the historic old town of Port Royal. Once known as the "wickedest city on earth," it was the haunt of buccaneer Sir Henry Morgan and plundered gold ships plying the Spanish Main in the 17th century.

NELSON QUARTER DECK

The Queen will see the quarterdeck where Admiral Nelson stood and read the inscription at squat, grey Fort Charles: "In this place dwelt Horatio Nelson. You who tread his footsteps remember his glory." And in the church of St. Peter's, the Queen will see the wedding ring from which Nelson quaffed his rum.

Something of Port Royal's former glory will be recaptured in a farewell military review on the town's then-worn parade ground. The end of the review will mark the public part of the royal visit. The Queen and the Duke will board a launch at the end of the parade ground and sail out to the waiting Gothic, lying sleek and white in the sunset.

TURKEYS STALL FLIGHT

DETROIT (AP)—Turkeys were blamed for stalling an elevator in six-storey apartment building Thursday. Firemen who rescued two men and a girl from the elevator after it stopped between floors, explained that too many turkeys, packed in a truck parked and roasted in electric ovens in the 100-apartment building, overloaded the circuits and blowing a main fuse.

Rowed 26 Hours Through Thick Fog Before Rescue Off Cape Breton

HALIFAX (CP)—Six Newfoundland survivors of a derelict coastal freighter told today how they rowed through dense pea-soup fog for 26 hours and considered their situation "mighty hopeless" before they were finally rescued.

Capt. Robert Smith of the Grand Banks, Nfld., and his five crew members abandoned the 107-ton Grand Bank off Cape Breton Island Tuesday after she sprang a leak.

Seas were breaking over the ship in the heavy fog without sighting their distress flares.

"If the Arctic Sealer hadn't practically run us down in the fog, we'd have never lived to see daylight," Capt. Smith said. "We were mighty sick hopeless'."

A heavy sea almost swamped the boats before the rescue ship spotted them.

36 Nominations For Civic Offices Received By Clerk

Name 16 for Seven Seats On Aldermanic Board

A contest for the office of mayor was assured today following nominations held at the city hall when no less than five men were named as candidates for the office of chief magistrate.

Definitely in the field are Aldermen Charles L. Hyde, member of this year's city council, and John Both, proprietor of the Dixieland Conditioning Company here. Both signified their intention of running by filing qualification papers following the meeting.

Early this afternoon for the municipal offices of mayor, public utilities, city council and school board were accepted by city clerk Harold D. Bateman at the nomination meeting.

Five nominations were received for mayor; three for the one position on the public utilities commission. There were 16 nominations for city council with seven members to be elected, and seven nominees for the right public school board members to be elected.

Only nominations were accepted in the meeting. A spokesman said in event there was no speech making by the aspirants for public office.

FEW LATE COMERS

There was a flurry of nominations placed with the city clerk as the meeting opened at 11 o'clock then there was a lull and finally just before nominations were closed there were a few late comers. The meeting did not attract a large crowd although the council chambers were comfortably filled for the nomination.

Four of this year's council, Alderman Charles L. Hyde, Claude D. Tice, William Argue and Arthur Keegan were nominated for the office of mayor. The fifth nomination for office of chief magistrate was that of John Both.

Nominations for the public utilities seat included the current member Harry C. McGill. Urias "Sandy" Lummiss, and Frank S. Follwell.

Six of this year's school board members were nominated for reelection. Seven other names for nominations were received with eight members to be elected.

Nominees have until nine o'clock tomorrow (Saturday) evening to qualify as candidates.

A public meeting today will be held at the Collegiate Auditorium on Thursday evening, December 3, when the candidates for public office will be given the opportunity to address the electors or give account of their stewardship for the past year. The meeting is being sponsored by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

RESCUES CHILD

CHIPPEWA, Ont. (CP)—Richard Macdonald, 4, walked out on a high railway bridge over the Welland River Thursday as a train approached. A woman warned a 26-year-old Toronto railway patrolman, walked out over the boxcars and carried the boy to safety.

Unofficial Tally Indicates Laniel Winner in Vote

PARIS (AP)—Unofficial tallies today indicated that Premier Joseph Laniel had received a vote of confidence in the National Assembly. The unofficial figures gave Laniel a majority of about 17 votes.

The vote came at the end of a tension-charged day in the Assembly's debate on French foreign policy. The vote reflected reluctance to throw Laniel out of office on the eve of the Bermuda conference. And just what Russia had offered to meet the Western Big Three in discuss world tensions.

Early in the day it seemed that Laniel would have difficulty in getting approval from the deputies for the Bermuda trip. Especially. Then at one point Foreign Minister Georges Bidault threatened to resign because he felt he had been slighted by the premier.

ANIMOSITIES DIE

At the afternoon session, however, personal animosities faded as the deputies sought to give the outward appearance of harmony.

Bidault, who only a few hours earlier threatened to resign in a clash with Premier Joseph Laniel, came to the rostrum at the crucial debate on France's attitude toward the European Defence Community.

Bidault told the tense chambers

"For the first time in a long period, the Russian reply is not entirely negative. We cannot say the hopes it gives rise to. But this encouraging event must not turn away from two essential terms of our policy.

"1. The Atlantic solidarity must be preserved and reinforced.

"2. Each-to-each talks must be opened up as soon as possible with general security and the control of disarmament as its objective."

Laniel told the Assembly earlier he would stay on as premier only if he received a vote of approval of his European policy.

C. of C. to Sponsor Public Meeting For Candidates

The directors of the Chamber of Commerce voted on Thursday to sponsor again the annual public meeting at which candidates in the coming municipal election can express their policies. It was decided among a few of the directors that due to the small attendance by the public at the last two meetings it might not be worthwhile to continue as sponsors.

However, a vote was taken and as a result the meeting will be continued at least for this year. It is scheduled for Thursday at 7.45 p.m. in the auditorium of B.C.I.V.S.

Bill Steven, chairman of public relations, has offered the directors a series of broadcasts dealing with topics of local interest and stimulation of further interest in Chamber work. A committee was appointed to organize material for the broadcast.

Hunter's Mistake Ends In Moose Steak

It might have been a Hallowe'en "prank on the part of the "lads" but it's expending as a bear, but it cost her her life.

Actually the "lady" in question was not in masquerade but she did make a lot of noise and that was her downfall.

The lady in question was a 700-pound moose, shot by Lorne Rose near Grassy Lake, roughly 15 miles from the southern end of Lake.

The slain moose that a well known Belleville hunter was on the prowl with his gun loaded for bear.

He halted suddenly when he heard a heavy body crashing through the slash. Through a small opening he saw a lumbering form as it halted, probably scenting danger.

His rifle cracked and the body crashed to the ground.

His eyes opened wide in dismay when he discovered his "kill" was not a Brain but Mrs. Moose.

He immediately notified Conservation Officer Jack Ramsbottom, who, after investigating the circumstances, was convinced that the hunter had made a legitimate mistake.

Yesterday afternoon, one of the Hastings County Home and the mattress of Bancroft hospital dined off succulent moose steaks, thanks to the moose on the loose, a cricket bat hunter, and the good offices of Officer Ramsbottom.

Special Committee to Probe Fish Management in Lake

The Belleville District Game and Fish Association at its regular meeting Thursday night, endorsed the formation of a special joint committee, designed to investigate and report the best methods of fishing management in lake waters in the counties of Hastings, Lennox and Addington, Prince Edward and Northumberland.

The committee, formed last June, is composed of three representatives from the associations of tourist operators, anglers and commercial fishermen.

The Association moved to extend every assistance possible to the Departments of Lands and Forests conservation officers in reporting infractions on hunting and fishing regulations. Members will report any infractions to the association secretary, who in turn will notify district conservation officials.

The recommendations will be forwarded to the Department regarding the trout fish law. It is intended to 20 inches, and that of brook trout from seven to nine inches.

SUGGESTS PROTECTION

The association board suggested methods of protecting the deer population, and when were issued the reduction of the open season to one week, the abolition of the use of dogs in deer hunting in the wolf bounty.

Outlining the formation of the special committee which is known as the Quinte District Joint Fisheries Committee, Association President, Bruce Smith, told the meeting of the duties of its formation adding it was the second such committee to be organized in Ontario.

Don McKinnon, elaborating on the president's remarks, said the committee since its formation, had already done splendid work. At its first meeting it passed a resolution which will enable Department Lands and Forests to assist immediately in the designing of a fishery management scheme or plan for waters in the Quinte district.

OTHER REQUESTS MADE

Other resolutions, Mr. McKinnon said, were passed on the management permit the setting of carp nets on September 14 instead of Oct. 1, and to investigate and approve if possible the fishing for carp in East Lake, West Lake and Consecon Lake.

In moving the recommendation of extending the length of lake to twenty inches, Fred Croft stated he had received numerous complaints that anglers, principally Americans had taken pike by the dozen which measured anywhere from ten to eighteen inches. "Pike," he said, "had been classed as a game fish for years. Bass is becoming scarce and in West Lake there is little else but pike. Bruce Bisbee followed Mr. Croft's motion with one to request the length of trout lake be changed from seven to nine inches. Both motions were endorsed.

There was some discussion on the suggestion that members assist in the reduction of infraction of hunting and fishing regulations by reporting these breaches to the secretary, who in turn would forward the information to local conservation officers. Conservation Officer Fred MacDonald, Point Anne, said he heartily appreciated the suggestion and trusted the Association would endorse it. Secretary Kenneth York said he would assist in every way possible, and the motion carried.

DEPLORES DECREASE

"Sandy" Lummles in a brief but pointed address deplored the decrease in the deer population. He felt the present closing for the past 26 years, he said, "and son this season was the worst as far as results were concerned. This year, he said, "Not one-tho 44 per cent of their quota. In Hallowe'en the open season in the Tweed area 25 per cent, 37 per cent of which were fawns.

"Better roads, new highway and power lines in the deer country are driving the animals from their natural habitat," he said. Wolves were taking a heavy toll. The real culprit was wolf, he pointed out will bring down a deer but the half will half-dog type is prevalent in the district will eat anything. He pointed out that since bounties are not paid on the latter type, those on "real wolves" should be increased to give hunters and trappers an incentive to go out and shoot them.

ADVOCATES WEEK'S SEASON

He advocated an open season of one week instead of two as the legionary two weeks and the abolition of the use of dogs as means to help in preserving the deer population.

"If something is not done," he said, "it won't be too long before the deer will be entirely wiped out."

Joe Short gave several interesting facts regarding the speed of flight of game birds. He stated that the Department of Lands and Forests was doing an excellent job in stocking game and fish associations do their job, by clamping down heavily on breaches of the game laws. Several instances where heavy fines and offences had been imposed.

Several motion picture films were shown, among them being the Canadian Open Golf championship, "Fish I Have Met", featuring Grey Owl.

President Smith announced that the next meeting and dinner of the group would be held on the third Thursday in January, when the membership dues was one dollar and not two as some members suggested. The extra dollar is payment for a subscription to a hunting and fishing publication, and is not compulsory.

Free Skating Periods at Arena Are Announced

Free skating periods have been established in the arena and separate school students by the Recreation Committee with the co-operation of the Arena Commission and arena manager Walter Gerow.

Starting the first week of December students will have the use of the arena Monday and Thursday evening from 4.00 until 5.30 and a schedule will be prepared for January, February, 24th of December will not be included in these skating sessions.

Children will be expected to act in accordance with rules and there will not be permitted to take part in the free periods.

The use of the arena will be roped off for the benefit of the smaller less experienced skaters.

The first session will be on Thursday, December 3rd.

Obituary

OSCAR GEORGE COLE (Murmora).

HARMONIE — The funeral of Oscar George Cole took place on Thursday afternoon, November 26. The service at the Wells Funeral Home was conducted by Rev. D. Bootly of the Pentecostal Church, assisted by Rev. G. H. Backe, pastor of Mamora Free Met'l dist Church.

Miss Jean Fox rendered the solo "Beyond the Sunset". Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Rundle sang "Good Night and Good Morning". Both ministers officiated at the graveside in Marmora Protestant Cemetery.

The pallbearers were Ed Armstrong, George Forestell, Joseph Murrey, Leo Quinlan, Nathan Mumby and Harold Landon.

MRS. FLORENCE EDNA WALP (Frankford R. R. 4)

Funeral services for Florence Edna Walp were held from Stockdale United Church on Wednesday, Nov. 25.

Mourners were Dan Parks, Percy Way, John Forge, Vincent Maybee, Harvey Brown, Clifford Johnson, the Rev. Charles Clarke officiated.

Interment was in Stockdale cemetery.

MRS. JOSEPH ANGUS (ELSIE SAYERS)

Former well-known resident of Hungerford township, Mrs. Joseph Angus, formerly Elsie Sayers, passed away in Toronto General hospital, late Thursday evening, following an illness of several weeks. She was forty-nine years of age.

Born in Hungerford township, the daughter of Mr. Herbert Sayers, Campbellford, and the late Mrs. Sayers, Mrs. Angus received her early education in her native township later graduating from the Tweed High School.

An adept scholar she later turned to the profession of school teacher and following normal school graduation, taught at Billerdale, Allandale and Lake Shore, Lake taught at Thomasburg.

Relinquishing her teaching profession, Mrs. Angus went to Toronto where she became employed with the Bell Telephone Company. She was for a number of years an efficient member of the staff of the head office of the organization.

While in Toronto she met and married Mr. Joseph Angus. She developed a keen interest in church work at an early age and all her life was closely associated with it. She was a valued member of the Dundas Street Church, Toronto, at the time of her passing, being active in many of its organizations.

Surviving are her husband, her father, three brothers, Ross and Campbellford; Robert, Havelock; and Ronald of Wilmington; one son, William Angus, a law student and a daughter, Eleanor, both of Toronto.

Farm Forum Elects 1953-54 Executive

The Hastings County Farm Forum rally was held in Methodist hall on Monday. Four farm forums attended as well as some visitors.

In the absence of the chairman, S. Demille, the vice-chairman, Bernard Hollinger, presided.

The rally opened with a brisk sing-song led by Ralph Swan with Mrs. Lorne Weese at the piano.

The chairman called on several men for brief remarks: Mr. P. Harris, a past chairman; Mr. Everett Phillips, manager of Foxboro Co-op; Mr. Doug Ketcheson, secretary of Hastings County Federation of Agriculture; Mr. M. B. Sine, president Quinte Medical Co-op., and Mr. Ron Longwell.

A committee was appointed to study costs of a bus trip to Toronto some time after the New Year.

Prizes went to: (1) Melrose; (3) Foxboro; (3) and (4) shared between the other two.

Hon. chairman, Mr. S. Demille; chairman, Bernard Hollinger; vice-chairman, Sam Nicholson; secretary-treasurer, Miss Alma Moorcroft and press reporter, Mrs. Morley Sine.

POLICE BLOTTER

Theft of a valuable lady's fur coat from a Canadian National Railways express truck was reported to city police yesterday afternoon. The coat valued at approximately $600 was said to have been owned by a woman residing on the East Hill.

A William Street woman complained of being accosted by a man Thursday evening, as she was walking home along Victoria Avenue. The woman swung her purse at the man's head and was able to get free and run home.

Three transients were picked up by railway police in the C.N.R. yards where they were taken from a freight car. The men were lodged in cells at the city police station for the night and this morning were ordered to go and told to get out of the city.

Curtis Nagel's 'Rhine Journey' Outstanding Film

A beautiful and breath-taking technicolor visit to the entire Rhine River valley was taken by more than 900 patrons of the Kiwanis Club's World Travel and Adventure Series last evening as Curtis Nagel, one of the world's leading photographer-lecturers narrated his impressive film "Rhine Journey."

The picture began on the glaciers and ice-locked lakes of the Swiss Alps 11,000 feet above sea level and plunged its viewers through rocky gorges and around hairpin turns to the flat plains of West Germany and on through lovely Holland to the sea.

The most photogenic country in the world came to sparkling life on the cameras of Mr. Nagel and his assistant producer, Mr. William H. Moore. The magnificent, snow-crested grandeur of the Swiss Alps, deeply-wooded mountain ravines and the Black Forest, the picturesque farms and cities of Switzerland, West Germany and Holland, all formed a charming background for the story of the people who live and work in these countries.

BEAUTIFUL COSTUMES

Quaint and beautiful native costumes folk dances, religious processions and holiday celebrations brought to life the character and personality of these races. Mr. Nagel included a liberal helping of native folklore and explanations of traditions in his excellent commentary.

Throughout the picture, on-the-spot recordings of native singers and the music accompanying national celebrations was blended into the story while in the background the powerful music of Richard Wagner was used at intervals to enhance the spell which the Rhine alternately casts as it flows past medieval castles, and modern bustling German towns and great industrial cities and ports.

The picture captured the essence of smiling, industrious people at work and at play all along the beautiful and majestic river.

The tailored loveliness of formal gardens and that spectacular beauty of Holland's great tulip farms were faithfully recorded.

But the Rhine is more than just a scenic wonderland and Mr. Nagel's pictures and his comments gave graphic evidence of the paramount economic importance of this river to central Europe.

"The Rhine is not merely a river of water," said Mr. Nagel, "it is a stream of ideas flowing out of the heart of Europe. It is a boundary to many nations, and the great silver highway of commerce of central Europe."

If ever a river has character, the Rhine must certainly be among the most splendid, and Mr. Nagel faithfully and beautifully conveyed all aspects of its character last evening.

Rule Causes Trouble

OTTAWA (CP)—Heber Hartle, 46, has resigned from the presidency of Ottawa Kinsmen Club because of a national Kinsmen ruling that no person over 40 can hold an elected office. Clubs in Perth and Alexandria have surrendered their charters because of the same ruling, which was followed by resignations.

Two Blue Bomber Trains Disgorge Mob of Gaily Decked Winnipeggers

TORONTO (CP) — Two Blue Bomber special trains rolled into Union Station today and turned loose on Toronto hordes of blue-and-gold bedecked supporters.

Operating on the platoon system, the Winnipeg fans paraded in two stints. The station in two huge groups, their trains having arrived from the Manitoba capital 20 minutes apart.

They were met in the lower concourse by about 250 Torontonians —some there to shout a welcome, some out of pure curiosity. Some were former Winnipeggers.

It seemed that every man, woman and child who stepped from the trains wore blue and gold ribbons or wore signs to show where they were from.

Some were blue-and-gold beanies. Two or three hardy souls wore blue-and-gold kilts—a day was cold and grey. Here and there were wide-brimmed cowboy hats.

The signs and buttons read: "The Indian sign is on Hamilton;" "Take off your hat to the Bombers;" "Ay-ay us about our Blue Bombers."

Out of the arriving crowd emerged two Bomber supporters in full dress, carrying a huge blanket. They spread it out, supplied their own smoke in puffs and sent out smoke signals.

The St. Andrews girls'pipeband The St. Andrews girls pipe band of Toronto welcomed the Westerners. The band, also operating in platoons, moved across the street to the Royal York Hotel and paraded about the lobby.

The smoke-signalling specialists, showing signs of fatigue, spread out their blanket on the lobby floor and flopped on it, gamely but feebly waving their Winnipeg pennants.

The hotel had removed every stick of furniture from the lobby to provide room for the milling crowds.

A.R. Mosher, President of Canadian Congress of Labor, Endorses Fund

Endorsement of Your Hospital Fund has been received from A. R. Mosher, president, Canadian Congress of Labor, it was announced today by W. Harry Rollins, chairman of the Fund's Industrial Employees' Committee.

In his message to labor Mr. Mosher said "I am very much interested to learn that Belleville is undertaking to build an extension to the local hospital. I am quite sure that every member of a local union and the workers generally will give their whole-hearted support to this project."

"Health is the greatest asset of our people, and it is one of the utmost importance that adequate hospital facilities should be available in every community."

"I should like therefore to extend my best wishes for the success of your hospital extension plan, and to request that all affiliated unions of the Congress, as well as their members and the public at large, get behind the project and bring it to a successful conclusion."

Mr. Rollins said that approximately 2,000 employees in Belleville and district are now being approached for contributions to the Hospital Building Fund.

16,000 Immigrant Farm Workers Will Be Needed

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will have to meet the same demand for farm-worker immigrants in 1954 as this year, provincial spokesmen Thursday told the federal-provincial farm labor conference.

About 16,000 farm workers will have been admitted during the current year, it was estimated.

All provinces indicated they will absorb about the same number as last year, though Alberta's representative told the conference it doesn't want any more unmarried German immigrants unless the quality of the newcomers can be improved.

On the second day, heavy emphasis was laid on the unsuitability of many of the farm immigrants now arriving under Canada's largest pool of agricultural labor.

Several recommendations for meeting the problem were advanced. None met with approval from the experts conferring to lay out Canada's farm labor program for the next year.

As provincial farm labor directors outlined it, Germans in large numbers have been jumping the agreements which they contract to work on farms for a year after coming to Canada. Also, many representing themselves as farmers have proven to be without previous farm experience.

Countries May Break Relations Over Dispute

CANBERRA (Reuters) — The Australian government has denied reports that the Republic of Ireglnd is refusing to welcome its ambassador because of a dispute over cities.

Tension has developed between the two countries because Australia wants to accredit ambassador-elect Paul McGuire as "ambassador to Southern Ireland," or "to the Irish Republic." The Republic of Ireland has refused to accept either, and insisted that McGuire be called "the ambassador to Ireland."

Australia claims the title must "clearly" apply to northern Ireland, which still owes allegiance to the Queen.

The Melbourn Herald reported Wednesday that the two nations might break off diplomatic relations over the dispute.

External Affairs Richard Casey said in Parliament Thursday he did not know when the differences will be resolved.

He denied that there is any suggestion at present to reduce the Australian representative in the Irish Republic from ambassador to consul-general.

Irish officials in Dublin have declined to comment on the dispute.

They appear to think it is a matter for Canberra to decide, and one that time will probably solve if left alone.

QUEEN HAS RIGHTS, TOO

Rex North, a columnist in the London, England, Sunday Pictorial, says that the Queen and her husband have decided to reply henceforth "to highly colored newspaper stories about the royal family."

If they do, that will be a sharp departure from past practice. One may deeply regret the circumstances which force such a break with tradition. But one could hardly force such a break with tradition. Some of the articles printed in recent months about the royal family have been outrageous. They would have been in extremely poor taste had they referred to commoners. Dealing as they did with the personal affairs of a family prevented by custom from taking any notice of such reports, they were grossly unfair.

We are not at all sure that Mr. North, himself, is above criticism. He says that the Queen is "tempting mad" criticism. That thing to the mind's eye a picture which is hardly in keeping with regal dignity — yet the Queen cannot reply. But in this case there is no doubt about the friendly intention behind the phrase, as there have been in many other reports.

It is necessary to draw a sharp distinction here between the different kinds of articles and types of remarks about the royal family.

Some papers, in recent months, have criticized the Duke of Edinburgh, maintaining that he has over-stepped the bounds of propriety by voicing an opinion about conscription, a matter which comes within the realm of politics. Regardless of whether one agrees or disagrees with this criticism, one must recognize the question of the Duke's right to make such speeches as a legitimate subject for public discussion. But surely it should be possible to conduct such a discussion without rancor. It might even be permissible to accuse the Duke of "meddling," but it was in extremely bad taste for one paper to call him a "royal meddler." To those who might object that to draw such a distinction is quibbling, we can only say that most people recognize a difference between an attack on a government and what is a remark by a stupid man.

In an entirely different category are such incidents as recent criticism of the Queen's action in attending horse races, visited by Rev. Donald Soper, president of the British Methodist Conference.

Whether or not the Duke should express his personal opinions on political matters is a constitutional problem. Whether or not the Queen should attend horse races may seem to some of her subjects to be a moral problem, but it is strictly a constitutional question which she alone is required to answer and that answer need be made only to her conscience.

Incidentally, the two classes of criticism, in these instances, are evidence of contradictory attitudes. On the one hand the Duke is urged not to take a stand on issues; on the other the Queen is being criticized for not taking a stand — for we may be sure that if, in contrast to the practice of past monarchs, she abstained from attending the races, her action would be immediately interpreted as a condemnation of horse races.

This question of frequent criticism and gratuitous advice on the Queen and her husband should conduct themselves offends our sense of the fitness of things. They have performed their arduous tasks without thought to themselves, as we well remember in the days of Canada was made. We suspect that much of the criticism comes from those who hope to benefit by the publicity.

The Queen and her husband not only carry heavy burdens. They are also hemmed about by restrictions which their subjects would not tolerate. The very least that they have to expect is that these subjects will leave them in peaceful possession of those rights and privileges which remain to them.

MIDDLE COURSE THE RIGHT ONE

That letter by Magistrate Frederic Watt of Guelph stating that whipping is the best treatment for young criminals is sure to raise a furor.

Those persons who are horrified at any suggestion of corporal punishment will resent the suggestion barbarous. On the other hand the advocates of unsparing use of the rod are likely to want it applied in every case.

We do not think that the views of Magistrate Watt had in mind. There are some cases in which the youthful offender is evidently much more in need of friendly guidance than of deliberate punishment. Many have been sinned against by his parents than he has sinned against society. But there are also other cases where the application of the strap would be a genuine blessing, as a substitute for caping a life-time of trips to prisons and penitentiaries.

We do not agree with Professor G. E. Reaman of Guelph, who says that nothing unpleasant happens in Canadian court. Quite frequently some very unpleasant things happen — things much more unpleasant than the strap.

And any parent, we feel sure, will be willing to tell you that he much prefers a spanking to a variety of other punishments. It has a distinct advantage, in that it wipes the slate clean in a few moments and the child does not long get a new start. And that is what most young offenders need.

And, of course, there is a certain class of crime in which common-sense tells us that the strap is likely to be the most effective. Nothing cures a bully like a beating.

Making the punishment fit the crime is generally considered a good rule and we see no reason why its application should be confined to the handling of juvenile offenders. Corporal punishment would be a most proper method of dealing out justice for certain types of crimes against the person by offenders of all ages. It would be necessary, of course, to adjust the severity of the punishment not only to the type of crime but also to the age of the offender.

DAYS AFTER

We dedicated yesterday
Our prayers of thanks to God to say
But must the Good Lord wait a year
Another grateful word to hear?

Have we no gratitude to show
These command days that come and go?

Morning and evening should not be
For every blessing thankful he!

We should (and prove it oft we can)
To all the world) "In God we trust"

Remembering every day we live
To own we trust, our thanks to give.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

NOVEMBER 27, 1933

This was nomination day for the office of mayor, alderman, Hydro commissioner and school trustees and there was a pretty good attendance of citizens at the meeting in the city hall. Ald. George Bennett presided. The following were nominated for mayor: George O. Rice, who now holds the office, was nominated by F. R. Wotten and seconded by Chas. T. Dolan; Ald. Harold Armstrong, nominated by George F. Ostrom and seconded by J. W. Imlah; Harry Hill, nominated by R. B. Fuley and seconded by Ben Safe; W. A. Woodley, nominated by Geo. H. Bennett and seconded by Ald. William Rankin; Joseph Imlah, nominated by Harry Hill and seconded by Geo. A. Bennett. Present Mayor Rice declined the nomination and Ald. Armstrong both accepted the nomination and will enter the contest for office. The others nominated will give the matter consideration. There were 81 persons nominated for aldermen; this number will be reduced before the time for acceptance expires. Morley P. Ross was elected by acclamation to the office of Hydro commissioner. There were numerous nominations for school trustees: Harold Reid was elected by acclamation for Foster Ward and Robt. H. Adams was elected by acclamation for Baldwin Ward.

Love Letters Irked Censors

(Gali Reporter)

According to an English writer censors in wartime had an unenviable job. Many letters were marked S.W.A.L.K. started appearing on the flaps of letters, they immediately began to search for secret codes.

They eventually found out, however, that they need not worry, as the lovers meant only "Sealed with a loving kiss." These familiar symbols were regarded at first with benevolence by the censors, but as the forces engaged in the conflict love began to enlarge alarmingly.

The spy mania died out from inertness, however, when first the letters E.G.B.F. and L.M.A.O. were found finally H.O.L.L.A.N.D. appeared on the letter flaps. Here surely was a violation of security regulations.

But when the writers were quietly checked up on, it was proved that the countries were not concerned at all. Only the parted lovers were merely saying "Ever giving Best personal thoughts," or "I trust and love you," while H.O.L.L.A.N.D. stood for "Hope our love lives and never dies."

MAKE IT COME TRUE

People generally esteem us about as highly as we esteem ourselves. If we think little of ourselves and our powers, we find that others think little of them also. If we esteem ourselves as of some worth, we find others accept our evaluation. And this attitude—if kept within reasonable bounds—is not considered wrong, but the attitude of humility which the Bible continually enjoins.

It is also true that we can accomplish only about what we think we can accomplish. The statement in the Bible, "According to your faith be it unto you," is the setting forth of a great spiritual principle. Two men can mould their way into a house where Jesus was and bring sick palsied man. Jesus said, "Believe ye that I am able to do this?" They said unto him, "Yea, Lord." And of course they were healed, for they had faith to be healed.

We stand high in the esteem of our fellows if we stand high in our own esteem. We accomplish what we think we can accomplish. There are many things in life over which we have no control. In these areas we have to rely always upon the grace of God to give us what He sees good for us. But there are some areas in which we have considerable power.

We can make things happen if we have the faith that will bring forth substance to things hoped for.

Woodsworth Never Hated

(Ottawa Journal)

Grace MacInnes, a woman of distinction in her own rite has written a biography of her father, J.S. Woodsworth, who was the founder and for years the chief and conscience of the CCF. A work of filial devotion, rich in understandable, little of the affection which runs through the pages of a book which is true of one who, at war with the society in which he lived, yet won the respect of all who knew him.

The biographer once wrote of John Morley that he was "often wrong, often on the wrong side, but never on the side of wrongdoing." It could be said of J. S. Woodsworth. Wrong in his views, often, as the majority of us thought, hopelessly and obstinately wrong, he was incapable of meanness or evil. It was impossible not to admire the lasting integrity with which he carried his flag.

The British socialist J. S. Woodsworth most resembled was Keir Hardie. Yet between the two there was a difference. Keir Hardie said that he "hated the Tories and detested conservatism". Woodsworth remembered the Tories of Winnipeg, of British Columbia, of Vancouver and the bitterness of the Winnipeg strike, but though he opposed their influence with his political career, he could never hate.

The party which Woodsworth founded did not, as many have flourish in our Canadian climate; socialism, as an ideology as any other, has its place in the world's history and traditions. Yet this Presbyterian minister's pages of novelettes seems extraordinarily conscious of enterprising individual, willing to dress himself as a gondolier, and with a ring about his waist capable of rendering O Sole Mio, could make himself a comfortable income. It is a romantic romance of a gondola excursion for a cash consideration.

Gondola Going Going, Gone

(Hamilton Spectator)

We see in the personal column of The Times of London, which always gives a fascinating insight, that a nobleman is anxious to sell his gondola. The gondola is excellent condition. The craft is moored on the River Thames.

One cannot escape the feeling of disillusionment that follows the announcement conveyed. Having conveyed this original, but not to be overlooked, craft from its native Venetian canals, the noble owner has grown weary of it; one can almost hear the liquid notes of Pavarotti or Sorrento fading into the disenchanted distance.

We do not know the state of the gondola market at the present time. The demand, however, can never be very great, for this type of craft appeals only to the dilettante of romance. Unlike in fact the noble owner may find some difficulty in selling it in a cold northern clime, where its appearance among more prosaic craft would probably command rather than romantic yearnings.

Again, a mere gondola by itself is not enough, however excellent the condition. One must have the rescories and the setting. Without these essentials the gondola would be regarded as a gondolier, mounted on the rippling water, and the romantic picture of the runway gutters, the gondola might just as well be a skiff or a common punt.

To attempt to sell this craft on a London market would appeal only to those whose ideas about Venice may have been gathered from Gilbert and Sullivan or the pages of novelettes seems extraordinarily conscious of enterprising individual, willing to dress himself as a gondolier, and with a ring about his waist capable of rendering O Sole Mio, could make himself a comfortable income. It is a romantic romance of a gondola excursion for a cash consideration.

Must Remember War Not Good

(Christian Science Monitor)

Recently a student in the Christian Science Monitor told of making a disturbing discovery. He had asked a high school class in his undergraduate composition course to write an essay answering the question: "What has been the effect on your education of war or preparation for war?"

With practically one voice, the writer says, his students answered: "For me, war is good." Typical was one young man's answer:

"For me, war is good; it has only thing I have known since I was old enough to read a newspaper. Since I was never in combat, I can say that I have profited from it. Profited because of what it did for me, and what it gave me in the way of a first class education.

The United States does not, as some of its allies irrationally fear, want war. Its record in the past three years proves that. But it has not suffered, to the same degree as other nations, from the direct effects of war. And for that very reason it is to be hoped that the Americans realize to the full the cost of war.

Educational benefits for veterans and subsidized training programs are among the most promising young specialists such as war and peace. But the cost vitally necessary. But the cost must be recognized—the heavy cost to the taxpayers, to the educational process, to the young men who may come to accept such a system as natural and desirable. One of the students quoted by the Christian Century writes:

"War, as it is, now, demands college men—men who can design, alter, and create new machines, new chemicals, and new ideas. In the broadest education are necessary for engineers and specialists to think creatively out into the whole field of human relations, with a clear realization that war is the devastating enemy of the moral, intellectual, and social values that education exists to serve.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

DO IT ANYHOW

When I take a good look at any one of the great inventions, I am amazed that a man made America what it is today, I see so much more than what is represented by the telephone, the radio, TV, the electric light, the steam engine, the airplane. I see the invisible face of some great believer and doer, some of someone saying: "Do it anyhow!" That is the answer to the problem of life. It can't be done, individual.

I never met in more people than I ever imagined is that spirit that is unbeatable. It has no voice of failure in its makeup. There is something inspiring in the statement that it can't be done. It will be can. There is abundant evidence in this very world that this has been the secret motto in many a life.

Before men built the tubes under the Hudson River and the one that connects Michigan and Ontario, what was the thought of the men who undertook such jobs? They knew what Edison was up to when he began to play, and I mean to play, through all the nights 'in his shop in New Jersey! Did they think he was the Joe of lighting up the entire globe with electricity? Did they ever dream he was going to make Niagara Falls turn so that it could be heard again and again, long after he and those voices were in their graves? Not a chance! It's the miracles that resulted as that spirit of "Do it anyhow" and "Do it anyhow" And so it was done.

The genius of achievement is the product of our free way of life. It is the product of that love for freedom of the individual. The young man says to himself: "I have a dream. I have an idea that can work. The dream may be but a picture that I have imagined but the idea has something to it that stirs and calls me. I cannot say I can't be done, so I will do it anyhow!" That is what has made America. That is what will make any country great.

One cannot escape the feeling of distinction that this terse announcement conveys. Having conveyed this original, and not to be easily copied, touch the native Venetian canals, the noble owner has grown weary of it; one can almost hear the liquid notes of Farewell to Sorrento fading into the disenchanted distance.

We do not know the state of the gondola market at the present time. The demand, however, can never be very great, for the type of craft appeals only to the dilettante of romance. It is possible that the noble owner may find some difficulty in selling it to a cold northern climate where its appearance among more prosaic craft would provoke mild comment rather than romantic yearnings.

Again, a mere gondola by itself is not enough; however excellent of its qualities. It needs certain accessories and the setting. Without these accessories it is merely a boat dressed as a gondolier, moonlight on the rippling water and the soft accompaniment of faraway guitars, the gondola might just as well be a scow or a common punt.

To attempt to sell this craft on a bleak and wintry evening is to give to those whose ideas about Venice may have been gathered from Gilbert and Sullivan and the pages of novelettes seems extraordinarily meretricious. An unscrupulous individual, willing to dress himself as a gondolier, and with a fine tenor voice capable of rendering O Sole Mio, could make himself a comfortable livelihood. Translations Are Needed

(Ottawa Citizen)

Whatever may be said about Canada as a whole having two official languages, there is no doubt about the position in the Parliament of Canada. The constitution expressly provides that either English or French may be used in the debates of the Commons and Senate, and that the records and journals of these Houses must be kept in both English and French.

It seems therefore a reasonable proposal that the debates should be simultaneously translated into both languages, using similar techniques to those employed at a session of the United Nations and at other international meetings. One result would be to relieve the majority of English-speaking members of the necessity to listen to speeches of their French-speaking colleagues, instead of having to wait for the instant replay available in the English edition of Hansard. Whether such a system would enable these members from trying to understand French speeches and thus to retard rather than advance the cause of bilingualism is a question that only experience can settle.

Study Guild Discusses Censorship

"Censorship — Safeguard or Menace?" was the topic at the November meeting of the Women's Study Guild, held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. H. A. Fraser, Third Street.

A worship service, led by Mrs. Harry Mills, put the members in an appropriate attitude of mind for the study. They were shown how often man makes over God to fit his own ideas, and the seriousness of judging each other.

"Censorship is a very debatable subject," said Mrs. W. A. Campbell, program convener.

"For every powerful argument on one side of a question, a powerful one can be produced for the other side."

At Mrs. Campbell proceeded to expound many of these general pros and cons she reviewed ... early British history. Sometimes freedom has been achieved ... some at the expense of all others.

FORM OF TYRANNY.

Censorship may become a form of tyranny, striking at freedom of speech and expression. It is also a power to protect those who need protection.

Censorship applies in four main fields: (1) military, which is generally accepted; (2) social, where it is violence and evil, (here it is unethical and unauthorized and can be destroyed only through Christian principles); (3) literature and expression, (here the only permanent solution is through education, by which each person becomes his own censor. However there is room to be protected from "Whosoever shall offend one of these little ones it is better that a millstone were hanged about his neck and he were cast into the sea.) Beside these opposing views there is the complete indifference of a large proportion of the population; (4) pictures and entertainment. All that can be said in regard to literature and expression applies also here, but pictures are more effective than literature.

MOVIE CENSORSHIP.

Three means of censorship exist for "movies"; (1) by Hollywood; (2) by the provinces; (3) by the Dominion government.

"More specific aspects of censorship were discussed by Mrs. Holmboe. In describing the Canadian law it was noted that eight of the provinces have censorship boards, the exceptions being the only six states have similar boards.

The Roman Catholic Church publishes a black list for their membership.

"There is some censorship of the press, e.g. in reporting judicial procedures and in regard to indecent, crude or obscene language.

In U.S.A. there is a national association of radio and television broadcasters.

In Canada to date there is no censorship over television, as it is a federal, not a provincial matter. As Canadians have to pay high censorship fees this is a problem yet to be solved.

So-called "comic" strips in newspapers are censored but not in "comic" books, most of which are not "comic."

CLASSICS AND FILTH.

Low-priced pocket books are a curious medley of classics and filth. Booksellers have to accept a percentage of the undesirable magazines and cheap books in order to obtain the desirable.

"On the legitimate stage, does anything go?" was a question asked by one of the members. The correct answer was unknown but sometimes a question of price in book, books and theatres seems to enter.

The listening audience is really a censor to sponsors of many radio programs.

"Is freedom to read endangered in the United States?" was asked.

Publishers and librarians have a duty to provide a freedom to read, to avoid personal bias and pressure groups.

Mrs. Campbell summarized the discussion by stating:

SAFEGUARD.

"Censorship is a safeguard because it covers the gap in our system of education, which is not and cannot be sufficiently broad to cover all cases. It protects those who cannot protect themselves and who most need protection.

Censorship is a menace because it has to be administered by a board, and any appointed board is subject to human fallibilities and biases. It might be influenced by pressure groups and local sentiment. It probably would obliterate one troublesome aspect, only to provide a more objectionable one.

The meeting was presided over by Mrs. A. C. Tooth, vice-president.

The Study Guild accepted an invitation from the Film Council to join them in a December meeting to view United Nations films.

St. Margaret's Guild Holds Successful Christmas Bazaar

A successful bazaar was held by St. Margaret's Guild in the church hall on Wednesday afternoon, November 25. The many guests were greeted by the president, Mrs. Arthur Watson and Mrs. L. A. Phipps.

The room was tastefully decorated for the Christmas season. Sprays of silver-edged evergreen and flowers hung on the blue drapes to adorn the windows. In front of a blue curtain backdrop stood a brightly lighted Christmas tree holding all sorts of tiny packages. Baskets of evergreen and be-ribboned pine branches were placed at various points around the room. Mrs. C. Parkridge convened the decorating, which gave the entire room its festive appearance.

Located immediately to the right of the door was the home baking table which was laden with mouth-watering pies, tarts, cakes, loaves, cakes and cookies. Mrs. C. Brown and Mrs. R. H. Morris assisted by Mrs. F. Ferris convened this table, and served many eager customers.

THREE BOOTHS

To the left of the entrance, a long table extended the length of the room. It was divided into three sections by long decorated Christmas trees.

The first section, which contained the handicraft work, was convened by Mrs. D. Leeming and Mrs. W. Morris, assisted by Mrs. W. Roberts and Mrs. A. Parelle. Here was to be found a beautiful display of aprons, baby clothes, tea towels, hand towels, pot holders, crocheted doilies, mittens, sox, sweaters, blouses and lace-edged handkerchiefs, as well as many other attractive articles.

In the centre section was a variety display consisting of novelties such as Christmas candles, bridge tallies, lapel corsages and white elephants such as jewellery, books, records, games and many other articles gathered from cupboards and dresser drawers. Mrs. S. Sillitoe and Mrs. M. Angus, assisted by Mrs. C. Patridge, Mrs. C. James and Mrs. K. Box were in charge of this table.

CHILDREN'S DELIGHT

The children were delighted with the wide choice of dolls, doll clothes and, toy animals to be found in the end section of the long table. The convenor, Mrs. R. Van Everdingen, assisted by Mrs. T. A. Owens, displayed the dolls' dresses, coats, pyjamas, etc., on tiny hangers suspended from two small clothes lines. Knitted dolls' sweaters, caps and booties, felt slippers, aprons, and little teddy bears were also found there.

Mrs. S. Downman, Mrs. W. Spring and Mrs. C. Male handed the surprise packages from the Christmas tree to the children who came.

Another popular corner for both children and grown-ups was the candy table. Variety boxes of fudge and home-made chocolates were decorated in Christmas colors.

TEA SERVED

Tired with shopping, the ladies enjoyed a restful cup of tea, sandwiches and small cakes in the tea room which was convened by Mrs. J. Ritchie.

The tea table, which was laid with a white cloth, had silver tea services at either end. It was centred with four white candles which formed part of a very attractive centrepiece, made of silver balls and pine cones in the shape of a Christmas tree.

Individual tea tables were attractive in white, red and green covers, centred with tiny silver flower baskets on a Christmas doilie.

During the afternoon tea was poured by Mrs. R. Babcock, Mrs. J. Fitzgerald, Mrs. C. LaRue and Mrs. P. Swan.

The following assisted by waiting on tables: Mrs. L. J. Sigmond, Mrs. R. Burns, Mrs. Dalton Kaye, Mrs. F. R. Clarke, Mrs. F. Bradley, Mrs. L. F. Reid, Mrs. K. Box and, Mrs. D. D. B. Allan.

Also assisting in the tea room were: Mrs. R. Bailey, Mrs. F. E. Moore, Mrs. G. W. Daniel and Mrs. R. L. Brettingham.

The treasurer for the afternoon was Mrs. R. E. Wood.

Mrs. F. R. Clarke was the general convener.

White Cane Club

The president of the White Cane Club, Mr. Albert Alexander, welcomed 25 members and their escorts at a social evening, November 25, at the Y.M.C.A.

Mr. Alexander introduced the entertainers, Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Burke, who sang "Bless This House" and "Smilin' Through." Misses Lee Marjorie and Marla Scott who played the guitar and sang.

Mr. Hogle recited three poems. Mrs. Rollins played the piano and led the members in singing Christmas carols.

Mrs. Matts thanked the entertainers and the Kiwettes for the evening's entertainment and the refreshments which they serve every social evening.

SOLDIERS COMING HOME

OTTAWA (CP)—A big homecoming draft of Canadian soldiers from Germany will land at Halifax next Tuesday, army headquarters announced Thursday. The group of officers and 700 men of the 27th Brigade will arrive on the liner Neptunia and board trains shortly afterward for their homes across Canada. All have served between one and two years with the brigade.

27 Finish Nursing Course Receive Pins, Certificates

CAMPBELLFORD — Tuesday evening marked the completion of the 1953 Home Nursing Course when 27 Campbellford and district ladies met to receive their certificates and pins.

The short course jointly sponsored by the Canadian Red Cross and the Campbellford Home and School Association was taught under the direction of Mrs. Isobel Witham, Reg. N., with special lectures provided by Dr. Betty Bridgit and Dr. D. W. Burgess.

Red Cross Home Nursing is an approved educational program and is designed to help homemakers and potential homemakers become more skilled in caring for the sick in their home. The object of the course is to help individuals acquire attitudes, knowledge and skill which will enable them to co-operate with the physicians and health agencies in the application of the accepted methods of dealing with emergencies, preventing disease, maintaining health in the home and to provide for volunteer nursing services in the event of a local emergency.

TALK ON ETHICS

The class members met at the home of Mrs. Witham and were received by the hostess together with Mrs. Ted Peake, president of the Home and School Association.

Following the presentation of the certificates, Mrs. Margaret Daniels offered congratulations and spoke to the group on the subject of "Ethics of the Nursing Profession."

In her remarks Mrs. Daniels stressed the need for strong moral principles, good rules of conduct, tact and efficiency when dealing with the sick.

She concluded her address by reciting the Florence Nightingale Pledge.

Mrs. Emma Reddick, speaking on behalf of the class, expressed thanks to Mrs. Witham and presented her with a leather handbag as a gesture of appreciation.

Refreshments were served.

Those successfully completing the course were as follows: Mrs. H. C. Kellogg, Mrs. A. C. Newman, Mrs. Francis Frederick, Mrs. Oscar Rannie, Mrs. A. Clark, Mrs. Fred Palliser, Mrs. J. M. Ferris, Mrs. Stuart Anderson, Mrs. Cecil Reddick, Mrs. Ed. Oulingtyke, Mrs. Hector Macmillan, Mrs. Fred Doris, Mrs. Fred Rausch, Mrs. Helen Locke, Miss Mae Callaghan, Mrs. Russell Emmons, Mrs. Maude Fox, Mrs. R. E. King, Mrs. Z. R. ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

MAYBE HER ENGAGEMENT IS A MISTAKE

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a very average young girl who is engaged to be married, and I love my fiance very much, but yet there is something that bothers me.

I like sports, and I'm willing to try anything that he is interested in, but every time I try to do anything I want to do, he doesn't want to.

Before I met my fiance, I was going out with a boy who was very much like myself and he was so much fun together. Lately I've begun to think maybe I made a mistake in getting engaged to the other boy, but I'm so involved up I just don't know.

Mr. Right and I have been seeing each other every day for over a year. Do you think we're setting each other up for that big trouble could be something else?

M. W.

Dear M.W.:

It's perfectly possible that you and your fiance may have been seeing too much of each other, for no matter how much one may love another person, it's important to keep up with other interests, too. In that way, each has fresh and interesting things to tell the other when the two are together, whereas to depend exclusively on each other for companionship makes it inevitable that, sooner or later, they run out of things to talk about and end up bored with each other. This is, of course, especially true if two people haven't enough mutual interests, or enough activities their both enjoy.

However, in your case, I'm not all sure that this is the whole answer to the way you feel now. In fact, what you say gives me a distinct impression that you may be engaged to the wrong man, and that you and he are not as congenial as you should be, or as you once thought you were. Moreover, he sounds to me like a rather selfish individual.

My advice would be that you have a frank talk with your fiance and tell him exactly how you feel. Unless differences are discussed openly and honestly between two people before they marry, they are very likely to find that complications develop very shortly afterwards. If, after you have told your young man about the things that are troubling you about your relationship, they do not improve and you continue to feel doubtful and distressed, then I think you should tell him that you feel it would be better if you both reconsidered your engagement and decided that each of you should go out with others for a period long enough to make sure just what your feelings really are.

THEIR BOY FRIENDS BEHAVE BADLY WHEN AWAY FROM THERE

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We are two 18-year-old girls who have boy friends in the same age.

These boys are wonderful when they are with us, but when they are with their chums they drink, smoke and swear, which they wouldn't even think of doing when in our company. We are very worried about this, since many of our girl friends have seen them acting this way and have brought it to our attention.

Will you please give us some advice on how to correct this situation?

M. and H.

Dear M. and H.:

It seems to me the only way to handle a problem like this is to tell your boy friends directly that you have been embarrassed by what you hear of their behavior when out with other boys, and that unless they can conduct themselves properly on all occasions you don't want your names associated with theirs. After all, you are nice girls, with your own standards of what constitutes the right kind of behavior, and if you want to be known as that kind of girls. Hence, you cannot afford to run the risk of having your reputation suffer through companionship with young men who do not act in accordance with what you believe is right.

If these boys like and respect you as they should, they will want to mend their ways so as not to lose your friendship. If they keep right on acting in the way they know embarrasses you, then they don't really care whether they are friends of yours or not and I would advise you to drop them.

Readers' Friday Column

By Mary Moore

QUESTION:

I usually make Fruit Chili Sauce but not being too "fruity" this summer didn't do much canning. . . . Is it possible to make any tricky canning cannot tomatoes and peaches . . other ingredients can and coming? Thanks! —Marion M. (See answer below.)

QUESTION:

. . . I would like to know if you could give me a recipe for making Chili Sauce with canned tomatoes—Mrs. Wm. R.

ANSWER:

I have shortened both of the above letters and will answer the other parts of them by mail or later in this column. I thought your questions were so good other readers might be interested in my answer.

LATE CHILI SAUCE

Fifteen cups thick well-drained pulp from canned tomatoes (this is roughly equivalent to 30 medium-sized tomatoes after peeling and coring); 6 peaches (or 1 30-oz. tin canned best quality peaches drained); 6 pears, 6 onions, 3 or 4 sweet peppers (red and green) and red), 8 teaspoons salt, 4 cups cider or spirit vinegar, 4 cups sugar, 1 oz. whole mixed pickling spices. If using canned tomatoes drain them well before measuring, also peaches if canned ones are used. Pare and chop pears. Peel and chop onions, seed and cut peppers in small strips. Tie spices in bag with long string. Put all ingredients together and boil until thick—about 2 hours. Pour into sterile jars and seal.

ATTENTION THAIS H.

LETTER:

I love to read your column. The recipes are always what the everyday homemaker wants. . . . A reader wanted Standing Pie. This is our favorite of nearly 50 years. We always have one for callers both at Christmas and Easter. It can be heated for a hot supper. Good on picnics too. Thank you for good reading.—Mrs. G. M. B.

STANDING PORK PIE

(Courtesy Mrs. G. M. B.)

One and one-half pounds minced pork seasoned with salt and pepper, Cover with cold water and let stand overnight. Crust—1 lb. flour, 1-4 lb. lard, 3-3 pint milk, 1 teaspoon salt. Heat milk and lard together. Pour over flour and salt and mix. Keep pastry over a bowl of hot water. Line pan for pie. Drain pork and fill pan. Put lid on pie. Brush with egg yolk. Bake 1 hour in slow oven.

ANSWER:

Thank you very much. I was at a complete loss for this. I hope Thais H. is familiar enough with Scotch pastry cuisine to interpret your directions to her husband's satisfaction.

QUESTION:

I do not know what is wrong with my cakes. . . . but they do not rise much and have a doughy streak through them, just as though they required more baking. I used to bake under my mother's supervision when I was 12 years old, and had better success then than I have now with the aid of (an electric mixer). . . . I thought perhaps the machine is at fault, but have read and revised the directions and can see no mistake there. I have ingredients at room temperature. My stove gives good results with roasts, although I find I have to turn it down and add 10 minutes longer than the average recipe suggests.—Rose S.

ANSWER:

My first thought is that your oven thermometer is registering low. The simplest cake to bake that I know is Jiffy Cake. Would you be willing to make it using Ovaltine bake at 350 deg. by your oven. If it has the doughy streak you describe, make another and bake it at 400 deg. Fahr. If the second cake is a failure too, then we will have to start experimenting with other flours or using cold shortening. It may be that the bottom burner of your oven is overbalancing all over. Could you inspect this or have it done?

JIFFY CAKE

In a bowl mix together in this order: 4 tablespoons room-temperature shortening, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1-2 cup milk, 1-3 cup ovaltine, 1 1-2 cups sifted flour, 1 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Beat with rotary beater 1 minute and smooth about 3 minutes. Pour into buttered-paper-lined cake pan. Sprinkle evenly over top 1-3 cup each brown sugar and fine cocoanut mixed together. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 30 to 40 minutes.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

CONDITIONING THE HAIR FOR A PERMANENT WAVE

Many beauty blessings have come our way during the past few decades but the greatest boon of all is the permanent wave. If you don't believe it, listen to the sad tales told by old-timers who wrestled with kid curlers and smoking curling-irons and who spent so much of their hard-earned for marcels that evaporated at the first sign of rain. Then thank your lucky stars for the wave that stays right with you for weeks, sometimes months, at a time.

With the shoulder length bobbed mode of the movie stars still in vogue, because it is so youthful looking—you can quite possibly get along with two permanents a year. But the short cut is something else again. With many pushing out the shafts to an average extent of three inches every six months, one may need a new permanent three or four times a year.

But I digress.

You have your choice of several methods—the old-fashioned machine, which performs most satisfactorily for thin, straggly hair; the machineless, which is more comfortable; and the cold systems. A word about permanents as far apart as you can. The longer the new growth the better as that takes a tighter coil than tresses which have been treated repeatedly.

It is a wise plan to give yourself several conditioning treatments between each appointment. The purpose is to have the shafts as resilient as possible. To this at night. Give your hair a brisk brushing, treating a strand at a time, holding the strand away from the head and using a rotation of the brush. Brush from the crown downward, from the nape upward.

Have three or four tablespoonfuls of hot mineral oil ready in a cup. After brushing part the hair at various places, apply the oil with medicine dropper along the partings. With well disinfected fingertips, lifting the tresses, massage the scalp, lifting the flesh, rolling and plucking it. Next morning a shampoo—three soapings and three rinsings to remove all the oil—and you're all ready for your permanent.

. . . CHRISTMAS OVERSEAS LIE-MAIL

Speed along your letters and your cards to servicemen, servicewomen.

"Kind messages that pass from land to land."

Kind letters, that show the heart's deep history,

In which we feel the pressure of a hand."

SENDING CHRISTMAS CARDS TOGETHER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Last month, when my Tony returned from two years' service in Europe, my parents announced our engagement and I had had a definite 'understanding' before he left). We're to be married next June. But we're so thrilled at having our engagement announced that we'd love to have our names together on our Christmas cards. Would this be at all proper, Mrs. Beeckman? Please tell us "Yes," if you can!

Mary Tony and Maria

Yes! There it is, Tony and Maria, singing joyously. It will be entirely proper . . . bless your happy hearts . . . for you to send your Christmas cards together.

Note 1: Such intimate cards should, of course, be sent only to your and your Tony's relatives and intimate friends. To business or close friends and to mere acquaintances you should send separate cards.

Note 2: Here's a particularly attractive way to sign these We-Two cards to friends. First you sign your name below the message (which may be hand-written or printed). Then your fiance (I'm sure you like the look-and-sound of that new word in your life!) signs his name on the line below. To relatives and to your closest mutual friends, you may sign "Tony and Maria."

SIGNING CARDS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We were married last June. So this is the first Christmas for us to send our Christmas cards together! I'm going to sign the cards for both of us. Which name should I write first, mine or my husband's? Or is there no rule about this?

Ruth S.

Yes, indeed, there is a very special rule, about this . . . the rule of courtesy. The rule of courtesy is that the person signing the cards courteously signs her or his name last. That is, the wife signs David and Ruth if your husband's name and the cards (perhaps to some to his business friends), he writes his name last: Ruth and David, or Ruth and David Brown.

Sunday School Lesson:

Religion Without Concern

By ROY L. SMITH

The age of Amos was very religious. The altars at Bethel were piled high with roasting carcasses and fatted rams. The ritual was precise, musical and dramatic. The people were punctilious in their observance of the customs and ceremonials, and there was no aspect of life that was not touched by the demands of the temples.

But it was a religion without any semblance of social concern. As long as the altars were piled high with burning sacrifices no one questioned the corruption in the courts or the robbery that was perpetrated in the name of the law. If the prayers were said correctly everyone assumed that all was well, even if it were true that widows were being defrauded out of their land and children because the judges were bribed.

SEVERING JUSTICE AND RELIGION

Into the Hebrew prophets must go the credit for linking justice and religion. Among any other people of the ancient world there were none to whom it would ever have occurred to say that the gods were concerned over the state of the poor, or that the nation could hope for the help of the gods it it administered the laws justly and equitably.

The idea that there was any connection between religion and justice, between worship and the cure of the oppressed, was utterly foreign to the mind of the east. Only among the Hebrews was it taught that men and governments could please God by being solicitous for the oppressed and the helpless.

Here then is the beginning of one of the noblest expressions of religion — social concern. To the modern man it is unthinkable that God is indifferent toward social suffering. To the ancients it was incredible that he should be interested.

JUSTICE A TWO-WAY STREET

It is a serious mistake, however, to assume that the poor, the day-laborers, and the landless are the only ones who suffer injustice in today's world. In many situations the employer, the stockholder, the widow with invested funds, and the rich, also suffer at the hands of prejudice, selfishness, and manipulations of economic powers.

There was a time when we heard much talk about big business, but during the last 20 years we have witnessed the rise of big labor. As the two titans square off for a life and death struggle, the public (always the third part) suffers gross injustices at the hands of both. And one is tempted to think that there might be times when the prophet Amos would come to the vigorous defence of the middle party against both bigs.

ROLE OF THE CHURCH

It is as much the responsibility of the church to cry out against injustice as it is its duty to condemn adultery or thievery. But the role of prosecutor in a world such as ours is an extremely difficult one, for it happens many times that there is an element of justice on both sides of the case.

The Uniform Sunday School less for November 29: "A World of Opportunity for All." Deuteronomy 24: 14-15, 19-21; Amos 5: 10-15, 24; Matthew 19: 16-22; II Thessalonians 3: 7-10; James 5: 1-5; I John 3: 17-18.

The church must never fail to demand justice for the exploited, but it must never allow itself to become the cat's-paw for the shiftless. It must stand ready to condemn the criminal, whether the callous be rich or poor. It must speak out in defence of justice even when the poor rich man is the victim of unfair tactics on the part of his laborers.

The worth of the church in the social struggle will depend upon its ability to draw a clear line of distinction between the right and the wrong, no matter who the wrongdoer may be.

MAKES EGYPT OFFER

CANNES, France (AP) — The wealthy Aga Khan Wednesday said he has offered the Egyptian government £10,000 in an effort to make a "friendly settlement" of a dispute over some land. The Aga Khan bought a tract of land in Egypt on condition that he build a housing project. So far he has done no building and the Egyptian government is pressing him on the matter.

Baby Is Born In Back Seat Of Father's Car

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A girl, whose birth in the back seat of her father's car caused a minor traffic jam, was reported doing well in hospital Thursday.

The father, Albert Parry, was taking his wife to hospital Wednesday night when it became apparent he would not reach there in time. When he stopped for a red light in downtown Windsor he noticed a doctor's car in front of him.

Excitedly he drove his car out of the line and attempted to pull in front of the doctor's vehicle. He misjudged a bit, however, and pulled the bumper off the doctor's car.

"My wife is having a baby in the back seat," Parry shouted to the doctor.

After the baby, the Parry's fourth daughter, was delivered she was wrapped in her father's flannel shirt and taken to hospital.

Recheck Shows Social Crediter Lost by 90 Votes

VICTORIA (CP) — British Columbia's Social Credit government has lost out in its attempt to obtain a legislature seat for Finance Minister Einar Gunderson.

A recheck Thursday of all ballots cast in Tuesday's by-election to fill the vacant Victoria seat in the legislature showed that Liberal George Gregory defeated Mr. Gunderson by 90 votes.

Government sources said following the re-check that it was unlikely Mr. Gunderson would ask for a judicial recount. They also said the government was not expected to attempt to find another seat for him.

Plan Final Sweep Of Lake Superior For Missing Pair

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) — Canadian and American planes planned to make a final sweep of icy Lake Superior waters today for two missing United States Air Force fliers.

The fliers, Lieut. Felix Monico, pilot, and Lieut. Robert Wilson, radar observer, disappeared Monday on a routine training flight. Their F-86 jet fighter plane was last sighted shortly after it took off from Kincross air force base, near here.

The U.S. coast guard Thursday withdrew from the search for the missing fliers, but air force spokesmen said the search would be continued at least through today. The RCAF has been aiding in the search.

Discrimination Not Tolerated By Liquor Bd.

TORONTO (CP)—The chairman of the Ontario liquor licence board says the board may issue written regulations forbidding discrimination because of race, creed or color by operators of licensed premises.

Judge W. T. Robb Thursday told the joint labor committee to combat racial intolerance, if discrimination were discovered, the proprietor in question would be summoned to show why his licence should not be suspended or cancelled.

The committee appeared before the board to charge a Toronto athletic club with discriminatory practices. Testimony indicated Negros had been refused admittance on several occasions.

E. A. Goodman, solicitor for the club, denied the charges and the hearing was indefinitely adjourned to allow the committee to obtain more witnesses.

Tonnage Records Smashed With Month to Go

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Tonnage records in the Welland canal for this season were smashed with a month to go before navigation closes.

Canal officials Thursday released figures up to Nov. 14 showing 16,129,000 tons carried since April 1. There were just over 17,738,000 tons carried last year. Shipping closes Dec. 12.

Canal superintendent J. H. Ramsay said bigger ships account for the increase. Records show 8,725 ships through the canal this season compared to 9,247 trips in 1952.

The biggest cargo increase was in ore—738,000 tons over last season's 2,363,000. Oil was the only cargo below last year's rate.

Deloro Dam Project Nearly Completed Authority Told

Members of the Moira Valley Conservation Authority wound up their business for the year, Friday afternoon when a full meeting of the Authority was held at Shire Hall in Belleville. Reports from the various committees on the year's work were received and a tentative budget set for next year's operations.

As chairman of the flood control committee Alderman Bruce Smith, of Belleville, vice chairman of the Authority, told members that the Deloro dam project was now practically completed. The dam, built to provide a summer flow of water for operation of the Deloro Smelting plant, was completed early in the fall and negotiations had been underway for the purchase of the property about the damsite for use as a recreational park.

Dr. A. S. L. Barnes, technical staff member of the Ontario Department of Planning and Development reported on the College street dam project. This dam, immediately north of the city as a flood control measure.

Dr. Barnes stated that a scale model of the completed dam, now being built at the Toronto University and when this was completed members of the Authority would be invited to inspect its operation.

Warden John A. Klinck as chairman of the parks and recreation committee said that a great deal of work had been done in reference to the O'Hara Mill property, which has voted to be preserved as a historical site. Provision has been made to put in supporting bolts to strengthen the mill building. Negotiations are now underway for purchase of the property.

PROTECTIVE RAILING

The Warden also stated that his committee had ratified construction of a protective railing around the top of the Deloro dam. It was felt the construction was necessary for the safety of the public as the damsite was to be developed as a recreational park.

Reeve Fred Mitchell, chairman of the farm planning committee said considerable progress had been made with respect to farm ponds. Twenty-five applications had been received but investigation of the proposed sites proved 13 as being not suitable. Two of the ponds would be completed this year while the others were being held up due to high cost of construction.

Mr. Mitchell stressed, however that the benefits to be derived from the ponds greatly offset their cost. He noted that the Authority provided grants to assist in the construction of ponds.

Mr. Mitchell also referred to farm planning and said the Authority field officer Don Bell would be available to work with Agricultural Representative A. O. Delrymple. He said it might be worth while to consider the idea of giving small grants to the first ten men to adopt a farm planning program.

Kenneth M. Bird reported on public relations noting that the field officer was available to give talks to school children on conservation. A colored movie on the Moira watershed would be completed next summer and this would be available for showing.

Field officer Don Bell stated that the Authority executive had ratified the purchase of a used tree planter. This would allow more planting to be done, particularly in areas where tractor operation was possible.

PLAY IMPORTANT PART

Authorization was given to Mr. Bell to arrange for the demonstration of a wood chipping machine. He noted that these machines play an important part in conservation as they not only serve as an easy means of disposal of brush and blindings from woodlots, but also serve to produce chips of sizes suitable for poultry litter, cattle beddiar and mulch for orchards and fields.

Vice president Bruce Smith presided over the meeting, while President V. C. Graham, Reeve of Tweed, complimented members and officials on the work accomplished during the year.

The office of Authority Secretary Don Bell was retained at the residence of Col. R. Vanderwater.

Mr. Vanderwater is secretary treasurer of the Authority.

ACTRESS DIES

International Livestock Show Opens at Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — The biggest American agricultural show, the International Livestock Exposition, opens tonight with some $5,000,000 worth of prize livestock and crops on exhibition.

The 54th annual exposition, which opens with a horse show performance, will run through Dec. 5 at the International Amphitheatre at the Chicago stock yards. Some 350,000 persons are expected to attend the exposition.

Farmers and stockmen from 37 states and three Canadian provinces will exhibit in the competitions for 36 breeds of cattle, sheep, swine and draft horses.

Ontario cattle exhibitors include C. W. Donaldson of Peterborough, Grant Campbell of Moffat, J. A. McKinlay of Blenheim, R. F. McKinlay of Moffat, K. E. Deacon of Unionville, W. F. James and S. G. Bennet of Georgetown and A. C. McDermott of Goodwood.

W. J. Brodie of Stouffville, Ont., has entered southdown sheep and F. W. Gurney of Paris, Ont., is in the shropshire sheep competition.

Safecrackings Show Big Jump

OTTAWA (CP) — Safeblowings increased 58 per cent last year in provinces where the RCMP has jurisdiction. The RCMP police all provinces except Ontario and Quebec.

"The RCMP annual report shows there were 190 safecrackings in the year ended March 31, 1953, compared to 122 in the previous year.

Cold at Miami

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The temperature dipped to a chilly 47 degrees in Miami today to make it the coldest Nov. 27 in the 43 years the weather bureau has been keeping records. Previous low for the date was 49 in 1936.

Elsewhere in Florida temperatures were even lower. Tallahassee reported 24, Daytona Beach 38 and Tampa 39.

MAKE NEW TV TUBE

SCHENECTADY, N. Y. (AP)—The General Electric Co. Thursday said it is producing a new transmitting tube that would increase by 25 to 50 per cent the coverage area of low-power television stations. Grady L. Roark, marketing manager for the tube department, said the 2K-22 tube is the most powerful commercial model capable of operating on all 13 standard TV channels.

Organized Gang Tobacco Thieves Said Working

TILLSONBURG (CP)—What is believed to be the work of a small well-organized gang of thieves has taken an estimated $1,000 in baled tobacco in the Tillsonburg district.

A number of thefts of baled cured leaf have been reported stolen in the last few days and Thursday Cpl. Harry Gilchrist of the Tillsonburg detachment of the provincial police, issued a warning to all tobacco farmers to keep their tobacco under lock and key.

The largest loss so far reported was suffered by Fred Clark, RR 1, Tillsonburg, where thieves made off with some 45 bales. All other thefts have been smaller ranging from three up to 14 bales.

Eisenhower Voices Hope Peace to Last

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—President Eisenhower sat down to Thanksgiving dinner with his family Thursday night and voiced the fervent hope that American boys will never have to go to war again.

"We are very, very thankful," the president said happily.

The dinner scene, with a 25-pound turkey on the table, was the trophy room of the Augusta, National Golf Club. With the president were Mrs. Eisenhower, their son and daughter-in-law, Maj. and Mrs. John Eisenhower, and the three grandchildren. The president's son recently returned from Korea.

Eisenhower wore the green jacket which denotes membership in the golf club, and a bright yellow tie with the club emblem —a map of the United States and golf flag marking Augusta.

Times Comments On Gouzenko Case

LONDON (Reuters)—The Times says today that the Canadian government is doing its best to avoid being "dragged into "the rough waters of United States internal policies."

"But the slope on which it stands remains steep and slippery," the paper adds in an editorial on the American request to interview former Russian cipher clerk Igor Gouzenko about Soviet spy rings in North America.

The Times goes on to say that the Canadian government has "obviously gone as far as it can to meet an embarrassing request and it has sought, with evident skill, to change its original loose and dangerous form."

But, The Times contends, if Senator William Jenner, (Rep. Ind.) demands that his Senate internal security sub-committee should set its own conditions for a meeting with Gouzenko and decide what part of Gouzenko's testimony should be published, "then the Canadian government would have an unquestionable duty to call a halt."

"It would then be clear that the (Jenner) group is seeking not information for security reasons, but publicity for personal reasons."

FASTEST MAN IN ALL HISTORY

Scott Crossfield, U.S. test pilot, is pictured at Edwards air force base, Calif., after he had flown twice the speed of sound in a needle-nosed Skyrocket. The National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics announced that Crossfield had made 1,327 miles an hour in its rocket-propelled aircraft—fastest flight ever made by man.—(Central Press Canadian.)

15 ESCAPE CRASH

TOKYO (Reuters) — Twenty-five passengers and five crew members of a United States C-46 transport plane escaped serious injury when it ditched into the Sea of Japan three miles off shore Thursday night, the air force announced today. A rescue boat picked up the survivors within a few minutes. They included 19 members of an entertainment troupe.

Acclamations Given 4 Mayors

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Four mayors were returned by acclamation Thursday as nominations were held in many Ontario centres.

Mayor W. J. Naylor of Oshawa held on to his post as did Mayor William Barr in New Liskeard. Simcoe's Mayor John Jackson was returned along with Mayor Sid Arber of Trenton.

Heber Smith and A. H. L. Harris were nominated by ousted the mayoralty in Barrie, but R. J. Greer was returned as reeve by acclamation.

ELECTION AT SOO

Peter King and Herbert Swale will contest the mayor's office in Sault Ste. Marie where 14 will try for 12 council seats. Three seats on the arena commission are also open.

Nine persons were nominated for four council seats in Sarnia and 10 will run for the four-man board of education.

Fourteen other centres hold nominations today. They are Brantford, Brockville, Chatham, Galt, North Bay, Peterborough, St. Thomas, Sarnia, Stratford, Sudbury, Timmins, Woodstock, Waterloo and Belleville.

All will hold polling elections Dec. 7 except North Bay which vote Dec. 14 and Timmins which vote Dec. 9.

Chinese Chase Shipping Official As Leave Denied

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — When they were refused shore leave because of visa troubles, 39 Chinese Nationalist crew members of a British freighter roared down the gangplank Thursday intent in pursuit of a shipping official. They didn't catch him.

More than half the crew was rounded up on the dock and taken to prison for the night. The ship's departure was delayed.

The freighter, the Greyrock Castle, docked here Tuesday from Kobe, Japan. The Chinese had been on a partial sit-down strike since the ship tied up and the 34 British officers went on shore leave.

U. K. EMPLOYEE FIRED

LONDON (Reuters)—The government said Thursday that one government employee has been fired for Communist associations and 11 others have been transferred since last March 11. The announcement was made in the House of Commons by John Boyd-Carpenter, financial secretary to the Treasury, in answer to a question as to the results of new security methods introduced last year.

Clan's Head Dies

EVERY year since the founding of The Bank of Nova Scotia, in 1832, the publication of the Bank's Annual Statement has provided more than a financial picture of the growth of the Bank. It has reflected the growth of Canada. This year again, the facts behind the figures of the balance sheet offer new proof that The Bank of Nova Scotia is your partner in helping Canada grow.

Thousands of Canadians in all walks of life call upon The Bank of Nova Scotia to help with their personal and business affairs. Daily they use the Bank's services to save money, buy money orders, safeguard their valuables, obtain foreign exchange, transfer funds, buy travellers' cheques.

Every day the Bank makes funds available to business . . . municipalities . . . farmers and fishermen, lumbermen . . . manufacturers . . . for the hundred and one operations that go into making Canada the giant of the North.

The money which hundreds of thousands of Canadians save at The Bank of Nova Scotia goes to work in the form of investments and loans. Much of it goes to help build highways, hospitals, airports, welfare centres and schools; for hydro-electric scheme, scientific research and the development of higher standard of living.

Then there are the thousands of "little" enterprises that are the backbone of Canada's economy. Loans to all these mean increased production and prosperity. In this way savings become an investment in your own country and work to help Canada grow.

MARMORA — The annual election of officers of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Marmora Branch, No. 377, Canadian Legion, was held in the Legion room of the Memorial Hall on Wednesday.

Those elected were: President, Mrs. Jennie Wallman; past president, Mrs. Hester Hilmont; first vice-president, Mrs. Elsie Gray; second vice-president, Mrs. Marion Ritchie; secretary, Mrs. Lucille Bedore; recording secretary, Mrs. Amelia Campbell treasurer, Mrs. Alfreda Leal; executive officers are: Mrs. Winnie Nobes, Mrs. Mary Bell, Mrs. Edna Wright, Mrs. Patricia Osborne and standard bearer, Mrs. Lorna Nobes.

It was decided that the next meeting be a Christmas party with an exchange of gifts to be held on December 16.

Refreshments were served.

W.A. MEETS

The November meeting of St. Paul's Woman's Auxiliary was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. R. G. Winters. Mrs. Roy Frost presented the list of things needed for the bale. The president reported the sale of two dozen MSCC calendars for 1954.

Canon J. M. Brownlie closed the meeting with prayer. The hostess served refreshments.

PERSONALS

Rev. E. J. Cracknell, Rev. J. M. Glover and Mr. H. W. Sabine attended Presbytery meetings at Picton on Wednesday.

Mrs. H. Price was a patient in Peterborough Civic Hospital for a few days this week.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stenchuk have moved on Saturday into apartments over Jones and Potts hardware store.

Baxter Requested To 'Repudiate' Some Remarks

OTTAWA (CP)—A Liberal senator Thursday urged that Beverley Baxter, British member of Parliament, "repudiate" some of the sentiments he quoted in an article in a Canadian magazine.

Senator Joseph Bradette (L.—Ontario) said during the throne speech debate that no outsider is entitled to criticize as Mr. Baxter already has tried successfully to did the election choices of Canadians "and certainly not in a spirit of flippancy which is unbecoming to a person 'well-versed' in public affairs."

He referred to an article by Mr. Baxter in the Nov. 15 issue of Maclean's Magazine. In writing of Quebec province, Mr. Baxter said that, "whatever headaches it presents to the rest of Canada, there is at least one undeniable attraction to Quebec."

Mr. Bradette also objected to Mr. Baxter writing that a friend had told him "the French supply the babies and the prime ministers, the rest of Canada pays the taxes."

SHOULD CHECK

He said Mr. Baxter mentions that he seemed vexed for the accuracy of his quotation about prime ministers and babies but "it would have been so easy for him to have gone to the proper source of information."

"I hope he will find it possible to repudiate the sentiments he has quoted because they are fair neither to the province of Quebec nor to Canada as a whole because Quebec is an integral part of the Canadian federation and not a Canadian nation."

He said Mr. Baxter's reference to Quebec's almost-solidly Liberal vote in federal elections is not one an "outsider" should make.

President Says Buying Power Down

FERGUS (CP)—Clarence A. Millard of Ospringe, president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, said Thursday there is too much interest between the amount received by farmers for their products and the price paid by consumers.

Addressing the annual meeting of the Wellington County Federation of Agriculture, he said farmers' buying power has dropped 18 per cent since 1948 while that of non-industrial workers has gone up 16 per cent.

He said that at a recent federal-provincial agricultural conference he attended, Agriculture Minister Gardiner told farm leaders they'd gone up seven per cent since 1948. "I don't know where Mr. Gardiner gets these figures. They give the general public the wrong impression. This probably has been brought about by the recent bumper crops in western Canada."

UK WANTS TO BUY

Mr. Milligan said Britain is ready and willing to buy Canadian products if the price is fair. Therefore, it was up to Canada to get after the British market.

One way this could be done had already been tried successfully by the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association. The association had sold large quantities of cheese to the United Kingdom at 25½ cents a pound, well below the regular market price in Canada, and made up the difference by a levy on all cheese produced after Nov. 1.

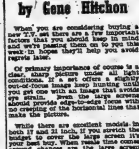
"This plan, or one similar, should be adopted by the producers of many other farm products."

WELL MATURED

REGINA (CP)—Workmen tearing down old bricks and mortar in the basement of a building have uncovered a bottle of whisky 42 years old. The Scotch, still stoutly corked was in a hollow tile.

EAGER VISITOR

TURRO, N.S. (CP)—Many Truro children as well as adults had their first glimpse of a live moose when the animal from the woods roamed town. A young moose visited the Willow Street school during its tour before returning to the country.



SANTA'S HELPERS

Purchases Weekly

CORNWALL (CP) — Clive Williams, mechanical superintendent at the Cornwall Standard Freeholder since 1943, has purchased the Arthur Enterprise-News.

Mr. Williams leaves the Cornwall paper Saturday and takes over as owner of the weekly next Tuesday.

After starting in newspaper work in 1933 as a printers devil on the Orillia Times, now the Daily Orillia Packet and Times, and working in several Toronto printing shops, Mr. Williams came to the Freeholder in 1938. When the Freeholder amalgamated with the Standard, he became head make-up man.

After four years army service he returned to the Standard Freeholder as mechanical superintendent.

NOTED ENGINEER DIES

FARMINGTON, Me. (AP)—Harold A. Titcomb, 79, world-traveled mining engineer and international archery enthusiast, died Thursday. He was a consulting engineer for 15 years for Trepca Mines, Ltd., Siberia, and in 1927 was decorated by Yugoslavia after reopening a lead-silver mine that hadn't been worked since the 15th century.

REACHES HONG KONG—Rev. Alphonse Cacoutte of Matane, Que., a member of the Roman Catholic Order of Foreign Missions, has been expelled from Communist China where he had served since 1936. One of the last Roman Catholic missionaries in Manchuria, he reached Hong Kong and will return to the order's headquarters in Montreal. (CP Photo).

RED TRADE JUMPS

WIESBADEN, Germany (CP)—West German exports to Communist countries reached 30,000,000 marks ($8,70,000) in October, an increase of 8,300,000 marks over September, the West German statistical office said here Thursday. Imports declined negligibly.

When you are considering buying a new T.V. set there are a few important factors that you should keep in mind and we've penned them on to you this week in hope they'll help you avoid regret later.

Of primary importance of course is a clear, sharp picture under all light conditions. It is also important that the set-at-home picture be a pleasing one, free from glare. An image that avoids eye strain, loses the large screen effects and provides edge-to-edge focus with accurate rendering of the horizontal lines that make the picture.

While there are excellent models in both 17 and 21 inch, if you stretch the budget a little, the larger screen fits your best buy. When the time comes to choose cabinet styles, the Hitchon dealer will have the genuine Inglewood TRUTONE.

Your controls and adjustments are important so make sure your new set has the simple type that you need to keep it tuned in locally or Hamilton to get the best picture on a quality T.V. set. Some days you prefer to eliminate conversation to TEST is important though and we can be convincing.

But above all KNOW YOUR DEALER. We act like a doctor in that when it comes to looking after your needs regardless of the size of your bill. Here at HITCHON RADIO we have the complete Inglewood line in all price ranges including the beautiful REGENT-TRUTONE considered by many to have the finest cabinets in the industry. And incidentally folks don't overlook your furniture when you're buying a T.V. set. We have several models that will blend your viewing the best in the city. Pay us a visit at 4 Bridge St.

Driving Tips from R. W. Bryers, Consumer Adviser, Ontario Safety League.

HOW TO PASS PROPERLY

Pass only on straight, level road—never on a hill or curve or at an intersection!

- Be sure you have plenty of clear road ahead of car you want to pass.
- Pick up to passing speed (10 M.P.H. faster than car you are passing) before you move out into left-hand lane.
- Be sure no one is going to pass you. Then signal to driver ahead that you want to pass, by horn or flashing headlights.
- Don't cut back into right lane until you can see the car you have passed in your rear-view mirror.

1. Be sure of enough straight, level passing space.
2. Pick up to passing speed and don't cut back in too soon.

Little Benny's Note Book

My cumret Artie stayed at my house all nite, and this morning we had a race to see who could get dressed and be down to break- fest ferst, a n d we ran into the breakfast room at almost the same time but not quite, on account of Artie being about a yard ahead of me, saying, I won, I beet you.

Like heck, youve only got one shoe lace tied, I said and Artie said, Well what of it? You didn't even have your shertiail stuck in your pants. You're still sticking it in now. You came in second and you weren't even all dressed your- self. So that proves I still won, he said.

The heck it does some fellows wear their sherts outside on per- pose, I said, and Artie said, Yeah and some fellers never tie either of their shoes, so it still proves the same thing.

My, svitch a tempest in a tea pot, ma said, and pop said, Not a speck of a thistledown in a thimble. The boy that really want- ed to win a moral victory would be big about the whole thing and let the other one have the last werd, he said.

Aw, I'll be big about it. I'll let him have the last werd, I said. His shoes wouldn't count even if he came down barefeet. Heck, whats the difference, as long as he dont know what he's talking about in the ferst place? I said. And Artie said, Aw, I dont want the last werd, he can have it. He won the race even with his sheri- tail out, because I let him win it out of charity, even after I won it myself. Nobody can get bigger about it than that, he said.

If you 2 noble caracters would- n't mind starting your breakfast, maybe I can finish mine in peace, pop said.

Meening to drop the subject, which we did.

NEW REPLACEMENTS FOR CANADIAN RED CROSS WORKERS IN FAR EAST

Three new replacements for the Canadian Red Cross welfare team in the Far East are seen above in Toronto prior to their departure on a tour of duty. They are Hazel Hart, 28, of Toronto; Monique Sainte-Hillaire, of Kamouraska, Que., and Sara Lesser, of Montreal. There are 22 Canadian Red Cross workers providing welfare services for Canadian troops in Tokyo, Japan, and at Seoul, Korea. (Central Press Canadian.)

Close Paymaster Result of Losses And Labor Dispute

TIMMINS (CP) — Paymaster Consolidated Mines Limited, which lost $200,000 on its operations during its last fiscal year but which has long been regarded as potentially one of the richest gold mines in this northern Ontario district, closed its doors down Dec. 17.

It announced Thursday it has decided upon the step due to its heavy operating losses and to "other circumstances" beyond its control.

The "other circumstances" mentioned in an announcement mailed to the mine's 350 employees and posted on a bulletin board to be read by the shift reporting at 4 p.m. at the mine at nearby South Porcupine was an apparent reference to rejection by the United Steelworkers of America (CIO) of a company "package offer" of new contract terms.

The mine is one of three in this area not involved in a strike by the steel union which has made upwards of $1,000 more idle, some since mid-July. The others are Dome, employing 1,080, and Pamour, with 425.

For some time the union local at Paymaster has had a irrevocable checkoff of dues. A union demand for the checkoff at the eight mines on strike is a major issue in the strike, along with wage increases and other benefits.

RAISES LAST YEAR

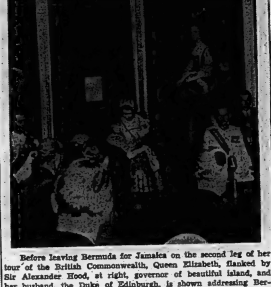
The present contract at Paymaster was dated Dec. 17, 1951, to run two years. A year ago the union gained the contract provision permitting reopening of wage discussions and was granted a general wage increase of five cents an hour. Last October negotiations on the new contract started.

The company in its package offer agreed to union requests for job posting, improvement in vacation terms, payment for five statutory holidays instead of four, a general hourly wage increase of 7½ cents with other adjustments for a trades group and other benefits. The union rejected this offer last Sunday.

Paymaster then withdrew the package offer and proposed renewal of the existing agreement but with a general increase of 3½ cents an hour and a further increase averaging two cents an hour to the 56-man trades group. The company said it was advised Wednesday by the union that the union had not met to discuss the second offer. The management then withdrew the offer.

It said layoffs will start immediately.

PRESIDENT DISAPPOINTED



E. H. Walker of Toronto, the mine's president and managing director, said:

"I was never so disappointed in my life."

He said he feels Paymaster has been the fairest of all Timmins mine mines in its dealings with the union.

The Paymaster property adjoins Dome Mines mining men say rich ore is believed to underlie the Paymaster workings but a drill will take two years or more to reach it.

QUEEN SETS A PRECEDENT IN BERMUDA

Life Behind Iron Curtain To Be Described by Boss

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW (CP) — The customs examination was polite and curt-sory. The currency control was gentle. Caviar sandwiches were served in mid-air by a winsome stewardess with long blonde hair. I am in Russia.

My hotel room is comfortably heated and has a bath with hot and cold water.

The people I see stay in Moscow has been promising.

End of the line for western aircraft is Heishinki. Here you fly by Aeroflot, the state-operated Russian airline, in a twin-engined counterpart of an American Dakota.

There is no stewardess between Heishinki and Leningrad. Another member of the crew showed the five passengers where to hang their coats in a small alcove. The plane's creonne-upholstered seats, built like old-fashioned streetcars, have no safety belts. Apart from that, the flight was normal.

IMPRESSIVE LIGHTS

Take-off from Heishinki was at 4 p.m., just before dusk in that part of the world. We saw nothing of Russia during the flight except the impressive lights of Leningrad and Moscow.

The other non-Russian passengers were a Swedish diplomat and three Finnish business men. All got out at Leningrad for customs and immigration inspections in the main airport building whose carpeted waiting room with red plush furniture was like the "best room" of the '90s.

In the customs hall, a uniformed woman inspector shoved no impedimenta. Cameras or binoculars. I opened my brief case, gladstone bag and an overnight bag.

"What are these books?" she asked in English, and put them back in the brief case when she learned they were Bruce Hutchinson's memoirs and non-political works.

NO MONEY TROUBLES

She asked about currency. I had $200 in travellers' cheques. She could find only $230 easily. She let me declare only $200.

"Declare the rest in Moscow," she said.

I protested that I'd be in for trouble when I tried to cash the cheques.

"Don't worry 'bout that," she said. "It's no (unknown)."

(At the foreign trade bank here next day, an elderly French-speaking woman official said it was of no importance.)

The other foreign passengers were kept apart from the Russians until just before flight time. A Russian came into the group later but kept to himself throughout the rest of the trip.

A blonde stewardess with braided hair joined the aircrew at Leningrad. She brought out box lunches as soon as the plane was airborne.

The sandwiches were crammed with caviar. There were three squibs of Moscovskaya vodka, tinsel-wrapped chocolates and sugar for the tea, served later in a glass.

Two hours and 25 minutes later the plane landed at Moscow airport, 15 miles from the city centre.

An airport representative of Intourist, the state-operated travel services, who met the plane knew where each passenger was to stay. In 15 minutes all were driving into Moscow in a handsome Russian limousine. It dropped me at the Metropole hotel, just around the corner from the Kremlin.

Senator Jenner Leaves Issue Of Questioning Gouzenko Up To Canadian, U.S. Diplomats

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator William E. Jenner (Rep. Ind.) has left the issue of questioning Igor Gouzenko up to Canadian and United States diplomats and pressed forward on other fronts in his Communist-espionage-probe.

He issued a statement Thursday night which said the Senate internal security sub - committee which he heads has nine former government employees, including Alger Hiss, "now under special scrutiny."

It has thus become apparent that Jenner plans no further steps until there is a fresh exchange of views between State Secretary Dulles and External Affairs Minister Pearson.

Jenner's sub - committee had asked, had been rejected, then asked again for Canadian permission to question Gouzenko. The ex-clerk Ottawa Russian embassy code clerk, who put the finger on a Canadian spy ring in 1945 and 1946, now is a Canadian citizen living in publicity-guarded obscurity.

Canada has agreed to the Jenner sub - committee's request provided (1) Gouzenko is willing to be interviewed, and (2) the interview is confidential and under Canadian auspices and that (3) decision as to making public the information gleaned is left to Ottawa.

NO PROMISE

Jenner objected to the last condition, saying his committee could not promise it would keep from the U.S. Congress and from the public any "evidence vital to the security of the United States." He asked Dulles to try for a different arrangement.

Yesterday, when he tipped off Canadian authorities in 1945, said the Red spy ring was "bigger than Watergate." The Canadian government says the U.S. has been kept fully informed and Gouzenko has nothing more to tell. Gouzenko says he might have some useful advice for the Jenner sub-committee.

One of the men named by Gouzenko, Fred Rose, a former member of Parliament, has already fled the Iron Curtain, leaving his wife and daughter in Canada. Rose, a naturalized Canadian born in Poland, served a five-year jail term for his part in the spying.

The Jenner sub - committee learned in Ottawa Thursday that new-General Herbert Brownell's attorney, it that the Truman administration was "incredibly lax toward routing Reds out of key government positions."

Probing Reports Hungry Children Faint in School

GLACE BAY, N. S. (CP)—The miners' assistance committee here is investigating reports that several unemployed coal miners have fainted in school because of lack of nourishment.

Chairman Malcolm O'Handley told members of the committee: "It's a matter of bread and butter, and clothing, too." He said many children here are "in need," he reported.

About 1,200 men were thrown out of work in June when the big No. 1-B pit here closed for mechanization. Only a few have returned to work has been gradual.

Miss Margaret Morrison, assistance committee secretary, said $4,300 has been contributed and all had been used. "We had to tell them there is nothing left for them now," he said.

Rhee and Chiang Kai-Shek, Bonded in Hatred of Redism, To Begin Series of Talks

TELLS OF LABOR CAMPS IN RED POLAND

By SPENCER MOOSA

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Syngman Rhee and Chiang Kai-Shek, two Asian leaders bonded in hatred of communism, today began a series of talks expected to result in tightening their unofficial alliance against the Reds.

The South Korean president flew secretly to this Nationalist Chinese fortress today for talks with conferences with top United States officials in Korea.

Chiang and Rhee clasped hands warmly at the door of Rhee's borrowed transport, which belongs to Gen. John Hull, United Nations Far East commander.

Rhee said his trip was a friendly visit but "something may be brought up for discussion."

The surprise visit started immediate speculation they may join in a new anti-Red bloc.

Observers hotly expected the talks would touch upon at least two key points:

1. The possibility of Nationalist Chinese troops being sent to South Korea if that war is resumed.

2. The problem of what to do with some 14,000 anti-Red Chinese prisoners-of-war in Korea who are due to be freed on the 90th day in January unless they choose to return to communism.

The meeting undoubtedly will draw a stream of attack from the Communist Reds.

FIRST REPORTS

Rhee slipped from his capital of Seoul. The government announced the departure two hours after he left. And the news reports from Seoul were the first word here that he was coming.

Despite all the hush-hush, the U. S. obviously knew of the projected talks, since Maj. Gen. MacArthur and vice-president Nixon of the U. S.

Wife of Editor Of Chesley Paper Killed in Crash

FLESHERTON (CP)—Mrs. Clayton Schaus, wife of the editor of the Chesley Enterprise, was killed Thursday night and three other Chesley residents were injured in an accident near here.

Mrs. Chris Ankenmann was in Markdale hospital in serious condition. Others injured were W. F. Krug and Mrs. E. J. Brown, wife of Dr. Brown, of Chesley.

The four persons were returning from a trip to Toronto when the accident occurred.

Hospital attendants said Mrs. Ankenmann would be removed to Owen Sound hospital during the night.

Police said the automobile in which the women were riding collided head-on with a transport truck during a heavy fall of wet snow.

West's Diplomats Doubt Russian's A-Weapons Claim

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) Western diplomats were skeptical today of a hint by Andrei Y. Vishinsky that Russia may have types of atomic and other weapons that the West hasn't heard.

The chief Soviet delegate to the United Nations General Assembly's political committee made the statement as he opened debate on every proposal in his package plan for cuts in armed forces.

Some delegates suggested privately that Vishinsky made the new remark to distract attention from his defeat, which he could foresee. It was the first time he had given got more attention than the vote.

Then Vishinsky, followed by a record 60-day expedition into the southern highlands, reported to the administrative centre of Fort Moresby that he had found 30 separate tribes of natives openly practising cannibalism.

He described how in one massacre native women were outraged and killed, and a native youth butchered and eaten.

Johnston and other patrol leaders reported they found the first signs of cannibalism have usually been covering of hastily-dug shallow corpses in blackened camp fires. Whether natives practise cannibalism simply to eat, or in order to maintain tribal customs and taboos, has not yet been ascertained.

After government stations have been established, approved missionary organizations will be allowed to enter the areas to promote Christianity in place of native practices, particularly in the matter of mountains, jungle, swamps, fierce and education will follow.

Patrols in New Guinea Trying To Tame Cannibal Tribesmen

By JEFFREY SMITH

MELBOURNE (Reuters) — Australian patrols in New Guinea are trying to tame the cannibal tribesmen who inhabit the jungles of one of the wildest and most remote corners of the world.

The Australian minister for territories, Paul Hasluck, has instructed the New Guinea administration to bring the entire western part of the territory under law and order by the end of next year.

In the hilly, mountainous regions of the territory, which has been the scene of countless massacres, these fierce, stone-age tribesmen at present lead lives untouched by the ways of civilization.

Cannibalism has been practised for centuries by these people.

The job of the initial patrols will be to make contract with the many thousands of primitive savages, most of whom have never even heard of a white man, and to eliminate cannibalism, headhunting and "black magic." The work of these expeditions will be consolidated by other parties who will eventually set up fully-staffed permanent stations.

Some 90,000 square miles tile valleys and grasslands will be patrolled by army engineers.

Patrolmen who have already entered the fringe of the forbidding interior have brought back evidence of terrible savagery. One patrol officer, W. J. Johnston, followed a recent 60-day expedition into the southern highlands, reported to the administrative centre of Fort Moresby that he had found 30 separate tribes of natives openly practising cannibalism.

He described how in one massacre native women were outraged and killed, and a native youth butchered and eaten.

Johnston and other patrol leaders reported they found the first signs of cannibalism have usually been covering of hastily-dug shallow corpses in blackened camp fires. Duke Shows Planes On Christmas Cards

LONDON (Reuters)—The Duke of Edinburgh, keen fan of his recently-gained pilot's licence, has had special Christmas cards prepared showing his four training planes.

A flight of the four planes, single-engined Chipmunk and Harvard and twin-engined Oxford and Dove, were sent over Windsor Castle for a special photograph.

Over Objective

KITCHENER (CP)—A campaign for expansion of educational facilities in three areas of the Roman Catholic diocese of Hamilton—Brant county, greater Hamilton and Waterloo county—has exceeded its goal of $1,100,000, Bishop J. P. Ryan announced Thursday. Total realized is $1,114,572.

Money collected in Waterloo county will be used for new buildings at St. Jerome's College and for planned expansion of the curriculum.

Duke Hands Over Trailer-Home Owners Asking To Be Taxed

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario section of Canada's 18,000 trailer-home owners is asking to be taxed.

The Canadian Trailer Coach Association this week submitted a brief to the provincial government urging that an improved system of licensing the owners of rolling homes be established.

Stating legislation, according to the brief, treats them as transients if their trailers are tourist conveniences. However, 98 per cent of trailers in Ontario are used for years round living.

Most of these trailer homes are owned by young couples centred in the industrial sections of Ontario. Several municipalities have reported ratepayers object to "trailer families" sending their children to schools without contributing to building upkeep.

The association suggests legislation based on an act passed in Manitoba in 1939. A total of 30 of the United States have legislation for the more than 2,000,000 persons in that country living in trailers.

Piloted Rockets Britain's Answer To Atom Bombing

LONDON (AP)—A semi-official Royal Air Force magazine said today that piloted rocket ships launched straight up from the ground will form a key part of Britain's future defences against atomic bombing.

The magazine, Flying Review, said the rocket-propelled missiles will hit 1,500 miles an hour and will be able to reach a bomber height of 50,000 feet in less than a minute.

Attacks at fighting altitude they will have enough manoeuvrability to line up their target and attack it with 32 radar-guided rockets—16 under each wing. The pilot then will glide back to the earth.

CAN'T BE JAMMED

The article said the piloted rocket craft will have the advantage over radar-controlled guided missiles: They will be able to do their work even if the enemy succeeds in jamming the radio beams.

Unlike the guided missiles, they also may be used over and over.

Britain has tested a similar rocket, without a human pilot, in Australia.

HOSPITAL PLANNED

TORONTO (CP)—A group of nuns from Holland who established their first Canadian house in Toronto in February, 1951, said they are planning a $200,000 convalescent hospital here. The Missionaries of the Poor Virgin Mary said they have already secured a 6½-acre site for the hospital.

First Red Move at Parley To Be Demand Big Five Meet

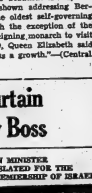
PARIS (AP)—A new Russian note has proposed that the Big Four foreign ministers should meet in Berlin to discuss the German problem and other causes of world tension, but indicates that the Russians are not ready to confer with envoys immediately for a Big Five meeting with Communist China.

This information was contained in a digest of the note made available here today.

The note stated Russia accepted the Nov. 18 invitation of the Western powers for the conference, and suggested Berlin as an acceptable site. The digest indicated the Russians had not suggested a date.

The digest indicated that the Russians had agreed to the conference without any pre-conditions such as were contained in the Russian note of Nov. 3. Among these conditions were that the Western powers should agree first to meet in a five-power conference with China and that the West should agree in advance to break up the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the United States air bases around the world.

The note, as outlined here, stated that since it was clear from previous talks that all four powers are seeking peace, Russia therefore is glad to take up the problems in Europe which have been causing tension.



The note, as outlined in the digest, did not suggest an agenda for the conference, but asked for any preliminary meeting below the ministers' level to discuss agenda questions.

The digest said, however, that since previous exchanges had indicated Asia was one of the problems the Russians would demand at the four-power conference, the four-power conference be arranged to discuss Asian problems in connection with the conference.

Observers here thought that in this provision lies the gimmick as often found in Russian notes which has made acceptance of their proposals so difficult for the West.

However, there was nothing in the digest to indicate that the Russians would insist on agreement for five-power talks before discussions on European issues or contacts with the western foreign ministers.

FOREIGN MINISTER IS SLATED FOR THE PREMIERSHIP OF ISRAEL

Moshe Sharett, 57 - year - old foreign minister of Israel, has been nominated by the Mapai party as prime minister to succeed David Ben-Gurion, who is retiring in December. Mr. Sharett, who has been acting prime minister during Ben-Gurion's vacation, would retain his portfolio as foreign minister.—Central Press Canadian.

Not Flippant

LONDON (CP) — Toronto-born Beverley Baxter, British member of Parliament and newspaper man, said today that Canadian Senator Joseph Bradette "mistook humor for flippancy" when he scolded an article Baxter wrote for Maclean's Magazine.

Baxter said he hadn't meant the article to be taken too seriously and he hadn't intended to be "flippant," as Senator Bradette charged.

NEW TOY

Looking as pleased as a boy with a new toy, President Eisenhower tried out a new gold-plated telephone, owners is asking to be taxed.

The Canadian Trailer Coach Association this week submitted a brief to the provincial government urging that an improved system of licensing the owners of rolling homes be established.

Stating legislation, according to the brief, treats them as transients if their trailers are tourist conveniences. However, 98 per cent of trailers in Ontario are used for years round living.

Most of these trailer homes are owned by young couples centred in the industrial sections of Ontario. Several municipalities have reported ratepayers object to "trailer families" sending their children to schools without contributing to building upkeep.

The association suggests legislation based on an act passed in Manitoba in 1939. A total of 30 of the United States have legislation for the more than 2,000,000 persons in that country living in trailers.

THOMASBURG

THOMASBURG W.A.

THOMASBURG — The Women's Auxiliary of the United Church held the monthly meeting in the vestry. At noon a pot luck dinner was served.

The regular devotional period was conducted by the president, Mrs. Baldrick.

Mrs. A. Elliott spoke on behalf of the offerings to the missionary and maintenance fund. She gave a short reading on the work done in Korea, and the scholarships for extended courses, sponsored by the Women's Missionary Society.

Mrs. H. Morton, also gave a reading.

Mrs. Farrow installed the officers for the coming year.

The new executive is as follows: president, Mrs. H. Vesco; 1st vice president, Mrs. H. Brough; 2nd vice president, Mrs. H. Kronkright; secretary, Mrs. H. B. Richardson; treasurer, Mrs. H. Elliott; missionary monthly secretary, Mrs. G. Morton; card convener, Mrs. H. Thompson.

The Christmas meeting will be held in the manse on the afternoon of December 19th.

Despite the large number of sick folks in this district, attendance at the United Church Sunday School, numbered 56.

Preparations are being made by the teachers for the Christmas entertainment to be held the week preceding Christmas.

Thomasburg school sessions were terminated early on Monday to allow the teachers to attend a teachers' meeting in Tweed.

Several members of Thomasburg United Church attended a board meeting of the circuit, held in West Huntingdon Church, Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Yeteman, Trenton, and Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Wadsworth, Belleville, were guests on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Yeteman. Mr. Harold Yeteman, Skaneateles, was also a visitor on Sunday.

Guy Thompson has been under a doctor's care since Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Carter and family visited in Toronto last Thursday.

VANCOUVER (CP)—A missionary of the sea plays a vital part in the lives of 4,000 persons along the lower British Columbia coast.

From boat to boat, the mission ship Columbia II skippered by Capt. George A. MacDonald, a friendly 70 - year - old Vancouverman, brings spiritual and physical comfort to loggers, fishermen and settlers in some 225 isolated communities.

The sturdy, 100-foot diesel-driven ship piles from Stuart island and Cape Scott at the northern tip of Vancouver island.

VETERAN CHAPLAIN

The chaplain is Canon Heber Greene, a veteran missionary, and the ship's medical facilities are directed by Dr. J. G. Kempff.

In the tiny chapel, there have been weddings, christenings, confirmations, and funeral services.

"We handle hatches, matches and dispatches," says a crew member.

Many mercy missions are undertaken by the 69-year-old Columbia. Last year she logged 31 emergency calls for sickness and accident cases.

"Calling the Columbia" is a frequent call over the ship's radio telephone, coming from the coastal districts dotting the rocky island shoreline.

ONE MISHAP

She takes nine six-week cruises a year, and only once has she suffered a mishap. In 1948 she piled into a reef in Warner bay and was laid up some weeks for repairs.

Capt. MacDonald has been with the Columbia for 17 years. With him he has engineer Bob McCrea, Jack Owens, as cook, and Bob Anderson, deckhand.

O'f the main deck is a two-bed hospital equipped with examination table, dental chair, drugs and surgical instruments. Only minor operations are performed. Serious cases are taken to hospital at Alert Bay, the Columbia's home port, 325 miles northwest of Vancouver.

There are recreational comforts, too. There is a reading room, much used by lonely settlers, and a movie theatre, where various films are shown during visits to upcoast ports.

"We feel we cover the whole life of the people," said Canon Alan Greene, superintendent of the mission and brother of the Columbia's chaplain.

BETTER THAN PLANE

Talk of the mission ship being replaced by an airplane gets little sympathy from mission authorities.

Storms and fogs have been battled by the Columbia on mercy missions. Under similar bad weather, a plane would be grounded.

"The plane lacks the personal touch," added Canon Alan Greene, and his views are shared by Capt. MacDonald.

The first mission boat was launched by Rev. John Antle in 1905 when Columbia Coast Mission was founded. It voyaged for many years along the coast, was replaced by the Columbia II. The old and venerable Columbia II, too, may be replaced, this time by a smaller vessel.

Of the 13,259 miles covered by the Columbia in 1952, 1,295 miles were logged on emergency calls. She made a total of 1,047 calls, during which 807 cases were treated. Her sister ships, the John Antle, the Rendezvous and the Veracity, travelled 6,000, 2,383 and 476 miles, respectively. Three vessels are confined to mission work only.

Each coverage entails an annual expenditure of $75,000, most of which is incurred by the Columbia. The Community Chest of greater Vancouver bears the major part of the ship's operating expenses, with the provincial and federal governments contributing small grants. The balance is provided through church contributions and private donations.

Coastal Vessel Chaplain

Canon Heber Greene, veteran chaplain of the hospital ship Columbia II, which plays a vital role in the lives of 4,000 persons along the lower British Columbia coast, holds in his arms one of the many children he has christened on his trips. The ship is one of four operated by the Columbia coast mission of the Church of England in Canada. Besides its religious functions, the Columbia provides medical and recreational facilities along the coast. — (CP from National Film Board.)

Denies Stating Men Navy Rejects Are Morons

CALGARY (CP)—Rear Admiral H. E. Pullen, chief of naval personnel, has denied a news report from Vancouver which quoted him as saying most of the men rejected by the Royal Canadian Navy are "morons."

"I never said any such thing," he said in a Calgary interview Thursday night. "I resent it being said that I did.

"I could say, that men applying did not meet with our standards, but how can one man pass judgment on another in such a way."

The report he denied was published in a Vancouver newspaper and carried by The Canadian Press.

Seventeen were reported hurt in Woodville alone. —(Central Press Canadian.)

Buffalo Area Is Hit By Heavy Snowfall

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Cold Canadian winds swept across the warmer waters of Lake Erie Thursday and dumped up to five inches of wet snow over most of the Buffalo area.

Snow fighters were called from Thanksgiving celebrations to fight the battle of slush.

Hardest hit was the lake front between Buffalo and Angola, N. Y. Eight inches of slush filled the streets of Niagara Falls, N. Y., and Lewiston.

Snow flurries and occasional squalls were predicted for today and tonight.

Two airline flights out of Niagara Falls, N. Y., were cancelled Thursday and flights out of municipal airport here were delayed for a four-hour period.

Contract Talks Are Adjourned For One Week

MONTREAL (CP) — Contract talks between representatives of some 120,000 railway workers and company officials, have been adjourned to next week.

Frank H. Hall, chairman of the negotiating committee of the 17 unions whose members man shops, stations and offices of Canada's two main railways, said talks will be resumed Tuesday.

"So far, we've simply been exploring the situation," he said Thursday. "Discussions have been satisfactory."

The non-operating unions seek fringe benefits in their new contract, chiefly improved pay for work on statutory holidays and Sundays, extended paid vacations and more generous sickpay provisions.

J. R. Kempton and W. M. Armstrong, assistant vice-presidents of personnel, represent Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways.

Other lines involved are the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Railway and the Ontario Northland.

Last year, the unions won a 15-cent-an-hour increase and dues checkoff after protracted negotiations. The present contract ends Dec. 1.

Mr. Hall is also vice-president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks (AFL-TLC).

Will Sail Again

TORONTO (CP)—The cruise ship Cayuga is expected to sail again next summer on the Niagara run.

Ownership of the vessel passed from Canada Steamship Lines to the Cayuga Steamship Co. Ltd., this week.

The Cayuga will resume a service which operated continuously between Toronto and Niagara from 1878 to 1951, when the CSL cancelled the cruises because of what it said was lack of business. The new owners also plan metropolitan Toronto waterfront cruises.

THINKS WOMEN CAN DO BETTER

Mrs. Mary McIntosh, women's president of the Manitoba farmers' union, showed no hesitation in telling men what she thought of them at the 'annual farmers' parliament in Ottawa. Then it came to marketing farm products, Mrs. McIntosh said: "men had made a mess of it and if they couldn't do better, they could step aside and let women run the show. With a turkey drumstick to emphasize her point, she said: "If we rules more than one drumstick per person for Christmas dinners, down go the prices of turkeys." She advocated stabilized prices for farm products.—(Central Press Canadian.)

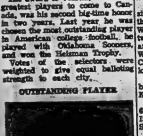
Vessels Named Most Outstanding Player of Year



TORONTO (CP)—Billy Vessels, 21-year-old hard-plunging back with Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, today was chosen Canada's most outstanding player of the year.

The dark-haired 185-pound all-star was given the Canadian Schenley Trophy and $1,000 cash award at a special pre-game Grey Cup final presentation. Sports writers and sportscasters from the senior football cities of Canada selected the backfielder, one of the mainstays of the Eskimo club this season.

The award to Vessels, one of the greatest players to come to Canada, was his second big-time honor in two years. Last year he was chosen the most outstanding player in American college football, he played with Oklahoma Sooners, and won the Heisman Trophy.

Votes of the selectors were weighted to give equal balloting strength to each city.

OUTSTANDING PLAYER

Billy Vessels, 21-year-old halfback with Edmonton Eskimos, has been chosen the outstanding player in Canada this year, his first year in Canadian football. The hard-plunging backfielder wins the Canadian Schenley award and $1,000 in cash. Vessels, formerly of Oklahoma Sooners, won the Heisman trophy in 1952 as the outstanding college player in the United States. The 185-pound player also was chosen on the Canadian Press all-star Western Interprovincial Football Union team this year.—(CP Photo)

Stampeders Win Over Royals 5-2

CALGARY (CP)—Calgary Stampeders trounced New Westminster Royals 6-2 Thursday night and moved within two points of the Western Hockey League's leaders, Vancouver Canucks.

Calgary scorers were Steve Wihak, with two, Walt Trenthi, Archie Stone and Pat Egan. New Westminster's marksmen were Pierre Brilliant and Ron Matthews.

Minor Hockey

Midget teams numbers two, three and five emerged victors in the Thursday night league opening in Memorial Arena. In the "Senior" division, Blacks defeated the Maple Leafs 5-1.

Midget team No. 2 rattled home six goals to a single return in their game with Team No. 6. Wright and Irvine each scored twice for the winners with Asselline and Shalley getting the other two. Wright and Irvine drew assists, Crull scored the lone goal for the losers unassisted.

Team No. 5 blanked team No. 4 by a 3-0 score with Young and Hodges being the marksmen.

Team No. 5 defeated Team No. 6 by a 3-1 count with Shalley, Irland and Young the scorers and Sinclair scored for the losers.

Stewart with two goals both assisted by Muirhead paced the "Senior" Black Hawks victory over the Leafs. Ted Bowen, Jim Woodcock and Burch Hull scored single, Roddy Perry scored the only goal for the Leafs.

The third set of Saturday morning pee-wee and bantam hockey games will be played at the arena Saturday morning with the following teams meeting:

Intent on winning their first Grey Cup in 12 years, Winnipeg's powerful Blue Bombers lost no time in taking to the practice field at their training camp at St. Andrew's college, Aurora, after reaching Toronto. Here, prepping for their Grey Cup clash this Saturday against Hamilton, are, from left, Neill Armstrong, ace Bomber pass receiver; Bud Korchak, kicking ball held by Tom Casey, and Geoff Crain, alternate quarterback. The last time the two teams met, back in 1935, the Bombers dumped the Tigers 18-13 to give Western Canada its first Grey Cup.

Tennis Club Had Good Year Meeting Told

The annual general meeting of the Quinte Skating and Tennis Club was held last night in the clubrooms at Queen and Dufferin Streets, with the president, Jack Dickens in the chair.

Reports were received from Mrs. Anton, treasurer of the Ladies' Auxiliary, and from Bob Miller, club treasurer.

President Dickens reviewed the highlights of the past year and noted that the club was now within measurable range of paying off the outstanding debt. The annual carnival in particular, had helped considerably in achieving this happy situation.

The election of directors results in the following being elected to the board for 1953: Mrs. J. N. Anton, Roy Brickman, D. Burr, Les Digby, Gordon Davies, John Field, Mrs. Eve Locy, Bob Miles, Grant Murray, Neil O'Neil, Mrs. R. O'Connor, Wilbur Sherry, Bob Smith, Al Wilkes and Eric Whitfield.

The newly elected directorate will meet next Sunday afternoon to elect a president, two vice-presidents, secretary and treasurer from among their number.

After the meeting the members were served with refreshments by the ladies.

Max Macon Will Manage Montreal Royals

MONTREAL (CP) — Hector Racine, president of Montreal Royals of the International Baseball League, today announced that Max Macon will succeed Willy Alston as manager of the club.

Macon, manager of Fort Worth in the Texas League, will be signed to a one-year contract, the same as Alston received when he was signed earlier this week to succeed Charlie Dressen as manager of Brooklyn Dodgers.

Macon was a pitcher with Royals in 1940-41-42.

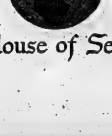
PLAN NEW CHURCH

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—The new Anglican parish of St. Columba was "set aside" Thursday night during a brief ceremony conducted by Bishop Walter Bagnall of Niagara in a suburban Grantham township school near where the church is to be constructed early next year. Bishop Bagnall confirmed the appointment of the Rev. Paul A. Moore as rector of the new mission.

AUSTRALIAN CRUISE

OTTAWA (CP)—The cruiser Ontario, one of Canada's mightiest warships, will sail for Australia early next year on a three-month training cruise. A navy spokesman said details of the cruise have not been made final but that the visit will coincide with that of the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh.

30,000 Miles of Goodwill for Canada



NORTH AND SOUTH of the Equator ... on both sides of the Atlantic ... in half a dozen different languages ... the Seagram Collection of Paintings of Canadian Cities is making front page news for Canada.

Spanning three great continents, the International Tour of the Seagram Collection is telling Canada's story of achievement as it never has been told before—interpreting our country to the peoples of other lands in the graphic idiom of a language always and universally understood.

And everywhere this airborne art gallery has touched down—for a brilliant formal preview and a one-to-two week public showing—the response has surpassed the most optimistic hopes held by The House of Seagram when it commissioned the painting of fifty-two portraits of Canadian cities by distinguished Canadian artists and planned to send the canvases on their 30,000-mile goodwill flight.

Hundreds of columns of newspaper comment and pictures, scores of radio and television broadcasts, newsreel films and animated public and private discussions all testify to rapidly mounting interest in Canada and friendly receptiveness towards all things Canadian. Already more than 60,000 persons have studied the paintings and carried home brochures reproducing the paintings of the twenty-two Canadian cities in full colour.

More important, these new foreign friends have carried away vivid personal impressions of Canada as a great and growing country—a land of tremendous natural and industrial resources and remarkable human resourcefulness.

Reds Nip Barons, Hershey Wins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two games played Thursday night in the American Hockey League moved the second-place Hershey Bears two points nearer the league-leading Buffalo Bisons and hoisted the rapidly-improving Providence Reds into contention for top spot.

Providence got four goals in eight minutes to down Cleveland 5-3, while the Bears were collecting Pittsburgh Hornets 6-3. Hershey now is six points behind the Bisons and Providence five.

TWO APIECE

At Hershey, Skip Teal and Dunc Fisher were the Bears' big guns, scoring two goals apiece. Arnie Kullman and Jack McIntyre were the other Hershey goal-getters. Andy Bathe, Frank Sullivan and Danny Lewicki counted for Pittsburgh.

At Providence, four goals in the last eight minutes of the second period broke a 1-1 deadlock and enabled the Reds to win handily. A goal by Paul Lafleur of Providence in the first period was nullified by Cleaves' early entry in the second frame. Then the roof fell in on Cleveland. Chris Hanson, Pete Kapusta, Pat Egan and Chuck Scherza scored in rapid succession. Scott Cowden was the other Cleveland marksman.

Stage Is Set, Principals Ready For Canada's Greatest Sports Spectacle

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Cayser, Sports Editor

CANADA'S BIG DAY!

A cold and bleak mess heavily tinged with yellow and black will blanket this fair country of ours tomorrow.

The Gonzalezes and Fourmeus, the McCarthys and Jeanettes, Parmenjios, Washingtons, Londons and Ottawas, tacos, throats of war, sauerkaps and diverses and even the National Hockey League will be relegated temporarily to the limbo of forgotten things.

Britain and her blokes can have their Wembley, the Il'Australasul, the Spurs and the jolly old Football Cup. The Glubs from the Guyenne and the mighty from Manhattan can have their beloved Dodgers and powerful Yanks. Malenko can have his Mayday and Zapotek. Australia can have her "Asher and Ja Bella France can have the Grand Prix.

For tomorrow is Canada's Grey Cup Day, and that's about all that matters to the sports-minded of the best dangod country in the world.

Over thirty thousand of Canada's "Kings and Queens for a Day" will view an event that in a comparatively few years has mushroomed into a routine gridiron fixture to the mightiest spectacle known in Canada's archives of sport.

It is estimated that 11 million ears from coast to coast will be figuratively glued to radio receivers. In Toronto and within range of the cameras thousands of eyes will be focused on television screens.

In Hamilton, home of the Tiger Cats, and Winnipeg, hangar of the Blue Bombers, tempus will cease to fugit.

As you read this, the "invasion" of Toronto will have started. For hundreds of Hamiltonians and Winnipegers, a humid and metropolis, will witness a pre-game miniature Mardi Gras celebration that for sheer color and spectacle could well eliminate the big street thrill.

Hotels are crowded to the laundry bins. Motels, cabins in the outlying areas are packed with excited football fandom. Out-of-town relatives of native Torontonians tax the family ties to the straining point with the annual Grey Cup visitation.

And this gay pigskin extravaganza is the "baby" of the East and West pro sports, and started back in 1948 when the Calgary Stampeders in all the riotous colorful cowmanderie of the west, took staid old Trawnto by storm. They brought cowboys and Indians, chuck-wagons and pacific. Glamorous cowgals and brawny sinious-haired panchers, who substituted guitars for guns, square-danced on main thoroughfares until the silvery shafts of dawn stabbed the murky night haze.

Rotunda of the Royal York, King Edward and other well known Toronto hostelries were crammed with laughing, cavorting revelers of fun-making harmonicas. Thousand lined the streets for a parade that would make the old-fashioned circus wood look like a one-man band in comparison. They cooked flapjacks on the city hall steps. Mayor "Buck" McCallum, under a ten-gallon white sixteen, rode a handsome palomino stirrup-to-stirrup with the Calgary chief, astride a pinto.

And to make the western football Lochinvars' happiness complete the Stampeders defeated the Ottawa Roush Riders to win the Grey Cup. The post-game celebration beggars description.

In subsequent years, the invasion of the western champions has brought the pre-game celebration. And there is no reason to believe this year's spectacle will be dimmed by any of its predecessors.

There will be a hazy parade with dozens of beautiful girls. Probably even in a tee-back per plain dizzy followed by a ball at which Miss Grey Cup will be chosen. Aircraft and special trains will roar in from the west.

And it won't be an all-western show. Not by a long shot. Those fighting Hamilton Tiger-Cats will be backed by a fandom that will match cheer for cheer, table for table and argument for argument with anyone wearing the blue and red of the Bombers. Thousands of loyal Ti-Cat supporters will be there crowding the air with their famous battle cry "Oaky-Wa-Wa." No siree, the Bengals will not lack for support.

The classic itself bids fair to be one of the closest fought battles in the history of the battered old pewterware. Experts favor the Ti-Cats, but there is plenty of wild western dinero to be had, swaddies. These Peggers are not afraid to back their Bombers with pocket ballast. It should be a rugged battle with perhaps the breaks of the game swinging the pendulum of victory.

While the public prists have made no mention of malpractices, there will, in all probability, be some of the bad-hack operators in action. Tickets for the game are scarcer than five-year wedding anniversaries in Hollywood, but no doubt a few will be available if you want to pay the price.

At the famous Stamps-Riders game in '48, parisboard-alsony-price fanatics parted with five ten-dollar bills for a single ticket. It's all in the way you look at it.

KINGSTON TONIGHT

It will be a determined crew of Monroe that skate out on the ice tonight in what should be a torrid battle with the Kingston Canadians. The Canadians will be shooting desperation to the rampaging Oshawa Truckmen on Wednesday night are in no mood to be trifled with, and with the Monroe still smarting from that Orillia setback of a week ago, the clash should be a thriller. The Panthers, who are gradually finding their stride, hook up with the Peterborough Petes at Peterborough tonight, and this results of both games may have a great bearing on the standing. A win for the Panthers and a loss for Monroe will see our side in the cellar. A win for Monroe will assure them of fourth place and if the Petes lose, the Dorun crew will hop into the third slot, with the Lindsayites and Pontiacs tied for fourth.

Drama Hits An All-Time High; Cats Seek Secret Hide-Out As Bombers Shake 'Climate' Jinx

By JIM HARYARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

AURORA, Ont. (CP)—Eastern air made Winnipeg Blue Bombers feel like a soggy football for two days.

"It leaves you like a wet sack sometimes," says coach Clegg Trafton. "You gotta be a doctor, coach and crystal-gooper in this business."

Trafton had just finished putting the Bombers through a drill at nearby St. Andrew's College in preparation for their Grey Cup game against Hamilton Tiger-Cats in Toronto Saturday when he said it.

"It's a big change when you move down here from that brisk, dry air on the Prairies. I didn't notice it much but the players nearly wilted during the drills shortly after they arrived."

The players apparently felt the change after a brisk drill at practice Wednesday. Most of them took time only to eat a steak dinner before they went to bed.

Big Zeke Bratkowski, the 26-year-old flying wing-and kicking ace, was only one of many Bombers to notice it.

"Man, was I beat yesterday (Wednesday)," he said. "I couldn't get to bed fast enough. Sleep came fast."

However, Trafton figures the air "will be like a shot in the arm by the time we get to the Tiger-Cats." He added:

"They've had a whole a couple of days to get used to it. The boys were pooped Wednesday but were the rooting to get to it first about us, buster. We're okay."

CHECKS GAME PLANS

Trafton, who has secluded himself in his motel room since the Bombers arrived, spent most of Thursday going over the offensive and defensive plays he will use against Tiger-Cats. He won't discuss any thing about them but called in a player every so often for a chat.

The 38-year-old Trafton didn't let up the secrecy order on the practice sessions.

"Nobody gets in," he said. "Oh, the odd guy manages to sneak in somehow, or other. But I don't want to see anyone not in a Winnipeg sweater around that field."

Trafton said he was waiting for short drills. But they are going well over two hours.

"That one on Wednesday went three hours," said Korchak, the 190-pound Winnipeg who won the Western Interprovincial Football Union scoring title this year and was named to The Canadian Press all-star team.

Bratkowski, 21-year-old guard in his second year with the Bombers, came out of Thursday's practice feeling "like a million bucks."

"The air's a good change, he said. "I haven't had time to get the jitters; nobody has."

"I think almost anybody will," interjected Trafton.

Seven Rinks From Canada Are Unbeaten

HAMILTON (CP)—Three western Canada rinks, two from Quebec, one from the United States and one from New Brunswick were among the 16 unbeaten quartets as the semi-finals of the fourday bonspiel celebrating the Hamilton Thistle Curling Club's diamond jubilee ended.

Finals will be played tonight. R. M. Allan of Kingston defeated C. J. Watson's Chicago entry and the Royal Canadian Curling Association rink skipped by Hec Baker, Regina, and all nine of Montreal curlers skipped by F. C. Binkes, Winnipeg, all of which met either C. Rankin, Quebec, or G. Hill, Ilfracombe, Grand National Association, for the Thistle Past Presidents' Trophy.

Three Saskatoon rinks, skipped by H. Palmer of Calgary and H. Horsak, Saskatoon, were the other two unbeaten crews after Thursday's play. Palmer defeated a favored Hamilton crew skipped by A. Ross Tarlton, 12-7, in the morning and came back in the afternoon to take an 11-4 decision over W. Hellard's Dundas, Manitoba, rink.

The Horsak foursome won over Dr. L. W. Sturgeon's Welland rink, and again over W. J. MacKay's Montreal rink. Scores were 14-1 and 8-5.

CAHA Will Take Contract Fight To Supreme Court

VANCOUVER (CP)—Doug Grimston, immediate past president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, Thursday said the CAHA will carry its fight on hockey contracts to the Ontario Supreme Court.

In a recent decision by an Ontario county court, two former Ontario Hockey Association players in their contention that contracts signed with the team were not binding.

Grimston, who said he would resign Dec. 6 for emergency CAHA meetings in Toronto and Montreal, said "the county court judge at Renfrew, Ont., ruled that the players do not recognize contracts with the CAHA. This decision could have far-reaching effects and we can reach the Supreme Court."

FANS LEAVE FOR FINAL

WINNIPEG (CP)—The second big wave of Winnipeg Blue Bombers supporters began rollicking to-ward Toronto by rail Thursday night for the last two Grey Cup specials taking western fans to Saturday's game.

Their departure bought to an estimated 1,500 the number of Winnipeg fans going east by train.

Football Has Mushroomed From 'Amateur' To 'Big Business'

Game Is Now National Sport With Fabulous Salaries, Outlay Replacing Watch, Banquet Era

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—When Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Winnipeg Blue Bombers meet Saturday in the Grey Cup final, they will battle for an 18-inch-high trophy donated June 4, 1909, by Earl Grey, then governor-general of Canada.

Originally, the award was for the senior amateur football championship of Canada. But it hasn't worked that way. The teams to show their stuff before 37,000-odd fans at Varsity Stadium probably will collect $4,000,000 in gate receipts, a potential $1,600,000 radio and television audience, improvement on annual investment of about $500,000 with players' salaries accounting for about two-thirds of the budget.

When the big-time football season opened in August on eight fields from Montreal to Edmonton, it was estimated that nearly 82,000,000 would be spent this year on building Grey Cup contending clubs.

A BIG DIFFERENCE

That's a far cry from the days early in the century when eastern teams battled for the trophy and the players received and gave their gridiron knocks for fun. And it's a far cry from the '20s when players received only watches, a banquet and possibly blazers at the end of a season.

Western Canada got into the Grey Cup act in 1921, making it a national affair and since then the classic has ballooned into the greatest sports spectacle in the country. But, with the boom on, football is a hard-boiled dollars-and-cents business.

"Name" American imports make the headlines across the country and Grey Cup enthusiasm has become national every November.

There was a time when the Senior Intercollegiate Football Union—and the Ontario Rugby Football Union were top-flight cup contenders. But, since 1941, when Winnipeg Blue Bombers won the cup for the West for the first time, it has developed mainly into a fight between the eastern Big Four and the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

FIRST CUP-WINNER

The University of Toronto became the first holder of the trophy in 1909 when the college team defeated Ottawa of the Big Four Intercollege league continued to the cup hunt until 1936 when the University of Toronto defaulted a challenge of the Big Four.

That was the end of an era during which the intercollegiate teams won the trophy seven times with the University of Toronto and Queen's University taking the honors. Toronto made it three straight in 1909-10-11 and Queen's also made it three consecutive years in 1922-23-24. Toronto made it four times with victory in 1920.

The Ontario Rugby Football Union, once a power in the game, has been relegated to a position where three of its four teams—Toronto Beach, Brantford Red Jackets and Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen—are farm clubs of Big Four teams. Sarnia Imperials, one of the great names of Canadian football, won the title once—in 1936—but the Imps have always been a threat from the late '20s and into the '30s.

The last ORFU cup triumph was in 1946 when RMCS Dominions of St. Hyacinthe defeated Hamilton Wildcats 7-6.

Since the western Canada champions challenged the East 32 years ago, the game has gone through two eras.

The westerners, who have won the trophy only four times, got their initial triumph at Hamilton in 1935 when Winnipeg Blue Bombers defeated Hamilton Tigers of the Big Four 18-12. Fans in the East then started to take serious notice of the westerners and the classic built up gradually into the spectacle it is.

Bombers won the title again in 1939 and 1941 and their victims each time were Ottawa Rough Riders. In 1939, on a snow-covered slippery field at Ottawa, Bombers took it 8-7 with a last-minute rearward kick by Art Stevenson that went for a point. In 1941, Chez Mocnacs, one of the best placekickers in the game, booted a 35-15 third-quarter tie to give Bombers the 18-16 victory over Argos at Toronto.

The present era started in 1948 and the game captured the country's imagination. Calgary Stampeders won the cup for the first time that year but more than that they started a build-up process by big-time clubs, a demand for cup tickets that hasn't been matched by any Canadian sport and a pre-game show that knocked the Roman Colosseum silly.

TICKET SCRAMBLE

Persons who had never seen a football game, who probably wouldn't know the difference between a touchdown and a field goal, began to pack into Varsity Stadium for the game. The ticket situation became a big headache for the Canadian Rugby Union and its clubs, who were besieged by fans.

Teams with an annual budget of $30,000 or $40,000 in 1948 suddenly realized that greenbacks—plenty of them—were a key to a berth in the last-Saturday-in - November game.

The search for talent reached into nearly every section of the United States, and club budgets soared to $100,000, $200,000, $250,000 until today expenses make the $300,000 mark. It has become a matter of civic pride to win the cup and clubs have become negligible, often as low as only a few hundred dollars.

In 1946 the Canadian Rugby Union allowed five imports to a team and only five of the country's senior clubs took any imports at all. Since then, however, the quota has steadily increased. To-day's Big Four clubs in the East and Western Conference is allowed eight and they take the lot.

TORONTO BOOM TOWN

Railways put on special coaches to handle fans. Toronto hotels "sold out" signs for weeks months in advance, restaurants do a booming business, hotel suites are haunt hotel lobbies and waiters drop untold thousands of dollars on beer.

Newspaper, radio, television and movie newsreel coverage of the game has grown steadily. The 36-seat press box for sports writers is jammed and another 40 or more newspapermen are accommodated in an adjoining section.

A network of 79 radio stations stretching from British Columbia to the Maritimes will broadcast a play-by-play description of Saturday's game. This is the largest network for any sports event in the history.

The CBC-TV network of stations in Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal will bring the game into the living rooms of fans who decide to watch the two-hour game either by choice or simply because they can't buy a ticket.

RECEIPTS AT PEAK

Gross gate receipts will total $100,000, the highest in the game's history.

Old-timers recall the early days of the East-West final. For instance Toronto Argonauts started off this East-West classic with a 9-0 victory over Edmonton in 1921 and the game's club treasury received $1,500, its share of the net proceeds.

Crowds in the '20s didn't total more than 15,000 for any game and in some years only a few hundred persons sat in the stands. In 1929, less than 100 persons were on hand at Hamilton when a snowstorm raged. That was the year that Hamilton Tigers of the Big Four defeated Regina 14-3.

The status of the final was challenged in 1951 by a group of Sarnia Oot., sportsmen who declared that the trophy had lots its identity. They pointed out that the cup was for the "amateur" championship and that competing teams now are professional.

They didn't get anywhere.

Cal McKay, Jerry Toppazzini Score Trio for Habs, Bruins; Wings Hang Collar on Leafs

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Calum Mackay, Jerry Toppazzini and Terry Sawchuk had much to be thankful for after their Thanksgiving Day chores in the United States Thursday night.

Mackay, Boston right-winger with Montreal Canadiens scored three goals and an assist to give the Montreal Canadiens a 4-3 victory over Chicago Black Hawks.

Toppazzini, the 23-year-old right-winger recently recalled from the Hershey Bears, scored three goals to give Horton Bruins a 5-3 victory over New York Rangers.

Sawchuk, Detroit Red Wings' netminder, first set Toronto Maple Leafs 3-0 for his third shutout of the season.

Thursday night's action resulted in only one change in the league standings. Montreal Canadiens, their second-place tie with the Maple Leafs, having been three points behind the Canadiens. The Bruins consolidated their hold on fourth place, three points behind the Leafs and seven points up on the fifth-place Rangers.

Mackay's scoring spree came in the second period when he scored twice within 26 seconds, on assists by Dick Gamble and Bernie Geoffrion, and again in the third period, assisted by the period, assisted by Maurice Richard and Geoffrion.

EIGHTH OF SEASON

Gamble, Richard and Doug Harvey scored the others.

Gus Bodnar, George Gee and Bill Gadsby scored the goals of the season, scored for Chicago.

Toppazzini, playing his fifth game since the Bruins recalled him from Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League, got his first goal of the season on assists by Ed Peirson and Fleming Mackell netted the rest.

Ranger goals were scored by Nick Mickoski and Harry Howell. The scoring line still held the Leafs powerless in Detroit. They have been shutout scoreless in Olympia Stadium for 213 minutes and 38 seconds. The last time they scored there was in their previous game last season. Sawchuk kicked out 23 shots for the blanking.

Packers Offer Trafton Contract Says Newspaper

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says today in a sports page story from Los Angeles that Green Bay Packers of the United States National Football League have offered George Trafton, coach of Winnipeg Blue Bombers for the last three years, a three-year coaching contract at $17,500 a season.

Trafton, here with the Blue Bombers for the Grey Cup playoff game Saturday in the Canadian championship, formerly was assistant coach of Los Angeles Rams of the NFL. Previous to that, he was head line coach at Green Bay.

"In addition to Green Bay, two other NFL clubs, Los Angeles Rams and New York Giants, are reported to be eyeing Trafton, the paper says.

Sport in Brief

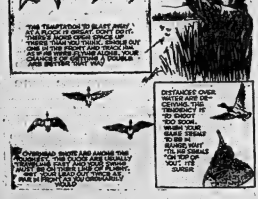
WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg's high-stepping Blue Bombersettes and the city police pipe band are going to take part in the Grey Cup parade Saturday, but may not get inside Varsity Stadium to see the big game.

Jack St. John, chairman of the the city's participation in the parade, said he received a telephone call from Toronto advising that plans to get the groups in to see the game had hit a snag.

He said officials of the Canadian Rugby Union declined to let the two groups in without tickets. And they have none.

St. John said it was understood Bomber president Nat Sherman and manager Scotty Kennedy are seeking a solution.

The Bombersettes are being sent to Toronto on funds raised by friends after the Winnipeg club declined to take them. The city is sponsoring the police pipe band.



TORONTO (CP)—A record number of six officials will handle Saturday's Grey Cup final between Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Winnipeg Blue Bombers, it was announced by Norm Perry of Sarnia, Canadian Rugby Union president.

Paul Dojack of Regina will be the referee. Umpires are Harmon Wilson, Hamilton; Cliff Rossbrough, Winnipeg and Harry Bowden, Toronto; Judge of play, Wes Daley, Ottawa; head linesman, Bill Nairn, Winnipeg.

AT THE BELLE

The Story of Gilbert and Sullivan — Outstanding Musical Events in Gorgeous Color.

There could be no better choice of screen subject, for the Coronation year of Queen Elizabeth II than the outstanding gorgeous Technicolor musical production, "The Story of Gilbert and Sullivan," showing today, Saturday and Monday at the Belle Theatre, which recalls on the screen an exciting chapter of entertainment history, set in the reign of Queen Victoria. Queen Elizabeth gave special permission for the interior of Buckingham Palace to be reproduced at London Film Studio, Shepperton, and for the forecourt and facade to be photographed for exterior scenes in the film.

She shares her great - great grandmother's enthusiasm for the operas, in which royalty comes in for its share of good-humored banter, in the same measure as all the other prominent features of British constitution and tradition.

Queen Victoria, played by Muriel Aked, features impressively in many scenes in the film, which include a delightful sequence in a reproduction of the Waterloo Gallery at Windsor Castle, during a command performance, of "The Goodoliers." The film has another close link with the Coronation. Many of the old coaches used in the Victorian era of the film have been lent by Sir Alexander Korda for use in the Coronation procession through Elizabethan London.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SATURDAY, NOV. 28, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Encouraging planetary rays for most well-managed and properly-executed matters. Work willingly with available material rather than waste time seeking the new or the different.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — You may encounter a few minor obstacles during this period, but they should not deter or hinder your overall progress. Better your output and effort and ignore rumors. Look for facts.

May 21 to June 21 ((Gemini) — Efforts can pay off in many ways during this favorable period. All in all, if true to yourself and doing things as you should, you will achieve.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Avoid a tendency to back down when the going is a little rough, or at others' discouraging attitudes. The stars foretell but do not compel; they say you can if you will. Heart interests favored.

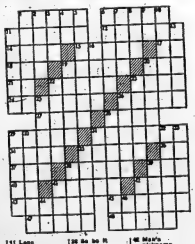
July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Some mixed vibrations now. Don't be indifferent. Study, strive hard and make the best of what you have to work with and you may be surprised at the progress you made.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Many opportunities present themselves, but it is up to you to take advantage of them. A little hard thinking and extra effort may solve your problems; unveil new and greener fields.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Influences favor research, promotion, engineering, selling, dealings with progressive programs. Be alert, ready to jump in when opportunity knocks. Reward will be yours.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Day's vibrations stimulating. New and modern methods give wide scope for operation. Clever devices and ideas can add your efforts. Family matters, romance favored.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Things may not go too easily but on the other hand you won't have to try too hard either. Consistent, steady effort will win. Practical matters have favored spot now. Don't neglect charity, family.



December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Advice for this day is: make each effort a supreme one. Use your best judgment and talents; profit from experience. Don't miss out because of lack of confidence or indecision.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Be sure you have the right answer before speaking, and don't let pride keep you from seeking sound advice.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Although you may be tempted to go to extremes, the day calls for caution for those who analyze, plan before acting. Benefits as well as hazards can come from unexpected sources. Be on the alert.

YOU BORN TODAY are usually active, ready for new and exciting things; often work at feverish pace. Inately cheerful and uncomplaining, you have the happy faculty of making others feel "at home." You have much talent, executive ability to develop; can manage groups of people, large enterprises; are creative and practical; especially suited to advertising, promotion, entertainment, or military fields. Birthdate of: William Blake, noted English poet, painter.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Voting on Question of the Ringing of Bells
Blowing of Whistles, or Sounding of Horns
By Trains Within the Corporate Limits of Belleville

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that upon the Seventh day of December, A.D. 1953, being the day fixed by the Municipal Elections for the City of Belleville, the following question will be submitted to the electors qualified to vote at municipal elections, namely:

THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE
BY-LAW No. 3558

A BY-LAW TO OBTAIN THE ASSENT OF THE ELECTORS OF THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE TO THE BLOWING OF WHISTLES, RINGING OF BELLS AND SOUNDING OF HORNS BY TRAINS WITHIN THE CORPORATE LIMITS OF THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE

WHEREAS the Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville considers it advisable to submit the question hereinafter set forth to the electors for the purpose of obtaining their opinion thereon;

THEREFORE THE COUNCIL OF THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE ENACTS:

1. The following question shall be submitted to a vote of the Municipal Electors of the City of Belleville at the Municipal Election to be held for the holding of the Annual Election for the Municipality for the year 1954 and the Corporation for the year 1954:

"Are you in favour of the by-law forbidding the sounding of whistles, ringing of bells and blowing of horns by trains within the City of Belleville at an estimated cost to the City for compensation to the railway company $15,000.00, plus an annual expenditure of approximately $1,500.00 for the cost of operating?"

2. Read a first time this 12th day of October, 1953.

Read a second time this 12th day of October, 1953.

Read a third time and finally passed this 26th day of October, 1953.

(Signed) H. GRAHAM
(Signed) H. ELLIOTT CLUTE

EXPELLED BY REDS — Rev. Antonio Bonin of Joliette, Que., a member of the Roman Catholic Order of Foreign Missions, has reached Hong Kong after being expelled from China by the Communists. He had served in Manchuria since 1929. He will return to Montreal. (CP Photo.)

Blaze in Pusan Razes Hundreds Of Residences

PUSAN, Korea (AP)— A windfanned fire swept through hundreds of houses in this refugee-packed port city tonight and created American army installations.

An American officer said he did not know by late evening if anyone had burned to death. The fire still blazed.

A 30-mile-an-hour wind whipped the flames. American and Korean firefighters called out all available equipment.

Some American units and members of the United Nations Command inspection team evacuated their quarters.

The toll of houses and shacks burned may reach past the 1,000 mark, an army officer said.

FRANKFORD

CANADIAN LEGION.

FRANKFORD — The Frankford Branch 287 of the Canadian Legion is still improving its new hall on King St. They recently installed a new oil heater in the gentlemen and now have purchased a television set.

Legion members are urged to attend the annual nomination and election of officers to be held December 14.

LEGION EUCHRE.

The weekly euchre sponsored by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion was held Wednesday, November 25.

Prize winners were Mrs. Don Bates and Mrs. Herman Chard, Mr. Don Bates and Mrs. Owen Chard, Mrs. Clara Blow and Mrs. Margaret MacAuliffe.

Refreshments were served.

AUXILIARY MEETS.

The monthly meeting of the Evening Auxiliary was held Wednesday in Rose Lowery Hall. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Jean Chase, Mrs. M. Slingsland opened the meeting and conducted the business part of the program, and decided to hold the next meeting in Rose Lowery Hall on December 22, in the form of a Christmas party.

The election of officers was postponed due to the absence of Rev. Clarke who officiated at the bazaar and tea in Stockdale Uniting Church.

Mrs. Peggy Rowe is now 1st vice-president as the office was vacated by Mrs. Williams. Mrs. Peggy Rowe took the worship service, assisted by a number of ladies. Mrs. Harry MacDonald played a piano selection and Bonnie Rowe sang two songs.

Roy Osterhout and Mrs. Charlie Bennett gave two readings. A contest was won by Mrs. Bennett.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Peggy Rowe, Mrs. Hazel Rowe, Mrs. Vera Montgomery and Mrs. Leona Defoe.

QUICK WORK.

The alertness and memory of Frankford police constable Ed McCreachy led to the recovery of a stolen car recently only a half hour after it had been taken.

Constable McCreachy was checking traffic at the corner of Trent and Mill Streets, when he noticed a car owned by Derek Broadbent of Trent St., Frankford, being driven by someone else, and he decided to investigate. Mr. Broadbent arrived in an old truck to report the loss of his car from in front of his father's home on the Stockdale-Wooler Road. Constable McCreachy pursued the car as it headed toward Trenton and succeeded in stopping it at the Trenton city limits. The driver was 18-year-old Robert Pacey, of Crown Street, Trenton. He was charged by Constable McCreachy and will be brought before magistrate's court in Cobourg in December.

PERSONALS.

Rev. W. B. Greenwood of Belleville, district superintendent eastern Ontario and Quebec was special evening speaker at Full Gospel Tabernacle.

Mr. Lorne Mikel spent the week end in Toronto and attended the Royal Winter Fair.

Miss Mary Lee Appleby of Toronto was the week-end guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Appleby.

Mr. and Mrs. Kinnard of Welland were guests on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Andrews and family.

Mr. Edward Turfey of Trenton spent a few days visiting relatives and friends in town this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Morse are the proud parents of a daughter, Deborah Lynn, who was born at the Trenton Memorial hospital on November 24.

Mrs. Dorothy Streathton and Mr. Wesley Pierce of Toronto, were week-end guests at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Gordon Pierce.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Smith of Kingston were guests on Sunday at the home of Mrs. May Stephenson.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cooney and family of Long Branch, were dinner guests on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Watson.

Mrs. Burkitt and Betty, Mrs. Thomson, Mr. Charlesworth and Mrs. Snider attended the bazaar and tea in Stockdale Wednesday evening.

Rev. MacEachren of Hagerville was in town recently receiving old acquaintances. He was the guest of Rev. and Mrs. Clarke.

EUCHRE CLUB.

The Wednesday afternoon euchre club consisting of four tables of euchre was held at the home of Mrs. Tom Burkitt.

Mrs. Blake Stickle and Mrs. Fred Charlesworth won the high prizes and Mrs. Ada Bush won the loos hand prize.

The consolation prizes were taken by Mrs. Bob Bates and Mrs. Smith, Osterhout.

The lucky cup was won by Mrs. H. J. Madill.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Tom Burkitt.

Detailed Plan For Korea Talks Drafted By Allies

Would Let Non-Belligerents Attend as Observers Only

Say 11 Per Cent Of Prisoners Are Under 21

OTTAWA (CP)—Eleven per cent of Canada's prison population of about 4,000 were under 21 years of age, says the annual report of the Canadian penitentiaries commission.

The report, tabled in Parliament, says 294 youths were in prison. This compared with 485 among the prison population of 4,681 in the year ended March 31, 1953.

Mrs. Jean R. B. Gibson, penitentiaries commissioner, says in the report that it is a matter of grave concern that judges and magistrates send youngsters to prison instead of dealing with them some other way.

Referring to operation at Kingston penitentiary, Warden R. M. Allan said female prisoners were considered "a difficult and nerve-wracking problem."

The management and supervision of female Doukhobor inmates increased the responsibilities and difficulties of one staff and there was a distinct feeling of relief when the remainder of this group was discharged during the latter part of March.

Four-Lane Roads Create Accidents Doucett States

TORONTO (CP) — Highways Minister Doucett said Friday the province's four-lane speedways have created a new kind of hazard—more, accidents than occur on the crowded roads.

He said drivers are to blame in 95 per cent of all accidents on the new four-lanes.

"The engineers can build all the safety devices they like into these new highways and they can straighten and widen them, but they can't change the human element."

Drivers have to be educated to the different type of hazard in driving on superhighways, he said.

Kemsley Scholarship Offered to Newsmen

TORONTO (CP) — Applications for the eighth Kemsley Scholarship awarded in Canada were invited from Canadian newspapermen in a circular distributed Friday by W. A. Irwin, honorary secretary of the Canadian section, Commonwealth Press Union.

The scholarship, worth $2,000, has selected a year's training and experience at a number of British newspapers in the United Kingdom, Commonwealth countries, with a chance to study phases of British life. The object is to encourage an exchange of knowledge and experience between British and Commonwealth newspapermen and thus strengthen Commonwealth ties.

Report Exaggerated

MONTREAL (CP) — Shipping men here said ocean passenger traffic is increasing through Canada's eastern ports, but not at the expense of New York.

They denied as exaggerated a New York report Thursday that Canada's immigration boom has lured a large number of passenger ships from New York, resulting in a "significant" loss to that port in the last number of years.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: A weak, northerly flow of cool air continues over most of Ontario and skies are generally cloudy with scattered snowflurries reported from many places. Temperatures were below the freezing mark everywhere in the province with Fort William reporting 4 above.

A new disturbance is moving east from Nebraska and is expected to affect Southern Ontario on Sunday.

Queen's University Debaters Beat McGill

MONTREAL (CP) — Student debaters of Queen's University, Kingston, proved too good for those of McGill University here last night when they won the decision in a debate that, for the first time in the province of Quebec, Canada would be a "thing to love."

The Ontario students, speaking for the motion, won on the arguments that it would be possible for Quebec to survive as a country, but one of McGill University's debaters divided and indefensible."

Communists Holding Montreal 'Peace Rally'

MONTREAL (CP)—The second provincial peace congress opened a three-day meeting here Friday night with the support of the Montreal anti-subversive squad in attendance.

The meeting is sponsored by the Canadian Peace Congress, an affiliate of the Canadian Peace Congress, said an official of the anti-subversive squad, a unit of the provincial police.

Police said they had been told the "witnesses" for his description of the meeting were Lawrence Lee and a Roman Catholic priest who had written an article about Lee. Police Inspector Desmarais said Mr. Croll had said things about "McCarthyism" and "the witch-hunting allegation" Mr. Croll was not in the House.

BRIDES CANADA-BOUND

OTTAWA (CP)—About 100 German call-war brides will be heading for Canada within the next two weeks. They were expected to be the first shipment of 65 German brides of soldiers of the 27th Canadian Infantry Brigade will arrive at Halifax Dec. 10. With them will be about 20 babies born before the brigade was rotated home on leave.

Thirty Kingston Hospital Internes Threaten Strike Over Court Case

KINGSTON (CP) — Thirty interns threatened to strike and cripple operations at Kingston General Hospital Friday in a protest against the hospital's refusal to defend by patient against a doctor and a former intern.

Hospital Superintendent Fraser Armstrong said the interns were still on duty but had sent him a notice demanding "clarification" of the legal responsibility the hospital would accept for its interns.

Spokesmen for the interns said they don't want to work or take risks if the hospital is not going to defend its doctor and now is practising in the U.S.

SEN. MCCARTHY IS DEFENDED BY BLACKMORE

David Croll's Speech Called 'Sordid Smear'

OTTAWA (CP)—John Blackmore (SC—Lethbridge) Friday night in the Commons described as a "sordid smear" the attack Monday on "McCarthyism" by David Croll (Lib.—South Renfrew).

He withdrew the words "sordid smear" at the insistence of Speaker Rene Beaudoin after several Liberal and CCF members protested.

Mr. Blackmore also claimed Mr. Croll had been "duped" by Canadian Communist Fred Rose, Senator Joseph McCarthy. This time, he withdrew the words at the insistence Fulford (Liberal-Vancouver South) protested and without the Speaker making a ruling.

"I withdraw; I don't want to waste any time," Mr. Blackmore said. The House rocked with laughter.

The Alberta Social Creditor was still talking at 1:30 a.m. in a tournament and the usually quiet Friday evening sitting ended in a minor brawl.

NOISY OUTBURST

Mr. Blackmore asked whether Mr. Croll had made a speech prepared for him outside the House or had spoken "off the cuff" and whether Mr. Croll was speaking for the Liberal party.

Mr. Beaudoin, finally obtaining order after the outburst this brought on, said he hadn't heard what Mr. Blackmore had said because of the noise.

Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) said Mr. Blackmore had alleged that Mr. Croll had his speech prepared for him. Unless Mr. Croll could produce such evidence, it must be assumed that Mr. Croll had delivered his own speech "and I trust that the honorable member for Lethbridge is reading his."

The House adjourned at that point. Mr. Blackmore will be able to continue his speech Monday in the continuing throne speech debate.

READ BOOKS

Earlier, Health Minister Martin asked Mr. Blackmore if he had ever met Senator McCarthy.

"No," said Mr. Blackmore. He added that he had read books by persons who had met the Wisconsin senator.

Starting off, Mr. Blackmore said he didn't intend to "defend McCarthyism" or "McCarthyites," or "McCarthy" or any other person existed.

Mr. Blackmore said Senator McCarthy was "an extraordinary, patient, patriotic young fellow, distinguished veteran of the Second World War who faithfully offered his life in battle for his country."

He said he ... now devotedly offering his life once more—this time in the battle against the world communism abroad and particularly at home."

There was laughter from both sides of the House.

Mr. Blackmore said his two "witnesses" for his description of the meeting were Lawrence Lee and a Roman Catholic priest who had written an article about Lee. Police Inspector Desmarais said Mr. Croll had said things about "McCarthyism" and "the witch-hunting allegation" Mr. Croll was not in the House.

Expect U.S. to Ask Allies To Stop Any Red Stalling

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States probably will ask Britain and France, when representatives of the Big Three meet at Bermuda, to get set to counter any Russian plan for stalling the European Army project through a four-power meeting.

Since the Russians Thursday night sprang their surprise acceptance of a four-power meeting without the hampering conditions that first had been expected, the U. S. state department has been considering ways.

Although the U. S. publicly has taken a mum dimmer view of the likelihood of success of a Big Four meeting than have its Allies, it privately has indicated that the success of foreign ministers will be helpful if the Soviet Union means what it now says.

TIGHT ARRANGEMENTS

But informed observers say that President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Laniel (Reds) and Foreign Secretary Bidault (Reds) will have tight arrangements in Bermuda next Friday, the American spokesmen will call for tight conference rules to guard against Soviet disruptive tactics.

Pre-conference arrangements could be tightened up either by getting the Russians to adopt a somewhat more limited agenda than they have proposed or by getting agreement among Western powers that if the Russian in London said that Britain "welcomes the acceptance of the proposal for a four-power meeting which the Western powers have repeatedly urged."

Laniel was quoted in Paris saying that the Soviet move could mean the beginning of a new calm in the international relations.

The U. S. comment accused the Russians of manoeuvring to stall West German rearmament, said the note showed no evidence of change in Soviet policies, and brandied it as a defensive effort to "disarm the overwhelming nature of Soviet policy" in earlier dealings with the West.

Place Loss at $20,000,000 As Fire Sweeps Korea Port

PUSAN (AP)—One-sixth of the teeming port city of 1,000,000 population smouldered tonight after a fire that scorched a 1½-mile swath, left at least three Koreans dead and levelled 6,000 homes and buildings.

Twenty Koreans were hurt and two Koreas' firemen were overcome by the flames. He said two children and a 26-year-old man were dead.

The United States Army estimated damage in this refugee-chocked city at $20,000,000. It was one of the most devastating fires in Korean history.

25,000 HOMELESS

Relief agencies rushed aid to the 25,000 left homeless. Many were given temporary shelter in U. S. Army warehouses, theatres and schools.

The blaze broke out in a jammed tenement section. Police said it started in a charcoal oven.

Winds up to 30 miles an hour whipped the flames a miles through a path half a mile wide before the fire burned itself out on fire lines.

The city's extensive dock facilities were undamaged.

Churchill Sings Old School Songs

HARROE, England (Reuter)—Sir Winston Churchill, 79 on Nov. 30, delivered up his lusty baritone Friday night to join 528 singing "ten-gun" boys of Harrow.

It was the annual singsong of Harrow School's famous "Songs of Boy." Churchill was cheered for minutes when he stepped on to the tiered seats in the semi-circular speech room.

Silence crept in as he said his two "witnesses" for his description of the meeting were Lawrence Lee and a Roman Catholic priest who had written an article about Lee. Police Inspector Desmarais said Mr. Croll had said things about "McCarthyism" and "the witch-hunting allegation" Mr. Croll was not in the House.

Favor Full-Time Parole Board

TORONTO (CP)—Members of the Legislature's select committee on reform institutions today spoke in favor of a full-time parole board for Ontario. The present board operates on a part-time basis.

The suggestion came following a statement by committee chairman W. J. Stewart (PC—Toronto Parkdale) that there should be a lack of organization and leadership.

"The members are splendid as individuals, but as a board they are just ambling along," he said. "They have neither chart nor compass."

Mr. Stewart and committee members again expressed opposition to the removal of women from the board. They said they felt there should be an increase in the number of women members.

Thinks Gouzenko Report is Useful As an Interview

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — G. J. Dekom, who as a United States Army intelligence officer helped Igor Gouzenko in 1949, today said U. S. authorities got about as much information by studying the 1947 report of a Canadian royal commission as by questioning Gouzenko again.

Dekom, formerly a code clerk in the Soviet embassy at Ottawa, is taking classes under the GI bill in a far-flung Russian spy network that reached into the U. S.

UEL DESCENDANT DIES

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Walter C. Lundy, local chef and member of a pioneer United Empire Loyalist family which gave Lundy's Lane its name, died Friday night. Lundy's lane was the scene of a bloody inconclusive battle between the Canadians and the Americans in the war of 1812.

ALIEN FLAG FLIES OVER ROYAL TOUR FOR FIRST TIME

Queen, Duke, Guests Of U.S., Panama, Sun.

PANAMA (AP)—Queen Elizabeth and her entourage sailed today toward the Panama canal aboard the British liner Gothic. The royal party is due in the canal zone Sunday as guests of the United States and Panama.

The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh boarded the glistening white 15,902-ton Gothic in Jamaica Friday, two days after they arrived in the colony by plane from Bermuda and London via Gander, Nfld. The ship, carrying its usual complement of 500 persons, will be branded it as a defensive effort "disarm the overwhelming nature of Soviet policy" in earlier dealings with the West.

Foolish Robbers Quickly Seized

NEW YORK (AP)—Trying to grab a bank on an island escape base bristling with military police and firearms, two men found it easy to escape—proved as foolhardy as it sound.

Two University of Florida students, Paul Goldhagen, 21, and Stewart Dunbar, 21, were charged with the attempted payroll robbery of a branch bank of the Manufacturers Trust Co. on Governors Island, located off the tip of lower Manhattan.

They were quickly seized, but only after they had taken hostage the bank's lone employee, whose wife brought MPs rushing to the scene.

JURY RULES ON VICTIM

LISTOWEL (CP) — A coroner's jury Friday ruled that bones, found in a Wallace township farmhouse ruins after a fire Nov. 4, were those of Emily Gaunce, 60, owner of the house. Police discovered the bones during a search for clues soon after the fire which also found among the debris was identified as the charred remains of a television jeweller, as the one he sold Gamble last August.

Eugene O'Neill, Noted Playwright, Dies at Boston

BOSTON (AP)—The American theatre today mourned the loss of one of its greatest playwrights in Eugene O'Neill, who died of pneumatic wrongs captivated audiences for two decades. He died quietly Friday night at his home of bronchial pneumonia.

The playwright, a Nobel Prize winner and three-time Pulitzer Prize winner, was hailed and acclaimed the world for material unlike that which had gone before.

His career was long and stricken by Parkinson's disease. That ailment, a form of nerve disorder, took his activities until writing became impossible.

High point in his long career was in 1936, when he was awarded the Nobel Prize in literature. The award committee did not cite any particular work, but O'Neill's play "Mourning Becomes Electra" a strong factor in the decision.

That prize was only one of the honors O'Neill won. The Pulitzer playwright, who had more than two score plays produced, won the coveted award for "Beyond the Horizon," 1920, "Anna Christie" 1922 and "Strange Interlude," 1928.

Optimism Fades, No Quick Solution Likely In Trieste

U.S. Now Seeking to Arrange Pre-Conference Discussion

By JOHN SCALI

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new Yugoslav - Italian deadlock is threatening to end Western hopes for a quick five-power conference to settle the Trieste crisis.

United States officials acknowledged today that last week's optimism now has faded in view of the latest conflicting Yugoslav and Italian stands.

Behind the scenes, state department diplomats are concentrating on arranging a so-called "preconference" talk by Italian and Yugoslav officials together with the United States and Britain. They would discuss on what basis a higher-level parley could be held later.

SUGGESTED EARLIER

Yugoslavia originally suggested this approach several weeks ago, but the Western Big Three brushed it aside in favor of a full-dress conference. Then, on the eve of the conference before the end of the year on the issue, the dispatched territory.

The United States and Britain several weeks ago announced plans to turn administration of Zone A over to Italy, withdrawing their troops. Yugoslavia's president, Tito, immediately denounced forcibly any military occupation of the area. Plans for a conference were advanced.

REJECT PROPOSAL

Tito's objections now appear to have been the basis for the rejection of the conference.

The Yugoslav line in effect rejected a U.S.-British-French proposal that Italy be permitted to appoint 14 officials to study administrative duties in the Allied zone of Trieste before the conference is convened.

The Yugoslavs maintain this is a thinly disguised manoeuvre to give Italy administrative control of zone A prior to a conference.

Canadian Army Makes Largest Peacetime Move

SOEST, Germany (CP)—The Canadian Army's largest peacetime troop movement was virtually completed Friday. The main fighting units are all here and the last big outgoing group sails for Canada tonight.

The next stage will be the arrival at Hamburg Dec. 1 of the first organized draft of dependents.

The movement to Germany was cleaned up Thursday night with the arrival in this 1,300-year-old town of the 2nd Regiment, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, fresh from Camp Shilo, Man. This brought the Canadian Army in Germany close to its full authorized strength, except for a few small drafts still to come.

Lively Fights In Municipal Elections Seen

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Many municipal election fights are shaping up in a number of Ontario communities which hold elections Monday.

Qualifications today will fix the number of candidates in the most of the centres. ....

Nominations given on nomination day put some 1953 mayors and reeves back in office and brought new chief magistrates to others.

Santa Claus Gets $135,000 Shop On Outskirts of Laurentian Town

SANTA CLAUS VILLAGE, Que (CP)—A group of business men have spent $135,000 to set Santa Claus in his own new community 50 miles north of Montreal.

Santa is installed in a village of eight buildings on the outskirts of the Laurentian town of Val David, 50 miles north of Montreal, reached from visiting children.

The project which will cost $250,000 when complete next year is the idea of James Melchers and a half-dozen associates.

Mr. Melchers thought that while the cold weather and distance of northern Canada might suit Santa Claus, the old gent might get more visitors if he were set up nearer to Montreal.

Many months ago Mr. Melchers with G. R. Lasalle, general administrator of Santa Claus Village, and other business men got work on the village started.

Incorporated as Santa Claus Village, Que., it covers an area of 1,000 square feet and has eight brightly-painted buildings including a chapel, a restaurant, a home and a toy shop.

Next year, the size of the village will be increased to more than 20 new buildings including a factory where toys will be made.

In the Laurentian hills setting, trees, reindeer, goats, lambs and bear cubs were added to the village population.

The post office will direct children's Christmas letters to Santa Claus Village which is accessible from Montreal by rail, highway or by air.

Plan sponsors believe the village is the only one of its kind in Canada.

FLASH FIRE BLAMED ON PLAY WITH MATCHES

Children playing with matches were believed responsible yesterday for a flash fire at the residence of J. Vinkle, on Lime St., where curtains were destroyed and a sewing machine and cedar chest were damaged. Firemen said no one was injured and the blaze was quickly extinguished, the fire damage confined to the one room of the house.

Police Ball Huge Success 400 Attend

"There were sounds of revelry by night" and who could wonder! For the Annual Police Ball, held at the Club Commodore, last night, will go down in the records as one of the most enjoyable dances in the history of the function.

Upwards of four hundred people of the city and district danced until well after midnight to the smooth rhythmic strains of the Commodores orchestra, the band of the Royal Canadian Regiment, and best dance organizations in Eastern Canada, lent up to the reception and its melodic contribution to the affair was one of the chief features of the evening.

The ball was a colorful affair. All the gay costumes of the ladies contrasting with the more sombre garb of their escorts in a kaleidoscopic effect that was eye-pleasing under the softened glow of the lights.

MANY PRIZES

Many beautiful prizes were given to fortunate dancers, with the number one prize a handsome coffee table and set of silverware being won by Miss Ann Hall, of Napanee.

Chief of Police Walter Probert assisted in the drawing of the tickets. Police Constable Jack Parker was master of ceremonies.

The success of the ball is in no small measure due to the fine efforts of the committee in charge, Sergeant Doug Ellis and Police Constables Tommy Schrieber and Bob Mantell deserve a lot of credit for the splendid arrangements and the manner in which the ball was conducted.

Other prize winners were: W. H. Gaisson, Bill Pappas, Andy Ory, Sam Ory, W. J. Fawcett B. H. Widdifield, C. Mantell, Allan Belleville; A. E. Patterson, St. Catharines; Mrs. Allan, Le Fleur, Trenton; Mabel Rattray, Consecon.

Murray Smith Reeve of Madoc By Acclamation

MADOC—Murray Smith was elected reeve of Madoc village by acclamation. Jim Parks, Jr., and two other nominees, Jack Kincaid and Jack Baker withdrew.

A packed house attended the meeting which was more business-like than spirited.

Nine nominations were: for council (4 to be elected) Kenneth West, Lloyd Blue, Ed Armstrong, Dorian Stewart, Jud McGowan, Jack Baker, Percy Berry, Wesley Hollis, Ray Bench and Ken Holmes.

Public School trustees (3 to be elected) Mrs. T. Fairfield, Ed Armstrong, Tom Burnside, Ray Bench, Wilfred Fairfield.

Public Utilities commissioner (1 to be elected): Clarence Sarrow and Jack Kincaid.

Council Returned By Acclamation

Huntingdon township council was returned by acclamation at the nomination meeting held in Huntingdon township hall Friday.

Those re-elected are: Reeve, Elmer Wood. Councillors, Mac Sarles, Alfred Herrington, Elmer Wilson and Lloyd McCauley.

City Surrounded By 'Snowbelts'

Yesterday's snowfall which in the city melted as quickly as it fell, put a white mantle over fields in the Belleville district, according to-wenders attending market today.

North of the city in the vicinity of Foxboro approximately four inches fell and the same was true in the Stirling area. Across the bay in northern Prince Edward snow fell most of the day and ends are covered with about two inches of snow.

Motorists stated that heavy snow also fell in the Cobourg area with up to six inches reported in some localities.

There were definite snow belts however and while several inches were reported in some localities a few miles away there was almost no snow.

Brighton District Blanketed by Snow

TRENTON (Special) — A six-inch fall of snow turned Brighton and a 15-mile strip of country on either side of that village, into a winter wonderland on Friday afternoon.

The heavy snowfall took place over an area extending 10 miles west and six miles east of Brighton village.

The Ontario Provincial Police detachment at Brighton were kept busy all day investigating accidents, none of which was serious. The most spectacular of the accidents occurred when a transport truck slid into a ditch and turned over on Highway No. 2, one mile west of Trenton. No one was injured.

TO SEE CUP GAME

TRENTON (Special)—A heavy exodus of Trenton residents was anticipated for Saturday forenoon as hundreds of local sportsmen prepared to travel to the TV clear area of Cobourg to witness the Grey Cup game.

Mrs. Kathleen Stephens, 75, Has Her Arm Amputated After Being Struck by Car

Walking into the side of a passing car as she crossed the street during heavy traffic, Mrs. Kathleen Stephens, 75, of 63 Benjamin Street, was critically injured Friday evening. The accident occurred on West Bridge Street, near Everett.

Police said the elderly woman had suffered a badly mutilated right arm, shoulder injuries and lacerations and abrasions to her right cheek and face. She was taken to Belleville hospital by Bush's ambulance, where it was found necessary to amputate the arm.

Mrs. Stephens was said to have had a sandwich at a nearby restaurant and had started to cross Bridge Street when the apparently became confused with the heavy traffic. She stepped into the side of a car driven by Robert Coles, 39 Sinclair Street, and was hurled to the pavement.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

Take The Name of Jesus With You

Take the name of Jesus with you,
Child of sorrow and of woe—
It will joy and comfort give you,
Take it then where'er you go.

Take the name of Jesus ever,
As a shield from every snare;
If temptations 'round you gather,
Breathe that holy name in prayer.

Oh! the precious name of Jesus;
How it thrills our souls with joy,
When His loving arms receive us,
And His songs our tongues employ.

At the name of Jesus bowing,
Falling prostrate at His feet,
King of Kings in heaven we'll crown Him,
When our journey is complete.

"TAKE THE NAME OF JESUS WITH YOU"

If ever there was a true "child of sorrow and woe" it was Mrs. Lydia Baxter who wrote this precious old hymn one day in 1870 while suffering from a severe illness in her New York home.

For years Mrs. Baxter was an invalid, unable to leave her room of pain, but her invalidism seemed to mellow her spirit and sweeten the songs which she sent out to brighten and strengthen the lives of other Christians in distress. Many of her hymns were written for children; some of them are still sung in twentieth century Sunday Schools.

Mrs. Baxter was born in Petersburg, New York, on September 2, 1809, and joined the Baptist church at the age of 21. One cannot but wonder what hymns she might have written if she had found her literary talents sooner; but she did not begin her writing career until she was nearly 50. Her first volume of verse, entitled "Gems by the Wayside," was published in 1853 and her best hymns were written in the two decades that followed.

"Take the Name of Jesus With You" will always be the best-loved of her songs. "The Gate Ajar" is another favorite. Seventeen years ago, the Church of Sweden honored Mrs. Baxter's memory by including a translation of this hymn in the appendix to its "Psalm Book."

A Lift for Living

Thinking Ahead of Our Jobs

By Dr. Ralph W. Sockman

A few weeks ago the nation celebrated Newspaper Week. Editors from all parts of the country joined with their South American brethren in Mexico City. Freedom of the press was stressed, a freedom for which many have suffered imprisonment. Many of the written word was not won easily. Like all our rights, we had to fight for it.

We have no Pravda in our country operated by national or local Kremlins. No public official tells an American editor what he may or may not print.

The newspaper business was once erroneously called a 'game.' It is a profession—and an exciting one employing men of integrity and sound vision.

MORE THAN VIEWING

Vision is more than viewing. It is sight plus insight and foresight. There is an old saying that any fool can count the apples on a tree, but it takes a wise man to see the trees in an apple. Good newsgathering gives the events of yesterday and also gets intimations as to what will happen tomorrow.

It was said of a late city editor that he usually knew the block in which a crime was to be committed before it happened. My father was wont to use an expression, "Keep your eye peeled." When we are alert we can often find news in the most drab surroundings.

One day a young telegrapher was sitting at his key in a small railroad station. The tedious hours seemed endless in his lonely office. He spent much of his time reading. He had always wanted to be a newspaper man.

The night station was a few hundred feet from a bridge spanning a river. He saw that bridge daily.

RIVER RISING

One day he noticed that the river was rising. The surging waters were undermining the foundations of the bridge. The pressure of the flood's attack weakened the structure and the bridge collapsed. The young operator opened his wire leading to the headquarters of a large news association. This is what he sent: "A two-horse team and truck have just gone into the river. Three pedestrians are swimming ashore." He continued sending. "Truck and horses gone. Driver clinging to bridge peer. Hold wire. I'll be back."

The press association sought the name of this young man. He was brought to New York and later became an outstanding reporter. He was thinking ahead of his job.

When we "keep our eyes peeled" and are sufficiently interested, we see and create opportunities. Our imaginations are quickened. Doors open in seemingly blank walls.

A young man sold newspapers on the streets of Albany, N.Y. Some years afterward he got a job on an important New York newspaper as an office boy. During a national political campaign he was assigned to accompany the chief editor of his paper. The candidate made scheduled stops at important cities, where the lad scampered to the station telegraph office and filed his chief's copy.

TOO FAR APART

The boy decided that the stops were too far apart. He determined to do something about it. At one large station pause he picked up a dozen stones lodged between the cross-ties. As the editor wrote his "takes" the lad tied each to a stone and cast them off at way stations where there were telegraph offices. The New York office was astonished at the rapid receipt of the editor's copy. The editor could not understand it.

This young man returned to New York as a reporter on the World. He was promoted to city editor, then to managing editor. He developed scores of newspaper men who were inspired by his leadership. He was thinking ahead of his job.

Some years ago a passenger on the "S.S. Leviathan" asked one of the officers how long it would take the liner to stop if an emergency developed. The officer replied, "I think we could do it in a mile and a half." He added: "You see, when you run a big ship like this you have to think at least a mile ahead." And the pilot of a giant airliner has to think many miles ahead.

In this swiftly moving, world we have to be not only on the job but ahead of the job. That is one reason for reading good newspapers.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

PREPARED FOR WINTER

As soon as winter begins to creep up on us, certain Canadians want to make arrangements for avoiding the cold season by flitting to the southern states. And so we are led/led to think that the birds also feel and therefore fear the cold.

However, this is not the reason for fall migration. The main factor is a lack of the particular kind of food which each species requires. Under ordinary circumstances, there is no chance of the body of a normal bird getting too cold. The fact might, and actually do freeze sometimes, thus making the gathering of food impossible.

The body temperature of our birds is considerably higher than ours, usually somewhere between 105 and 109 degrees. Some species have a slightly lower temperature, and into this class come the little shore birds. A few have a higher temperature, in fact up to 112 degrees.

The body temperature of a bird is kept constant by conserving the heat, the most important way being by means of the feathers. Feathers make positively the best insulators; they protect from intense heat as well as from intense cold.

You must have seen our common English sparrows on extremely cold days sitting with their feathers all fluffed out. This increases the thickness of the plumage and, of course, also helps to cover and thus protect the legs and feet.

FOOD IS FUEL

There are other methods also of maintaining the body temperature. As with ourselves, food is fuel. Not only must a bird eat more before migration, but also if it is a year-long resident in the north before the cold weather sets in. Thus fat is added. In fact there is quite a compilation of experiments which has to do with both its digestive system and its lungs in order to prevent loss of heat at times when the body temperature is very low.

Nature has endowed birds of the Arctic with such efficient insulation that they are able to withstand extreme cold. Experiments have been made with a dozen or so species. The glaucous gull and the Canada jay can tolerate the coldest temperature on record: about 90 degrees below zero. The ptarmigan and the snowy owl are the only Arctic birds with feathered legs. Yet when a glaucous gull, a snow bunting, and a raven were acclimated they were able to walk on snow in a temperature as cold by 90 degrees below with no ill effects, although a gull which had been kept indoors for several months had its feet frozen almost immediately.

DUCK SEASON ENDING

Friday was a day of promise.

The damp and chilly weather held out a hope that winter might arrive in time to provide a fitting setting for the closing of the duck season on Tuesday.

The season opened in proper manner. A dreaching rain provided proof that summer was over, that day in mid-September when ducks first became legal quarry in the northern zone.

It was blue-bird weather when the season opened two weeks later in the Belleville district, but that was appropriate, too, providing the type of setting which makes a Canadian fall such a glorious experience.

But for closing day the atmosphere must be different.

The skies are grey. There is a bite to the wind. The marshes and the shallow lakes have locked their doors against the ducks and hunters alike and lie shrouded in the winter's first film of ice. The open water heaves ominously, as it already feeling the iron grip which will immobilize at last the incessant movements of many months.

The late-season birds are few but hunters are even scarcer. The day holds little promise of a big bag and the man who hunts to eat has stayed home by the fireside.

But those who venture forth may learn new thrills. The ducks, robbed of concealment and forced out into the open waters, combine caution with daring. They fling themselves about the storm-tossed sky and race away into the gathering gloom, only to suddenly swoop in and splash among the decoys.

Then there comes the moment when the sun breaks through the blanket of grey to catch a last glimpse of a dead day in a dying year. The western horizon glows a full crimson, the wind sighs through the frozen reeds as if moaning at the thought of the long season which lies ahead. The last duck overtakes the storm-driven snowflakes and disappears. The sky darkens.

Another season ends. If the hunter be not too young, the memory of sky and storm, grey gloom and gay glow, melds into other memories. The heart warms to the past—and the future offers both a hope of the days to be and a promise that many more of them there will be, before the night that falls is the last night and the sun is silent and the hunter still.

WELL, GIVE IT A TRY

"The aim of publishing should be forward," says the editor of the Cobourg Sentinel-Star. "If the stories of crime and court trials were hobbled from the pages of journalism, we feel that crime would be lessened. The criminal plays to the gallery just like a player on the football field."

This is not a new view. But most editors have doubts as to its validity.

A dozen arguments could be advanced against the contention. But why argue, when it is so simple to test?

The editor who wrote those sentences, and other editors who agree with his sentiments, can easily conduct an experiment.

Let them refrain from mentioning crime and court trials in their columns for a month or two.

Then let them obtain statistics for crime in the districts which their papers serve and let them publish the results.

If practice confirms their theory, there will be other editors willing and eager to make the same trial. And if, as we suspect, they discover that lack of publicity for the criminal does not necessarily reduce crime, then another faulty argument will have been exposed.

Well, Cobourg, how about it?

WHY NOT BE RETICENT?

The Western democracies wanted a Big Four conference on European problems.

The Russians said "No!" not directly so much as by imposing impossible conditions.

Then, suddenly, the Russians said "Yes."

A British foreign office spokesman said that Britain welcomes the surprise agreement, but Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden was cautious, avoiding outright comment on the Russian note.

A statement issued by the U.S. state department denounced the Russian note as an obvious effort to slow progress on the development of "greater European unity and strength."

There seems to be a difference of opinion here. Newspaper readers may be puzzled. But nothing in the differing reactions is so puzzling as why it was thought necessary to make these reactions public so promptly.

Just once in a while could not the Western powers get together and compare their opinions on a Russian proposal, drafting some joint statement, before rushing into print with a reply?

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

MAN AND A YEAR

A year grows old, as all things do,
Departs the world to join the past;
Makes way for the approaching new,
And twelve months only that will last.

A year survives through seasons four,
From spring to winter it will stay,
Then, as all else life, but cannot be
And that which follows it no more.

Will have to share, let come what may.

The lifetime of a year is known.
We see it come and watch it go.
But are not certain of our own.
Its length not one of us can know.

God gives to none a guarantee
Of more than strength will long endure.
Man plans his life, but cannot be

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Nov. 23, 1933.

Inspection of the Argyll Light Infantry, under command of Lieut. Col. E. A. Geen, V.D., took place at the armouries last evening and the galleries were filled with spectators who gathered to watch the annual event in the regiment. The Inspecting Officer was the Inspector of Infantry, Brigadier G.E.M. D.S.O. of military headquarters, Toronto. When he entered the armouries and the general salute was given only four absentees were shown by the battalion's roll call. The inspection was most satisfactory to the unit from start to conclusion and called for commendation from the Inspecting Officer, who was much pleased with the general efficiency that Lieut. Col. Geen has enthused in the Argyll Light Infantry. The "Pontoon Song" was rendered by the band, awarded for the third time in "C" Company, under command of Major Hubert M. Jones. Major Jim Reord will, this week, command the unit on close manoeuvres. To Lieut. Col. E. A. Geen V.D. credit is due for the most successful inspection of the Argyll Light Infantry in recent years and reflecting that credit is due to the efficiency of the officers, non-commissioned officers and the rank and file who have served under his leadership. Parties commanding offices present at the reception at this officers' dance following the inspection were the Honorary Lieut. Col. of the Battalion, Lieut. Col. W. H. Ponton K.C.; Lieut. Col. David Barrrack; Lieut. Col. Roscoe Vandervelde, D.S.O.

30 YEARS AGO

The Wharf Street Debating Club held its annual box social and it was an interesting and enjoyable event. Speeches were made by Mayor Geo. Wright and Mr. W. C. Mikel, the candidates for the position of mayor at the coming elections, also the following: Present aldermen Thompson, Greenlead, McCrimmon, Patterson, Donahue, Treverton and Foster, and Messrs. Joseph Imrich, Geo. Dawes, Eugene LaRoche, W. Parish, H. Freeman Ketcheson, George Ostrom and Charles Hanna.

Each Belleville butcher will shortly receive from the government officials 100 pounds of Buffalo meat and will retail the same at 20 cents per pound. The meat will come from the Buffalo ranch at Walkwright, Alberta, where 2,000 head of buffalo were slaughtered recently under government supervision.

The Rev. C. M. Harris of the Anglican Church at Marmora, was in town today.

Two Sides To Every Shiver

(New York Times)

Time was, of course when heating the house was a simple matter. The family gathered, or was rounded into the woods, hacked down a few big trees, sawed them, split them and then enjoyed the resulting cords near the kitchen door. Then all that was necessary when winter came was to keep open fireplaces brightly burning. The side of the person facing the fire remained warm, the side away remained shivering, but everyone then was a contest to have two sides, two temperatures. Central heating changed all that. It gave an even heat throughout, even though the temperature did vary ate with the times the furnace stoker went down to stoke the big furnace. Usually there was but one stoker, for in the average family few object to that kind of hard and dirty work. Never was there a scarcity of individuals at intervals trotting below to increase the heat or to "bank" the fire, parade was born of the thermostat. The parade was born of the many little gadgets whose motion em blem hangs inconspicuously on the wall. By touching only the slightest flick of the finger, will send orders below for heat at 80, or heat at 55.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

HIGHWAY OF HEALTH AND JOY

One of the hardest things human beings have to do is face the necessity of a surgical operation. Millions of these are performed throughout the country and the world every day. Nobody wants to have to go through them. They appear horrifying.

But they seldom are horrifying. Modern surgery is so safe, so well done by any group in modern life that it has been done by the medical profession. Physicians make plenty of mistakes, for they are human, but the exact opposite of their theories every few years. But, taken all in all, the modern surgeon is a marvel. The surgeons have done more to relieve human suffering than any other group that has appeared upon the planet. They can remove discomfort from surgical operations but they have succeeded in removing practically all the fear and much of the acute pain.

If you have to have an operation, just remember two things. First, viewed from the standpoint of safety, your chances for recovery far surpass the possible occurrence of an unusual one you now fear. Best of all, remember that Nature is always at work trying to bring about recovery—and Nature simply surpasses God operating in the physical world. Powers higher than your own are at work for your recovery. Quite literally, the whole human head ever knew are busily at work preparatory to setting your feet again upon the highway of health and joy.

White Brilliant Snob

By SETH EDSON.

writing from Washington in the New Republic

The rise of the late Harry Dexter White is attributed to two things by people who served with him in the Treasury and the International Monetary Fund from 1934 to 1947.

The first was his tremendous drive for power.

His former associates characterize him as an "operator," although he had been born of poor Polish-Jew immigrant parents. The name may have been Weiss.

Harry White recorded his birth on Treasury records as Boston, Mass., October 25, 1892.

His childhood records are completely barren, but he served in the First World War in France and was discharged a first lieutenant.

He held BA and MA degrees from Stanford and a PhD. from Harvard. He taught economics at Lawrence College, Appleton, Wis., from 1924 to 1930, then came to Washington as a $5,800-per-year economist.

He was short and balding. He had a pronounced and worn glasses. He did not smoke and he drank very little.

He had a sharp tongue, was terribly sarcastic and tough on people who annoyed him.

He was unquestionably brilliant in the field of international finance, but accepted his thinking he knew all the answers.

He used his keen superiors in examining new treasury policies and he had no patience with those who disagreed with him.

Former associates now say White apparently was the rise of Communism as the wave of the future and that he chose to be a part of it.

But the most White got out of it he believed to be gifts of vodka, caviar and a rug from the Russian embassy.

The second big influence in the rise of White was Henry Morgenthau Klotz, assistant to Secretary of the Treasury, Henry Morgenthau. He was far more than a confidential secretary, having real power in Treasury office policies. She negotiated White's appointment and did all she could to advance his career.

"Henriette Klotz and her husband became close friends of White, his wife, Ann Terry White, and their children," she said.

Mrs. White was an author of children's books, which were listed modestly in Bethesda, Md., a Washington suburb.

White was violently anti-Nazi. He is long supposedly held to have been the principal architect of the Morgenthau plan for reducing Germany to agriculture, the status of an agricultural nation by destroying its industrial potential.

The plan was blocked by Secretary of State Cordell Hull and others early in 1943.

White's hand was next apparent in planning the Bretton Woods conference of 1944. White headed the American delegation that worked this out with Britain's John Maynard Keynes.

He became head of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, Monetary Fund,

White was pro-British in Brenton Woods conference, he had been anti-British over lend-lease. He opposed the $3,750,000,000 loan to attend the Bretton Woods conference and also broke the Bank and the Fund, it declined.

White has been named before the House of un-American Activities Committee in 1945, Harry White was the leading Red Socialist contained any Communist associations.

He declared: "My creed is the Americanism of Thomas Jefferson, government of law, not of men, where law is above man not man above law."

His friends in the big hearing have applauded him for his achievement. Three days later he died, and the full story of his career may never be completely solved.

Want Colored Margarine

(Edmonton Journal)

A highly embarrassing development for the provincial government is the resolution passed by the Alberta Social Credit League at its convention in Calgary, calling for abolition of the present restrictions on the sale of colored margarine.

This puts the cabinet "right in the middle." On the one hand it faces the wrath of the dairy farmers and the MLA's who represent them in the legislature, who would like present ban on factory-colored margarine maintained, in the forlorn hope that it may reduce the sale of the butter substitute. On the other hand, it can hardly ignore the plea of constituents, and particularly the women's auxiliary which originally sponsored the resolution.

On this question, the Social Credit League undoubtedly speaks for the great majority of Alberta housewives. Margarine has long since become a standard article of food in the province, used daily in the province, used daily in many thousands of homes. It is for the reason why it should not be sold also in other products—colored in any way the customers like it, nor why purchasers should be forced to buy the sad and messy job of coloring it themselves. It is to be hoped the resolution will lead to the passing of the end for this silly restriction.

Biggest Radio Transmitter

(St. Catharines Standard)

They call the mighty contraption "Big Jim." It had its inaugural on Wednesday, Nov. 13. It is the mightiest radio transmitter in the world, and it took all of six years to build at a total cost of $14,000,000. It is located in the Cascade Mountains in Pacific northwest of Seattle. Its antenna, the largest ever built, is suspended between two mountain-top towers. Thirty miles of steel and copperweld cable went into the antenna and earth screen. Its antenna while more than 200 miles of copper wire were buried in the earth beneath the transmitter to ground it to the earth.

The main purpose of the new transmitter is to cut through the fierce magnetic storms which frequently disrupt communications with naval units operating in the Arctic. But U.S. Navy men hope that Big Jim's 50 kw voice will carry to fleet units anywhere on earth, and even to submerged submarines.

Big Jim gets its ability to outshout magnetic storms because of the way the transmitter has an output of more than 1,200,000 watts. That times the power of the nation's largest commercial-transmitters, and is the same as the power of anything the U.S. Navy now uses.

U.S. Navy men declare that the giant transmitter will mean greater national security. It will be a far cry back to the days of amateur radio when experimenters had to listen in and then with dubious results.

Who can tell how long it will now take for U.S. Navy personnel to be sitting in the submarine lounge room deep below the surface enjoying televised play-by-play broadcasts of football games. Nothing is too fantastic these days, if there's the money available.

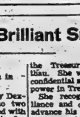
TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

RICHES FOR YOU!

As my father was dying I sat by his bed and talked with him for the last hour. I thanked him for the great heritage that he was leaving to me. Nothing in money, but great wealth in the example of integrity, courage, and ideals. I admired how he had devoted his life to the service of others, and how he had lived a life of quiet dignity, to live the good life.

There is no inheritance as valuable as that which character passed on to us, to enlarge and enrich the talent in the world. In a multi-millionaire the spirit might be very poor. But none of these precious volumes would be of any use to whoever, because they would be blind to the gold that I know is buried and packed in memory's book.



There are riches for you and me, too. Talk if you will only experience what I have over the years. And you will glory in your richness with each oncoming year. Riches don't die. They are neglected, and often forgotten for a time, but people like you and me often find their greatest riches in the years after they have passed on to the great beyond. Memory, like a faithful friend, will bring to us, is to be noted all about us—an Autumn of colorful glory, a sky of stars, falling snow flakes silently giving a robe to the golden leaves that fall in October and November, a singing stream, a friend's voice, the beauty of a shadow, and the understanding look in the eyes of a dog. Riches everywhere—for you!

THE LITTLE BOY IS BEING CHEATED

A father writes:

Dr. Brady

Our nine year old son has not eaten a good cereal breakfast for a long time. Understand he is only of age . . . (Here permit Ol' Doc Brady to inquire cheerfully whether you, sir, have eaten such a meal since the little boy came to live at your house?)

. . . Miss his finger nails and wets the bed. He shows more interest in pie, cake, candy, ice cream and sweetened carbonated beverages (r e q u i r e d euphemism) than in a good meal.

We have consulted our family physician and he says we needn't worry, that the boy will O.K.

I don't agree. We don't want the boy to be a midget. He attends school regularly, is in the fourth grade, and his I.Q. is fair to middlin and good grades.

(Signed)

At least ten million other little boys in Yankeeland are being cheated in the way you describe sir. All of the high calory "nourishing" items you mention, surfeit with refined sugar and/or refined starch (carbohydrate) but supply not one thin dab of or adult requires to grow, develop, work, play and live happily.

Refined carbohydrate (white flour, white sugar, syrup, starch) is the food that makes it to refresh or restore the energy of one who is tiring in mountain climbing, a marathon race or any kind of prolonged effort. It is easy to digest and it yields quick energy, but the refreshment is too brief.

Child or adult needs other food materials beside carbohydrate. A substantial meal, whether it be breakfast, lunch or dinner should include a reasonable portion of meat, fish, cream, butter, egg yolk, margarine, bacon, peanut oil (peanutbutter), olive oil, mayonnaise or the like. A substantial meal must include protein that is nitrogenous material of the sort the body can use for building, repair and growth, biologically complete protein which contains the amino-acids the body requires for these purposes—lean meat, fish, eggs, cheese, milk, peas, beans, nuts.

A boy or girl must the boy to grow big and strong. Then for health's sake give him food he can digest.

Axes Ring In Woodsheds

(Windsor Star)

These are the days when the axes begin to ring in farm woodsheds. The advent of cold weather makes fire wood a necessity where homes rely on this kind of fuel, and many households have a supply already on hand.

Most provident farmers, however, have had their woodsheds full of wood. The best time to bring it in is in the spring when there is snow on the ground so the sleigh can move easily with the load. Then it is a job that can be done in the late autumn or early winter when the ground is frozen. A fault with the latter practice is the wood is apt to be wet with autumn rains and soft snows.

The wood normally is split into large chunks in the bush, and then there for months to dry. When brought into the woodshed, it must be split into smaller pieces suitable for the cook stove. Sometimes like to split a lot at a time, and have it neatly piled

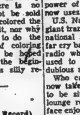
By GREGORY CLARK

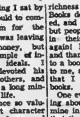
A farm dog is the greatest field naturalist of us all. If you want to become a good naturalist fetid out a dog for a walk behind a friendly farm dog across the wintry fields.

By a farm dog is meant the fanciest mongrel you can find, not a collie, but one sassmouthing in its blood of the virtues of many of even a country, Collie, hound, spaniel and terrier are powerful terms. The earth, Spaniels are noble: but their delight is in flying things: their instinct is to bring things to take wing.



But a dog that has most or all of these qualities is a fascinating companion and an ardent teacher. On a walk over the farm of a nephew of mine, his little black Susan escorted me. She has all the breeds there are in her, some that can only be guessed. As we struck over the pasture, she stopped to look intently over the fence. Her ears told her I also had stopped, that I was looking at her and not staring off to the right, too. That was enough for Susan. She was off.

And what a day we had in pasture and stubble and wooded and creek valley. What she had been looking at, I never knew. There was merely a chime of winter sparrows; tree sparrows they were, I think, but Susan thought she referred to me every living creature that moved, mouse, squirrel, hare. When she came upon a weasel track in the snow, for fifteen minutes, tiring only when the scent petered out, she followed it. Her crowning lesson came when she, with the cunning of the wild, the artistry of a pantomimist, led me, cautiously, stealthily, in a wide circle to the top of a hill and a red fox.



I love the hallos that from ancient times has been the greeting for the view. Susan raced away to the hill and stood over the little home. And our paths converged at the barn, both of us exhausted and enormously happy.

The Greatest Faith Ever Known

The Road to Damascus

CHAPTER 7.

Saul set out on the road to Damascus with death in his heart. He could not know that he was about to keep a rendezvous with Life itself.

To Saul's mind "Pharisaism or Jesus" was the sole issue. And Saul the Pharisee went out to battle the upstart Church with a sword in his hand and a troop of cavalry and foot soldiers at his command to pursue the Christians who had fled Jerusalem.

The military unit was the gift of Caiphas, high priest of the Jerusalem Temple. In Saul, Caiphas had recognized the perfect instrument to wipe out Christianity: a resolute man, well educated, seething with zeal. Caiphas had given him a packet of official letters, sealed and imprinted with the seal of the high priest, and addressed to all the synagogues to the north.

Saul meant to scorch the land and Saul meant to scorch the land as far north as the great desert. His prominent Caiphas he would bring back, bound and shipless, every Christian that he found.

Saul the Roman citizen and nobleman rode without finding a single fellowship of Christians without incident or any kind until he was drawing near to Damascus. From his right horse Saul could see the well-tended green gardens lying all around the ancient city and the two rivers whose embrace made this place a lovely place of rich harvest. Even under the heel of Imperial Rome Damascus was, being governed by an autonarch called Aretas, a local king set up by the Roman Emperor, so the people looked happy.

Saul, his mind filled with his fanatical cry, was anticipating the good dinner and the sweet nightly repose he knew he could expect at the principal inn, under the roofed bazaar of the "Street That Is Called Straight."

The border of the town was not more than half a mile away when Saul suddenly swayed in his saddle.

Everything he could see and hear and feel all around him underwent a change. There was a child with a harp sitting at the blinding light shining on him from the heavens, and the roar of great winds in his ears.

Saul clutched at the reins—but his gelded hands could not hold them. He pushed with his heels against the stirrups, called on ankles quaked and all power had gone out of his legs. With a great many he realized he had no strength to help himself. He fell to the ground and lay there helpless.

Then the roaring sound ceased and he heard a Voice—a searing but compassionate;

"Saul, Saul! Why do you persecute Me?"

Groaning, not daring to lift his face from the earth, Saul replied:

"Lord, who are you?"

And the answer came in winning tones:

"I am Jesus, whom you persecute. It is hard for you to kick against the goad."

There could be no answer to that. Saul knew what the words meant, especially in relation to himself. A goad was a long stick about nine feet in length, sharpened at one end for poking at cattle. And the cattle could not kick against it, for the herdsman was minding away. Saul felt very much as helpless now. He sensed, dimly, that the same futile rebellion had been at the root of his emotional storms in the weeks since Stephen's death.

Trembling and astonished, Saul fattered the question that spelled his immediate, instantaneous surrender;

"Lord, what will you have me to do?"

The voice of the Lord replied to the man lying face down in the dust:

"Arise and go into the city and there it shall be told you what you must do."

And the Voice seemed to pale away in the wind.

Saul raised his head, drew himself up to a sitting position, and shook himself. His soldiers stood, amazed and troubled, in a great circle. They, too, had heard the Voice; and yet they had seen no man speak except Saul, their captain. They stood in silence like was like a spell. Then two of them took Saul by the armpits and raised him to his feet. But Saul's groping hands, as they made to let go of him, told them a shocking truth.

Saul was blind!

Saul never doubted he had actually seen Jesus. Years later, in the first letter he wrote to the Corinthians, he would rehearse the familiar history of Christ's death, burial, and Resurrection. He would remind the people of Corinth that the risen Christ had appeared to Peter and the rest of the twelve, that He had been seen by more than five hundred disciples at once, many of whom were still alive when the letter was being written. And then he added, with fervent humility and thanksgiving:

"And last of all, He was seen also by me, as by one born out of due time."

"For I am the least of the apostles, who am not worthy to be called an apostle, because I persecuted the Church of God.

"But by the grace of God, I am what I am; and His grace in me has not been void, but I have labored more abundantly than all they; yet I, but the grace of God with me."

Sceptics still scoff at this encounter. Nearly two thousand years away from evidence, with no testimony for their own, skeptics, they dismiss Saul's conversion as an epileptic fit. The line of years from then to now quakes with convicting epileptics, not one of whom has written a single letter that affected the world, nor converted a people, nor captured the imagination of posterity. Only Saul did; Saul, to whom so much was reported before Damascus or since. No skeptic can dispute the complete change in life of Saul, or what suffering he endured for it.

In that one blinding, falling moment Saul became another man. The hunter of Christians, the persecutor, was reborn in one instant full of yearning to be a Christian.

The roaring sound ceased and, groaning, Saul replied:

"Lord, who are you?"

He had seen God. And trembling before that glory, stripped naked of his intellectual pretenses, he had asked out in the hope of and fear of all believers:

"Lord, what would You have me to do?"

Saul let his soldiers lead him slowly toward the open gate of Damascus. Strangely, he felt no humiliation in being blind, helpless in the hands of underlings. He was going into the city, as the Lord had commanded him, to wait to be told what next to do. To him nothing else mattered.

Young Canadian Actor Earns London Plaudits

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—A young Canadian actor stepped into the unlikely role of a slum-district barrow boy—and the London stage had a new candidate for stardom.

So convincingly did 24-year-old Neil McCallum of Saskatoon fill the part that cozy of London's well-known critics, Harold Hobson, gave him the compliment of a lengthy review.

McCallum, a hard-working Scots Canadian, appeared in "The Dance of Death," a play about a povertystricken yonky couple whose grueling life after the floor things in life leads to murder. Critics found the story this but nearly all, including the reviewer of the Communist Daily Worker, had a word of praise for McCallum.

Parkdale Housing Settlement Sets Pace in Developing Splendid Community Spirit

Pride of ownership plus a united effort on the part of home owners to get things done has turned a Veterans' Land Act housing settlement in Thurlow township just northeast of the city into a rural residential district filled with costly homes that would be a credit to any urban municipality.

The new residential area, lies north of College Street West, on what not too many years ago was known as the Tracey farm. Today nearly 100 homes, many of them in the $15,000 class, have been built by veterans of World War II.

Home owners in the area have formed a ratepayers' association and already several community projects are underway. One of these is the placing of sign posts with street names for all streets in the area. Another is the development of a playground and hockey children. They call the new area Parkdale.

LARGE LOTS

Association treasurer Robt. Michaud says that the up to three acres for each building lot which is a V.L.A. requirement puts home owners in the country estate class.

There is lots of room for everyone and the V.L.A. requirement of one-half acre for a building lot makes it unlikely that a neighbor will build so close as to make sleep difficult for the next family on the street.

Until roads were built Mr. Michaud admits things were a "bit tough" in the new residential area, but for the most part such inconvenience is a thing of the past. All the amenities of city life, including city water and mail delivery to the door, are available. Any feelings of being away in the country have long disappeared.

The fact that every family living in the area is an owner rather than a tenant gives an added incentive for all residents to keep their own places neat and tidy.

Landscaping of many of the lots has already been completed and there is well at it other projects there has been a show of community spirit and co-operation.

In other words it was not necessary for each home owner to purchase tools for landscaping or for instance, to get at it and out of the way spot that needs a touch of paint. When one owner was ready to landscape, the neighbors chipped in and made it a bee. Then the gang moved on to the next home.

PURCHASE STREET SIGNS

Formation of the ratepayers' association this past summer put the neighborhood co-operation on a community scale. Although streets had been named there was no way in which a stranger could identify them.

So one of the first projects of the association was to purchase and install new street signs. These are of cast aluminum and about 20 of them have been erected, posts set solidly in concrete to make it a permanent job.

Also during the past summer about 250 maple trees have been planted and residents of Parkdale have vision of tree-shaded streets in the not too far distant future. A project now underway but which will need several years for completion is the new park and sports field.

Six acres were reserved by the V.L.A. as a possible site for a school. This site was turned over to Thurlow township which has now turned it back to the ratepayers' association for development as a park. Thanks to volunteer labor and the Thurlow township bulldozer most of the six acres has now been levelled.

COMMUNITY PROJECTS

Various money making projects have been started to raise funds for the purchase of playground equipment. Home wood working shops will be busy this winter as residents manufacture what wooden equipment is required. A softball diamond and hockey cushion are future developments.

Parkdale school children in the area are better off than their city cousins. They don't even have to walk to school as the school bus picks them up at their door and delivers them again at their school.

Parkdale got its start shortly after the war when the VLA constructed half a dozen homes for veterans as a subdivision of College Street.

The idea quickly caught on and since then nearly 100 veterans have taken advantage of government assistance to build their own homes.

Some contracted their homes while others contracted the foundation and rough framework, doing the finishing themselves. All have a pride of ownership that is reflected in closely cropped lawns, well-painted homes, trim walks and driveways.

President of the Parkdale Ratepayers' Association is Charles Keeble, vice-president is Jim Colligan, secretary is Carson Stratton and treasurer, Robert Michaud.

LITERARY FIND

CHICHESTER, England (CP)—A civic official, C. E. Welch, discovered a copy of the New Testament in French, believed published in France by Simon du Boys in 1525. The edition had been buried among the archives of this Sussex town.

Above is a typical example or overcrowded conditions at the Belleville General Hospital. Nurses ordered beds and other traffic in corridors are hampered by beds which it has been found necessary to place there to accommodate the increased patient population. Listed as a 151-bed institution, the latest census has revealed the population to be 167 and there is also a waiting list. In some instances where emergency conditions existed, beds had to be located in inadequate waiting rooms.

Lack of Proper Accommodation for Patients Biggest Problem Facing Hospital Officials

"The lack of accommodation at the Belleville General Hospital for patients has reached deplorable aspects, Kenneth E. Box, hospital administrator said this week.

Mr. Box recounted a case where it was necessary for a patient to undergo an emergency operation recently and absolutely no space or bed in the institution could be found for him. The patient's condition was such he could not make a journey to any other hospital and the surgery had to be done right away. The administrator said in that instance a bed was set up in the second floor waiting room and the patient admitted. When a more suitable bed became available he was moved from the waiting room.

The hospital is listed as a 151-bed institution but the census taken on Monday revealed the patient population to be 167 add Mr. Box said there is also a long waiting list. The listed number of beds includes 11 in the corridors.

In past weeks emergency cases have had to be accommodated on wheel stretchers in the out patients ward for a number of hours until a bed could be located. Summing up conditions at the hospital, the administrator pointed out service facilities are also there but nothing we can do. suffering due to overcrowding. However, Mr. Box described a change in this department as a must."

"There are really no waiting rooms in the hospital," Mr. Box said, "chairs for patients awaiting treatment have had to be set up in corridors."

When the new wing is completed it is the plan of the hospital officials to move most of the patients to the new portion and extend offices and facilities throughout the existing wings. At present the service facilities have only half as much space as they require.

Club Activities

BABY BAND MEETS

A nicely arranged meeting and party for the members of the Baby Band and their mothers was held on Tuesday afternoon in the Talled Church hall, Shannonville, which was brightened with Christmas decorations.

Mrs. Elizabeth Juby, Baby Band superintendent, was in charge, with Mrs. Scott as pianist. After a reading by Mrs. Juby, the children presented their mile graces.

Mrs. Scott gave a talk and by illustrating it with pictures of the children of other bands, explained to the Baby Band members that their gifts of money went to help the little ones, of other countries, who are in need of not as well cared for as they are here.

The Band celebrated Cheryl Juby's third birthday by singing "The Birthday Song" to her. Mrs. Scott showed the children by means of a Nativity poster how the birthday of the Christ Child was celebrated on Christmas Day. The closed her talk with a lovely poem.

Refreshments were served.

Club Plans Joint Meeting With Sales Ad

The Business and Professional Women's Club of Belleville held its monthly dinner-meeting at the Hotel Quinte. Despite the brevity of the meeting to allow members to attend the Community Concert, a number of items were covered.

On the agenda were plans covering the forthcoming joint dinner meeting with the Sales and Advertising Club of Belleville to be held in December. Last year members of the club were guests of the Sales and Ad Club. The dinner met with such success that this return visit is being anticipated by all members.

A donation was made to the Belleville Hospital Fund Campaign and all members were urged to make their individual donations as large as possible.

A letter of thanks from the Children's Aid Society was read acknowledging and gratefully accepting a donation made during Business Women's Week. Thanks were extended to Eva Doolittle, convener, and her committee for the work done during Business Women's Week.

President Isabell Wallbridge was pleased to announce that Dorothy Brown and her committee had been instrumental in organizing a second new B. and P. Women's club in the immediate vicinity. The first club held its organizational meeting on November 19, with Mrs. Elva Curry as charter president.

FASHION COPY

Why, oh why don't newspaper editors use a woman reporter to describe the clothes worn by women celebrities in the news? You can read columns of fashion news on the women's pages minutely described, yet whenever a fashion note appears in a straight news write-up, it is usually garbled, vague and erroneous simply because men cannot write two words about women's wear and be explicit.

When President Eisenhower visited Ottawa recently The Canadian Press despatch said, "Mrs. Eisenhower wore a fur cape, dark suit, green velvet hat, with matching gloves and pumps and pearl necklace and earrings." The reporter might just about as well have been watching the ceremony on TV with this report.

The girls had a good laugh at the description of Madame St. Laurent's outfit too, "the prime minister's wife wore a broad-tailed fur cape, black dress and black hat." This priceless account of our first lady's outfit cost only went over the wires to the U.S. and U.K. thus, but was not even altered by many Canadian daily and weekly newspaper editors when they, in turn, reprinted the story.

potatoes are carefully prepared and ready to be cooked in any fashion you fancy. This service is a great help to restaurant and hotel operators as it is to career wives.

PAPER SALT SHAKERS

This week we bought some individual polato salads for a picnic supper. When we opened up the salad box, besides the wooden forks, tiny paper packets were enclosed. These were white corrugated pasteboard packets about the size of a book of matches.

When you bend these packets, salt or pepper spills out in the required quantities. For picnic basket or lunch pail, these new seasoning packets will be helpful.

HANGERS PUZZLE

Some years ago, they used to make a past or skirt hanger which was a simple and a last-ing article. It merely pinched the trouser cuffs by the sliding up or down of a tiny metal loop. Today pant hangers are made up of the most complicated hinged wire gadgets that spring out, fall apart and demand removal from the coat rack before you can release the clothing article.

Modern hangers are more costly because they are more complicated to make. Let's get back to the simpler cheaper things that used to last for years.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WHAT FUTURE CAN SHE HOPE FOR IN A TROUBLED WORLD?

"From a girl who is a senior in high school comes a letter that goes straight to one's heart and wrenches it.

"For the picture of herself which this teen-aged writer paints, so full of bewilderment shows a young person who is deeply affected by the troubled times in which she lives, and who is wondering if any good can possibly come out of the chaos into which her world has been thrown.

"I can't really explain how I feel or why," she writes, "but when I was reading about the people who have been tortured by the Communists and I spent me an extra much that I began to cry. I read about the Jews who have been killed in that 'hell' over there and I just can't seem to take it sanely. Every time I read of a person killed in that war I start to think of his family and the way they must feel. Sometimes I think if there is anything half the people in this country would be people in this country would be lonely.

"And then tonight Mom and Dad were discussing plans for next year's vacation and it seems so silly as if they were auto-planning for next year's vacation and it seems so silly as if they were auto-planning for next year's. I mean, Sunshine it seem to have the idea that there's no sense in planning anything for it. I wonder if I could get you to see it.

"I'm a senior in high school, and lately my main ambition has been being me what I want to do when I graduate. I have always been a dedicated person, but now I always know what I wanted to do when I was out. Last summer, I was even planning what I'd want my grandmother dress and prom dress to look like. Now I tell myself that I shouldn't plan anything, because I might be disappointed if it never happened.

"I still seems so crazy I just don't know what to do. I can't understand it. I've been in the clubs this before—fewer. I keep wondering how so many people, including my friends and my family, can just go around as if what they read in the papers is of no importance to them, as if they don't care. Why can't I be like that? I always used to bey why the changes.

"My boy friend is overseas, but not in any dangerous place, and I find myself even wondering about his homecoming. Sometimes I get myself to sleep wondering if I'll ever see him again, for all I want get of life is the life we planned together. I don't even plan for that any more.

"I don' t think I ever realized how much I love the country I'm living in and the wonderful things it stands for, as I have since this threat to our freedom came.

"Why on earth I feel this way I don't know, and I'm not sure that the way I feel, but I can't seem to get hold of myself at all. I hope you may help me.

Why this girl feels as she does, and what lies in store of the way she feels, is, without any doubt, the deep interest and insecurity common to all humanity right now. So far as she can see, her family, her friends and most of the people she meets appear untroubled by any such distress, and she feels alone and desolate in her anxiety. But, actually, so far from being alone in it, she is far more a real part of life, and has far more spiritual comprehension of the state of the world, than if she felt otherwise. It merely happens that she is going through a period when this insecurity has suddenly hit her so hard that it casts its dark shadow over all she sees and thinks and feels.

Not everybody is as acutely and continuously aware of the universal unrest as she is at the moment. Some are young enough so that they dismiss it pretty much from their minds and are able to concentrate on the day to day affairs of living. Some shrug their shoulders and adopt a fatalistic attitude toward the future which persuades them that they can't do anything about it—the "Eat, drink and be merry for tomorrow we die" attitude. The more mature are fully conscious of what this girl calls "this threat to our freedom" and the possible cost we may have to pay to maintain it. But they have a sufficiently firm conviction that—if each of us does his or her part as a good citizen—it can, and will, be maintained, to give them faith in a better world eventually, and so to enable them to live life with reasonable peace of mind as far as possible in the pattern normal to them.

This isn't hope, is the frame of mind at which this anxious and, I think, frightened teen-ager will arrive in time. If she will stop try-

QUESTION:

... you do so much good with your kindly hints and helpful receipts. ...I've tried your "Jiffy Cake" ... the one that is made in 1 hour and beaten with an egg beater. It turned out so successfully that I can honestly say it is the first cake that has been a joy to see and eat. I've attempted others before, but since the jiffy one all have not been scientific as one sees in print. I only have a rangette but still the temperature is good and steady. I lately I've bought a tube pan. I wondered if a 2- layer cake recipe could be baked in the tube pan. It is a 10-inch one. ... can most cake recipes be beaten with an egg-beater? The Jiffy one was so light and my other one so heavy and porous it makes me wonder if I would appreciate a number of raisin recipe ... one that is similar to the creamy type of Jiffy cake. Also I have been given access to a large quantity of turkey fat. ... I have tried to make use of it but it is always too strong and rich. Is there another way of hardening it? Can turkey fat be made into good shortening? I have just received a proper proportions of fat I should use in raisin recipes?—Mrs. Arthur M.

ANSWER:

The answer is "no" to your question re baking any 2-layer cake recipe in a tube pan. Also to your question, can most general cakes be beaten with an egg beater?

Let us make haste slowly. You either have time to make a successful Jiffy Cake. You want to use your tube pan, and you want to beat your better with an egg-beater. Try this:

HOT MILK SPONGE CAKE

Sift cake flour and measure 1 cup. To the flour add 2 teaspoons baking powder and sift them together three times. In a bowl beat 3 eggs for ten minutes until they are very light and fluffy and white. Begin adding 1 cup sugar to the eggs, while beating constantly, taking at least another 5 minutes to add the sugar while you beat, so that none of it settles at the bottom of the bowl. Add 2 teaspoons lemon juice, beat 2 tablespoons milk until it is scalding hot but not boiling. Sift 1-3 of the flour mixture over, add 1-3 of the milk and fold in; repeat until all flour and milk are added—but at this stage do a minimum of stirring—merely fold until flour is moistened and batter is smooth. Pour into ungreased tube pan. (If crusts is a problem thy batter will be less in it, but then will not stand the baking.) Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 35 minutes. Batter will shrink about 1-16 inch from sides of pan. Invert pan over cake rack and cool for 1 hour, then loosen cake at sides with knife and coax out with fingers. This batter may be baked in loaf or layer tins.

The mayonnaise recipe you mention is a trade secret. The following recipe is a reasonable substitute.

CREAMY MAYONNAISE

In top of double boiler mix together 3-3 cup flour, 1 teaspoon each of salt and dry mustard. Slowly stir in 1-4 cup mild vinegar and 1-4 cup boiling water and cook over boiling water, stirring until mixture thickens. Cook 3 minutes, five minutes, stirring twice. Remove from heat and pour into cold bowl. Beat with rotary beater 4 egg yolks thoroughly. Chill 1 to 2 hours. Then begin to very slowly beat into the egg yolks, 1 cup salad oil, 1 teaspoon at a time, until all is used. Then beat in the salad mixture

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

There was nothing wrong with the Memes last night that a couple of breaks wouldn't have cured. On their play they thoroughly deserved to win, and have no alibis, such as "unexpected refereeing", or clarting accidents. They outshone the home team with a brilliant performance coming and going, and big Vern Geyer was luring on the only real chance. It was fast, furious hockey and easily one of the best, if not the best clash here this season. Peter Jones came up with a picture goal in the second heat that brought the faithful to its feet.

It was closely-fought hockey with nobody quarting the honors and had the Memes had a little more luck around the net the nod's might have been reversed. As it was, Goodyear goalie Johnson came up with another sparkling effort and thereby hangs most of the tale of defeat.

The Memes trek to Orillia tonight where they take on the Pontiacs for the opening game in the local arena. The Pontiac won't be feeling too friendly as the Petes sent them back on their haunches last night with an 8-4 defeat.

The Memes retain their fourth spot position with four points, while the Petes strengthened their hold on third slot and now have seven points. The Pontiac trail with three.

Reilly Sarrault pulled a "Twin Earpact" in the dying seconds of the game that the officials have yet to see. With three or four seconds to go, Coach Perry yanked the goalie and sent out a sixth forward. Sarrault neared the players' side, a Kingston player broke through and Reilly hightailed it back for the goal.

The attacker was stopped, and Sarrault, knowing there were seven men on the ice, scooted for the boards and tried to scramble up and over and lose himself in the crowd. He dangled like a fish on a hook for a second or so. Then the whistle blew and it was over.

SAFETY AT SEA!

Veteran yachtsmen of the city and district have noted with pleasurable pride the gradual upsurge in interest in things nautical during the past couple of years.

Sailing and power-boating recreation is rapidly approaching the high sports status it held here several years ago. The handsome clubs house and facilities of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club; the Wills Marina on South Front Street; the increase in visits of proud American yachts and powered craft have awakened interest in boating that was left-apathetic until but a few years ago.

The number of registered boats here has increased at a sensational rate. Upwards of 30 new craft were added to the fleet of the yacht squadron alone last summer, while many powered craft not associated with the club, bobbed proudly at their docks.

And with this increase in boat population comes a commensurate increase in accident hazard. There is a lot more to yacht-cookie or sailing than the mere handling of the tiller. Successful operation of a speed-boat powered by an engine or two calls more than merely the hazards of an engine or how to manipulate a throttle.

A potential automobile driver must take a "beginner's license". He must pass examinations before he can obtain his actual driver's qualification document.

In yachting and power-boat operation, as in that of motor vehicles, knowledge of various rules and regulations is essential. With this in mind, as well as the unlimited expansion potential of the bay, the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club is sponsoring a pilotic course that will enable successful students to become members of the Canadian Power Squadron.

The course includes equipment and government regulations; rules of the road at sea; seamanship; safety at sea; the mariner's compass; aid to navigation, charts and pilotiig and manners and customs on shipboard.

Anyone can join whether a yacht club member or not. Ladies are especially invited. If ten students are successful in the pilotiig course, Belleville will be recognized as a power squadron and the successful students can fly the CPS pennant on their craft.

Those who pass their piloting examinations and who have become members of the CPS may take additional courses in seamanship, advanced piloting, junior navigation and navigator.

The course which gets under way at the yacht club Monday evening at eight o'clock will be under the instructional supervision of four yacht club members as well as those from outside the city. Freeman Burrows will teach the basics of the road; Irwen Whitmore, charts; Addison Lloyd, knots, etc., and Bill Knudsen, navigation.

Power squadron instruction will give you knowledge which will increase the safety of your boating, enable you to comply with governmental regulations and add interest and satisfaction to the pleasure of the sport.

Bulldogs Trim Hamilton 6-3; Take Over Top

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Windsor Bulldogs, playing their first season in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series, Friday night moved into first place in the league standings with a 6-3 victory over the third-place Hamilton Tigers.

In other games, Chatham Maroons defeated Niagara Falls Canucks 5-3 and Sarnia Sailors suspended Stratford Indians 5-2. The Chatham win moved the Indians from sixth to fourth place.

In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior group, Sudbury Wolves edged Pembroke Lumber Kings 4-3.

HANDY SCORES FOUR

Walt Haidy scored four goals for Windsor with Art Pilmber and Dick Kolanen scoring one each. Murray Costello scored twice for Hamilton and Frank Bergeron got the other.

Ernie Dick, Jim Campbell, Jim Connelly, Jack Hill and Bill Lee shared Chatham's scoring with Red Olsen. Bill Ness and Nick Dubrick scoring for Niagara Falls.

Sarnia's scoring went to Bill Carleton, Reg Gardner, Bob Del-Grosso, Red Douglas and Frank Leek. Jim Totten and Cliff Aitken were the Stratford goal-getters.

Tonight, Sarnia plays at Owen Sound, Chatham goes to Kitchener and Hamilton is at Stratford.

EQUABLE CLIMATE

Average monthly temperatures in Prince Edward Island range from about 17 degrees in February to about 66 in July.

Tigers Favored by Experts But Its All-Even on Paper; Cup Play New to Both Teams

TORONTO (CP)—Two hungry teams, meeting today in the Grey Cup, the East against the West in a football battle that is the game of the year.

In most Dominion finals it is a contest of the rich against the poor, the team with a long-standing tradition of championships against the team from the other side of the tracks.

But this year the Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Hamilton Tiger-Cats background is different. Both teams have won this East-West final before, but their triumphs are so far in the past that so player on the field today can boast of ever playing with a Grey Cup winner.

Hamilton has won four Dominion titles, the last in 1943, by the wartime Wildcats, and has been beaten three times in the finals. Winnipeg's record is three victories in 12 tries, the most recent in 1941. They have split their only two previous Grey Cup clashes.

For a few of the Bombers the final is an old familiar. They are the survivors of the 1950 club that took a 15-6 drubbing in the mud-bound Cup of 1950 against Toronto Argonauts. Not a man on this Tiger-Cat roster has ever worn a uniform on Grey Cup day.

WHOOPEE C'MONGRY"

In addition, the western representatives in the Cup by tradition. Only four of 34 finalists from the Provinces have won the Cup.

Perhaps for this reason alone, Hamilton were quoted as favorites in the pre-game odds. Both teams played in-and-out football over their respective schedules, hitting their best form in the playoffs. On paper, there appeared little to choose between them.

External Affairs Minister Pearson, an old sports writer with University of Toronto Blues, was on hand for the opening kickoff.

Barrie Flyers Trim Teeps 6-3; Nip Loss String

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Those that persevered in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series Friday night met with success.

Toronto St. Michael's College Majors, Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts and Barrie Flyers all came up with victories and in each case moved a notch up the standings.

St. Mike's edged Guelph Biltmores 5-4 in overtime to slide into second with four points behind the first-place St. Catharines Teepees. The Greenshirts moved into a third-place deadlock with Galt Black Hawks with a 5-3 win over Hamilton Tiger-Cubs in overtime.

BARRIE WINS

Barrie broke its three-game losing streak by defeating first place St. Catharines 6-3. It was the Ceeps fifth loss in 18 outings.

Brian Anderson scored St. Mike's overtime goal after 1:40 had gone. Less Duff, Bill Colvin and Jack Caffery getting the others. Bob Attersley tallied twice for Guelph and Ed Shack and Irv Scott each added singles.

Bruce Jones scored the Greenshirts' winner. Buddy Jones also added the clincher a few minutes later. Beryl Rinaldi tallied twice for the winners and Claude Bolduc came up with the other. Johnny Robb, Ed Leutit and Connie Burton were the Hamilton marksmen.

Jim Robertson scored three goals for Barrie and Johnny Hanlan added two. Bill McQueen, Al Smith and Dan McNeil were the other Flyer scorers. Gerry Cullen scored two for St. Catharines and brother Brian scored one.

Black Hawks Call Gelineau To Fill in For Al Rollins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The "sold" sign was removed from Chicago Black Hawks' net Friday. The new tenant is Jean Gelineau, goalie of Quebec Aces of the Quebec Hockey League for the last two seasons.

Gelineau was called up by coach Sid Abel against Detroit Red Wings for a home-and-home National Hockey League series this weekend.

Abel rejected the last tenant, Stan Marsh, also of the Aces, after an unsatisfactory performance in which he let in 12 goals in two Hawk losses to Toronto and Montreal.

Gelineau, voted the league's outstanding rookie in 1943-50 when he played for Boston Bruins, is filling in for the Hawks' regular goalie, Al Rollins, ill with chicken pox and complications following two teeth extractions.

With only three wins and three ties in 26 starts, Hawks trail New York Rangers by six points.

The Wings have boosted themselves into second place, three points behind the leading Canadiens.

However, the Canadiens, with two games scheduled—against Toronto tonight and New York Sunday—appear slated to stay ahead of the pack.

The largest crowd of the season is expected to jam Maple Leaf Gardens tonight as thousands of persons in Toronto for the Canadian football final plan to take in the hockey game.

Winnipeg Band Bomberettes See Game on TV

TORONTO (CP)—An ex-Winnipegger, Dr. E. M. Howse, minister of Toronto's Bloor Street United Church, has come to the rescue of the Winnipeg police band and the 28 Blue Bombertiles who can't get into Varsity Stadium to see the Grey Cup final.

The girls and the band will be able to watch the game by television at Dr. Howse's church, two blocks from the stadium. The band and Bombertiles have no tickets for the game.

Dr. Howse, a minister in Winnipeg for 13 years before coming to Toronto in 1946, has a 27-inch TV set ready in the church hall.

Dr. Howse also said he is attempting to get two or three other television sets so the general public can join the Winnipegers in watching the contest.

'Sasky' Beauty Is Selected 'Miss Grey Cup'

TORONTO (CP)—Joanne Balrd, representing Saskatchewan Roughriders, is Miss Grey Cup of 1953.

Miss Argo, blonde June Besseau of Toronto, was second and Miss Kitchener Waterloo Dutchmen, Sheryl Mallaby, was third.

About 2,000 persons attended the crowning ceremonies.

Miss Grey Cup, five-foot-eight-inch brunette and the tallest girl on the contest, was the last to leave when she was chosen winner at the Grey Cup Ball arranged by the Junior Board of Trade.

Her prizes include a 21-black mink stole, a travelling make-up kit and a jewel case, all donated by Toronto firms.

Miss Argo, 18-year-old student at Toronto's Danforth Technical School, received a muskrat fur coat. Miss Dutchman won a diamond-set wrist watch.

CRU Honors Grid Veterans

TORONTO (CP)—Two men long active in Canadian football were honored Friday night by the Canadian Rugby Union for their part in the development of the game.

The two, who were presented with memento plaques at the annual Grey Cup dinner, are Dr. Harry C. Griffith, retired headmaster of Ridley College of St. Catharines, and Frank J. Hannibal of Winnipeg, one of western Canada's most active football executives.

Dr. Griffith played football for Ridley in 1895 and later became coach and University of Toronto. His Toronto Varsity team won the Grey Cup in 1909 and 1910, the first two years it was up for competition, before the trophy became emblematic of an East-West clash.

Hannibal was one of those instrumental in the formation of the Western Interprovincial Football Union. He was president of the Winnipeg teams that won the Grey Cup in 1935 and 1941.

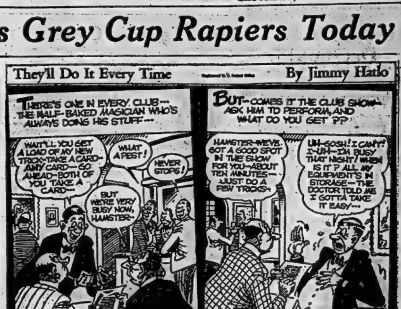
Hornets Whip Syracuse 6-1

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Pittsburgh Hornets displayed their best offensive of the season in the first period Friday night as they scored five goals which enabled them to coast to a 6-1 victory over Syracuse in an American Hockey League game.



Two of the markers were scored by Andy Bathe, the others being tallied by John McLellan, Jack Leclair and Bob Solinger.

Rickey Hogg scored the Syracuse goal.

Phil Maloney added another goal for the winners in the final frame.

Kingston Goodyears Snatch 3-2 Win Over Memos In Senior B Thriller

Overcome 2nd Period Deficit With Brace of Goals in Third In Speedy Hard-Hitting Game

By GEORGE H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

In a bruising, battling, "breakaway" tussle, Kingston Goodyears reared from behind here last night to edge the Belleville Memos 3-2 and further strengthen their hold on second place in the senior "B" group standing.

It was the sixth loss for the Maples and the third time in a row they have bowed to the Goodyears by a single goal margin. The victory was the sixth for the 1953 champions and gave them twelve points, six behind the group-leading Oshawa Truckmen.

It was a battle of breaks, breakaways and sensational goal-keeping that saw both teams travel at lightning speed throughout the entire sixty minutes. If anything the Memos had an edge in territorial play, but two unscheduled Goodyear breakaway openings struck paydirt twice with the Memos cashing in once by the same method.

It was a hard-hitting boisterous battle with both teams crashing the opposition legally all but twelve times. Referees Jim Crombie and Stan Boshier handed out twelve minor sentences six going to the Memos.

Score Two in Seconds

The Goodyears slashed home the only goal of the first period with the Memos roaring back for a brace in the second. The Goodyears held off the furious third-period offensive of the Memos with a stubborn defence and Ken Johnson's outstanding work in the nets. Twice swarming Memos misused a glaring net in a rampaging final heat.

Setting quick opportunities the Carr-Harris crew broke clear twice in this period to score the only goals of the heat and ward off with a goal-margin victory.

Rink-length dashes with stubborn defensive work held both teams scoreless for 18 minutes in the opening period. McKeown finally broke the scoring ice when he slipped in close and fired Goodyr's pass past Rolly Sarrault.

MacGregor drew a beating penalty early in the second heat and in the ensuing Memos power drive Vern Grout tallied through to a goal-mouth scramble and the light flashed on, but Referee Crombie ruled no goal.

Bellringer got the gate and the Memos "ire" flue of Duke Doran and the Duncan twins carried the mail with Doran tying the count when he banged in Erwin Duncan's rebound.

The game was delayed for a minute or so at this point when the Goodyears, after protesting both goals, demanded that the goal judge be changed.

Davey Jones drew a penalty and with a minute remaining Peter Jones broke into the clear from a Goodyears gaining attack, outskated a fleeing Kingston defender and flashed in on Johnson. He dekked the goalie beautifully and slid the puck into the corner on a picture goal to give the Memos the lead.

The Memos roared to the attack in the third period and swarmed around Johnson. With four minutes gone White zipped into the clear and beat Sarrault cleanly for the tying goal.

Play moved to lightning speed with both teams ripping in for the tie-breaker. Goal-George MacGregor who had been shot scoreless all night, taxxpid the Memos behind the Kingston blue line after taking Partis' pass and drove a wristskph shot that proved the winner.

The Memos swarmed to the attack and in a desperation effort bottled the Goodyears in their own end.

One for the book occurred with a few seconds to go. Coach Doran yanked Sarrault, but as he neared the players bench a Kingston player broke into the clear. Sarrault dashed back to his net, but the Memos had six forwards in on the ice. Seeing the the Memos goalie dashed for the boards and tried to hold himself into the spectators. It went unnoticed by the officials, but a second later the game ended.

The Memos came up with an outstanding effort and looked every bit as good if not better than the winners. "Red" Doran and Vern Gerber, along with the rest, heaved their torsos willy-nilly and the Goodies came right back. Doran played one of the best games of his Belleville career and the rest of the crew from Holly Sarrault out came up with an outstanding performance.

George MacGregor and Don Murray, the scoring aces of the Goodies, were closely watched all night and the best they could do was one goal, but that proved the winner. Johnson deserved two of any three stars to be awarded Kingston as he kicked out rubber from point-blank range especially from the Doran, Duncans line.

The Memos trek to Orillia tonight where they meet the Penthes who won't be in any amiable mood after their 8-4 setback in Peterborough last night.

Shoot Antlerless Deer?

(Victor Speerschneider, editor and Creator of Salmar Tables)

On October 1st, I had a business appointment uptown, so I drove in the business section to keep it. The Hour was early, and I anticipated no trouble in finding a parking place. To my great surprise, downtown was parked solid and not a space could I find, either on the street or in the parking lots.

As I passed the court house, I saw a line of men and women which extended from the door, around the corner, and almost to the next cross-street. Then I remembered. Antlerless deer licenses went on sale on October 1st. Our country had been licensed, roughly, 3,700 of these. In two days, all of them had been sold.

Of course, always has there been violent disagreement among the deer hunters over the wisdom of killing doe deer and fawns. The "against" evidently feel quite strongly in the matter, so much so that they are willing to back their opinions, not only with time and trouble, but financial outlay as well.

TORE UP LICENCES

This year certain individuals decided to express their disapproval. Having purchased their doe-licences, they would march out in the public or stand in the hallway and tear them to bits, scattering their pieces. Roughly ten per cent of the licences were disposed of in this manner.

Well, every man or woman in this country of ours is entitled to have his or her own opinion, and to express that opinion. However, it does seem unwise and perhaps a little profligate to waste money in that fashion.

After all, if enough of that sort of thing goes on, the state can declare a two-day or three-day season antlerless deer, without special licenses. It looks as though the licence - destroyers were defeating their own purpose.

TOO MANY DEER

The Pennsylvania game technicians know that our deer herd must be reduced. As matters now stand, we have too many deer, more than the natural food supply can support. During the spring, summer and fall months the deer can get by, but in the winter the suffering and loss among them becomes acute. Moreover, the deer are destroying their habitat to such an extent they soon exhaust all available food supply, and begin to die.

Even in the months when snow is not on the ground, food scarcity is affecting our deer herd. Gradually the animals are changing their habits to a greater or less degree. Now they find much of their food in the open fields and, instead of being browsing animals as nature intended, many of them are grazing animals.

While we regard our national deer kill by hunters as something to be proud of, particularly when antlerless deer can be shot, actually we do not begin to harvest our annual crop of "excess" or "surplus" deer.

A FREE LUNCH ESCAPE

Approximately 40 per cent of the safe surplus escape the guns of the hunters. These remain with the herd to deplete further the food supply; they are shot by farmers to reduce crop damage or, as we know, starve during the winter months.

It strikes me as unpardonably prodigal that we, as a nation, fail to reap the harvestable portion of our national herd of white-tailed deer, allowing annually around 125,000 animals to be wasted. That figure is not guesswork; actually, it is one that has been worked out by men who are in a position to know, and know, what they are talking about.

Let's face the fact that shooting antlerless deer will result in wiping out our deer herd or depleting it to the danger point, the record of all attachments in well worth considering. This is a thickly populated state, far more so than most of our sister states.

Hurry, the deer herd of that state was in real danger. Then the animals were hunted all year long. They were driven with dogs, trapped and snared. Hides and meat were sold by the market hunters.

DEER RECOVER

When, at long last, conservation laws were passed and enforcement agents were employed, the deer began to recover. Gradually the herd increased and with many years of protection. The state has never had a buck law.

Today a hunter may go out during the shooting season and take home the first deer that comes along, regardless of age or sex. Moreover, he may have annual increase, every year, regardless of what is happening to the breeding pressure.

Today is the age of specialization. Our universities are equipped to educate their students in almost any line of human endeavor. Biology and wildlife management are subjects for education. We are fortunate in that our conservation commissions can hire men who know their jobs, who have been trained for the work in hand.

If I have legal troubles, I hire a lawyer. If I am sick, I go to a doctor. For professional advice of this sort, I certainly am not competent, or even interested, in the opinions of a neighbor who, although good in his own line, has not been trained in law or medicine.

NO REASON

By the same token, I can see no reason why deer hunters should consider themselves well enough informed to criticize the decisions of our game technicians. Most of the loudest critics have first-hand dealings with deer only a week or so out of the hunting year.

After all, the game technicians earn their living at deer management. To meddle over deer best means also to minimize the opportunities for a means of livelihood in work for which I, myself, am not qualified. No man, in his right mind, is going to work himself out of a good job.

Personally, I think our deer must be reduced, I'm in favor of harvesting it. Not that I enjoy going out and shooting deer; I certainly don't. But I do believe in doing what is for the best interests of the preservation of our wildlife during the years to come.

Canada Rinks Take Honors In Bonspiel

HAMILTON (CP)—Calgary, Ottawa, and Toronto Rideau rinks carried off top honors in the centennial bonspiel of the Thistle Curling Club.

Peter Gilbert guided his Chateau rink to a 4-1 victory over Howard Wood's Saskatoon foursome to win the Governor Vanier Memorial Trophy.

Howard Palmer led a Calvary rink to a 12-6 win over Perry Wall's Kitchener finalists for the William Southam Memorial Trophy. The S. G. Hairstone Trophy was won by Ottawa's Bill Gilmour, Ottawa who scored a 10-4 win over Walt Merrick's Fredericton quartet.

Fourth main event prize, the Thistle Cup Past President's Trophy, went to a rink from Illinois skipped by L. T. Hill which defeated R. M. Allan's Kingston rink 10-5.

Plan Big Welcome

WINNIPEG (CP)—Win, lose or draw Winnipeg Blue Bombers will receive a big reception Sunday night when they return from Toronto.

Lieutenant-Governor J. S. McDiarmid, provincial officials and representatives of Winnipeg, St. Boniface and St. Vital will officially welcome the Bombers back after their Grey Cup battle with Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

A welcome home committee said there also will be a parade.

Erskine, Parnell Top Hurlers

NEW YORK (AP)—Brooklyn's Carl Erskine and Mel Parnell of Boston Red Sox, two of major league baseball's 20-game winners last season, moved well up among the lifetime pitching leaders as a result of their performances.

Erskine, who finished with a 20-6 record for the Dodgers, shows an over-all slate of 71 victories and 34 setbacks (.676) for his six years in the National League. He ranks second to the Giants' Sal Maglie's .684 (79-31), figures compiled by The Associated Press' showed today.

Parnell now is second in the American League to the Yankees' Vic Raschi. Mel, with 21-8 during the last campaign, has 111 wins and 39 defats for .653 while Raschi, 13-4 last year, shows a 107-52 mark with 120 triumphs and only 80 losses.

Funny Football Parallels Are Drawn By Lester Pearson at Football Feed

TORONTO (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson Friday night lidded the top men of Canadian football and, with witty barbs, found laugh-provoking parallels with the latest United States-Canadian political developments that have thrust him anew into international focus.

Mr. Pearson spoke at the Grey Cup dinner—the annual get-together of football men from across Canada as a prelude to the East-West game for the national title.

Mr. Pearson said he was happy to be present for "this non-political occasion and if anybody mentions the word Guzenko I hope he will be thrown out of the room for unnecessary cruelty."

And again, in unmistakable reference to efforts in the U.S. to have Igor Gouzenko, one-time clerk in the Russian embassy at Ottawa, tell again before a congressional committee what he knows of Russian spy activities:

NO PROBES PLEASE

"As matters of external affairs I have a great interest in football and in wanting to keep it amicable, it might be that some Senator from Ohio may ask the Canadian government for permission to interview John Kissel to see if he has some information about a reported intention of the Cleveland Browns to change their names to the Cleveland Kissels."

Kissel is an American player with the Calgary Riders and formerly played with Cleveland.

"We owe a lot to the American coaches and players for coming up here, and they have played the game in every respect," said Mr. Pearson.

That relationship is more important now that we are playing in an East-West game in which there are no rules, no good feeling of sportsmanship as will be shown tomorrow, and no penalty for unfairness."

With the United States, he said, team work is essential and "it is our desire to work with them."

Mr. Pearson said both Canada's football code is good, although there is a tendency to over-specialization.

The Red Wings scored a pair of goals near the end of the game, both by Raymond Connors in the first part of the peewee league this morning as they edged the Rangers 4-3. Leonard Harvey and Amrole McDonald banged in the Wings first two goals while Billy Wiley had one assist. For the Rangers it was Billy Pringle, Jimmy Preston and Sterling Hill with three unassisted markers.

In the second game of play the Black Hawks proved to powerful for the Canucks as they banked them a 5-2 defeat. David Benn hit the hemp twice for the winners, while Gerald Robert Pelaar got the extra one. Jimmy Lloyd and Jim Potts were the goal getters in a losing cause. At one time the score read 5-0 but the Canadians finally hit the score sheet with their pair.

The final game ended on a 3-1 tie between the Maple Leafs and the Bruins with Larry Potter getting the Bruins in front and Everett Kellar knotting the score for the Leafs. The game featured good goal tending.

AT THE BELLE

"The Story of Gilbert and Sullivan"
Great Musical Entertainment

Now showing at the Belle Theatre is a magnificent musical entertainment entitled "The Story of Gilbert and Sullivan."... It brings to the screen selections from eight of the comic operas by those masters of melody, Gilbert and Sullivan.

In the title roles are Robert Morley as Gilbert and Maurice Evans as Sullivan. Costarring with them is lovely Eileen Harlie, who had a meteoric rise to stardom. Many unknown or semi-known talent will get their first opportunity of screen fame in this picture, which can be described as a musical delight.

Here for the first time in the screen, is al the gaiety and melody of Gilbert and Sullivan, and everyone should make sure they see this stimulating picture, here indeed is all the romance and triumph of these brilliant composers, with the glorious voices of the D'oyly Carte Opera Company.

AT THE CAPITOL — Tragic Heroine — Jean Simmons, feminine star of "The Robe", as the tragic Diana of "Angel Face", tries to bring order out of the murderous chaos she has caused. Robert Mitchum stars with her in the RKO Radio release presented by Howard Hughes. Also starring are Mona Freeman and Herbert Marshall. On the same program thrills and suspense in "Mexican Manhunt" starring George Brent. Both hits are first Belleville showings and open Monday at the Capitol Theatre.

LET'S TALK SENSE
Our used car prices are not inflated to give you a fictitious allowance (such as $400 or $600) for any old car.
Our used cars are reconditioned and ready to give you many miles of trouble-free service.
We ask you to come in and drive one of our cars and give it your honest appraisal and we will do the same with your present car.
Let us show you how easily you can own a better, newer, later model car at a reasonable price.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SUNDAY, NOV. 29, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Delightful influences for Sunday. Personal and domestic affairs favored, as are religious services, charity, community interests. Essential tasks need not irk. Be considerate.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Venus in splendid aspect favors family relationships, artistic matters, concerts, music, art, science. Start day right by going to church. Rest, relax, too.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Auspicious influences except for financial transactions that could wait until a week-day. Get better acquainted with your spiritual side; further family happiness; add to church and wholesome social affairs.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Your Moon in splendid position. Can be an pleasant day for you, your associates. Help make it so by doing God's will and serving family, country, community interests.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Today should encourage you to be in all of us. It is up to each one individually to do his part in making surroundings ideal for all. Charity, unselfishness, regard for God's laws needed.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—Don't press with problems if they can wait until the morrow. Enjoy rightful Sunday activities, your family, goldsgethere with friends. Prayer, religious services urged.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Similar to Taurus today. Tend to necessary duties quickly, then enjoy some pleasant diversion. Remember your soul's needs first. You who must work are honored for honest labor.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Everything can and should be under sensible control with today's influences. Don't let down your guard against evil forces that would destroy our liberty, privileges, our great country.

November 22 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Jupiter's aspects advise against monetary speculations, matters that could be handled during the week. Today is fine for prayer, social interests, rest.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Mostly gentle, mild indications; pleasant for spiritual interests, music, good reading, visiting friends and places of culture. Urgent work and problems are also favored.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Uranus in excellent position favors the unusual and unique; health and general outlook good. Remember duty to God, family.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Big doings as well as home and social affairs favored. Don't let others get in entertain and to enjoy others' company. Domestic and other urgent tasks are honored.

YOU BORN TODAY should cultivate the art of being good listeners; accept just criticism (we all need it occasionally), and profit by it as you so ably can. Never heed flatterers! True friends won't flatter. You have much ability, versatility and the courage needed for success in business, a profession, trade or religious calling. Curb a tendency to extremes. Birthdate: Amos Bronson Alcott, American philosopher, educator; Louisa May Alcott, author.

Polish Cardinal Moved to Moscow To Await 'Trial'

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican radio said Friday that Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski of Poland has been transferred in secret to a Moscow jail to await trial on Communist trial."

The radio, quoting information from Vienna, said the cardinal is locked in a Lubianka prison cell near that of Lavrenty Beria, ousted ex-chief of Soviet internal security.

The Vatican did not further identify the source of the information, but it is known to have ties on this score from behind the Iron Curtain.

Washington Post Says Canadian Plan Reasonable

WASHINGTON (CP)—The Washington Post says in an editorial that the U. S. state department should make no furtive, approaches to Canada in the Igor Gouzenko case, but should heed William Jenner's "unwillingness to accept the reasonable Canadian offer."

The Post, which considers itself politically Republican, notes that Canada has agreed to permit the examination of witnesses by congressional investigators on condition that Canada would have the final word on making public any of his testimony on Soviet espionage.

"The latest Canadian note offered a means of putting an end to this disgreeable and highly dangerous controversy."

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a Saturday walk with pop, and Sidney Martin ran passed, doing his usual way of moving, and I said to pop, Oh boy, that guy can sure run. None of us other fellows can touch him, I said.

The poor boy, I pity him, poo said, and I said, Well G rounalem, pop, why?

Because every time he gets in a race, he feels a peculiar hot sensation on the back of his neck, caused by the eyes of the world being focused on him, and he knows he'll have very little left to live for if he doesn't uphold his reputation for finishing in first place, pop said. You dont have any such problem, do you? he said, and I said, No sir.

And neither do any of the other boys, pop said. They just have the fun of running, and the exter thrill of hoping for a miracle of coming in ferst, without the any climax of being disappointed when they doesn't happen. Did I ever tell you about Herc Larkin? he said, and I said, No sir.

Well, Sky was a frend of mine who used to pedal around the kitchen, and ones in a while his wife used to humor him by letting him make the salad dressing, pop said. And shir, one day his wife was bizy preparing a dinner for 8 people, which is about as bizy as a person can get, and he let Sky make the salad dressing for her, and he succeeded and it was absolutely perfect, and the guests all sayed it was the best they ever tasted. His wife was proud and delighted, but poor Shr Lawks knew the miracle could never happen a 2nd time, so he's been having a miserable time ever since, trying to think up excuses for not making the salad dressing again. And now I hope you'll run happily ever after, he said.

Which I probably will.

No Crop Records But Ontario's Yields Good

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario farmers didn't break any crop records this year but they put plenty of money in their pockets.

Although the acreage seeded to field crops in 1952 was down about 187,000 acres from 1952, the total gross production for that year was estimated at 178,781,000 bushels.

The figure, tabulated in the department's final estimates of the 1952 crop year, compared to 175,406,000 bushels last year and 186,946,000 bushels in 1951.

"The fall wheat crop was up substantially both in acreage and production for a year ago," the department said. "The acreage of this crop in 1952 totalled 721,000 acres as against 630,000 acres in 1952."

YIELD PER ACRE UP

The yield per acre was figured at about 33.8 bushels compared with 32.0 last year.

Oats, at 104.5 bushels of oats, mixed grains and barley were taken in this year. About 124,000 bushels were harvested in 1951.

Nearly 122,945,000 pounds were harvested this year in flue-cured tobacco, which had a ready market. Production in 1951 was 127,433,000 pounds.

In eastern Ontario, such counties as Brant have a plentiful supply of grain, fodder and roots.

In western Ontario, many farmers' barns are filled to overflowing. Winter wheat is popular in many central and eastern Ontario areas. There is plenty of hay to feed farm stock in northern Ontario.

FEROCIOUS FISH

LONDON (CP)—Visitors to a tropical aquarium being opened here were warned today against not to feed the fish. These include the 10-inch piranhas from the Amazon, labelled man-eaters.

Experts Peeking by Television On Piscatorial Affairs in Lakes

By JOHN VAN DUSEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—It used to be that life in a goldfish bowl was considered the ultimate in privacy. But now the experts are peeking—by television—on piscatorial affairs in Canada's lakes and streams.

The scientific scanning is being done by an underwater TV outfit developed by the National Research Council. The set is in such demand that the NRC can't get it back to its laboratories for overhaul and improvement.

Officials of the Canadian wildlife service say the uses of the new device in the study of fisheries are limited only by the imagination.

ELIMINATES GUESSWORK

For instance, it is taking much of the study of lake fisheries out of the guesswork area. Limnologists—the men who study freshwater fishes—used to have to content themselves with taking fish and creatures of riverbed to their laboratories for observation.

Now, they can sit in a boat and, looking at a TV screen, watch the fish as they breed and go through the other life processes.

The NRC's television, which took a year to develop and was first put to practical use in 1951, consists underwater of a barrel-like and waterproof unit that is lowered under the surface.

A cable connects it to a viewing screen in a boat on the surface. Observers watch one screen, while another may be hooked up to a movie camera that records the sights.

The idea of using such a unit in fishery research occurred to Dr. W. E. F. Solman, chief biologist of the wildlife service, after hearing of the Royal Navy's success with a similar device in locating the underwater Affray in September, 1951.

CLEAR PICTURE

The Affray sank in the Thames Estuary, and the Royal Navy and private enterprise co-operated in developing underwater television to separate it from other wrecks on the bottom. On the navy's TV screen, the Affray's nameplate was readable.

Since the Canadian unit went into operation, it has been used in a wide variety of studies. Last fall, the limnologists operating in Lake Minnewanka in Banff National Park were able to study spawning of lake trout in areas as deep as 60 feet.

There have been tests in Lake Ontario, and a study was made of the bottom of Kingston, Ont., harbor. Other studies were made in the Rideau River and the Rideau lakes in and around Ottawa.

Arrangements have been made to have the unit make its debut this month on the NBC television network in the United States.

While the machine is opening up vistas previously closed to the human eye, the NRC scientists are not satisfied with it. For one thing, the unit is too bulky and heavy and requires a 20-foot vessel on the surface to handle it.

The NRC officials are hoping to streamline it as to weight and ease of handling, and they also want to improve the underwater lighting and other facilities. They wish the people using it would let them get it into drydock for a while.

Municipalities Ask Exemption From Sales Tax

OTTAWA (CP)—A delegation of Canadian mayors, concerned over a worsening of municipal finances, Friday requested the federal government to eliminate the 10-per-cent sales tax on municipal equipment and supplies.

In a meeting with Prime Minister St. Laurent and his cabinet, the delegation, representing the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, urged also:

1. Payment of federal grants on all federal property in municipalities, eliminating the four-per-cent assessment qualification.

2. Calling of a federal-provincial conference, to include municipality representation, to clarify the national role of Canada's cities and towns and to find ways of providing them with the needed revenues to carry out their duties.

The mayors, carrying to the cabinet resolutions adopted at their recent annual meeting, proposed also that the government institute a "comprehensive" national health plan without delay; increase its contribution to the cost of civil defence; make mortgage repayments easier; and help pay for education costs through agreement with provinces.

PRIMARY CONCERN

But the mayors were primarily concerned with finances and ways of easing the local cost load.

The delegation, headed by federation president J. C. Asselin of Montreal, said the municipal financial position is "serious." There was no immediate crisis, but the "situation is bound to worsen and reach a 'crisis stage.'" Even a slight recession could have "adverse effects" on the municipalities.

ROMANTIC RENDITION

LANGAR, England (CP)—Helen Nelson and David Harvie met as students at the University of Toronto five years ago, then lost touch with each other. Each joined the RCAF and they wound up at this RCAF supply base, where they were married this month.

Counterfeiter Worked in Sand On British Beach

LONDON (Reuters) — No one gave a second glance at 46-year-old John Wilson as he sat puttering away in the sand of one of Britain's most popular beach resorts.

Passers-by didn't dream that the middle-aged camper, working outside his tent, had set up a perfect counterfeiting set on the sand at Weston Super-mare. With it he melted metal and poured it into plastic moulds described by experts as "almost perfect."

Friday Wilson began a three-year jail sentence after pleading guilty to counterfeiting and possessing moulds of silver coins.

His productions astonished the judge, who called him "a very skilful worker."

Wilson, a former engineer, had been unemployed since leaving a mental home in 1951.

BACK TO NORMAL

LONDON (CP)—Tommy Kearing, 16-year-old plucked from a Glasgow street to star in the British film "Highland Film," no longer has £20 a week with a comfortable four-to-call for him. Since the film was finished he has been working at a small wage as an office boy

Straight Fight For Mayoralty; 13 In Council Field

Two Contest P.U. Office; One Trustee To Be Named

A straight fight for the office of mayor was assured for Belleville electors Saturday night following the deadline for qualification of candidates which saw but two of the five nominees for the position file their nomination papers. Alderman Charles L. Hyde of this year's council, and John Both, proprietor of the Diamond Construction Company here, are the two candidates for mayor.

There will also be a two-way fight for the one public utilities office with Percy McGuire, member of this year's utilities commission qualifying to again contest the seat, and Urias 'Sandy' Lummiss, who is making a second bid for election to the office.

Thirteen of the sixteen nominees for council qualified up to the polls with five of this year's aldermen back in the running. Four of the seven aldermen to be elected for a two-year term.

Members of this year's council up for re-election include Mrs. Ruth Wannamaker, Arthur Newman, Bruce Smith, Robert Temple and Claude D. Vice. Other candidates for the council positions are: M. C. Burgess, Eric Cooper, George Dafoe, Ernest Hagerman, Bram Humphreys, Doug Moxon, Bert Robinson and Ben Safe.

ONLY ONE ELECTION

There will be an election for school board trustee only in Baldwin Ward, where John Godwin, present member of the board, will be opposed by Mrs. Dorothy Taggart.

Elected by acclamation in the other wards are: Foster, Georgina Olsen; Sampson, Mrs. Jessie Ketcheson, William A. VanNaesell; Bleecker, Mrs. Gertrude Scott; Coleman, Carman A. Caverley; Murney, Gordon Rase, for a one-year term, and Fred T. Simmons for two years. Election of two school board members in Murney Ward was necessary this year as result of the resignation of Fred A. Simmons.

Members of city council who still have two years to run are: Aldermen John Bradford, Wilbur Countryman, H. J. Clarke, Jack Dunn, Gerald B. Hyde, Bryson Reid and Don Thompson.

All aspirants for public office were given the privilege Saturday of stating their election platforms at two pre-election meetings to be held this week.

Wednesday night will see the annual "meet feed" at the Wharf St. Debating Club, while Thursday night the Chamber of Commerce will provide the platform meetings at the Belleville College-Inte auditorium.

STEADY FLOW

CAPETOWN (CP)—About 15,000 Netherlanders have emigrated to South Africa since the war and more are arriving at a rate of about 4,000 a year, said B. W. Haasbroek, director of immigration for emigration, visiting here. He said emigrants he had met were highly satisfied with life in South Africa.

Ivor Gouzenko Has Decided Not to Testify

TORONTO (CP) — The Telegram publishes today a copyrighted statement in which Igor Gouzenko, the former Russian code clerk whose disclosures sparked the 1946 Canadian spy trials, says he has decided not be interviewed by the spy-hunting Canadian security commissioner of the United States Senate.

Gouzenko's statement of today said:

"I choose safety, not because to do otherwise would be foolish courage; in some cases, such as the defence of one's honor, even foolish courage is excusable; but because I consider the safety of my family the just a personal matter. Canadian and U. S. security is also involved."

Judge of World Court Dies In Zurich

ZURICH (CP)—Sir Benegal Narsing Rau of India, a judge of the world court in The Hague, died of cardiac disease in a hospital here early today. He was 68.

Sir Benegal reached the peak of his career as John Foster Dulles's spokesman at the United Nations during the tense early days of the Korean war.

India Is Cool To Nixon's Visit

NEW DELHI (AP) — Vice-President Richard Nixon of the U.S. arrived in New Delhi today for informal talks with Prime Minister Nehru. Observers in parliament tried in vain to pin down Nixon on exactly what he will take up with Nixon the hot issue of possible American military aid to Pakistan.

The official attitude of the Indian government toward Nixon appeared to be cool but correct. Cabinet ministers have not shown their lack of enthusiasm for the visit by not attending official vice-president. India's press mirrored the ministers' attitude.

Agreement Reached In Newspaper Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Agreement has been reached in a photo engravers strike that has closed six major New York newspapers, and it will be submitted to a union membership meeting this afternoon, the New York Times said.

The photo engravers' union has called a general membership meeting for 4 p. m. EST today.

Three of the city's four morning papers rallied to appear today as the strike which began Saturday reached full effect. The fourth, the Herald-Tribune, which is not involved, in the current controversy, appeared as a condensed eight-page broadsheet with a press run increased to 2,500,000 from a normal 380,000.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synoptic: The weather soldiers throughout Ontario is rather dull this morning with snow being reported from many points and some rain falling along the shores of Lake Erie and Lake Ontario. Temperatures are generally near freezing.

The slow moving disturbance that is causing most of this weather has now reached the Windsor area and is expected to be out of the province by Tuesday morning.

GOLD MINER FACES MURDER CHARGE IN WIFE'S DEATH

Neighbors Say Man Admitted Slaying

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP)—Walter Okonski, 51, was charged with murder Sunday night shortly after his wife died of injuries authorities said apparently were caused by blows from a revolving iron.

Police said they found Mrs. Marie Okonski, 41, fatally injured late Sunday in the bedroom of the Polish immigrant couple's three-room apartment. She was pronounced dead on arrival at hospital.

Neighbors quoted Okonski, a gold miner, as saying:

"It is all over. I have killed my wife."

The Okonskis met in Germany while both were in a displaced persons' camp. They came to this northern Ontario gold-mining community three years ago.

Their eight-year-old son, Richard is being cared for by neighbors.

DALONG QUARREL

Police said they learned from neighbors that the Okonskis had been quarreling periodically for a Sunday. Late in the afternoon, the couple visited the home of Alderman Mrs. Henry Zwiecianz, in the next apartment and resumed their arguments there. Mrs. Zwiecianz said she asked Okonski to leave.

Mrs. Zwiecianz, 29, while later returned, picked his wife up in his arms and carried her to the Okonski apartment.

Mr. and Mrs. Zwiecianz, both Polish-born, are also from the countrymen who were visiting the Okonskis when the quarrel began. They said later that about 5:55 p.m. they heard a scream which they thought and said was someone hammering nails.

They said that afterwards Okonski came to the door of the Zwiecianz apartment kitchen and said he had killed his wife.

Police were summoned and they found Mrs. Okonski with a crushed skull and arranged for her to be taken to hospital.

Dr. K. F. Eddis, coroner, examined the body and said the injuries due to severe head injuries.

Reserve Pilot Believed Dead

TORONTO (CP)—A 20-year-old reserve pilot from Toronto was reported missing after his Vampire jet fighter developed engine trouble over Lake Ontario on a training flight between Toronto and Hamilton.

FO. Richard W. Russell, a high school student and his wife was flying with another Vampire of No. 400 City of Toronto Squadron when last heard from.

More than 20 aircraft searched the area before darkness but found no trace of the pilot.

Surface craft from the Toronto harbor commission joined the search and the finding of an oil slick was reported. However, darkness forced the search to call off their search until today.

Russell, a recent graduate of the RCAF short service training plan, joined the 400 squadron about 4,000 a year, said B. W. Haasbroek, director of immigration for emigration, visiting here. He said emigrants he had met were highly satisfied with life in South Africa.

Reported Vietminh Proposal For Armistice Creates Crisis

PARIS (AP)—A reported offer to meet an armistice proposal by Communist rebel leader Ho Chi Minh to negotiate for an Indo-Chinese truce touched off three burning today under the hardhanded leadership of French premier Joseph Laniel.

Ho's purported statement, published Sunday in the Stockholm newspaper Expressen, touched off panicky and furious opposition among anti-Communist nationalist leaders in Indo-Chinese capital of Saigon. Many demanded a break in relations with Premier Laniel if he did not act.

Ho's offer was expected to rally new support to strong segments of French political and public opinion which have demanded a quick end to the costly, seven-year Far Eastern conflict.

Officially, Laniel's government was cautiously noncommittal. A spokesman said until the cabinet has studied Ho's message the government could take no position. Previously Laniel had said he would "will not refuse to negotiate if the occasion presents itself."

ASKS ARMISTICE

Premier Nguyen Van Tam, of the French-sponsored Viet Nam government in Saigon, Chinese capital, said here he was agreeable to opening armistice negotiations on condition the Vietminh gave "the most serious guarantees" beforehand. He said also there was "any truce which might result should not be put to profit by the Vietminh to reinforce its military potential."

Tam previously had said any peace negotiations must be preceded by "the most serious unconditional surrender."

Ho, quoted by the Stockholm newspaper, Ho Chi Minh said his Vietminh forces would "be ready to meet" an armistice proposal from France "if, having learnt the lessons of these years of war, the French government wishes to have an armistice and settle the question by negotiations." The paper, Stockholm's largest newspaper, said Ho's message was in reply to five questions submitted Nov. 5 to the Vietminh offices in Prague.

BLASTS U. S

Ho said for an armistice to come about "the French have to stop hostilities" and France must "recognize the full independence of Viet Nam." He said efforts of neutrals to bring armistice talks would be "welcome," but "negotiations for an armistice are essentially an affair between the government of France and that of the democratic republic of Viet Nam," as the Communists call their rebel regime.

He also asserted that "American imperialism is pushing French colonialism to extend the war of reconquest in Viet Nam with a view to making France weaker and weaker, and taking her place in Viet Nam."

SAIGON REGRETTES RETRYED

Charging that "France is betraying us," Ho Dinh Nho, chief of the Vietminh office in Saigon, Ho Dinh Diem sect, asserted in Saigon:

"The truce for six months has continued to repeat peace offers to the Vietminh refuse to be carried a long has happened: Ho Chi Minh has accepted this offer and the French government is ready to abandon us.

"The Vietminh refuse to negotiate with France, and we think that France is betraying us in Paris and should break relations with France."

Queen and Duke Start Trip From Panama to Fiji Isles

By GOMER JONES

PANAMA CITY (Reuters) — United States and Panama places today escorted the liner Gothic, carrying Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, as it sailed from here out into the Pacific to begin a 29,000-mile, 17-day cruise to the Fiji islands—next port-of-call on the royal tour.

There was no official send-off because the ship sailed at 2 a.m. when the liner sailed at 7 a. m. local time. She sailed on the high tide at 2 a.m. after attending a state banquet.

During her brief stay, the pretty young monarch was accorded the most lavish welcome she has been given a foreign visitor in Panama. Wildly cheering crowds have already hailed her arrival, the Gothic arrived at the Atlantic coast of the Panamanian isthmus early Sunday.

POLICE HARD PRESSED

Everywhere the royal car went here, police were hard put to keep back excited crowds anxious to get a better look at the royal visitor.

When the Queen was being presented with the ceremonial keys to the City of Colon by the mayor, the crowd outside climbed palm trees, lamp posts, telephone poles throughout the ceremony, although they could see little of it.

Even when the royal visitors were attending a reception to the British consul, Sir Ian Henderson, in a nearby garden, many outside the grounds were able to get a glimpse for a closer glimpse.

Thousand lined Panama City's brilliantly lighted main street—the Avenida Central—when the Queen and Duke left the presidential palace for a state banquet.

HONORS EXCHANGED

During the banquet room of the palace, President Jose Remon presented the Queen with the gold collar of the Order of Manuel Amador Guerrero. It marked the first time that the collar had been presented to a reigning monarch.

The duke was presented with the Grand Cross of the same order.

The Queen, in turn, presented the president with an honorary decoration, the Grand Cross of the Order of the British Empire.

Churchill Enters 80th Year Hunting for Path to Peace

By HAL COOPER

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill reached his 79th birthday today, bearing on his bowed old shoulders the rising hopes of the British people for a lasting peace with Russia.

The grand old statesman accepted a gift of congratulations as he called a morning session of his cabinet and planned to spend most of the day at desk tying up the loose ends of government affairs before departing Tuesday night by plane for the Big Three meeting in Bermuda.

A family dinner party was arranged for tonight at No. 10 Downing Street, the prime minister's official residence, followed by a small reception for Churchill's government ministers.

There is no public concession to the passing of another milestone in his long and fabulous life.

"Many happy returns, sweet" was the jubilant banner headline on the Daily Express, organ of Lord Beaverbrook's old buddy in peace and war, Lord Beaverbrook.

"He sets forth into the 80th year of his life without thought of stopping from his labor to enjoy the tranquillity of old age," the Independent Express said in an editorial. It continued:

MOST NOBLE TASK

"He works on tenaciously, seeking the path to peace. The settlement of the conflict between the nations could be the last and most noble task. And the birthday wish which goes out to him from all men is this: May you live, sir, to see the flowering of peace in your time."

The Conservative Daily Mail said Churchill was undertaking the trip to Bermuda "with the strength and the weight of the years upon him in order to try to win the greatest prize of his career, which is of all—peace in our time."

The old man on his flight to Bermuda will be the Liberal News Chronicle, "will carry with him a burning hope for the world's peace."

"So far Sir Winston has attained his fingers' breadth of the glittering prize of tragedy," the News Chronicle said, adding, "it is possible, perhaps, that the greatest prize of a great career might now be within his grasp."

LAST AMBITION

"In the whole of recorded history," the Sunday Pictorial said in Beaverbrook's Sunday Pictorial Telegraph, "there have been few men who could look back on a life of such accomplishments. . . .

"He is still pursuing the last and greatest goal of his life, which is to see at least the birth of hope for a lasting peace throughout the world."

The birthday was chosen as the release date for two books. One was Triumph and Tragedy, the sixth and final volume of Churchill's history of the Second World War. The other was Churchill By His Contemporaries, 125,000 words of reminiscence by 50 men and women of world figures who have known him in and out of the government.

DULLES STATES CANADA IS RIGHT IN GOUZENKO CASE

U.S. State Secretary Approves of Stand

WASHINGTON (AP)—With U.S. Senate probers in Canada at a temporary impasse today over the questioning of Igor Gouzenko, the lethal cryptic crumbled on with a Democratic blast that the Harry Dexter White case was camouflage for a "serious situation" in the justice department.

The Senate internal security subcommittee headed by Senator William Jenner (Rep., Ind.) in Ottawa early was faced with a take-it-or-leave-it proposition from Gouzenko on Canada's terms or not at all.

State Secretary Dulles told the Republican Saturday the Canadian government was right in insisting that it, and not the committee, decide what part of Gouzenko's testimony should be made public.

Jenner said he would take it up with the sub-committee at a meeting Wednesday. He declined to say what course would be chosen.

Gouzenko, the one-time Russian embassy code clerk who exposed a Soviet spy ring in Canada eight years ago, is living in Canada under an assumed name and with police protection.

The Jenner sub-committee stepped up its Red-in-government investigations after Democrat Harley Kilgore charged a speech Nov. 8 that former president Truman had promoted Harry Dexter White, now dead, despite reports by the Federal bureau of investigation linking White to Red espionage.

POLITICAL TEMPEST

Sunday, three Democratic leaders assailed Brownell and the Eisenhower administration for setting off what has become one of the hottest political wrangles in years.

Clayton Fritchey, deputy chairman of the Democratic national committee, declared in a television interview that Brownell launched the controversy to divert attention from many failures, including the Indo-China situation within the justice department itself."

The G. P. is on ended before Fritchey could explain this charge, but it was discussed by other reporters.

He said he referred to a recent statement by U.S. district judge Willis W. Ritter in Denver that the Communist party in the U.S. district attorney for Colorado in a recent trial of Communists, that he said the attorney, Charles Vigil, won the case without help and said the judge, Democrat, Vigil was replaced by Donald E. Kelly, a Republican who was appointed by Brownell.

There was no immediate comment from the justice department. At Salt Lake City, Judge Ritter said he had no comment.

Buganda in Uganda Has Its King Deposed

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters) — British colonial authorities today deposed the African king of Buganda.

The move was announced by governor Sir Andrew Cohen of Uganda, of which Buganda is a province. The Kabaka was stated to be affected breach of an agreement the African kingdom made with Britain in 1900.

AMMANFORD, Wales (CP)—A highway safety book puzzled inhabitants of this Carmarthenshire town, where most people speak only in Welsh. They asked Mrs. Gwyneth Jones, secretary of Accidents to provide copies in their native tongue.

Lodge Charges Soviet Officers Ordered Atrocities

Were in Charge of Prisons And Consciously Used Terror

By A. I. Goldberg

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., chief U. S. delegate to the United Nations, charged today that Soviet officers headed North Korean prison camp commands responsible for thousands of atrocity torture cases and deaths.

He charged that world Communism consciously used atrocities as a political weapon against its foes.

Lodge made the accusations in a speech prepared for delivery to the UN General Assembly as it launched a debate on the American demand that Red China and Communist North Korea be condemned for the aggression.

He said the toll in Korea from Red mass murders, death marches and tortures now is estimated at nearly 38,000—almost 10,000 more than shown in documents distributed Saturday night to delegates.

An aide said the U. S. delegation department authorized the new figure on the basis of studies since last June 30.

CONSCIOUS POLICY

Lodge said that these atrocities were due to Communist police is strongly suggested by the following facts:

"The mass executions of Korean civilians—in some cases by the same groups of Americas and other prisoners of war—were done by subordinates of the Soviet intelligence agency, the North Korean political security police.

"Many of our prisoners were subjected immediately after capture to the usual communist jargon of violent hatred and abuse, and in a few cases were executed in cold blood shortly afterward.

"These atrocious killings were closely connected with the intensive political probing and manipulation of the very same prisoners in prisoner-of-war camps—both in Seoul early in the war and later, on a much larger scale, in the prison camps of North Korea.

"Nor can we ignore these facts:

MOST SOVIET CRIMES

"That the leading men of the North Korean regime and the North Korean armed forces are Soviet citizens;

"That the North Korean political security police are chief and many of the mass murders;

"That these murders were at the top of the command structure over the prison camps in North Korea."

There was no immediate comment from the justice department. At Salt Lake City, Judge Ritter said he had no comment.

110 Are Left Dangling in Mid-Air As Runaway Ski Lift Is Jammed

RENO, Nev. (AP)—A new 3,000-foot ski lift on windswept Slide mountain here was swept aside on Sunday night, then jammed, leaving 110 tourists dangling in bitter cold 10 to 40 feet above the ground.

They all spent back safely, but not without plenty of trouble.

Two elderly persons adamantly resisted to climb down ropes thrown up over guide wires. They were the only two 70's hours until lift was fixed.

Dozens of others were bruised and scratched while working their way down the rugged slopes from the lift.

Quick action by someone—no one knows who—saved scores from possible serious injury. As the lift, which runs from 8,100 feet to 9,700 feet, began to run away and rather speed, he jammed a 2 x 4 board into the gears. The lift stopped.

The double chair lift, advertised as the longest of its kind in the world, is part of a new $500,000 ski resort 15 miles southwest of Reno.

Toronto Boy, 14, Shot by Police; Said Accident

TORONTO (CP)—Garfield Belfon, who police say would have been 15 next month, was shot and killed late Sunday night in the basement of a dental supply company on College street in central Toronto.

Police say he was shot through the neck by a single bullet from the revolver of Constable G. R. Barclay, who has been Dominion and Ontario championships for police marksmen.

Investigators questioned three persons who would not give their names.

Two boys under 16 were arrested Saturday night in the building, the S. S. White Dental Supply Company. Sunday night police checking the premises near the scene found a window of the White firm open and called another patrol car.

Police say Barclay went into the basement of the White building and searched amid large boxes and crates, some of them 14 feet high. He told senior police officials later he heard a rustling and thought he saw one of them. It's the police."

As he approached the crates, one of them apparently was pushed toward him, knocking him backward. He said that as he fell, his gun discharged. Belfon, behind the crates and of a barber, is believed to have died immediately.

The shooting was in full darkness at the time of the shooting, police said.

Mrs. Charles McKenna, wife of the general manager of the dental supply company, said she thought the youths were looking for dental and stored in a safe in the building.

Each Registered Blind Person Will Get Gift

At the meeting of the Hastings County Advisory Board for the Blind held at the home of the chairman, Mr. George Wishart, it was decided to remember each of the registered blind with a gift at Christmas following the custom of previous years.

Mr. Wishart gave a report on the laying of the corner stone for the new home for the blind, which is being built at Kingston. It is hoped the new home will be ready for occupancy by late summer.

The field secretary, Mr. P. I. Hamming, spoke of the annual meeting of the Ontario division, which was held recently in Toronto.

The report of the field secretary showed that 1,000 persons blind in the county were in need of monetary aid. This amount sometimes takes the form of extra money, sometimes fuel or warm clothing, glasses and eye care. Wherever the need is shown assistance is given. In some cases an operation for the removal of cataracts was necessary, and where it was successful the name was removed from the registered blind.

A baby of fourteen months with congenital cataracts whose father is ill with a coronary condition is to be operated upon soon and the Lions' Club has agreed to pay the hospital expenses. When the operation can be performed early there is every hope of restoring the sight.

The results of the annual campaign to date show $8685.75 collected with a total objective of $13,150.50.

Four members added to the board were: Mr. S. L. Joss, Mrs. Ray Lennox and Mr. L. Lambert, Marmora; Mr. W. J. Waller, Foxboro; Mr. H. J. Madill, Frankford. Mr. H. B. Towle and Mrs. B. Turner, Bancroft; Mrs. George Hall and Mrs. D. Kennedy, Madoc. It was recommended that Mrs. J. W. Hulin, Madoc, be made a honorary secretary in recognition of her long and faithful period of service when she was associated with the board.

150 Cheese On Exhibit At Dairy Show

Judging of the approximately 150 cheese on exhibit at the British Empire Dairy Show in the market room at city hall was completed today at noon and the secretarial staff commenced marking up prize lists. It is expected the names of the winners in the various classes will be ready by Tuesday.

Although the number of cheese on exhibit is up from last year, for the first time in many years, Quebec makers are not represented among the exhibitors. In previous years Quebec makers had been represented in the open classes, as well as in classes for Quebec makers.

Heaviest exhibits at the show are in the classes calling for 90-lb cheese. However there is a good showing of 10 lb Stilton cheese and also in the square block cheese classes.

The market room took on an exhibition style display as cheese tables and windows were decorated with colored paper. Attractive cheese cutting is sponsored by cheese wholesaling firms were being set up.

The cheese show will be open to the public Tuesday and Wednesday afternoon and evening when special door prizes of cheese and cartons of cocoa are being offered.

Northern Electric Employees Hold Stamp Exhibition

MONTREAL (CP) — Stamp collecting is fostered by a Montreal company to promote fellowship among its workers. Recently its employees stamp club staged an exhibition at two of its plants here.

The exhibition of 35 frames of stamps was successful it probably will become an annual event.

The Northern Electric Philatelic Section, now a member of the Canadian Philatelic Society, is 20 years old. It is one of many services of a company employee club devoted to golf, curling, bowling, hockey, baseball, hunting, fishing and other recreational activities. Shown for the stamp collectors' exhibition, the 35 frames each contained six sheets of stamps. One of the items was the famous British black penny stamp dating back to 1840. There were a variety of modern stamps.

A highlight was a post office department display of two frames of original artist's drawings and proofs used in the development of the 10-cent "for resources" and the 81 "radio pole" stamps.

Also featured were frames first issued by the Bell Telephone Company of Canada about 1890 for payment of telephone messages.

The stamp show was held for three days at a plant at nearby Pointe aux Trembles and drew 40 members. More than 1,000 employees visited the show at the company's Sherbrooke street plant.

Postal Relay Boxes Damaged

Persons responsible for the damage of postal relay boxes in various parts of the city are heading for serious trouble with the law if they continue their destructive practices, Police Inspector J. Clair Hayes warned today.

"It is a serious offence to damage property belonging to Her Majesty's postal department and offenders are liable to stiff punishment," Inspector Hayes warned.

The Inspector noted that the postal relay boxes are the local postal department trucks by-drop off mail . . .

by postal carriers. The boxes spotted in various parts of the city at convenient points for letter carriers.

Donald McKinnon Repeat Winner In Contest

Don. McKinnon, Madoc township, was a repeat winner Friday night at the annual Hastings County Junior Farmer public speaking contest. Donald was declared winner over six other contestants and will represent Hastings at the provincial finals to be held in Toronto early in January.

Last year Don won county competition and was among the first five in the provincial finals. Topic of his prize winning talk this year was on boredom and how to overcome this "disease" from which a large percentage of people suffer.

Runner up in this year's competition at Madoc was Eva Martin of Hungerford township, who spoke on choosing a vocation. Third place went to Donald Burnside, of Madoc, who talked on 4-H club work.

Mr. J. Purvis, English teacher at the Kemptville Agricultural School, acted as judge for the competition. He said the quality of the speeches this year was exceptionally high.

Also held in conjunction with the public speaking contest at Madoc was competition for mixed quartets and ladies' trios. The Thurlow township entry composed of Marilyn Parks, Getha Sorlin and Shirley Kerr, was the only entry in the ladies' trio competition.

Winner of the mixed quartet contest was the Sidney entry composed of Lorna Ray, Lois Armstrong, Ray Silckle and George Frost.

Also a group composed of Beryl Swan, Marlene Moorcroft, Boyd Moorcroft and Grant Richardson.

MRS. JOSEPH ANGUS

Belleville

The funeral of Mrs. Joseph Angus, who died in Toronto, was held in Belleville on Sunday afternoon. The service was held in the Bush Funeral Home chapel and was largely attended by relatives and intimate friends. The wealth of floral tributes bore silent expressions of sympathy to the bereaved family testified to the esteem in which the deceased was held by a wide circle.

Rev. W. Dovey, of St. John's United Church, Tweed, conducted the service. He chapel and also the committal rites in Tweed cemetery.

The bearers were: Clarence Graham, Hermon Elliott, Milton Elliott, Charles Burrill, Cameron Morton and Henry Morton.

JOHN ALEXANDER KEENE

Belleville

Resident of Belleville for the past 30 years, John Alexander Keene, 464 Dundas street, died suddenly at Harrowsmith, Sunday afternoon. He was in his 77th year.

Son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Keene, he was born at Madoc and had lived in that vicinity until he moved to Belleville. He had farmed in the Madoc district and was a member of the Loyal Orange Lodge at Hazard's Corners. He was an adherent of the Bayside Methodist Church.

He is survived by his wife, the former Margaret May Trotter, and two daughters, Mrs. Harold Blakey, R.R. 5, Belleville, and Mrs. Ray (Verna) Hall, of this city. He was also two sisters, Mrs. Mark Howard, of Madoc, and Mrs. Phillip Glover, of Belleville.

Resting at the Pinkston Funeral Home, Victoria Ave. at Church Street; the funeral notice appears elsewhere in this edition.

Arena Insurance Fully Discussed At Meeting

At the largest meeting ever held by the Ontario Arenas' Association last night in Canada on Sunday afternoon, when over 100 attended, Ald. Claude Tice of the Arena Commission in this city was installed as immediate past president of the Provincial Board for the coming year. Wes Alsop of Barrie was elected second term of office, when Harry McLeod of Simcoe, asked to be excused from taking the president's chair this year, due to ill health.

A large delegation attended from Brantford, where it is proposed to build a community centre to cost $750,000. Valuable information was secured from the members present by the delegation and the visitors invited the Association to hold their January meeting in that city. In general the Association will meet in Peterborough.

A lengthy discussion was held on insurance on arenas and the members were unanimous that all arenas should be insured on their replaceable value rather than on cost, when they were built. It was shown there was a wide divergence in the rate charged and in some cases arena commissions are paying as high as $3,000 per annum. The members were requested to get in touch with the underwriters. A full appraisal made on a replacement value and insure there for the cheapest rate. Charles Pack, of the Business Planning Institute spoke to the meeting Institute spoke to the meeting and the secretary of the Association turned down their proposals and left the matter up to the individual arenas. There are 77 commissions in the Association at the present time.

ADVERTISING VALUE EXPLAINED

The advertising value of arenas was fully explained by Albert Jarvis, Arena Commissioner of Toronto in his address at the meeting.

Another appointee to the meeting was the Rev. Mark Howard, of Madoc, and Mrs. Phillip Glover, of Belleville.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Stock market price groups were all higher in active forenoon trading today.

Western oils showed the biggest gain—more than three-quarters of an index point—followed by base metals, then industrials and golds.

The volume was 1,017,000 shares.

Refining oils, steels and utilities backed the small industrial gain. Papers and manufacturers were lower in light trading. In utilities, Brazilian Traction fell to 28 a share, a new low for the year.

Base metal sections led their group as several issues gained. Noranda and Hudson Bay were in the lead. In junkers, activity increased from the dull opening, and several issues were up, although price changes were small.

Golds drew little interest but holding companies and a few seniors made enough small gains to result in a nominal index gain. The most actively traded group, juniors, showed a small majority of penny losses.

The western oil list showed a wide list of gains ranging to Canadian Collieries' 45 cents.

Uraniums and Bathurst-area base metals both gained slightly. Lorado, last week's feature, was the most active with a volume of more than 100,000 shares, although its gain was only two cents. New Larder U led the Bathurst-area penny gainers.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP)—Prices were steady on better quality steers and heifers and weak on other grades at the Ontario stockyards today. Receipts: cattle 5,400; calves 1,-500; hogs 5,010; sheep and lambs 470; holdover from the weekend 1,-000 cattle.

Choice steers 30.50-75; few sold at 31.50; good steers 29.50-30.50; medium downward to 27.50; good heifers 28-28.50; plain steers and heifers downward to 25; boners 8-12; good cows mostly 19-20.50; good bulls 23-24.75; plain downward to 9; choice fed yearlings 22-23; medium downward to 18; good stockers 17-20.

Veal calves were steady at 24-26 for choice grades to good 17-21; grassers mostly 10-10.50.

Hog prices were not established. Lambs were 50 cents higher at 29.50-75 for good ewes and wethers; few sold at 30; plain 16-20; good sheep 8-10; common downwards to 8.

PRODUCE MARKET

TORONTO (CP)—The churning cream and butter print prices were unchanged here today.

The egg market was unsettled with offerings fairly heavy.

Demand was poor on large and steady on other grades.

Quotations for graded eggs in store counters: A extra 43; A medium 37-38; A small 34-35; B 37-38; C 30-32. Wholesale to retail: A large 48; A medium 42-43; A small 39-40; B 42-43; C 35-37.

Butter solids were unchanged.

Seven Cities To Have Contests For Mayoralty

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The coming week-end sees a fight for the mayor's chair in at least seven Ontario cities.

Qualifications Saturday gave mayoralty acclamations to W. A. Donovan, Chatham, T. Anderson of Galt and Graeme Gorrie of Brockville, but set up contests for the post of chief magistrate in Brantford, North Bay, Peterborough, St. Thomas, Stratford, Sudbury and Woodstock.

Most of the contests vote Dec. 7. North Bay's voting day is Dec. 14.

Another group of municipalities hold nominations today, with the qualification deadline 24 hours later.

In most cities where two or more seek the mayoralty, the present mayor is opposed. One such case is Woodstock, where the town mayor, Bernadette Smith, has R. J. Fleming as her opponent.

WOMAN REEVE

A woman gained the reeveship by acclamation in the town of Durham Saturday. Miss Marion Calder, a councillor for the past year, is the first woman to hold the office in the Grey county town's history.

Ten men, including 1953 mayor Merle Dickerson, were nominated Friday for the mayoralty in North Bay. However, only Ben, Mr. Dickerson among them, qualified.

All municipal office holders were re-elected by acclamation Saturday in Brockville. It was the first time such a thing had happened in the St. Lawrence river town.

Long-Buried Tensions Bared By Queen's Visit

HAMILTON (AP) — Bermuda's biggest public upheaval of the century raged today over alleged slights to the colored population during the visit of the Queen last week.

The royal tour, intended to improve Commonwealth relations, instead brought to the surface long-buried resentments, although the Queen herself was the subject of the highest praise and devotion on all sides.

Focal point of the dispute is that no representative of the island's 64,000 colored people—two-thirds of the population—was invited to the dinner in Elizabeth's honor Tuesday night.

"BIGGEST SLIP"

Questions have been asked in the island's Parliament. Hamilton newspapers are filled with the pros and cons of the question. E. T. Richards, MP, told the House of Assembly, "It is the biggest slip ever made in this century in this country."

A government supporter, J. E. Pearson, replied that if there had been a colored person of enough prominence, he would have been invited. There were colored people in attendance at the earlier garden party, where 800 of the island's elite assembled.

Dr. E. W. Barnes, Stormy Anglican Bishop, Dies

HURSTPIERPOINT, Eng. (AP) Dr. Ernest William Barnes, 79, former Anglican bishop of Birmingham and frequent storm centre of religious controversy, died Sunday.

Until ill health forced his retirement last May, Bishop Barnes was an outspoken advocate of unorthodox views.

He rejected belief in miracles—"The Bible is wrong," he once said.

He campaigned for euthanasia—mercy killing—and sterilization of unfit persons.

He urged church leaders to cut out from the Bible its story of the creation as related in the book of Genesis. Science had proved it could not be accepted as fact, he said.

cil seats are at stake, 20 would-be councillors qualified. The same community has a three-way mayoralty battle as L. E. Falck campaigns for a second term.

Cartoonist Dies

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—Milt Gross, cartoonist and author famous for his "Nize Baby" and "Dere Eak" stories and drawings, died Sunday aboard the liner Lurline, en route home from Hawaii, a son here said.

Gross, 58, succumbed to a coronary occlusion, according to word received by Herrold Gross, one of three sons.

Jerold said his father and mother, Mrs. Anne Gross, were returning from a two-week vacation in Honolulu.

The elder Gross' cartoons were widely circulated and his books were best sellers some 15 years ago. He had been drawing since he was 12.

Once in office boy for a New York newspaper, he graduated as a syndicated cartoonist almost overnight, and his stories for years influenced American slang. His books of humor were written in Jewish dialect.

In 1945 he retired as a cartoonist but in recent years he spent much of his time painting.

Gross' last cartoon strip for newspapers, some eight years ago, was "That's My Pop."

HEAVIER MAIL

In the first half of 1953 Canadian airlines carried 8,346,000 pounds of mail, slight per cent more than the first half of 1952.

United Asian Front Against Reds Proposed

SEOUL (AP)—The secret talks between Syngman Rhee and Chiang Kai-shek began unfolding today with a South Korean invitation to the free nations of Asia to form a united anti-Communist front.

South Korean Foreign Minister Pyun Yung Tai said plans for such a union were started last week-end in the Formosa meeting of the presidents of South Korea and Nationalist China.

The offer is open to the free nations in Asia to sponsor a conference to materialize the Rhee-Chiang plan," Pyun said in an interview. "We are waiting for response."

There had been speculation that Rhee and Chiang were forming a two-party alliance to oppose communism, but Pyun's invitation indicated a much broader program.

Pyun said the conference should be held as soon as possible.

He said it could be held in any Asian country—as a sponsor—that has proved it was anti-Communist.

Traffic Accident Toll Is Eleven Over Week-end

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Eleven persons died in traffic accidents throughout eastern Canada during the week-end to boost the violent death toll for Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes to 21 in the 36-hour period.

A Canadian Press compilation showed five others dead by gunshot wounds, two in blasting accidents, two by drowning and another who police said was fatally beaten during a domestic quarrel.

Nine of the fatalities occurred in Ontario while seven were in Quebec and the five others in the Atlantic provinces.

In Ontario, 13-year-old Garry Bellows was shot in the neck by a Toronto police officer as he and a group of youngsters fled the scene of an attempted break-in Sunday night. Ronald Calhoun, 15, of Toronto was killed when the car he was driving hit a pole early Saturday in downtown Toronto.

TREE CRASH FATAL

Jean Albertson, 26, of Clarkson was killed early Sunday when the car in which she was riding hit a tree. Denis Dwyer, 16, was fatally wounded when shot while hunting with another youngster near Pelee Island Sunday.

Donald Alex McDonald, 70, was killed while he examined a car in Green Valley farm near Ottawa. Mrs. Elsie Rowe, 44, was struck and killed by a truck while crossing the street Saturday night near her Hamilton home.

Ernest Bolsover, 37, died in his Windsor home shortly after receiving a bullet wound in the head. Police said he killed himself. John Tahbe, a 73-year-old Indian from Southampton, was struck by a car near Owen Sound.

Marie Okonski, 47, was found beaten to death in her Kirkland Lake home. Police have charged her ex-husband, Walter, with murder.

Jordan Plans Stronger Army

JERUSALEM (AP) — Jordan announced plans today to step up defences against neighboring Israel.

Dr. Fawzi el Mulki, the country's premier and defence minister, said Jordan would turn her national guard into a "baby Arab Legion" and give military training to the 500,000 Arab refugees from Palestine who are living in the kingdom.

$125,000 Loss In London Fire On Saturday

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Loss estimated to be between $100,000 and $125,000 was sustained in a fire of undetermined origin that swept through the Dutch laundry and dry cleaners building, Saturday night.

Investigation into the cause of the fire was started Sunday by London's fire inspector, James Fitzgerald.

The light of the fire reflecting off the white clouds illuminated the whole area, and was visible for miles.

Of the 17 firemen called three, including Capt. Hector Bishop of No. 1 company, received minor injuries. Four pumpers and a service truck were brought into service.

B. P. Cramer, manager of the firm, said he believed most laundry and clothing in the plant for the week was lost. Business records were saved, however, and customers will be re-lumbered.

One Identified

MONTREAL (CP)—Police have identified Paul Tetreault, 29, Montreal, as the driver of a car that plunged into the St. Lawrence river off Laurier pier Saturday night.

They said Tetreault had not yet been found.

Two harbor employees told police they saw the automobile plunge into the water Saturday.

Police said they think two or three men were in the car and that their bodies may have been carried downstream by the current.

WINDSORS IN LONDON

LONDON (AP)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor arrived unexpectedly from their Paris home today for a short visit in London.

They did not announce the purpose of their trip. About 100 persons gathered outside Victoria railway station as the couple posed for photographers before being driven to a hotel.

INNOCENT SUFFER

The town of Timmins is being wrung under the ever-increasing economic hardship of strikes which began last July. Every possible effort has been made about the stability of that community, as one mine after another has shut down when differences between union leaders and management have failed to dissolve. That a great degree of economic hardship has been produced already is undeniable. But apparently the miners and their families are not suffering unduly to judge from a letter received by a Belleville resident from a relatives in Timmins.

We quote from the letter: "Leaving all jokes aside, this strike of ours isn't bad at all—course it's not helping the town any, but our union is high, we are dug in for the winter. We've got good vouchers, why we have chicken every Sunday. We get $26.00 a week and a quart of milk a day. (The writer's husband) gets a brand new dollar bill once a week. We've all kinds of entertainment, shows, dances and talent nights. We also get free galleries and tickets for the limousine every week. They (the union)-have their own wood yards, garages, and the lot. All this violence you've probably read about has been played up a lot. Actually there's been very little."

The writer goes on to explain that her husband "works on 'Specials' (which is a very soft job, also very secretive. Another man isn't as lucky, he's a picket captain so has to put in six hours a day."

The writer of that letter struck the most significant note in her first sentence when she said that for the miners and their families the issues that strike was not so bad but that it was not helping the town. Twenty-six dollars a week is very little when compared with the weekly wages miners were able to earn when the mines were operating. But it is enough apparently, along with other aid, to see the miners through.

Who, then, is suffering the most as a result of the strike? It would seem it does not seem to be the miners. And while the companies are undoubtedly suffering from lost production they are not suffering sufficiently to yield to demands of the strikers. That leaves the rest of the people of Timmins—those engaged in all the allied businesses and professions. They are neither managers nor miners. They are not parties to the dispute. Yet they are suffering the brunt of the strike about which they have had nothing to say and which they are powerless to stop either by persuasion or intimidation.

And for what are they suffering? The union refuses to negotiate a contract without union check-off, and the companies refuse to accept the check-off in any compromise offers made to date.

If these two giant groups—the mine workers' unions and the mining companies of Timmins—refuse to strangle one another, that is their business. But is it just that the innocent bystanders of the town of Timmins should be forced to bear the burden of lost business from which they may take years to recover?

The appalling waste of any strike is a responsibility which rests on the shoulders of those who say that there should be some workable method, short of emigration, to protect those who are the victims of a dispute between labor and management.

THINGS GREAT AND SMALL

The millimeter and the kilometre are, in a way, the "limits" of smallness and bigness in daily life, says Francois Le Lionnais, writing for Unesco Features.

The millimeter is the unit most used in daily life things are neither very small nor very big.

He is answering a question as to what are the smallest and largest units used in measuring length.

The smallest unit, he says, is "X." It is used to measure protons and neutrons, parts of an atom. The arithmetic mean between "X" and the "millimeter-standard" is equal one angstrom; ten angstroms equal one millimicron; one thousand millimicrons equal one micron; one thousand microns equal one millimeter. A millimeter is equal to one twenty-fifth of an inch. Or, if you want it straight, 250 billion X's equal one inch. That is reducing measurement to the lowest level of human comprehension.

At the other end of the scale men use the astronomical unit, the average distance of the earth from the sun, a little less than 150 million kilometres. The nearest star, Proxima, is about 273,000 astronomic units away from the sun. Or, put another way, astronomers may say that Proxima is 4.35 light-years from the earth. That is that it would take light from the sun 4.35 years to reach Proxima. As light travels at a speed of 186,330 miles per second, it is evident that Proxima is not what you might call a close neighbor of the sun. But the end is not yet. The Milky Way is approximately 12,000 light years in diameter. And the nebul contained in the Milky Way are distant by several hundreds of thousands of parsecs, with each parsec being the equivalent of about 3.26 light years. Reaching out into space astronomers found the parsecs adding up. So they adopted a larger unit, the megaparsec, which is one million parsecs, or 3,260,000 light years. The spiral nebul are separated from each other by distances ranging up to 500 megaparsecs, or 163,000,000 light years.

Now, let's see now, how may unit X's would there be between those nebul? Are you still with us?

SPORTSMAN

Then flesh or fowl he'd rather keep
An honored and respected name
And nightly comfortable sleep.

The limit of the law he'll take,
But catch or kill, illegal, none.
He wants the joys of field and lake
Secure for those who follow on.

He hopes his growing boys will share
The wide outdoors with all its thrills.
That game in plenty will be there;
Merely to kill, he never kills.

The sportsman true will never slay
A single creature he must hide.
He'd rather let it get away
Than lose his self-respect and pride.

Here is an interesting item about the new town hall and market building from our file copy at this time in 1873: "The new market building was illuminated last Saturday night for the first time. It presented a fine appearance except that a few more lights are required to make it understand that it has been decided to install the extra light fixtures. The gas fixtures are in neat and attractive. In the town hall a platform or stage has been erected and many seats of substantial construction have been placed in the hall. The use of a neat pattern for the councillors and reporter's desk is about to be put in place. Apparently the building will soon be ready for occupancy."

Rule of Road Is Not Known

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

A BELIEF THAT MAKES A DIFFERENCE

You may not believe in miracles, but attribute these two circumstances to coincidence if you can.

Between May 26 and June 4, soldiers were transported across the Channel in safety. On November 8, 1942, 130,000 United States troops landed in French North Africa. Both landings would ordinarily have been fraught with the greatest of danger. However, on both occasions the seas were calmer at the time of the embarkation of these two sets of troops than at any time during the 68 years covered by existing records. Anyone who has crossed the English Channel knows what tough sailing it is. There were and always have been conditions on the Channel which, if they had existed, would make a landing there quite impossible. Yet when the lives of a half-million men were at stake, were waters ordinarily turbulent and rough, were calmed down to the placidity of a mill pond? There is no proof of course that the hand of the Lord was in this, if by proof we mean something akin to the proving of a scientific proposition. But the circumstances would appear too spectacular for mere coincidence.

Those of us who have religious faith believe, first, that the hand of the Lord was in these unusual situations; and second, that that same hand can control human affairs arising in your life and in mine. And this belief makes a difference.

A Pat For Patenting

(New York Times)

Inventors are taking out fewer patents than they did a generation or so ago—a phenomenon on which we have commented more than once. Why there should be this decline has not been satisfactorily explained, but ingenuity is as active as ever is proved by the flourishing state of industry and the advance of civilization as a whole. Probably half a dozen different influences are at work. What may well be the most important one of these is discussed by Jacques Bergier in Unesco's quarterly courier.

If M. Bergier is right, expert knowledge and experience count for more than patent protection in developing and exploiting new processes and machines. It is not likely that a trained engineer could master in less than one or three years the intricacies of an almost automatic oil-refinery, through which liquid flows ceaselessly and at catastrophic pressures with scarcely any human control. So would it be with some of the chemicals produced by the chemical industry. In this complexity we may have the beginnings of very large manufacturing corporations have ceased to be content with patents. By the time all the stringer is ready to introduce his process or machine, other patents that have aroused his cupidity will be on the eve of expiration.

Yet despite the importance of special ability in introducing and working a new process or machine it is hard to accept M. Bergier's contention that patents are dead, as it is practiced by the large industrial corporations by the best brains of the lone inventor. It is true that the salaried research scientists of corporations do not care if the fruits of the patents now granted, yet much interesting and basic research, modulation system of transmitting television pictures, may indicate that the lone inventor is not likely to be extinguished. The patenting habit is deep-rooted in our technologic advance when half a century ago it could be exploited for its miserable timber and agricultural possibilities. But it has had precedence. His place has been taken by the man with a Ph. D after his name, who is in part an individualistic as were Bell and Edison in their day.

Are No Smiles On Scilly Isles

(Edmonton Journal)

A man-made blight has struck the flower-carpeted Isles of Scilly, 30 miles southwest of Cornwall, England. The ghastly disease was spread by the mail man who went from cottage to cottage on his rounds to make sure that none remained undelivered. The blight: Delay that he brought was income tax.

For years the islanders have been blissfully free of the evil on the ground that the higher cost of living in the islands, because of freight charges, should exempt them from the income tax. But the villain of the piece, Chancellor of the Exchequer R.A. Butler, disregarded the fact that the original fiscal faces of the Scillonians will be synonymous with misery and vacillation through the wallet.

We suppose the mainland-ers will be smiling grimly at the Scillies' plight. They have been paying income tax for years. In that year a tax was levid on land, but in addition there was taken "four shillings in the pound according to the then rental value" of any "estate in goods, wares, merchandises or other chattels, or personal estate what-soever" within the realm.

However, in those days, tax-collectors were not content to levy and the yield from the tax grabbing dwindled to nothing. But, a century later, the tax-collector is proving costly to England. Another result that economists again stalked onto the stage, is the "Brain Drain." Men moved on the country which called on the victim to state his income from all sources, and only those 60 pounds and under. From 60 pounds to 300 pounds was a graduated scale of deductions and above 300 pounds a straight ten per cent was levied. Income tax as it is known in British Isles is a far cry from the lines of the model introduced in 1799. Since that time the levy has been on the rampage, steadily increasing in severity as time went by.

Now the Isles have come to the Scilly Isle. No doubt the long-suffering mainlanders and many others throughout the world will be of the opinion that the islands "had it coming." But perhaps we are a little soft-hearted, for our heart goes out to the Scillonians and we have a great sympathy in the agonies that lie ahead. We don't like it a bit. I mean considering but now we shall stand together, "Brain Drain" or no sacrifice to the green-eyed monster—income tax.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE BEST STILL AHEAD

I get no joy or satisfaction over talking or companioning with people who think that the best is in the past or that the world is going to the bow-wows. Nearly every day or two we run across or experience something fine or inspiring that has no adequate comparison to "the good old days."

No matter what is in store of us, good or bad, we can expect that ingenious people will face it all in good part. It has always been so, and there is no reason to suppose it will not be so in the future. But the circumstances would appear too spectacular for mere coincidence.

Those of us who have religious faith believe, first, that the hand of the Lord was in these unusual situations; and second, that that same hand can control human affairs arising in your life and in mine. And this belief makes a difference.

Geese Seen At 29,000 Feet

National Geographic

When Sir Edmund Hillary and Tenzing Norkay were nearing the top of Mount Everest earlier this year, they were astonished to see a bird flying at 27,000 feet level.

But that particular avian high flyer failed by some 2,000 feet of beating what is generally regarded as the world altitude record for birds, says the National Geographical Society.

Scientists photographing the sun over India once sighted a flock of geese at 29,000 feet, the approximate height of Mount Everest. In migration across the lofty Himalayas, these geese set the record. Establishing the record by Washington geese, even though neither bird may ever venture more than a few hundred feet above the ground.

Neither Sir Edmund, who will head the British Mount Everest Society in Washington next February 12, nor Tenzing identified the bird. Tenzing, however, the ascent which finally conquered the highest mountain, said he has been a lammergeier, a vulture which lives in the Himalayas.

The lammergeier habitually lives in high places, and had previously been observed flying above Everest area at 24-25,000 feet. But scientists, including Washington birds and curiews, have been seen migrating at heights during the ascent same great mountain at 20,000 feet.

Another dweller on heights is the world's largest flying bird the condor, which is the proud owner of a plane at about 20,000 feet above the Andes. Many have been seen 6,700 feet in the thin air above a 12,858-foot peak.

Among high birds of the lowlands fly higher during migrations than other fliers. Ducks, geese, curlews, pipers, yellow-legs and black-bellied plovers have been seen at 10,000 to 12,000 feet, pelicans, cranes and herons at 5,000 to 8,000. Lapwings, golden plovers, snipe, gulls and larks at 6,1/2 feet above sea level.

ELASTIC ARTERIES AND SUPPLY JOINTS

One of the earliest signs of physical degeneration, whether the process happens to be more advanced in arteries or joints, is a lack of elasticity.

Dr. Brady

Physical decline is the result of means "extensive pathological changes in cells or tissues in consequence of which the functioning power is lost and the living substance becomes converted into an inert mass." (Stedman's Medical Dictionary). Or, as Webster has it, "deterioration of a tissue or organ in which its vitality is diminished; substitution of a lower for a higher form of structure, either by chemical change of the tissue (true degeneration) or the deposit of abnormal matter in the tissue (infiltration)."

Stedman's definition is the better of the two, but I'd amend Dr. Stedman's definition by stricking out the word lost and inserting instead the word impaired or weakened.

I am confident that no medical authority will venture to dispute the suggestion that the degenerative process is reversible if taken in time.

For instance, a good many readers have reported that the real heart tonic I recommend in the heart ahead and artery troubles has restored weakened or impaired heart function. For a copy of the booklet send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Another early sign of physical degeneration is a perceptible decrease of flexibility or suppleness of the joints. When you were really young you could roll a somersault or at least have a try at it without difficulty. I started rolling somersaults when I was about seven and I have kept up the silly practice ever since—half a dozen on getting out of bed before I do a half dozen movements or the Last Brady Blessing, to get the old stagnant blood that collects in the splanchnic pool over night back into circulation.

Victorians Had a Secret

(Hamilton Spectator).

Boredom is a disease that takes many forms and in most of them it has affected a large part of modern society. Two generations ago Victorians was the privilege of wealthy, and boredom — the result in those days of having nothing to do for a long time—was a good elegant conversational disease that respectable people frowned upon. One of the most famous forms of modern boredom is having no particular way in which to fill one's time after doing anything at all rather than thinking and having to look one's own thoughts straight in the face.

Since the First World War it has been thought that the secret of the Victorians, to regard them as figures of fun with stodgy ideas, moral notions and unimaginative solemn outlook. This attitude has prevented us from finding out what, like so many other legends, it simply isn't true. Charles and scientific advancement in the Victorian era were not the result of their boredom in the present day; intellectual disturbance and religious speculation were, perhaps, even greater, but the inner core of civilization did not change.

On the whole, the Victorians were hard-working generations to whom boredom was practically unknown, and they were happy for it. Leisure time was limited for most of them and so they got days of leisure in it; waiting time on unproductive occupations for the majority, something close to anything.

And the truth about the Victorian character and era was a simple one indeed. It was a secret most of the historians, it is this: The times changed, but the people didn't. One of the family who had gone to school in the days of the Napoleonic wars sat at the head of the table and carved the family joint with bonded equanimity while the express train thundered over the viaduct outside. Darwin could challenge the foundations of civilization with his theories, but sure of the beliefs inculcated in his childhood people didn't, for the most of the family who had gone to school in the days of the Napoleonic wars sat at the head of the table and carved the family joint with bonded equanimity while the express train thundered over the viaduct outside. Darwin could challenge the foundations of civilization with his theories, but sure of the beliefs inculcated in his childhood people didn't, for the most part, think that what was wrong, there was black and there was white, there were no in-betweentones. Among the "white" things were Victorian ladies and gentlemen. Victorians might be rediscovered.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

They are having a great time in Britain with the problem of commercial television. The subject has been before parliament for months, and it looks as if the solution of the question is to be the setting of a separate commission to direct commercial television, while the commercial radio and television will still continue under the BBC. It will not be long before the result of this experiment will be watched with lively interest.

The chief trouble with commercial radio and television appears to be that the cost of time per minute is out of all proportion to the value of the whole program, naturally because the whole advertising script has to be jammed and crowded, they feel the entertainment has to be jammed and crowded too. Thus the entertainment gets at a pace that, on the one hand, grows just as tiresome as the advertisements. What a pleasure it has been, in past years, to have had over our Canadian radio programs from Britain, in which the advertising was not commercial, in which entertainers could take their time, in which speakers could discuss subjects at whatever length that suggested they were actually guests in our homes, sitting here by our fireside.

Would we normally invite people to night club entertainers, comedians, jazz singers into our homes as guests? Even if we would get them for next to nothing? I doubt it. Yet that is what we do when we have radio and television. Normal way of life in the home is to have a quiet evening, read and then, to come in for the evening. In some homes, that may like to have a night club entertainer once a week. In others, they are content to entertain in a restaurant not less than that. Yet radio for the most whole evening and even television—in homes of every degree, as the televisions mastic Canadians have proved entertainment into all our homes, both day and night. We have troupes of jugglers, wrestlers, singers, jokers swarming in on us all hours. About the only thing in our favor is, we don't have to feed them and we can book them out the minute we grow weary of them.

The Greatest Faith Ever Known

By Fulton Oursler and April Oursler Armstrong

Paul

CHAPTER 2.

For three days, Saul was a prisoner in the house of a Christian who bore the unfortunate name of Judas.

His act was of sublime charity. He knew that Saul was the Christians' worst enemy. Judas had nothing to expect and much to fear when he opened the door of his house, behind the Street That is Called Straight, and followed the weakening Saul to be laid in his own bed.

For three days and three nights the soldiers of Saul stood guard over Judas' house while their captain lay in bed.

"I am blind," he himself," they said to one another. "He is a very sick man."

But none of the advice or the weird prescriptions of Damascus doctors were of help. Saul was blind. He ate nothing and he drank nothing. His lips moved, and he whispered softly.

One night in Damascus knew what Saul was trying to say. His man was Ananias, and he was to be confused with the liar of Jerusalem of the same name.

To this second and admirable Ananias the Lord spoke directly, in a vision:

"Ananias!"

And Ananias replied:

"Lord," he protested, overwhelmed with terror, "I have heard by many of this man, how much evil he has done to Your saints in Jerusalem. And right here in Damascus he has authority from the chief priests of the People to imprison everybody who dares to invoke Your Name."

There was a moment's silence, and then the Lord spoke with a firmness of command not to be mistaken:

"Go your way. For this man is to Me a vessel of election, to carry My Name before the Gentiles, and the children of Israel. For I will show him what great things he must suffer for My Name's sake."

A minute later, Ananias set out down the narrow and now deserted paths of early morning. The sun was not yet up, and the moon was dim as the messenger of Christ stood by the bed. The hands of Ananias, pale and trembling, touched the eyelids of the stricken man.

"Behold, I am here, Lord!"

"Arise! And go into the Street That Is Called Straight! "And seek in the house of Judas one named Saul of Tarsus! For behold — he prays!"

Ananias had been instructed in the mercy and forgiveness of God. He knew that God will forgive treasons only as we forgive those who trespass against us. But as Saul was a living terror, "breathing out threatenings and slaughter against the disciples of the Lord."

"Brother Saul, the Lord Jesus has sent me," Ananias said: "He that appeared to you in the way as you came; that you may receive your sight and be filled with the Holy Ghost."

To see again. . . oh yes, please merciful Lord! And to be filled with the Holy Ghost! The Holy Ghost that I had driven to drive from the hearts of men in the name of God and the Sanhedrin.

"And immediately there fell from his eyes as it were, scales, and he received his sight. And rising up, he was baptized."

In that moment Saul became truly, irrevocably, a new man. He was born again.

And he chose to mark that hour of transformation by shedding the Hebrew name Saul, by which all men knew him. He chose instead to be known by the name he had seldom used, his official name as a Roman citizen.

Instead of Saul, the man of Tarsus would from that day of baptism till the end of time be known as Paul.

For some days, Luke has reported, Paul remained with the disciples in the city of Damascus. The new convert pleaded for more instruction and for personal fellowship from those Damascans who had met Jesus and heard His message. But Paul did more than that. He was a fiery, headstrong man, and once he got his strength back, he could not stand idly by, while a moral revolution was in his soul. All in an instant he had been redeemed; he must pass on the experience to others. What convert has not known the same overmastering impulse to share joy?

Paul went into the Damascus synagogue and began to preach Christianity! And his listeners, both the Jews who had become Christians and those who had not, were stunned into puzzled silence.

"Is this man not known as Saul, the persecutor? He was sent out from here against those who believed in the Name of Jesus, wasn't he? Didn't he come here swearing to put off every Christian bound and captive, back to the high priests? Then what does this change mean? It he really converted? Or does he strike a pose, setting some trap?

He was a majestic figure standing before them, dressed simply in a dyed grey robe, but with an elegance that distinguishes a man who lives in a capital city and associates with the best people.

He was not more than five feet tall. But he was broad-shouldered. Early athletic victories had hardened his well-conditioned body. He was sinewy and graceful in spite of his prematurely balding head and the early gray that encroached on his close-knit eyebrows and thick beard in this his thirtieth year. Yet it was not his stalwart figure, nor his impelling manner that held the crowded synagogue silent.

Day by day his eloquence grew more potent, in spite of whispers and mutters, in spite of antagonism and suspicion, Paul confounded the skeptics. He made incounded converts.

The scribes and the Pharisees were outraged, and they consulted together on the best way to kill Paul. They were still sure murder was the most effective answer to Christianity.

Ananias and the other Christians were resolved to save Paul's life. They dared not keep him in Damascus another day. The ordinary exile from the city, the massive gates, swarmed with Paul's murderous enemies. He could not leave by the highroad, and hope to live.

Ananias had the answer. That night he and his fellow disciples left his house carrying a large basket. As they lurched down the street with their heavy load, an occasional orange or pear toppled from the basket and rolled between the cobblestones. The assassins, lurking in the shadows, spat contemptuously, and turned to keep close guard on the stone house where Paul had been baptized.

Through the silent streets, the disciples hastened with their burden to an isolated part of the city wall. They unpacked the bulky, tied sturdy ropes to the handles of the basket, and lowered it — bumping and tipping, over the wall.

Along the black road Paul now made his way alone into the desert wilderness to be alone with God. He retreated from the world to the desert where he could nourish his spirit; explore his new views, weigh and test his understanding of his will.

He went from Damascus into Arabia seeking to hear the Voice of God in his soul. But he would not have dared hope for the stunning gift of glory that he was to receive, visions and revelations that were to dazzle Paul's memory the rest of his days.

Out in the solitary wastes, Paul's prayers were rewarded as they never had been, with a sight of heaven itself. And, to forestall the creeping slithering sin of pride, God gave him the paradoxical blessing of an infirmity of the body, constant painful reminder that though Paul served God, and had peered into paradise's glory, he was mortal, pitifully human and that through suffering spirit-ual powers flower.

What the infirmity was, we do not know. Whatever the affliction, it served its divine purpose. Paul never forgot the lessons God taught him in the fastnesses of Arabia; lessons he passed on with tender eagerness to all Christians he met during those years of harvest. He knew he had direct revelation, communion with God, and appointment from heaven as an apostle.

Like every divinely inspired man, Paul's retreat proved sound, not only spiritually, but for purely practical reasons. No one would have welcomed the notorious ex-persecutor in Jerusalem during those years.

At news of Paul's conversion, rumor and confusion has filled the Judaean capital. The elders, the Pharisees, the scribes, all the members of the Sanhedrin, all the haters of Christians were in a fervor when the Damascus story, attested by Saul's soldiers, became gossip in the Jerusalem streets. The Pharisees called it a lie of Christian propaganda. The Christians called it a snare and said that Paul was only masquerading, so that he could squirm his way into the confidence of the faithful.

But for three years Paul lived on the grey path between Damascus and what is now called Baghdad. Gradually, he was forgotten by the Pharisees and by some of the Christians; and they lost their first bitter fear of him.

At the end of the third year, Paul set out southward for Jerusalem, so see Peter.

What were Paulş thoughts on that solitary journey back to Jerusalem? Already he was seeing a larger meaning of the Master's teachings than many of the apostles who had still much to understand. Already he knew that the Gospel was meant not for a specially chosen few but for all the people on earth. The missionary prospect was like a gorgeous vision in his mind as day after day, for a week, he rode nearer to Jerusalem.

He did not guess what a spiritual test awaited him.

Propose Russia Attend Parley As 'Third Party'

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The Communists today offered a broad proposal for a Korean peace conference, some of it new and some of it old, at most of it a old shot for Russ U.S. delegate Admiral H. Dean.

Dean in turn offered the Reds a compromise plan to let Russia sit in on the conference as a "neighbor of Korea," taking part in "third part," with full voting privileges.

Dean's suggestion was a revision of earlier UN demands that a conference include only the two belligerent sides with Russia on the Communists side if she attended. However, a- Allied spokesman said:

"We expect the law of gravity will operate to take care of that situation and we would not be surprised if Russia would show up as the chief spokesman for the Communists."

Both sides agreed to take a day off for study of the new proposals. They will meet again at 11 a.m. Wed.—6 p.m. Tuesday, EST.

Dean said after Monday's meeting, firs' of the staff level talks, that the Communist proposal is simply an old plan "dressed up with altering flannel."

He said he was "exceptionally disappointed" and told reporters there was a "complete lack of progress."

CONFERENCE SITE

However, Dean said he was "gratified" the Communists have suggested New Delhi as a conference site, switching from their previous insistence on Panmunjom. Dean opposed Panmunjom bitterly and said the Communists an essay on what's wrong with it.

He did not comment on what he thought of New Delhi as a site. An Indian spokesman in Panmunjom said he believed the Indian government would approve New Delhi if both sides requested it.

The Reds also proposed that the conference begin Dec. 28.

CFPL-TV will present national Canadian shows, many programs selected from four United States networks and its own presentations.

Canadians Help Ceylon Develop Fishing Industry

VANCOUVER (CP) — The fishing industry in Ceylon is rapidly being modernized with the aid of Canadian fishermen and fishing boats.

Don Hayward, British Columbia Packers Ltd. executive, loaned to the Colombo Plan to supervise the industry, said on his return here that two Vancouver - built boats sent to the island Dominion, the Canadian and the North Star, have already proved of great value in improving the potential fishing catch.

Each vessel, typical B. C. all-purpose fishing craft, has a crew of Ceylon fishermen who are being trained by fishermen from this coast.

Canada also supplied Ceylon with a British-built North sea trawler which is engaged in bottom fishing.

Mr. Hayward said there is now quite a colony of Canadians in Colombo. Besides fishermen and their families, there are also two fisheries research scientists from Canada, Dr. J. C. Metcalfe and Dr. A. W. Lantz, from the Pacific experimental station.

Canada has also agreed to finance construction of a cold storage plant in Ceylon. The fisheries plan is found to be expected to cost about $2,000,000.

Weddings

COOPER—BLANEY

Guests were present from Orillia, Toronto, Kingston, Ottawa, Belleville, Peterborough, North Bay and Vancouver, B.C. at the wedding recently at Grace United Church Trenton, when Thelma Martha Blaney, of Trenton, became the bride of John Frederick Cooper, of Sudbury, Ontario. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Blaney, of Trenton, formerly of Toronto, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Mary Keris Cooper of Vancouver, B.C.

Rev. G. A. Pattenden, pastor of Grace United Church officiated in the church which was decorated with evergreen and mums in autumn colors. William Navan played the traditional wedding music and Bruce Ireland was soloist. He sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "I'll Walk Beside You."

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was charming in a bridal gown of lace over satin, trimmed with seed pearls, fashioned with a stand-up wing collar. Her coronet headdress of satin and pearls held a graceful fingertip veil, and her only ornament was a single strand pearl necklace. The bridal bouquet was of pink Rapture roses in cascade.

The attractive attendants, Mrs. William Navan of Trenton, and Miss Margaret Archibald, of Toronto, were matching gowns of jewel tone velvet and carried fan-shaped bouquets. Mrs. Navan wore a gown of emerald green velvet and carried yellow and bronze mums with gold lace lawn ribbon. Miss Archibald wore a gown of ruby red velvet and carried white and mauve mums with pale green lace lawn ribbon. The attendants' headdresses were similar in velvet to match their gowns and their accessories were pearl necklaces and earrings.

Mr. Rae Meyers, of Ottawa, attended the groom. Mr. Gerald Brown and Mr. James Blaney, of Toronto, were ushers.

Following the ceremony a reception for the wedding party was held at the Hotel Quecnsway. Mrs. Blaney received the guests, assisted by Mrs. Cooper. Mrs. Blaney wore a frock of medium blue wool with trim of black velvet, black accessories and a black velvet hat. Her corsage was of pink roses. Mrs. Cooper wore a two-piece dress of beige and brown, with accessories of gold. Her corsage was of Talisman roses.

For travelling by motor to Montreal, the Laurentians and the United States, the bride chose a travelling costume of charcoal grey wool suit with velvet collar, grey gloves and shoes, accented by a mauve scarf and a matching feather hat. Her corsage was of feather carnations in white and mauve.

Upon their return from their honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Cooper will live in Lively, Ontario.

A great moment for members of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary took place when the contributing pledge of a $10,000 pledge to the hospital building fund was made. Mrs. J. H. Forrester (left), president of the auxiliary, is photographed during the presentation of the pledge to Miss Lillian Courneyea (right), chairman of the women's organizations committee of the hospital campaign. In the background, Mrs. William H. Finkle, general convener of the Opportunity Shop, where the presentation took place, looks on. The shop is the largest money raising project of the auxiliary.

Women's Hospital Aux. Pledges $10,000 to Fund

The Women's Hospital Auxiliary of the Belleville General Hospital has presented the hospital building fund with a pledge for $10,000 it was announced by the chairman of Clubs and Organizations committee of the hospital campaign, Miss Lillian Courneyea.

According to the President of the Auxiliary, Mrs. James H. Forrester, the greater part of the funds raised by the Auxiliary is receipts from the Opportunity Shop which is staffed by volunteer workers of the organization.

Organized for the purpose of supplying aid to the hospital, the auxiliary has found it profitable to operate the shop, which is located in the city hall building, through consignments and donations.

The presentation of the pledge was made at the Opportunity Shop when Mrs. Forrester officially presented the gift to Miss Courneyea, Mrs. W. A. Finkle, general shop convener, also attended. Other members of the auxiliary present and who serve in the shop on a rotation basis were: Mrs. Gilbert Scott, shop staff convener; Mrs. Lewis Watson, shop bookkeeper; Mrs. W. Dallas, shop treasurer; Mrs. F. L. Allcorn, shop pricing convener; Mrs. C. Taylor, shop decor convener and Mrs. J. C. Young, associate pricing convener.

The auxiliary has been active in hospital work locally for quite a number of years and has made many donations to the hospital both capital and equipment. One of the more recent and largest presentations was that of an autoclave for the sterilization of babies' formulae.

Woman Owns 3-Chain Shop In Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Four years ago, when Mrs. Alide Valnu answered an advertisement for a barber, everyone thought it was a mistake — everyone, that is, but Mrs. Valnu. She got the job and today owns her own three-chair tonsorial salon.

An Estonian, Mrs. Valnu arrived here from Europe five years ago unable to speak English. But she had completed a three-year course in a barbering school at Tallin, Estonia, and gained a good deal of hair-cutting experience during four years in a German concentration camp.

So, after serving one year as a domestic as required by her immigration contract, she answered Joseph Girard's ad for a barber in June, 1949.

"You must be looking for a job in the beauty salon at the back," Joe told her, but Mrs. Valnu explained in halting English that she was an ordinary man's barber and simply wanted to cut hair. She was hired.

Now she has two assistants—working for her and she can carry on a line of barbershop patter with the best of them. But, and this may be her secret formula for success, she only uses the gift of gab when the customer starts a conversation; otherwise, silence.

Dr. T. B. McDormand Speaks to Vota Vita

The November meeting of the Vota Vita Mission Circle of the Victoria Avenue Baptist Church was held recently in the church parlors in the form of a pot-luck supper.

The president, Mrs. W. Hales, opened the meeting. Miss Jerry Campbell led in a sing-song.

Business was then discussed and dealt with in the usual manner.

Following the business portion, the group joined the congregation in the church and took charge of the devotional period.

Dr. T. B. McDormand, of Toronto, speaker for the evening, gave an enlightening talk on the convention and its work.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A POSSIBLE CURE FOR A MEAN AND FAITHLESS HUSBAND

When a woman has a husband whose only appreciation interest in his home is to use it as a convenient boarding-house, and he happens to want one; when, when he is there, is consistently mean-spirited and critical of his wife and children; and who tops it all off with repeated infidelities, can she possibly make the "happy, normal life" that she wants for her family?

I don't believe she can, and I don't believe she should knock herself out indefinitely trying to do so against impossible odds. I'm a young woman only, 26 years old, married to a man of 34 and with two children, is willing to do just that if there is any hope of eventual success.

"My husband runs around with other women all the time," he writes, "and if I say anything about it he says I have proven to him that I know what I'm talking about, he becomes very angry and won't talk to me for a week or two. He says I'm a real cow wife and make him miserable. I can't see how he can expect me to trust him under the circumstances.

"His work's out of town, about 90 miles away where we live, but he comes home weekends, and when he is with me he is very nice to me and a good provider. In fact, he hardly ever talks to me at all unless he has to call me a lot of bad names or to criticize me. Even though his only time for being home is on weekends, he is always going some place, but never takes me or the children. Our home is just a place for him to sleep and eat when he has no other place to go, and I am glad he lets me pick up the clothes I always have clean for him. He never tells me he thinks about anything I do, and when I catch him in a lie, he still won't admit it. You can't talk to him or reason with him. He just won't listen, and it only makes him all the worse.

"We have separated two or three times but after a few months he would always come to me and say he was sorry, and beg me to forgive him and bring the children and come back to him, which I have always done. Then, in a short time, he would be untrue to me again and, if I said anything, he would tell me if I didn't like the deal he did. I knew what I could do about it, meaning for me to leave.

"What I want more than anything in this world is a happy, normal life for my children, but the way things are, it is impossible for them to have it. I just don't know whether I still love my husband or not. Sometimes I think I do and other times I think I hate him. Is there any solution to my problem?"

Whether or not it would be a solution for her problem, I do not know; nor do I know whether or not it would be even possible for her to carry it out. But I am going to suggest an experiment this wife might try if she can see her way clear to do it.

I would not advise merely picking up and going for one more fling. Is temporary separation, if she does decide eventually to leave, I think she should make it stick. Also, she is never going to get anywhere at all if she keeps yielding to pleading and promises from her husband on which he never makes good.

Instead, my idea would be that she try a ten-week-ending project, staying in her home during the week when her husband is away, and taking herself and the children off before he gets home on weekends. Let him, when he arrives, find a note waiting for him simply saying that she and the children have gone away for the weekend, without any information as to where they have gone. Otherwise, she would undoubtedly have him following her, either to create an angry storm, or to beg her to come home, according to how the note happened to strike him.

In other words, what I'm suggesting is that she simply keep out of his way for awhile, without quarrel, without argument and without explanation. If he has enough love for her to genuinely miss her, he will know why she is doing it.

Whether such a plan would bring about a change of heart in him, cannot be predicted, but it would at least mean a more peaceful life for her, while postponing a decision as to permanent separation.

Beauty

HANDS WITH CHARACTER

Once upon a time it was every woman's dream to have tiny, dimpled hands. The more useless hands looked, the more beautiful they were supposed to be. But a lot of water has run under the beauty bridge since then. Today, we like to have our hands where they belong and use them, but we can dispense with the Victorian dimples when we realize that it is which look strong and capable that has character.

There is as much difference in hands as there is in faces. Perhaps very few of them are remarkable, be-gosh. Old-timers still talk about aristocratic hands. There are no such things. Beautiful hands of graceful contour are not confined to any particular class or walk in life. It is just your good luck if you were born with long slender fingers, as it is your good fortune if you have a good sewing Gals' (Yes . . . indeed yes! Those "wide, even spaces" on your scrawny, can carry an element of loveliness. The nurse and hand of an enthusiastic tennis or golf player can be interesting. One might say that the inner attitude of hand of all is the one that expresses capability—whether of an artistic or useful nature. Any smart girl who's stuck by her beauty routine can have nice hands, however.

Beautifully shaped nails are unquestionably an asset, also an index to the owner's personal habits. Care of the hands and nails calls for hand soaps. The housewife had better invest in harsh cleaning agents, protect her hands with rubber gloves if she feels she has to use them. And cleaning silver or polishing furniture hose rubber gloves were always should be worn.

Cold water leaves the hands as dry as if they had been exposed to harsh winds. When washing yours have the water comfortably warm and fluff up a rich lather. Rinse well and dry thoroughly.

"FRIENDLY RECOLLECTIONS"

"Christmas messages," said Charles Dickens, who was very, very knowing about the meaning of Christmas, "are a great accumulation of friendly recollections." In fact, Dickens and Christmas bells in your thoughts these days, as you are planning to send your Christmas cards. "Friendly recollections" . . . bear warning measures of remembrance.

WRITE MESSAGES ON CHRISTMAS CARDS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Yesterday at a meeting of our Sewing Club, we had a lively discussion on this subject: Is it really proper to add a note or message on informal Christmas cards?

Yes . . . indeed yes! Those "wide, even spaces" on your scrawny, can carry an element of loveliness. The nurse and hand of an enthusiastic tennis or golf player can be interesting. One might say that the inner attitude of hand of all is the one that expresses capability—whether of an artistic or useful nature. Any smart girl who's stuck by her beauty routine can have nice hands, however.

Beautifully shaped nails are unquestionably an asset, also an index to the owner's personal habits. Care of the hands and nails calls for hand soaps. The housewife had better invest in harsh cleaning agents, protect her hands with rubber gloves if she feels she has to use them. And cleaning silver or polishing furniture hose rubber gloves were always should be worn.

Cold water leaves the hands as dry as if they had been exposed to harsh winds. When washing yours have the water comfortably warm and fluff up a rich lather. Rinse well and dry thoroughly.

Requested Fruit Cakes

By Mary Moore

NOTE TO WRITING READERS: It is too late now to write to me and expect answers in your letters in this column before Christmas. If you must have answers before Christmas be sure to enclose a stamped, envelope and your name and address. This way I can get in touch with you and your name and address.

The folk who do not do Christmas baking or who simply do not have time to do it may become bored with all of this fruit cake talk, but I promise to give you a good moist and vegetable and dessert menu on Wednesday and that will restore us to ordinary weekday matters. Tomorrow I have a griddle cake recipe for you. That's plain enough for everybody.

I promised a reader a small moist perfect white fruit cake recipe this week. Mrs. H. Z. would like an uncooked fruit cake for Xmas. I assumed, my dear friends. First recipe is for "Mystified Me."

PERFECT MOIST WHITE FRUIT CAKE

(One 3 1-2 lb. loaf.)

Three-quarters lb., blanched almonds, 1-4 lb. candied citron, 2 oz. each candied pineapple and candied cherries (white or green if you can't get them), 1-4 lb. light soft dates, 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour, 2 eggs, 3-4 cup butter or margarine, 1 cup sugar, 1-4 cup milk, 2 tablespoons apple or other fruit juice, 1-2 teaspoon almond extract, 1-2 teaspoon cream of tartar. Cut the blanched almonds in about 3 pieces. Cut the cherries in halves and the citron and pineapple in thin strips. Mix them in a bowl with the raisins. Sift the flour and measure it. Sprinkle half a cup of this flour over the fruits and mix it through them to flour them. Cream the butter or margarine until they are creamy and light, then add the sugar gradually while you are creaming. Add the yolks of the eggs and beat them in thoroughly. Mix together in milk, fruit juice and extract and add them alternately with the remaining 1 1-2 cups flour. Beat the 2 egg whites until they are foamy, then sprinkle in cream of tarter over them and beat until whites are stiff enough to hold their shape, but not so stiff they will cling to the bowl when it is tipped. Pour the batter over the fruits and mix well —you should really do this with your 3 hands. Now fold and mix in the egg whites. Carefully line your loaf pan (or small tube pan)—the size that would hold one regular size loaf of bread, with brown paper and grease with butter thoroughly. Press cake batter in with the hands to make sure there are no holes, and spread the batter cake that along well. Put a shallow water pan in bottom of oven. This must not be so hig it covers entire bottom of

Jay-Walking Is Deviation Tolerated in Red Capital Boss Finds to His Dismay

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW (CP) — A Canadian traffic cop would go crazy in this Soviet capital.

Jay-walking seems to be one form of deviationism a people's democracy will tolerate.

In plain defiance of a red traffic light, an Intourist guide made the point several hundred Muscovites in a battle of wits and legs against automobiles and trucks.

One thing about Moscow traffic is that it hugs the edges and leaves the centre clear. Passing breathless in the centre of the road, I said:

"In some cities of my country you'd never get away with that. You might even have to pay that policeman a fine."

TOUGH ON MOBSTERS

"Well," she said, "in my country we don't have fines. Only mobsters have to pay fines. Not us."

It's a noisy, running battle in the classless democracy between the "have"—with cars—and the "have nots." Neither side of the battle is pleasant. In one half-mile drive the chauffeur stopped three times to shout unprintable Russian at pedestrians who had their own ideas about the right-of-way.

Moscow lives on a shoestring of traffic. Increases daily. Most vehicles are trucks and the Russian version of 1950 American cars. Three years ago the private-operated taxi stand outside the Metropole Hotel had three cabs. Today it has 32.

Everybody seems in a hurry. There is a visible purposefulness, almost a severity, about the people in the streets, the underground, the restaurants and stores—especially on working days.

RELAX ON SUNDAY

But on Sundays Muscovites take time off to stroll the streets and window-shop. They look relaxed. Soldiers, uniformed civil servants and the ordinary citizens, wife on arm and children by the hand, stride good-humoredly in crowds that recall an Easter Sunday in Canada.

Clothing style seems to emphasize utility and warmth, not smartness in the Western sense. The temperature last Sunday was 30 degrees, and there was snow on the ground. A guide supplied by the government's Intourist bureau asked me to notice that everyone was warmly clad.

Most men wore black or navy-blue overcoats, apparently of a standard substantial weave. Some had leather jackets or windbreakers, others quilted jackets like those worn by Allied prisoners of war released by the Communists at Panmunjom, Korea, last summer.

Footgear ranges from ordinary shoes to black calf-length Cossack boots. The usual hat in this weather is of black cloth with tied-up fur ear-flaps, but there are also peaked cloth caps and some fur shakos.

Most women wear woollen cloth coats and some have furs. Variety shows most in headdress, which varies from felt and fur hats to peasant-type shawls or "babushka" tied around the head and under the chin.

DEPRESSIVE STREETS

Moscow's main streets, linking a series of plazas and squares, are impressive. They are incredibly wide: The width of Ottawa's Confederation square, hall as wide again as Portage avenue in Winnipeg or Victory square in Vancouver.

The guide gave astronomical figures for the number of houses and streets of old Moscow demolished to make way for the new thoroughfares. Dominating several areas are stylized skyscraper office buildings and apartment blocks, each topped by a spire supporting a gigantic hammer and sickle. More are under construction.

Finding one's way about Moscow is an acquired skill. All the signposts are in Russian. Policemen give foreigners the same matter-of-fact help they give Russians.

After bequests to servants and relatives, it is unlikely that more than $100,000 will be left for studying the possibility of introducing Shaw's lifelong ambition—an English phonetic alphabet.

For propaganda purposes, Shaw also ordered that his play And rocks and the Lion should be translated into his alphabet by a phonetics expert and distributed to libraries. The money was to have come out of his estate.

ASKS RULING

Faced with the problems of executing Shaw's difficult—and expensive — plans, public trustee F. Wyndham Hirst will ask the high court to rule whether the bequest is void.

Hirst's lawyers say the money is there and will be paid to the trustee if it would save a writer two months in every 12 years.

Generally speaking, it is based on the existing 26 letters with additions of shorthand symbols to mark phonetic sounds which normally require a combination of letters. Under his system all words would be spelled exactly as they sound.

Shaw's will has been severely criticized in Britain. Lady Astor, a lifelong friend of Shaw, called it ridiculous.

The playwright's will is not the first from the Shaw family to cause a headache. A British judge ruled in December, 1951, that a controversial bequest of $622,000 left by Shaw's wife on her death in 1943 was a true charity. The bequest was "to teach the Irish people self-control and the arts of social intercourse."

Will Ask Courts Make Ruling On Shaw's Alphabet

By DEREK JAMESON

LONDON (Reuters)—The courts will decide early next year whether George Bernard Shaw's bequest for the study of a 40-symbol alphabet is a practical proposition or just the Irish dramatist's last fling against convention.

The government public trustee, who is administering the playwright's complicated will, has asked the court how he should spend the money.

Shaw died three years ago at the age of 94 and left £367,233 ($1,030,000). Death duties ate up about half the estate.

Eye-Appeal Is Emphasized In All '54 Commercial Vehicles

By DAVID J. WILKIE

DETROIT (AP)—The auto industry is glamorizing its trucks. Eye-appeal is emphasized in all the 1954-model commercial vehicles so far introduced. Lavish use of chrome, in interiors and exteriors, and varying colors, including two-tones, are among the characteristics of the new vehicles.

The government public trustee, who is administering the playwright's complicated will, has asked the court how he should spend the money.

Truman Critical

CHICAGO (AP)—Former president Truman said Saturday night "any politician or public figure who spreads division and distrust, who engages in smears and undermines public confidence . . . is directly aiding and abetting the Communist design."

Without naming names, Truman said in a speech "the struggles for freedom" must be preserved "against the reckless assaults of unprincipled politicians."

"We must strive to preserve it against the insidious onslaughts of fear and hysteria which are being manipulated in this country for purely political reasons."

heavy-duty vehicles.

There is emphasis also on increased ease for driver and passenger. Seats have been designed for comfort. Instrument panels have been made more easily distinguishable for night driving. One-piece wrap-around windshields also have been adapted to trucks.

Engineering advances include wider adaptation of automatic transmissions and power steering, like those in passenger horsepower.

GMC trucks now have the "silent power" muffler. Two years in the making, it eliminates objectionable exhaust noise, long one of the foremost problems of the trucking industry, without reducing engine power.

Truck manufacturers this year probably will make close to 1,200,000 vehicles of varying sizes and hauling capacities.

Large-volume producers include Chevrolet, Ford, International, GMC and Dodge.

Butler Quotes Verse to Explain Old Antagonisms

LONDON (CP)—Old antagonisms between Canada and Britain have been summed up in verse by R. A. Butler, chancellor of the exchequer. He quoted these lines at a recent Canadian gathering:

"There were two moles of equal worth,
"But not it seems of equal birth.
"The one who said his blood was blue,
"Was much the bloodier of the two."

Butler said this typified old difficulties between the young Canada and the old Britain, which occasionally had had "snobbish" differences about which was the better country. Now, he said, people were beginning to realize things were pretty much equal.

Who wrote the lines? Butler later told a reporter he couldn't remember, and a search by the treasury failed to uncover the author.

Epidemiological Flight Has One Mission, to Prevent Disease

By RICHARD K. O'MALLEY

WIESBADEN (AP)—There's a United States air force unit stationed near here that will never shoot down an enemy jet or bomb an enemy target.

The USAF Fourth Epidemiological Flight has one mission: to prevent disease.

A little outfit with a big name, it always has planes at its disposal to spray DDT or to carry flight personnel to danger spots where epidemics threaten to cripple the defence effort.

U. S. personnel at Nourasseur, French Morocco, were having malaria trouble recently. The fourth went to work. A short time later Arabs in the area were kicking up a fuss about minnows in the water wells.

The fourth sprayed a mixture of DDT and oil over mosquito-breeding potholes, but native wells were another problem because DDT isn't potable. Harmless minnows were the answer. Stocked in the wells by the air force, they snapped up mosquito larvae, thus killing off the greatest source of malaria before it got started.

STICKY END

Arabs are accustomed to the minnows now. But another problem has come up: a lot of mineers are ending up in Arab brew pots.

Meanwhile the Nourasseur malaria problem has been whipped.

The Fourth is a powerhouse of scientific talent. Lieut.-Col. O. Wells, Jr., flight commander, holds a medical degree from Tulane University and a master's degree in public health. Lieut. Lawrence A. Irvine, a graduate bacteriologist, is working for his doctorate in Germany. Lieut. Donald H. Hamburg is a veterinarian. Other ranks are made up of trained technicians.

Their regular area is continental Europe, but they are called in wherever needed. Some time ago a U. S. airbase near Manchester, England, was having too much dysentery. Officials suspected food handling was the cause.

The Fourth flew to England and put on a touring show to demonstrate how food should be handled, checked, dish washing and plumbing facilities, talked with civilian employees and made pointed recommendations.

The dysentery problem disappeared.

Hamilton Ti-Cats Edge Winnipeg Blue Bombers For Coveted Grey Cup

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

OR WOULD IT?

So gently, Sweet Traffic, you fought a good fight,
If Time had turned backwards three seas in its flight,
That Cup might have slept near Fay's murmuring stream

* * *

While officially there was no seismological disturbance reported, that rumbling you might have heard was the settling back to normal of the sports-minded faithful of a nation after a temporary binge of football lunacy. There will be hangovers no doubt, but the los-packs of victory will offset the dark brown shrdcaga taste of celebration in many a Bengal throat, while out along Winnipeg's Portage Avenue and its paved tributaries, not to mention other western cities which proudly backed the Bombers, the disappointment of defeat will be tempered with, the knowledge that a great Bomber team almost won the coveted bauble with a grand gridiron achievement.

* * *

Twenty-seven thousand roasting in Varsity Stadium seated in their feet; five million radios from Victoria to Harbor Grace quivered in tubeal expectancy, and an unknown number of televisions screens delivered in satisfaction in that spine-chilling final five seconds when a yard or two of Toronto earth stood between the Bombers and a possible tie. The uproar was so great that even the announcers did not know the final gun had fired when it was over..

* * *

And speaking of announcers, if we were invited to poll three stars, the top five-pointer would go to Norm Marshall, of Hamilton, with Winnipeg's Jack Wells a close second. Those laddies should know their stuff, have fine descriptive powers and seldom miss a play or incident.

* * *

However, it's all over, and now we can settle down to find out what's going on in the National Hockey League, the city elections, Korea, the activities of the McCarthy witch-hunting serial and what junior wants for Christmas.

* * *

CEISE ONE!

A leg-weary crew of Memes didn't quite have it Saturday night in Orillia when they were edged 5-3 by the Petes in the first home-town game of the season for the Orillia club. Here's hoping that the Petes can keep playing that heart-breaker against the Kingston Goodyears Friday night, and to add to their worries, they had bea trouble onrsels.

* * *

They were stalled for an hour somewhere along the way and did not arrive in Orillia until 8.30.* They went on the ice practically "cold," but at that they gave a good account of themselves. They nearly pulled the game out of the fire in the third period when Bob Taylor fired home the rubber to bring the count to 4-3. Red Doran pulled the goalie but the strategy backfired and Payne scored the empty net insurance.

* * *

Tonight the Memes are in Kingston for the third game in four nights. The schedule, it seems, is a trifle wacky as it has teams playing three times in four nights, then changing on the bill for as long as eleven days.

* * *

The Peterborough Petes undoubtedly have used a bad scare into the Cornwall Teackmen Saturday night when they went down frightful by a 4-3 score in a hard-fought battle in Bowmanville. The Teackmen fired home the winner in the last few seconds of play and up to that point it was anybody's game. The victory gives the Teackmen their ninth win as against a single loss, while the Petes now share third spot with the Orillia Terriers.

* * *

The Truckmen, we are informed, in view of the splendid reception given them by Bowmanville and district fans plus their own from Oshawa, have permanently adopted Bowmanville as their "home hockey town." The Truckmen will sponsor minor hockey and a junior "B" club in the lakeshore town probably next season.

* * *

GOODIES LEAD!

The Kingston Goodyears' scoring aces, Don Murray and George MacGregor, continue to dominate the senior "B" point scramble with 22 and 19 points respectively. Murray tops the goalgetters with the Petes' Leonard leading the assist parade with 12. The Memes' Erwin and Edwin Duncan share fourth spot with 14 points each, having six goals and eight assists. Verne Goyer and Duke Doran are well up with eleven points. Oshawa goalie Les Colvin heads the net guardians with goals against average with 2.1. The Memes' Sarrasin shares a 6.6 average for second place with Shropshire of Orillia, but Sarrasin has played a game less.

* * *

Tonight the Memes trek to Kingston for another clash with the Goodyears and the game will be their third in four days. After tonight's tilt they don't see action again until next Saturday when they entertain the Petes.

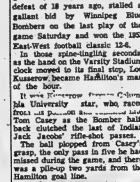
Tigers' Kusserow Man of Hour In Brilliantly-Played Game; Jacobs' Passing Magnificent



By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Hamilton Tiger-Cats, swinging a Grey Cup defeat of 18 years ago, stalled a gallant bid by Winnipeg Blue Bombers on the last play of the game Saturday and won the 1953 East-West football classic 12-6.

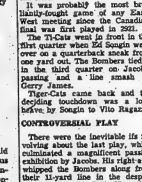
In those spine-tingling seconds, as the hand on the Varsity Stadium clock moved to its final stop, Lou Kusserow became Hamilton's man of the hour.

It was Kusserow, quarterback of Ohio University star, who raced [illegible] to intercept a pass from Tom Casey as the Bomber halfback clutched the last of Indian Jack Jacobs' rifle-shot passes.

The ball plopped from Casey's grasp, the only pass in five he had missed during the game, and there was a pile-up two yards from the Hamilton goal line.

ED. SONGIN
...Ti-Cat Tosser

The howl of 27,328 delirious fans suddenly subsided. Then a roar went up as the Tiger-Cats flung their arms in the air and ran from the field.



It was probably the most brilliantly-fought game of any East-West meeting since the Canadian final was first played in 2921.

The Ti-Cats went in front in the first quarter when Ed Songin went over on a quarterback sneak from one yard out. The Bombers tied it in the third quarter on Jacobs' passing and a line smash by Gerry James.

Tiger-Cats came back and the deciding touchdown was a long [illegible] pass to Vito Ragazzo.

CONTROVERSIAL PLAY

There were the inevitable ifs revolving about the last play, which eliminated a magnificent passing exhibition by Jacobs. His right arm whipped the Bombers along from their 31-yard line in the desperate fight against both Tiger-Cats and time.

JOE JACOBS
...Bombers' "Allie"

If Casey had been able to hang on to the ball and step over the line, if Jacobs had thrown to Neill Armstrong instead, if he had called a running play with James lugging the ball . . . no one knows what might have happened. It could have been an overtime game. 10 minutes each way in 20-minute periods until darkness.

The Tiger-Cats counted heavily on their big line, and the rough going in the mud was not [illegible]. Songin mixed his passes with swifty-striking ground plays by Bernie Custis, Merle Hapes and Kusserow.

Jacobs didn't always have the protection accorded Songin but he was adept at side-stepping, throwing while on the gallop and getting his shots away with no lost motion. The Bombers relied almost entirely on Jacobs' arm although several times James knifed into the line for good gains.

Indian Jack's big flipper set Grey Cup records. He tried 46 passes, 12 more than the previous high in attempted passes. Claude Arnold of Edmonton Eskimos tried 34 in Edmonton's losing big last year against Toronto Argonauts.

Jacobs completed 28 passes, outdistancing the old Grey Cup record of Keith Spaith of Calgary Stampeders in 1948 when he had 25 winning Montreal Alouettes.

Jacobs' average of passe-completions was also another record. Spaith's was .595. Jacobs moved the Bombers along for 226 yards with his passes. The closest to that in yardage passing was Spaith's 281 last year.

The Tiger-Cats' first touchdown followed a 54-yard drive by air and ground that started after Dick Brown ran back Casey's punt 15 yards to the Hamilton 54.

Custis went around end for four yards and three passes by Songin, to Kusserow, Jerry Thorpe and Kusserow carried Hamilton to the Bombers' 14. Smashes through center by Hapes and Custis left the ball only one yard out and Songin took it over.

Jacobs launched the Bombers on an aerial drive in the second quarter that carried to their own end with five successive passes—four each to Armstrong and Teddy Sokol and the other to Len Meltzer.

On the Hamilton 33, each time down, Jacobs faded back for another. He was smeared for a 15-yard loss on the first play. Hugger raced in to intercept a pass and set the Bruins.

Curtis' 30-yard run-back of a punt gave Hamilton a chance by rolling touchdown march of 74 yards. After Songin passed to Kusserow, Custis lost two yards when he tripped over one—of his blockers. Then, with the ball on the Hamilton 35, Songin tossed a 15-yard pass to Ragazzo, who got behind the Bombers' Geoff Crain and romped for a major.

The Bombers' fourth-quarter bid that fell short, started 11 yards from the Winnipeg goal line. In the drive to the Hamilton four there were only two line plays, a four-yard gain by James and a centre smash by Casey from the five-yard stripe. Casey made only one yard on his try.

The rest of that long stretch in the Bomber march before the famous last play resulted from Bill Cohe's short-flipped to Hapes, Keith Pearce, Casey, Bud Grant and Dick Huffman.

The win marked the fifth for a Hamilton team in the East-West series.

Canadiens Buy Dutchies Jrs.

KITCHENER (CP) — Walter Weber, president of Kitchener Hockey Limited, operators of Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, announced Friday that the club had been sold to Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

The sale price was not disclosed, but Weber discounted rumors that it was $18,000. He said that figure was "too high." However, the Canadiens had paid "a very satisfactory sum."

Sped Russell, chief scout for the Canadiens, has been appointed manager of the Kitchener team. Curly Davis will remain as coach.

The Greenshirts have been affiliated with Canadiens since entering the Junior A series three years ago.

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen moved back into first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A race Saturday night with a 4-3 win over Chatham Maroons.

The defending Allan Cup champions made their gain at the expense of the idle Windsor Bulldogs and then fought the second-place club to an 8-8 tie Sunday.

Hamilton Tigers downed Stratford Indians 5-3 for a second-place tie with Windsor and Owen Sound Mercurys edged Sarnia Sailors 6-5.

In the Northern Ontario Association Senior A southern group, Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) Greyhounds took over first place with two week end victories over the Sault (Mich.) Indians. Saturday night the Hounds downed the Indians 4-2 in the Ontario city and Sunday night Johnny Pilatheny registered his first shutout when the Hounds whitewashed the Indians 3-0 in the Michigan city. Other game scheduled, North Bay Trappers downed Pembroke Lumber Kings 9-1 and Cliff Hogan scoring three for the winners.

THEBERGE SCORES TWICE

Jerry Theberge led the Kitchener attack with a pair of goals while others came off the sticks of Hurt Hurst and Murray Brooker. Jim Connelly tallied the lone Chatham marker.

Centre Jack Taylor came up with two goals for Hamilton, the other going to Eddie Busch. Lou Bendo scored twice for Stratford and Dinny Flanagan added one.

Jerry Reid sparked the Owen Sound drive with a pair of goals. Other Mercury marksmen were Bill McComb, Roy Leckie, Buck Forslund and Ralph Hocking. Playing coach Les Douglas came through twice for Sarnia with Harry O'Connor, Clarie Jaster and Don Savage drew singles.

George Scholes scored three goals for Kitchener Sunday while Charlie Brooker, Wall Delich, Clare Martin and Herb Theberge added the others. Frank Rathgate and Gord Haidy tallied twice for Windsor with the other going to Eric Keyes, Dick Kotanen, Wally Kullman and Jackie Gordon.

Jacobs Sets Four Records In 'Passingest' Game in History

Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—The 1953 Grey Cup game was the "passingest" Dominion football final in history.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Hamilton Tiger-Cats threw more passes, completed more and dropped more than any two cup finalists ever have. Indian Jack Jacobs, Winnipeg's rubber-armed quarterback, set four individual passing records.

Jacobs threw 46 passes, 12 more than Edmonton's Claude Arnold tried against Toronto Argonauts last year. He completed 28, erasing the previous mark of 19 set in 1942 by Keith Spaith of Calgary Stampeders, His completion average of .609 compared with Spaith's 1949 mark of .594 and he gained 226 yards on passes to Arnold's 281 in 1952.

Between them, the two clubs tried 69 passes, compared with 53 in the 1952 final. They completed 39 against 34 in the 1942 Calgary-Montreal game and they missed 30, just one more than the Hamilton-Toronto game.

MISSED ONE RECORD

Jacobs' 18 unsuccessful throws matched Arnold's 1952 mark. The only individual record he missed was the average gain of 29.4 yards a pass set by Toronto's Nobby Wirkowski last year. His average of 11.5 fell far short.

The Indian's passing display wiped out his clinical showing in the 1950 final against Toronto when he completed only two in 11 tries for 23 yards. In Saturday's first quarter, his poorest of the game, he netted 44 yards on four successful efforts in nine attempts.

Neil Armstrong, Winnipeg's offensive end, was the busiest of Jacobs' receivers. He was the target for 14 throws and caught eight for a total yardage of 123, topping the club in all three departments. His average gain of 15.4 yards was topped by Hamilton's Vito Ragazzo with 28.3 and Winnipeg's Keith Pearce, 21.5.

SONGIN'S PASS LONGEST

Hamilton quarter Ed Songin's 56-yard touchdown pass to Ragazzo was the longest gain of the day. The game's emphasis on passing showed up in the statistics on ground plays. Not since 1949, when Toronto defeated Winnipeg 28-6 with a running attack that netted only 82 yards, has a club been held to anything resembling the 96 yards gained by the Bombers on ground play.

The total ground yardage of 278 for both clubs is another low since 1946, when Winnipeg and Toronto combined for 228.

Saturday's busiest ball-carrier was Winnipeg's Gerry James, whose combined yardage on 23 plunges, passes and rushbacks was 167. Next were Hamilton's Bernie Custis with 124 yards and Armstrong with 123.

Tiger-Cat fullback Merle Hapes was tops on running plays with 51 yards, 24 more than Custis. James picked up 103 yards on runbacks to fit for Custis and 45 for Hamilton's Dick Brown.

A 21-yard gallop by Custis and a 26-yard run by teammate Royall Bailey were the best gains on the ground. James had the longest runback of a kickoff, 33 yards, while Brown ran back a Jacobs punt for 16.

Teeps Continue To Dominate Junior Scene

St. Catharines TeePees continued their domination of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A circuit here Saturday night with a convincing 5-2 victory over the fifth-place Toronto Marlboros.

While the Teeps were whitewashing the Maple Leaf farm club Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts and Hamilton Tiger-Cats fought to a 6-6 overtime deadlock on Sunday, Marlies scored a 3-1 win over against Greenshirts and St. Michael's College Majors downed Guelph Biltmores 7-2.

Hugh Collins led St. Catharines to the Saturday win with a pair of goals. Pete Korval notched the other.

Garry Collins' three goals gave Kitchener-Waterloo Saturday and Greig Hicks, Graham Joyce and Glen Cressman added single. Ted Reid scored twice for Toronto, his first equalled by Ed Loutil, Joe Zorica and Mark McAuley added the others.

Tom McCarthy tallied twice for Marlboros Sunday, Wally Maxwell getting the third goal and Paul McPherson scoring Greenshirts' lone marker.

Dick Duff, Paul Knox and Bill Calvin led the St. Michael's attack with two goals each. Defenceman Marc Reaume fired the other. Bob Cleroux and John Gillis notched one each for Guelph.

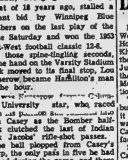
Tigers' Kusserow Man of Hour In Brilliantly-Played Game; Jacobs' Passing Magnificent



By W. E. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Hamilton Tiger-Cats, avenging a Grey Cup defeat of 18 years ago, stalled a gallant bid by Winnipeg Blue Bombers on the last play of the game Saturday and won the 1953 East-West football classic 12-6.

In those spine-tingling seconds as the hand on the Varsity Stadium clock moved to its final stop, Lou Kusserow became Hamilton's man of the hour.

It was Kusserow [illegible] his University star, who raced [illegible] Cassey as the Bombers half-back clutched the last of Indian Jack Jacobs' rifle-shot passes.

The ball plopped from Casey's grasp, the only pass in five he had missed during the game, and there was a pile-up two yards from the Hamilton goal line.

ED. SONGIN'
. Ti-Cat Toner

The howl of 27,328 delirious fans suddenly subsided, then a roar went up as the Tiger-Cats threw their arms in the air and ran from the field.

It was probably the most brilliantly-fought game of any East-West meeting since the Canadian final was first played in 1921.

The Ti-Cats went into front in the first quarter when Ed Songin went over on quarterback sneak from one yard out. The Bombers tied it in the third quarter on Jacobs' passing and a line smash by Gerry James.

Tiger-Cats came back and the deciding touchdown was a long heave by Songin to Vito Ragazzo.

CONTROVERSIAL PLAY

There were the inevitable ifs revolving about the last play, which stimulated a magnificent passing exhibition by Jacobs. His right arm whipped the Bombers along from their 12-yard line in the desperate fight against both Tiger-Cats and time.

JOE JACOBS
. . Bombers' "Allie"

If Casey had been able to hang on to the ball and step over the line, if Jacobs had thrown to Neil Armstrong instead, if he had called a running play with James lugging the ball. . . no one knows what might have happened. It could have been an overtime game, 10 minutes each way in 20-minute periods until darkness.

The Tiger-Cats counted heavily on their big line, and the tough forwards were not fooled.

Jacobs didn't always have the protection accorded Songin but he was adept at side-stepping, throwing while on the gallop and getting his shots away with no lost motion. The Bombers relied almost entirely on Jacobs' arm although several times James knifed into the line for good gains.

Indian Jack's big flipper set Grey Cup records. He tried 46 passes, 12 more than the previous high in attempted passes.

Claude Arnold of Edmonton Eskimos tried 34 in Edmonton's losing big last year against Toronto Argonauts.

Jacobs completed 28 passes, outclassing the old Grey Cup record of Keith Spalith of Calgary Stampeders in 1948 when the pass winning Montreal Alouettes.

Jacobs' league of passe...pletions was .609, another record. Spalith's was .594. Jacobs moved the Bombers along for 326 yards with his passes. The closest to that in yardage was Arnold's total of 281 last year.

The Tiger-Cats' first touchdown followed a 54-yard drive by air and ground that started after Dick Brown ran back a punt for 14 yards to the Hamilton 54.

Custis went sideways for four yards and three passes by Songin, to Kusserow. Kusserow carried Hamilton to the Bombers' 14. Smashes through centre by Hapes and Custis left the ball only one yard out and Songin took it over.

Jacobs launched the Bombers on an aerial drive in the second quarter that left deep in their own end with five successive passes between the Winnipeg line, Andy Sokol and the other to Len Meilzer.

On the Hamilton 13, and on first down, Jacobs faded back for another. He was smeared for a loss of two yards on the next play. Ragazzo raced in to intercept a pass and end the threat.

Curtis' 30-yard run-back of a punt carried Hamilton on to the winning touchdown march of 74 yards. After Songin passed to Kusserow, Custis took two yards when he tripped over one of his blockers. Then, Curtis, play at the Hamilton 50, Songin tossed a 15-yard pass to Ragazzo, who got behind the Bombers' Geoff Crain and romped for a major.

The Bombers' fourth-quarter bid that fell short, started 11 yards from the Winnipeg goal line, the drive to the Hamilton four there were only two line plays, a four-yard gain by James and a centre smash by Casey from the five-yard stripe. Casey made only one yard on his try.

The run of long stretch in the Bomber march before the famous last play resulted from Jacobs' target-finding. He nailed Keith Pearce, Casey, Bud Grant and Dick Huffman.

The win marked the fifth for a Hamilton team in the East-West series.

Jacobs Sets Four Records In 'Passingest' Game in History

Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—The 1953 Grey Cup game was the "passingest" Dominion football final in history.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Hamilton Tiger-Cats threw more passes, completed more and dropped more than any two previous finalists there. Indian Jack Jacobs, Winnipeg's rubber-armed quarterback, set four individual passing records.

Jacobs threw 46 passes, 12 more than Edmonton's Claude Arnold tried against Toronto Argonauts last year. He completed 28, erasing the previous mark of 19 set in 1948 by Keith Spaith of Calgary Stampeders. His completion average of .609 compared with Spaith's 1948 mark of .594 and he gained 326 yards on passes to Arnold's 281 in 1952.

Between them, the two clubs tried 89 passes, compared with 53 in the 1952 final. They completed 39 against 30 in the 1948 Calgary-Montreal game and they missed 36, just one more than went astray in last year's Edmonton-Toronto game.

WEEKEND ONE RECORD

Jacobs' 18 unsuccessful throws matched Arnold's 1952 mark. The only individual record he missed was the average gain of 29.4 yards a pass set by Toronto's Nobby Wirkowski last year. His average of 11.6 fell far short.

The Indian's passing display helped cut his individual showing in the 1950 final against Toronto when he completed only two in 11 tries for 21 yards. In Saturday's first quarter, his poorest of the game, he netted 44 yards on four successful efforts in nine attempts.

Neil Armstrong, Winnipeg's offensive end, was the busiest of Jacobs' receivers. He was the target for 14 throws and caught eight for a total yardage of 123, topping both clubs in all three departments. His average gain of 15.4 yards was topped by Hamilton's Vito Ragazzo with 29.3 and Winnipeg's Keith Spears, 21.5.

SONGIN'S PASS LONGEST

Hamilton quarter Ed Songin's 56-yard touchdown pass to Ragazzo was the longest gain of the day.

The game's emphasis on passing showed up in the statistics on ground plays. Not since 1941, when Toronto defeated Winnipeg 28-6 with a running attack that netted only 82 yards, has a club been held to anything resembling the 98 yards gained by the Bombers on ground play.

The total ground yardage of 254 for both clubs is another low since 1946, when Winnipeg and Toronto combined for 228.

Saturday's busiest ball-carrier was Winnipeg's Gerry James, whose combined yardage on 23 plunges, passes and runbacks was 167. Next were Hamilton's Bernie Custis with 124 yards and Armstrong with 123.

Tiger-Cat fullback Merle Hapes was tops on running plays with 51 yards, a yard more than Curtis. James picked up 103 yards on rushes, 51 for Ciihis and 42 for Hamilton's—Dick Brown.

A 31-yard gallop by Curtis and a 20-yard run by teammate Royall Bailey were the best gains on the ground. James had the longest runback of a kickoff, 33 yards, while Brown ran back a Jacobs punt for 16.

Detroit Red Wings Slap 18 Goals Past Chi-Hawks' Gelineau In 2 Games

Victories Lift Wings to Top As Habs Lose to Leafs, Blues; Howe Scores 3 Goals, Assist

By JIM BAGTAILE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

If there was a place in professional hockey books for lumpish gladiators, Jackie Gelineau would be there.

The big, strapping netminder, who left McGill four years ago for bouncy and fame in the big time, was treated brutally by Detroit Red Wings in two National Hockey League games during the week-end. Chicago Black Hawks probably are hooting for another go at him.

Gelineau, trying to make a comeback after one good year in the NHL, was beaten five times in the Chicago nets. The Red Wings, the murderers' row of hockey, beat the Hawks 8-6 Saturday and 9-4 Sunday.

In other league games, Montreal Canadiens lost 3-1 to Toronto Maple Leafs Saturday night and then travelled to New York Sunday where they dropped their first game this season against Rangers 3-1. The Leafs lost 3-1 to Boston Bruins Sunday.

The outbreak of Detroit power against the weak Chicago defence was a staggering blow for the 23-year-old Gelineau. He was brought up by the Hawks from Quebec Aces of the Quebec Hockey League last March, also of the Aces, let in 11 goals in two Hawk losses. They were subsequently traded to Montreal Canadiens, but with chickens pox.

While fresh out of McGill University, Gelineau won the outstanding rookie award in 1949-50 season when he played for Boston Bruins. He was later traded to the Hawks and failed to click with Quebec ever since.

HOWE GETS TWO

It was a bonanza for the Wings. Gordie Howe, the league's individual scoring champion, counted two goals and an assist in the first game and a goal Sunday. That gave him 19 goals and 19 assists—29 points.

Defenceman Red Kelly scored two goals Saturday while John Wilson, Wally Hamill, Metro Prystai, Marty Pavelich and Bill Dineen got single markers. Terry Reibel and John Wilson each scored two, Howe added a goal along with Pavelich, Prystai and Stasiuk.

The victories shot the Red Wings into the league lead with 21 points; one ahead of the Canadiens. The Black Hawks remained in last place with three wins and three ties in 26 games.

The Leafs in third place with 20 points, were at their best for the game against Montreal, scoring two quick goals in the first period.

Centre Rudy Migay, leftwinger Ed Smith and leftwinger Harry Watson scored for the Leafs. Defence centre Johnny McCormack tallied the only Montreal goal when he banged in Maurice Lumley at 12:38 of the second period.

It was a different story in Boston. The Leafs had their best goalie Bucar Jim Henry until Migay poked the puck from Henry's glove over the line into the net at 15:09 of the third period. The Boston goals were scored in the second period by Leo Labine and Doug Mohns.

The Rangers, who have won seven games and tied three so far, whipped the Canadiens on second period goals by Bones Raleigh and Camille Henry before 13,052 fans at Madison Square Garden.

Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion rifled one past goaltender Johnny Bower at 17:39 of the final period on a three-way play with defence man Dolgard St. Laurent and leftwinger Dick Gamble.

Baltimore Gets First Choice Minor Players

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Baltimore will have the sole berth in the eight of the late St. Louis Browns, get first pick of about 4,000 eligible minor league players today as the major league opens a five-day series of meetings.

All indications point to a light draft, comparable with the 1952 selections when only 11 players were selected from the Pacific Coast set since 1945.

Baltimore, successor to the Browns, finished last in the American League and thus first in the draft, is expected to dip into the player reservoirs of Brooklyn, New York Yankees or the St. Louis Cards.

The Dodgers have loaded talent in their Montreal roster in the International League with other choice material available at St. Paul, Ft. Worth and Mobile. However, they may man one team from among any one club unless he happens to be the unprotected 21st man in the CHOICE KEEP.

Rumors around the hotel lobby had the Cardinals dangling baseball men for the final annual conversation of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues (Minors), which opens Tuesday. Would the outfielder Wally Moon, a 23-year-old lefthanded batter who hit .362 for the Cards' Rochester farm last season.

Manager Branch Rickey, Jr., a .363 hitter at the Dodgers' Ft. Worth link, was on the Montreal roster but believed sure draft bait. The Yankees had such men as Kenny Kuenn, Bob Cerv and Jim Finigan and Jim Eagleman among others on their Kansas City eligible list.

Aces Take Over Quebec Loop Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Quebec Aces took over first place in the Quebec Hockey League during the week-end.

The Aces defeated Springfield Indians 4-1 Sunday to open a three-break a first-place deadlock with Montreal Royals while the Royals were defeating Buffalo 4-3 by the Saints in Sherbrooke.

Montreal Saguenenns, tied for third place with the Saints, downed the Hull-Ottawa Canadiens 5-3 at Chicoutimi.

Quebec, Jerry Kelly, Erwin Grosso, Jacques Cloutier and Ken Wharram tallied one each and Hartley McLeod scored twice for Springfield as the Aces reversed their Saturday 4-3 loss to the Indians.

Jimmy Moore scored two goals and Dolphis Fraschie and Pete Tremblay one each for the Saints. Chicoutimi's Bravers, who defeated Sherbrooke 5-2 Saturday, remain in the cellar.

Montreal Royals edged Ottawa Senators 4-3 Saturday. Sunday the Royals off to a good start against Sherbrooke when Vern Kaiser scored early in the first period but the Saints' Claude Provost tied the score before the frame ended.

Moe Irving and Nellie Podolsky counted in the second to put Sherbrooke one goal ahead, Skippy Bushell having counted for Montreal earlier. Eddie Bruneteau added the clincher in the final frame.

Armstrong Injury Turning Point Says Trafton

TORONTO (CP)—Lou Kasserovic, Hamilton 'Tiger-Cats' fay man in the last play of Saturday's Grey Cup final, told about it in a matter-of-fact way in the noisy Hamilton dressing room.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers, on the short end of a 13-0 score, were only four yards out. Indian Jack Jacobs, whose passing had put the Bombers there, went for another pass on second down. Tom Casey was his target.

"Well Armstrong was my man, so I figured Jacobs would throw to Casey. Then he made ready to throw; I left Armstrong and went for Casey. I hit him just as he touched the ball. If Jacobs had switched and thrown to Armstrong he would have had a touchdown."

The pass was incomplete, the ball sputting away from Casey. There was a pile-up on the ball short of the goal line and the game was over.

Coach Art Voyles, smiling broadly, said: "I think we had the game won when Armstrong went behind. I think we should have got two touchdowns more touchdowns in the first half."

BOMBERS DEJECTED

The Bombers appeared to have taken the defeat hard as they moved slowly and wearily into their dressing room. Tackle Buddy Tinsley appeared to be hardest hit.

Clipping tape from his ankles, the big lineman rubbed already-red eyes, looked up and said: "I think we could have won it there had been one more play. That close seemed to go awful fast."

Others players also remarked on how fast the time seemed to go. Neill Armstrong remarked:

"I guess the clock wasn't going any faster than usual. It just seems that way when play is so close."

Neill was holding his side as he undressed. He suffered either broken ribs or a torn cartilage early in the second quarter.

"We had to take him (Armstrong) off defence and that's when they scored the winning touchdown over Geoff Crain," said the burly coach.

"It was quite a spot to put a rookie in, but you've got to put them in some time. Let's not take anything away from Crain though. He played a great ball game and redeemed himself later by intercepting a pass."

Orillia Pontiacs Shade Memos 5-3

ORILLIA—The Belleville Memorial team being at their best, topped the Orillia Pontiacs here Saturday night by a 5-3 score in the first game played in the Commonity Centre this season.

The victory was the second for the Pontiacs and vaulted them into fourth spot one point ahead of the Memos.

The Memos appeared leg-weary after a strenuous battle with Kingston Goodyears on Friday night, and in addition they were held up in traffic en route due to bus trouble. The game did not get under way until 8.45, fifteen minutes after the Memos arrived.

At that the Memos almost pulled the game out of the fire in the dying minutes of the third period. The Pontiacs scored the only goal of the first heat, collecting the visitors 2-1 in the second stanza and matched two goals in the third, one of them as open-net affair after Memos goalie Bill Green was forced to a last-second strategy move.

Razzed Affair

The game developed into a razzed affair with the officials handing out seventeen penalties. Most to the Pontiacs, however as a touch of Alphonse-Gaston in the game as far as penalties were concerned. Each drew five to five one in the first period and could score but a goal. The Memos drew five in the third as against one but banged home a pair. On occasions the Memos and Pontiac men short hit fine defensive work but the goalkeepers put up a great sheet. Both goalkeepers Parisoli for the Memos and Dropsheff for the Pontiacs did outstanding performances.

The Memos with the travelling links not yet out of their legs held the Pontiacs scoreless in the first period with their cause behind by four penalties. It was at 2.43 in the third that Tony Duncan set a passing play with Aiken and Bruno Grigg in motion. The first rolled to the Community Centre.

Sarnoff strongly protested the goal claiming Payne was in the goal crease, but as usual, "no dice."

Bowen put the homesters two up after a minute of play in the second period, combining with Vic Grigg and Richardson on a close-in play. The Duncan Bombers and Duke Doran whistled up and down the ice but the Memos had the range hooked up in a pattern combination to score the fifth minute goal. Bruno Grigg doing the honors.

GOOD DEFENCE WORK

Keith MacDonald set the pace with goalies put on the pressure with Favero whipping home the first goal at 2.43 of the third later with Payne and Aitken drawing Rogers. The Memos with Sarnoff in full strength but with defence men doing good work in checking the homers.

GOOD DEFENCE WORK

Keith MacDonald set the pace with goalies put on the pressure with Favero whipping home the first goal at 2.43 of the third later with Payne and Aitken drawing Rogers. The Memos with Sarnoff in full strength but with defence men doing good work in checking the homers.

The Memos were all out in the third period in an effort to whittle down the score, but they had to six-bin five times and this lessened their offensive power considerably. At that "Red" Doran made it 4-1 on a solo effort after three minutes of play. The Memos and Duke Doran were outclicked on not a few occasions with Peter Jones, Dropsheff and Goyer coming close.

With a minute and a half in go Pearsall of the Pontiacs drew his team's penalty at five minutes and the Memos swarmed in with Pearsall, Bob Taylor slamming home the puck with 57 seconds to go to make the count 5-3.

Coach Doran pulled Sarnoff from the nets and the six Memos swarmed in on Shropshire a hot time. With fifteen seconds left on the clock Payne got a loose puck and scooted it down the ice into the open Memos net. And that was that.

The teams: Belleville: goal Sarnoff, Payne; defence Reds and Macdonald; centre, Ed Duncan; wings, Erwin Duncan, Duke Doran; subs: Favero, Goyer, Wardhaugh, MacDonald, Bowen, Des Jones, Dave Jones, "Red" Doran.

Orillia—goal, Shropshire; defence, Gi-Gi Pearsall; rover, Keith Bowen; wings, Richardson, Macdonald, Bruno Grigg, Aitken; subs: Vic Moore, Pearsall, McLeod, Nelson, Des Pearsall, Vic Grigg.

Referee—Stan Bodsher, Toronto; L. Doolittle.

Bisons Lead Whittled By Twin Defeats

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo Bisons are their Aces!can Hockey League lead whittled down to two slim points as a result of two week-end losses by the third-place Cleveland Barons.

Bisons were beaten 5-2 and Cleveland they absorbed a 6-4 drubbing. In the only other Saturday games, second-place Hershey Bears edged Providence Reds 6-5 in overtime.

In Sunday's games at Buffalo, Bisons were ahead 3-0 on goals by Steve Wochy, Ken Hayden and Pete Babando—first things began to happen.

Two goals by Jack Gordon and one by Ed Litzenberger gave Barons a 3-3 tieins on seven terms. Then Chuck Blair scored with less than two minutes to play, to put Cleveland ahead. Cleveland's final goal was scored into the empty net by Cal Gardner.

OVERTIME VICTORY

In Providence, Dunc Fischer's overtime tally broke a 5-5 standoff and gave the Bears a game-winning two points. Jack McIntyre led the Hershey scorers with two goals. Others were Bill Sweeney, by Obie O'Brien, George Sullivan and Bobby Solinger. Bill Ezinicki paunzil got two for the losing Reds. Other markers were scored by Ray Cyr, Paul Gladu and Paul Larivee.

Paul Knox had three wins: Cleveland 4, Buffalo 4; Hershey 7, Providence 4; Syracuse 3, Pittsburgh 2.

Stoical Jap Baseball Fans Quiet Unless The Home Team Is Winning

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP) — The thing which impressed the New York Giants most about Japanese baseball was the impassive silence of the vast crowds which turned out to witness their recent 14-game exhibition tour.

Horace Stoneham, the club president, says it had him slightly rattled until he got to the bottom of this strange characteristic of the Japanese fan.

"I asked them about it and they told me," Stone said. "It seems they don't do any yelling unless their team is ahead or at least tied. Up to that time our boys had been pounding right from the start, they explained, so there was no chance to yell. Later on we found they could make as much noise as anybody—maybe more. They're really nuts about the game."

How else does the Japanese brand of ball differ? Well, Stoneham recalled, the insolvent slinger always went over to the bench and tossed a few pitches before continuing to be showered. This is really had the Giants winging.

"There was an answer to that one, too," Stoneham said. "The pitcher is only showing us his fans that his arm isn't hurt and that he'll be ready to go again when they need him."

COULD CATCH ON

Someone commented that our pitchers had better hope a few of the tougher big league managers don't do hear of the custom unless it could give them ideas.

"The main thing you discover in a hurry about the Japanese is that they won't stand for any clowning," Stoneham continued. "They're dead serious about the game and they want you to play it that way. They'd rather get beat 15-0 and know you're better than you are than 2-0 if they think we're easing up."

Stoneham and his manager, Leo Durocher, liked what they saw of the Japanese players — three pitchers and an infielder—and indicated to try them out in their farm system next season. As a group, the Giants say, Japanese pitchers are far more reason far ahead of the country's batters.

Blue Bombers Given Hero's Welcome; Ti-Cats Not on Hand for Celebration

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers came home to a hero's welcome Sunday night as thousands of fans jammed Stevenson field and the streets and roads to cheer as if the team had won the Grey Cup.

Although Bombers lost 13-0 to Hamilton Tiger-Cats in football Saturday, a crowd of about 50,000 cheered them home at an airport reception, then a 15-mile ride through the city and at a wind-up on the grounds of the Manitoba legislature.

Another crowd greeted the players when they stopped at a suburban night club for dinner.

Everybody was looking for quarterback Indian Jack Jacobs, who almost fired the team to victory with brilliant passing.

"We want Jacobs," chanted the crowd.

"Just a minute," said coach George Trafton, "we don't want the meat before the potatoes, do you?"

It was no soapy, the usually talkative Trafton had to keep it sparingly for quiet.

"If can't hear myself think up here," he said.

Welcoming officials included Lieutenant-Governor J. S. McDiarmid of Manitoba and Mayor Garnet Coulter of Winnipeg.

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton's happy citizens thronged the downtown area here until the early hours Sunday celebrating their Tiger-Cats Grey Cup victory over Winnipeg Blue Bombers Saturday. Streetcar and firemen were kept busy as spontaneous street dances and parades choked the up town and small bottlers were set in and around the city hall.

Trash cans were set afire and rolled into the streets. Cars were overturned and bus trailey poles were unhitched from the overhead wires.

Police had to break up several teen-agers when police let harm out their energy. No arrests were reported.

Several minor fights broke out as automobile drivers jumped from their cars to grapple with young men who tried to ride the roofs. Firemen at times threatened to turn hoses on the crowds.

Police blamed much of the destruction on the chaos that the Tiger-Cat team which failed to show up for a planned civic celebration in honor of their 12-6 victory.

Pro-Egyptians Easy Winners In Sudan Vote

KHARTOUM, Sudan (Reuters)—The pro-Egyptian National Unionist party has won a landslide victory in the Sudanese elections and political observers here said today it will form the country's first government.

With only two more results still to come in, the Nationalists—who favor the Sudan's union with Egypt—have gained 44 seats in the 97-seat House of Representatives. Polling was for only 92 seats; five will be elected later.

Their nearest rivals are the Umma party—standing for independence from both Egypt and Britain—with 20 seats.

Other party standings: independents, 11; Southern party, nine; Socialist Republicans, four.

East was dealer and the bidding went along like this:

East	South	West	North
1 H	2 H	3 D	Dbl
4 S	4 NT	Pass	5 C
Pass	5 NT	Pass	6 D

As you can see, the opening bid of one heart by east was a psychic one. Without a heart in his hand, east started the phony bid to confuse the opponents. He never dreamed what it would lead to.

His replies of five clubs and six diamonds were signals for the showing of no aces and one king. These answers were demanded by his partner in the form of four and five no-trump bids.

Over the east six diamond response, south came back in with a bid of six spades. West calmly bid seven hearts that were doubled. The double of seven hearts was just what west was angling for.

This was why she made the phony three diamond bid. Also why she dangled other bids until seven hearts was reached. Wisely, she did not redouble. Opponents might get suspicious.

All this time her husband in east was having a fit. Without a trump in his hand his wife now had him in a doubled grand slam. How dumb can a woman be, he was thinking while he squirmed and glared.

But it was now too late to do anything about it as south had made the opening lead. West began laying down her dummy hand, slowly and deliberately, one at a time starting with the deuce. By the time her last card was down, east's eyes were popping out at his head.

When a mate you rate, never underestimate.

EARLY EXPERIMENTERS

The first free hydrogen balloon ascension is credited to Messrs. d'Arlandes and P. de Rozier in France in 1783.

AT THE CAPITOL—Stars Robert Mitchum and Jean Simmons, feature star of "The Robe" have dinner together in a scene from "Angel Face" suspenseful romance presented by Howard Hughes for RKO Radio release. Mitchum plays an emotionally confused young mechanic; Jean portrays a frankly psychotic heiress whose hate is soon to blaze into murder. Mona Freeman and Herbert Marshall have co-starring roles in the tense drama. On the same program, thrills and suspense in "The Manhunt" starring George Brent. Both hits are first Belleville showings and open tonight at the Capitol Theatre.

Minor Hockey

Three games were played in the bantam division at the arena on Saturday morning with the Rangers coming out on top of the Red Wings 3-1, Canadians and Black Hawks were even at 4-4 when the final whistle blew and the Maple Leafs had the first shutout of the season with a 9-0 victory over the Bruins.

Dennis Kervulak led the Rangers attack with a couple while Richard Hurst scored the other. David Coe assisted on Kervulak's first goal. Ronnie Hurst and Ian Dunn were marksman for the Red Wings.

The Canadians, spearheaded by two Kvarda with the hat trick held the Black Hawks to a tie on a last minute goal by Kvarda after the two teams had matched goal for goal all during the game. The Hawks penned the scoring on a goal by Bos botham from Murphy. Kvarda tied it from Lucas only to have Gary Lewis put the Black Hawks out front again. Grant Kvarda made the score read 3-2 for Canadians on a pair of quick ones with Hull assisting on one. McLaren and Rowebotham on a pass from Coyer shot the Hawks back out front but then came the last minute marker to end the game.

The final fixture saw two periods of scoreless hockey before Earl MacDonald banged in Brennan's rebound for the first goal and Boulter on passes from MacDonald and Brennan completed the scoring.

This crane actually lifts . . .
IT'S BUILT WITH MECCANO

When your boy builds with Meccano, he makes models that work.

If you ever had a Meccano set, you'll remember the thrill of making cranes that lifted, bridges that swung, wind mills that turned and dump trucks that actually dumped.

And didn't your Meccano set last a long time, Dad. That was one toy that didn't break.

Let your son work similar wonders with Meccano. Choose the right size Meccano outfit to suit your son's age, and add accessory outfits as he grows up. Look over the Meccano sets in your nearest toy store, this week.

Prices start as low as $1.65.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR TUESDAY, DEC. 1, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Can be a result-getting period if you bypass bickering, wasting time in useless chatter. Act in sound, sensible manner. Take an interest in whatever goes on around you.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Morning hours may be "off"; mark time, study, plan. Afternoon rays more favorable if you go out of your way to learn, test new thoughts, plans.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Assistance could come from unexpected sources. Healthy time for modernizing business methods seeking sound advice. We all can learn more.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Sturdy influences most of day. Some high expectations can be realized by devoting yourself intelligently every hour. Heart affairs may culminate in unusually happy ending.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Don't overlook the little openings that could lead to big gains. News stimulating for you engages thinkers. However don't force issues.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Agreeable aspects. Put aside personal matters until you have closed your books on duties, responsibilities. Be gay at home; watch health and you can expect much of what you seek.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Bountiful rays for you calm, resourceful Librans. Merchants, tradesmen, teachers, students can all manage to shape affairs unusually pleasant because of unselfish endeavors.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Your practical sense can be a big asset now. Use your quick thinking as a means of expediting daily tasks. Environment, associates count.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Many influences fine. However check situations involving your prestige. You can expect some outside assistance in homes, wholesale matters.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Proceed with faith. There are prospects of real success when you are in the right frame of mind. Any tension will clear eventually, so don't worry or let it "get you down."

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Be strictly on the up-and-up in all matters of personal efforts and things will move along successfully. Be ready to grasp opportunities. Meet notice. Make smart decisions.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Vibrations favor necessary duties, business and personal affairs; Stop and think before acting. Then move resolutely and achieve.

YOU BORN TODAY are blessed with a keen mind and a well-balanced outlook on life. Use these lightly and expect good returns. Your good judgment and ability to think and act impersonally and logically are big assets. You have great ambition and, if properly educated, can succeed in almost any line of endeavor.

Canada Regains North American Wheat Crown

CHICAGO (CP)—Canada won the North American wheat crown today, having won the title back from the United States.

The new wheat king is Fred W. Hallworth of Talbot, Alta., named "reward" society of hard red spring wheat growers. The award was presented at the International Livestock Exposition and Hay and Grain Show.

Hallworth's victory gave Canada the wheat king title for the 22nd time in the 31 years the competition has been held.

BRACKEN WINS PRIZE

The alfalfa crown was taken from Canada when Niels Hansen of Los Animas, Colo., won the top prize for his Buffalo variety. The reserve championship was taken by the Hon. John Diefenbaker, federal leader of the Progressive Conservative party of Canada. His entry was grown on his farm at Manchuck, Ont., 15 miles south of Ottawa.

The field peas championship was won by Foster Bros. of Aylmer, Ont., with a chancellor variety.

King Clancy Jr. shown by Lawrun Farms of Durham, Ont., placed second in the harness horse competition and Golden Glow, shown by Dr. K. E. Foster and Son of Galt, was fifth. Golden Glow also finished third in the harness horse limited to a gig event Sunday, and Fairview Flyer, owned by Ric-Ded Stables, Mount Forest, Ont., was sixth.

OTHER GOOD HORSES

Two horses owned by ABC Farms of Brampton also took honors. Gray Velvet was first in the hunters and jumpers division and Crystal Lady took the No. 1 spot in the harness ponies attached to a two or four wheeled vehicle class.

CO-EDS LEAVE THEATRE

TOKYO (AP)—Twenty Japanese college girls found the facts of life, today, right in the first line bare Sunday. A publicity-minded burlesque theatre manager lured the 2 coeds to be his guest. Kyodo news service reported that the college girls were shocked and embarrassed . . . red with confusion . . . (and) one was brave enough to cit it out to the end."

Mossadegh's Hunger Strike Ended by Chicken

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—A hunger strike by Mohammed Mossadegh ended, it appeared, at the dinner table Sunday, and the former premier—by the report of the performance—made a very important admission at his trial before a military tribunal.

Mossadegh announced the hunger strike Thursday and declared in court, "I'll be dead in three days."

The outburst came during an attempt by the court to make the defendant stick to one point—whether he gave the order for pulling down statues of the shah two days before the Aug. 19 revolution which swept the nationalist premier from power. Mossadegh is being tried on charges of trying to overthrow the monarchy.

WALKS INTO COURT

But Sunday, with a good chicken dinner under his belt without being helped, Mossadegh walked into court on the first floor since the trial began. It was the 18th day of the trial.

He finally admitted he gave nationalist mobs orders to pull down the statues of the shah. Many believe that the razing of the statues ignited the mass uprising that finally unseated Mossadegh.

On this question, Mossadegh declared, "I gave the nationalist groups the order to pull down the statues from the left-wing parties did it."

He also admitted giving the order for the arrest of Gen. Fazollah Zahedi, the new premier who was designated by the shah as Mossadegh's successor.

Naguib States Suez Deadlock Can Be Solved

CAIRO (Reuters)—President Mohammed Naguib said today that the gap between Britain and Egypt in the Suez canal dispute "is not so big" and can be solved.

He added that Stevenson's return would be "a good sign to reach an agreement."

"It all depends on Britain . . ." he added.

RESTRICT TRADE

CAIRO (Reuters)—The Egyptian minister of economy, industry and supply, Helmy Bahgat Badawi, today issued a ministerial order restricting Egyptian trade with British forces in the Suez canal zone.

The order bans the transport of food commodities and various raw materials to any city, town or village within the limits of the canal zone "except with permits from the ministry."

Food supplies and raw materials carried by Egyptian workers for their own personal use are exempted from this restriction.

Also tried, an Egyptian military tribunal sentenced 11 persons to two years' hard labor and fined them the equivalent of $14,000 each for supplying "contraband" food to British forces. A 12th man was acquitted.

Their leader's ban was announced, the Egyptian government had repeatedly denied that there was a food blockade.

CRASH KILLS TWO

NUTFIELD, Eng. (Reuters)—Mrs. Daisy Morris, 61, was in her back garden today when a single-engined monoplane somersaulted over the fence and knocked her down. She escaped with a cut face. Two men in the plane were killed.

KIDNAP AMERICAN

MANILA (AP)—The defence department declared dockyard worker Duncan saw mill manager was kidnaped by Communist Huk guerrillas. If still alive he was being held for $15,000 ransom. The manager was identified as James Porter. The U. S. embassy said it had not been informed of the incident.

Color, Clothes, Discussed By Uniondale W. I.

The extension service, "Something to Wear" was presented by the Uniondale Women's Institute, meeting at the home of Mrs. Gordon Burkitt, 4th concession of Sidney, with Bay of Quinte as guest list minute.

She pointed out how women should dress with color and style according to their height and weight. She urged the women to consider their wardrobes and to make adjustments that would make it possible to spruce up discarded clothes.

Mrs. R. Wannamaker thanked Miss Burke.

Refreshments were served by the committee in charge.

The November meeting was held at the home of Mrs. H. Wannamaker, 4th concession of Sidney with 15 members present and 3 guests.

A thank you note was read from Robert Moore by Mrs. F. Long.

A bus trip was postponed until springtime.

Readings and drivers fares to the area convention were paid.

Mrs. Wilmot Rose, the delegate, for the first day gave a very thorough report. Mrs. Milton Grills gave a report of the second day's meetings. Mrs. Grills also gave a report of Belleville General Hospital campaign.

Mrs. Bert Rush, convener for the evening, gave a short biography of each of the four women who attended the opening of parliament this year, also she gave a paper on the production and distribution of crude oil.

Miss McCullough gave a humorous reading.

SARNIA COUPLE ARRESTED
